Farmer Proves Peanuts Can Be More Profitable

Proof that peanuts following vetch and rye cover crops, properly handled as a tra-hy mulch, yield more dollars and cents per acre, and cost less to produce than peanuts planted and cultivated the old customary way, was secured by Buck Maples of the Romney No. 1 Conservation Group on adjoining portions of his farm this year. This was in addition to the wind erosion control and better soil condition, which should result in better future crops on the protected land.

As the season advanced, Buck scanned the sky for rain clouds, watched the sand rolling on part of his own, and neighboring clean-tilled fields, and continued to defer plowing his cover crop, preferring to risk the loss of a peanut crop, rather than have his land blow.

In the meantime he had gone ahead on his clean land, using the common system of listing and putting down his fertilizer, followed by "bedding back" on top of the fertilizer. Before planting, it was necessary to sweep the beds twice for weed control.

Finally, in the early part of May, the Romney Conservation Group, along with representatives from the local Soil Conservation Work Unit, Kateran's Vocational School, Vantage Pl. Agriculture Department, and implement dealers, also Smith and Barney Curgle, met to observe field trials of different methods of handling the cover crop residue, so as to leave as much as possible on the surface, for erosion control.

As a result of this meeting, Buck decided to run under the rye with large, flat sweeps, and on June 3, he swept in the small furrow left by the sweeps. In planting, he used a soil sweep, without butters and ran just deep enough to push the straw to the side, leaving a 6 inch, clean row for planting the peanuts.

About this time, Buck purchased one of the rainages being distributed by the Upper Leon Soil Conservation District, so that he would later know the exact amount of rainfall he had received during the growing season.

His first cultivation was done with knives, running down in the clean row, and extending out

Fort Worth Stock Show Opens January 28th

Fort Worth.—A dozen marching bands and numerous out-of-town mounted groups will take part in the downtown parade here at 2 p. m. Jan. 28 heralding the opening of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show.

Riders from all parts of Texas are invited to participate. Outside the bands and a B-36 float, only horses and horse-drawn vehicles will be included. No permit is required.

Visitors also may view a ground and aerial review at 10:30 a. m. Jan. 28 celebrating the seventh anniversary of the 8th Air Force. All available B-50s and B-50s will be seen. Several former commanders of the 8th Air Force will attend.

Judging of fat steers and lambs, in both boys' and open classes will be held Thursday, January 27, with animal auctions of both groups the next morning. All championship animals will remain on exhibition throughout the 10-day show.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lewis of De Leon visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Fenter, last week.

der the layer of trashy mulch with a small 4-inch A-harrow following to destroy the grass in the row.

In the severe sandstorms which followed in the latter part of June his clean-tilled peanuts, which, up to now had been doing well, were severely burned, while those in the trashy mulch received no damage.

By the time of the second cultivation the straw had rotted well enough that Buck could cultivate his peanuts altogether with his cultivator sweeps.

When his crop was made, Buck had cultivated the clean-tilled peanuts four extra times, twice more before planting, and twice more afterward.

His rainage record for planting to harvest time, only 5.3 inches, which was decidedly low.

Employers Must File Social Security Tax

It's time for employers to file their quarterly social security tax returns again, but the Social Security Administration doesn't want your money! Ralph T. Fisher, manager of the Abilene office, says that his office again received a number of tax returns, with money enclosed, which should have been sent to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

When mailed, the quarterly social security tax returns should be sent to the Collector of Internal Revenue, Dallas, Texas. When sent by error to the social security office, returns are delayed in reaching Internal Revenue, Fisher explained.

He reminded employers who have not yet completed the return for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1948, that they should exercise care in reporting the complete name and exact social security account number of each employee who worked, for no matter how short a period, during October, November, and December. The return must be filed not later than January 31, 1949.

Persons wishing to file retirement or death claims under the Social Security Act, or persons who have social security questions to ask, should meet the social security representative of the National Field Office of the Abilene office, who will be at the Eastland Army Recruiting office at 10 a. m. Thursday, January 27.

The Turkey Who Came To Dinner

McAllen.—Twelve years ago Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fields bought a 3-pound turkey for their Christmas dinner. But the bird seemed so small they decided not to kill it that year. By the time the next Christmas rolled around, the turkey had become such a pet, no one had the heart to chop its head off. So the years have passed, and Mr. Turkey now weighs 35 pounds, and is like a member of the family. No one talks of eating him any more.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO Released by WNU Features.

By INEZ GERHARD

THAT favorite line of radio masters of ceremonies, "Almost anything can happen, and probably will," certainly applies to the entire industry at the beginning of the new year. Jack Benny, the only star who actually owned his own time, switched from NBC to CBS after 17 years at the old stand, leaving a worried network behind him. W. A. Fred Allen again muffled an 11 retirement and Al Jolson joined in the chorus, with Edgar Bergen, waving off the air—with an eye on television—the whole set-up is changing. Only the daytime serials, with high audience ratings despite the critics' jibes, promise to go on forever.

In case you missed Perry Como's Christmas Eve "Supper Club" show—Perry's eight-year-old son, Ronnie, was to introduce his fellow-chorists from their church to Perry, to join them in singing. But he got a shove that he wouldn't try to help, Perry asked, "But you know these boys' names, don't you?" said Ronnie, "No."

Samuel Gold announces that he will stage "The Golden Boy," super-musical, this year. Star alumnae Goldwyn Girls include Betty Grable, Luella Ball, Paulette Goddard, Virginia Bruce and Jinx Falkenburg.

Lou Bunin's "Alice in Wonderland" is done as the famous story should be screened, with Alice a real girl, and the imaginary characters she meets, puppets. These are special puppets, created by Bunin, a sculptor with extensive experience in movie-making. His puppets representing gross characters were seen in MGM's "Ziegfeld Follies." The film is released by Eagle-Lion.

Olivia DeHavilland seems sure of an Oscar for the year's best performance by an actress. The New York Film Critics gave her their award, as did the National Board of Review, which selected "The Snake Pit" as one of the 10 best pictures. New York's critics chose "The Treasure of Sierra Madre" as the best, though "The Snake Pit" was among the first four.

Ann Blyth thinks it was prophetic. Recently she bought a new home. Previous owners had cut a huge shamrock in the front gate. Immediately after moving in, Ann was signed for the very Irish "Top of the Morning."

The new "Take It or Leave It" procedure means that you're on the air if you are lucky enough to have Gary Moore call you. But you will have a whole week in which to prepare for winning that $640 jackpot.

Cast and crew members of "The Second Mrs. Burton" pays a fine if they're late, fluff lines, etc. Learning that a recent family counselor, Mrs. L. V. Douglas, was principal of a public school which has special classes for handicapped children, they emptied the money box and gave her its contents—$50—to be used for presents for the youngsters.

His best friends won't be surprised if Groucho Marx some day appears on the legitimate stage in a Shakespeare play. Groucho, one of the best ad-libbers of our time, thoroughly enjoys his weekly ABC stint on "You Bet Your Life." But he has been a student of Shakespeare for years and cherishes a secret ambition to appear in one of the Bard's plays—in a straight role.

Repentance: Seed and Fruit NEVERTHELESS the Voice spoke truth.

He made them see how unfit they were for the Kingdom of God for which they prayed; he broke down their pride; they were bent down to the Jordan and were baptized under the open sky.

When men asked him, What shall we do? John did not have the full-weaver, but he did make plain two things about the good life, the life that pleases God: it cannot even begin without repentance and confession of sin, but it does not end there.

No Greater Prophet

Lesson for January 23, 1949

"OF ALL the characters in history, which one do you admire most?" We know how Jesus answered that interested question.

He had a great array of personages from whom to make his selection.

But he took as the Great Man of all time, up to his own generation, no heroic figure from the past, no king, general, scholar or prophet. The greatest man, for Jesus or at least one so great that he could think of none greater—was a cousin of his who was in jail at the time when Jesus said of him, "Among those born of women none is greater than John. Known to us as John the Baptist, that is, John the Baptist."

John of the Jordan

WE DO NOT know how much Jesus himself owed to John. We do know that John was the man who first called the public's attention to Jesus. John it was who gave some of Jesus' most important disciples their first training; John who introduced to Jesus and turned over to him, some of his own followers.

Some Christian scholars have gone so far as to suppose that it was John's preaching that stirred the young carpenter from Nazareth to leave his shop and begin his great work as teacher.

Whether this is so or not, we do know that it was by baptizing by John which led to the baptism of Jesus, and that Jesus' baptism was the turning-point between Jesus' private life and his short and stormy public career.

Only a Voice

JOHN'S own picture of himself is not a picture at all. When they asked him to say what he was, and half-expected him to declare that he was the Messiah, the long-looked for King, John said only, "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness."

John, so far as we know, never accepted dinner invitations, he was never under the roof of any friend, and he had no roof of his own.

But Jesus was always in people's homes. That is one reason why the greatness of John fades before the greatness of Jesus; for a Voice makes poor company. Jesus had the human sympathy that John lacked, and John well knew this. "He must increase, but I must decrease," he said.

Repentance: Seed and Fruit

NEVERTHELESS the Voice spoke truth. John must have been a powerful preacher, for his meetings were held miles from the nearest town, so that to reach him from Jerusalem one would have to travel through wild country infested with bandits. Few modern preachers, without benefit of advertising, music or choir, without even a tent, would dare to start a revival meeting 15 rough miles out of town. But John did—and the people came in crowds. We do not have the full report of his preaching that we have of the preaching of Jesus, but we do know that he broke the hard crust of his listeners' conscience.

He made them see how unfit they were for the Kingdom of God for which they prayed; he broke down their pride; they were bent down to the Jordan and were baptized under the open sky.

When men asked him, What shall we do? John did not have the full-weaver, but he did make plain two things about the good life, the life that pleases God: it cannot even begin without repentance and confession of sin, but it does not end there.

Repentance is not a simple granite milestone on life's way; it is a seed which if it is real will bear fruit.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSES By Roger Whitman

QUESTION: I have a room covered with 12-inch knotty pine planking. I would like to keep it as light as it is now, while it is still in the raw. Could I apply white shellac, then the type of wax that is used on automobiles, and then buff it? If the occasion should arise, how would I clean the walls with benzol and then again apply the wax? Have you any other suggestions?

ANSWER: The present color will darken slightly no matter what you apply. You can use your top-quality pure white shellac, thinned half-and-half with denatured alcohol. Then follow with the wax, but I would prefer the type that is adapted to indoor work and furniture, rather than the wax that is used for polishing cars. They are made by the same manufacturer. If you need to clean the wood at some later time, you could use a type of wax that is intended for cleaning soiled wax, and follow by re-waxing with the other wax. A good finish also could be obtained with a penetrating wax, which comes in clear colors as well as combined with a wood stain. This gives a somewhat dull finish, but can be brightened with a clear paste wax.

The final yields, according to figures supplied by Buck, were 8.6 bushels per acre on the clean cultivated land, and 14.8 bushels per acre where he had used the cover crop, and trashy mulch tillage.

Mr. Maples final conclusions were, "Wind erosion can definitely be controlled on deep sandy peanut land, where contour strips are planted to help the cover crop get started during windy falls, and where residue is maintained as a trashy mulch as long as possible after planting peanuts. I intend to run sweeps under my cover crop earlier next year, as I want to conserve all the moisture I can, and have learned that by leaving the dead cover on top of the soil, wind erosion can be controlled."

Always the Best Peanut Seed

It costs no more to cultivate a GOOD stand of peanuts than it does a poor stand—so why not buy peanut seed that you can always depend on to give you a perfect stand?
