POULTRY SHOW AT STATE FAIR TEXAS GOOD

W. H. Stratton, secretary of the Fair Association, recently announced that, in keeping with the increased value of Southwestern poultry pro-ductions, the State Fair of Texas would materially increase the pre miums offered annually for poultry exhibits, and this announcement is followed by the statement that a di vision has been created for pigeons and that a special building is being constructed to house the exhibits in this new class. Better facilities have likewise been provided for the exhibits of ducks, and a large duck pond is now in course of construction. In the main section of the poultry division increased space has been al lotted for the exhibits of all standard and utility breeds, and present indications are that each breed will have a large following. Numerous requests for entry blanks have been received from the premier poultry fanciers of the Southwest, and there is every reason to believe that the best and biggest poultry show ever seen in the South will be a part of the 1916 State Fair of Texas.

Entries in the poultry department will close Wednesday, October 11 and poultr" fanciers who contemplate making an exhibit at the Fair should send in their entries promptly.

Lucky Marin Sais; She Got Her Wish

Many photoplay fans will perhaps remember reading an interview with Marin Sais some months ago in which she declared, "I wish I could only play in a picture of the outdoor west again, with plenty of riding and perhaps a little shooting and all that." Marin was at that time appearing in "The Social Pirates," and it seemed that she would never again be seen astride a

And then she made her wish. Now "I'm the happiest girl on earth," chatters Marin as she bustles about the studio, the gayest player in the com-

Here's the whole story. For many months exhibitors and fans have been writing to the producers asking for pictures of the west. "You gave us westerns years ago when picture making was crude. But you haven't given us westerns in recent years when pictures are so finely and carefully produced. Our patrons are getting tired of morbid sickly themes, give us the healthy west for a change." The demand started slowly-but it gained in strength steadily. One picture manufacturer decided, "The fans and exhibitors are right. But I'll go them one better. I'll give them high quality pictures with the dash and vigor of the old westerns, but I'll show them a west they have never seenthe new west, the west of irrigation projects, oil fields and the real mining and ranch life." All this round about way did events work to bring Marin Sais the fulfillment of her wish.
