Student Flier Arraigned for Theft Charges

(By International News Service)

Norris, 30 faced arraignment today on charges that while he was a student aviator at Kelly Field, San Antonio, he found time to return to Oklahoma and rob a bank at Breckenridge, Oklahoma, county authorities said. Lowell Offers Credit Fund To New Factories

(By International News Service)
 LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 21.—With its new modern airport dedicated and in operation, the City of Lowell quickly subscribed an industrial credit fund of $300,000 after an original goal of $250,000 had been over subscribed in short order.

The Industrial Credit Fund, a project of the Lowell Chamber of Commerce, is now organized and in operation. Through it, Lowell citizens by pledging their own credit, have created a credit fund which has made possible rapid establishment of credit relations for prospective new industries, and has facilitated credit arrangements for numerous existing industries in the city, the growth of which it is believed, will be accordingly stimulated.

The credit fund will be administered by a board of 10 directors consisting of one representative from each of five local banks and five directors appointed by the Chamber of Commerce. The directors will pass upon all applications for loans under the credit fund guarantee and will decide which of these should receive the benefit of the fund's guarantee and to what extent and under what conditions they should receive it. All of the directors are subscribers to the fund.

Prospective loans to industries will be made by banks, not by the credit fund direct, the latter being used only as collateral guarantee. The Appleton National Bank of Lowell as trustee of the credit fund will not only hold obligations of the subscribers, but will also hold and enforce all other collateral furnished for loans made under the credit fund guarantee.

Under the terms of the credit fund agreement, no more than 75 per cent of the total effective strength of the fund can ever be outstanding at any one time and no more than 20 per cent can be used for the assistance of any one interest or group of interests.

English Girl As Channel Hope In Stiff Training

(By International News Service)
 LONDON, Aug. 21.—Getting ready to swim the Channel is one of the hardest jobs in the world.

So says Miss Laddie Sharp, the 18-year-old Lewisham girl, who is regarded as one of England's strongest chances to carry off honors in the Channel swimming derby this year.

"I get out of bed at the dot of seven in the morning," Miss Sharp said in outlining her training schedule. "I walk until 8:30 and then breakfast. Then comes a four hour swim at full speed against the tide.

"After lunch, I take two hours rest, and then a massage. After dinner I take another walk, and then into bed at 9 o'clock sharp.

"Proper food is important. I am very fond of raw steak for dinner, and sometimes I also have a glass of stout, because stout is fattening and the fatter you are the more buoyant you become."

Channel swimming apparently is one field of feminine endeavor where the raw-boned flapper has no place.

"One of the greatest thrills, in training," Miss Sharp continued "is whales. I have met many of them while swimming by night off Folkstone, and some have been 16 feet long.

"Training of this sort is hard work, but it is healthy and fine for the constitution."

Miss Sharp is but one of many aspirants who are training for channel onslaughts this year. There are at least a dozen men and women who hope to share some of the fame enjoyed by Gertrude Ederle by making successful crossings.

Miss Sharp is being trained by Jabez Wolfe, who for several years has been identified with channel swimming. One of the hopefuls is Ishak Helmy, the giant Egyptian who has been trying to swim the Channel for as long as any of the beach veterans can remember.

FLAMING YOUTH IS "NOT SO HOT" SAYS N. E. A. DIRECTOR

BERKELEY, Calif., Aug. 21.—"Flaming youth is really 'not so hot' considering the complexity of present social and economic life, so says Miss Margaret M. Altteker, assistant director in the National Education Association of Washington, D. C., here as a member of the summer session faculty at the University of California.

Were it not for the sensationalist, the public never would have heard of flaming youth, she says.

Change in social conditions and standards has necessitated the public school, to assume a greater responsibility for moral growth. And education has borne that responsibility successfully, she believes.

Education today seeks to establish three prerequisites in the development of moral conduct. First it strives to make the child recognize the proper thing when he sees it, second, it seeks to develop the child's ability to do that right thing after he sees it, and third it tries to develop the child's will to do it after he first recognizes it and knows that he can do it.

Carrier Hurt In Car Wreck

An Abilene Morning News carrier was slightly injured when the car in which he was bringing a quota of papers for Ballinger, Coleman and Taipa here over turned at a culvert six miles from here on the Abilene highway early Tuesday morning. He sustained a scalp cut above his left ear, but the wound was not serious.

The carrier said that the car overturned when a front wheel cut over the end of the culvert, which he did not see, about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. The automobile, a new Whippet speed delivery car, was considerably wrecked. The driver went to a farm house for aid, and the farmer brought him into the city with his papers. The farmer also experienced a mishap to his car, a rear axle being broken immediately after the car had crossed the railroad. The news carrier covered the remaining distance to the post office on foot, carrying his bundles of papers.

COLORED PORTER'S LUCK BREAKS NOTED LOTTERY IN DENVER CHINATOWN

(By International News Service)
 DENVER, Aug. 21.—"Hop Alley" Chinese gambling hang-out located in lower Denver, has lost one of its chief sources of revenue. The lottery is closed. Police long ago gave up trying to solve the secret passages and cunning trickery commonly known to exist in an alley for every time the law appeared the dark dingy walls seemed to swallow all gambling devices and games of chance.

But one day when a colored porter from his regular journey in his Pullman railroad car he invaded Chinatown because he said, he felt a lucky streak. Around his neck he wore a rabbit's foot, suspended on a fish cord that had been drawn thru the waters of Cherry Creek, Underneath all this, he kept his toes crossed the entire time.

Round one, and the darkey won Round two, and he won again. Round three, four and five saw the performance repeated. The Chinaman became excited. Their luck had departed. Before the game ended, the darkey had won $1,900 the entire stake of the establishment.

The Lottery is closed.

Not only is Runnels county vitally concerned over the outcome of the proposed road bond issue, but this entire section of West Texas, and the state as a whole, are interested in the project. Good road programs affect the progress not only of sections, but of the South. Advancement noted in the poorest counties of Texas acquiring good road systems would serve as a beneficial revelation to counties without good roads, but contemplating such undertakings.

Many citizens and especially those residing on Eighth Street, have expressed satisfaction over the traffic condition obtained on that street since Policeman McCarver has been patrolling it. Habitual speeders have disappeared, or have at least throttled their cars down to a sane speed, they say.

Commission To Discuss National Motor Bus Law

(By International News Service)
AUSTIN, Aug. 20.—Call for a conference of railroad commissions, motor bus directors and bus line operators of seven Southwestern states, to be held at Amarillo, Sept. 6, for the purpose of discussing possible means of regulating interstate motor bus traffic in the absence of federal legislation, has been issued by the Railroad Commission.

The states to be included in the conference in addition to Texas and Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona. Regulations will probably be drafted by the conference for recommendation as to the character of federal regulations deemed necessary and for submission to the various congressmen from the states represented.

Pending the enactment of suitable federal laws, an effort may be made to agree on a system of reciprocity among adjacent states in granting or refusing interstate permits to interstate lines.

It is felt by the Texas Railroad Commission that the interstate phase of bus traffic is one of the main problems in state regulation.

Salesman Is Twice Arrested For Theft Of Own Automobile

A salesman held in the custody of nightwatchman, C. B. Armstrong, here for a short time Monday night can appreciate to some degree the feeling of an automobile thief who is apprehended. This same salesman experienced the excitement of being temporarily arrested, and approached for arrest the third time, in brief day.

And it all grew out of appearances that he had stolen a car—his own car.

W. I. Jones, tobacco and cigarette salesman making this territory, with headquarters in San Angelo, discovered Sunday afternoon that his car had disappeared from the hotel in front of which it was parked in that city, and immediately notified policemen of the theft. Early Monday morning the automobile was recovered intact evidently having been "borrowed" by some joy seeker.

But Jones failed to obtain a transfer from the desk sergeant in police headquarters, and there by brought on himself the resulting embarrassments.

Officers in all surrounding towns had been notified of the theft, and furnished with a description of the car, together with highway numbers. As he was passing through Miles Monday afternoon he was halted by a deputy, and held until his statement that it was his car he was driving had been verified thru a telephone communication with San Angelo police officials.

Reaching Ballinger he was accosted by Chief of Police McCall, who was convinced that Jones was the owner of the car, after the latter had presented identification credentials. However, the salesman did not fare so well with nightwatchman Armstrong who declined to release him until he had assured himself that the man was not an impostor.

"Now I fear to leave the city," Jones said Tuesday morning. "There is no guessing how many more times I shall be hauled in other town I am to make."

Judging by the apparent alertness of officers in this section, a car thief would have meager chances of escape, declared Jones, who came from Paris to West Texas recently.

PARIS STYLE HINTS

(By International News Service)

One Piece Dress Leading Novelty
PARIS, Aug. 21.—The one-piece frock which is really made truly cut in just one piece is the leading novelty of the late summer collections which are now being shown. It is a true Paris invention.

It is easy enough to produce something chic with godets, gorges, flounces, etc., when they are all joined by seams. But to just use one length of material for the whole creation is a feat worth writing about. One of the most striking of these one-piece models comes in white crepe with bands of yellow, red and black interstred upon it in the fold-over top which reminds one a bit of the old Greek tunic. Below this comes expert draping which produces the slender girdle effect, the skirt falling in a soft fold at the left side. The sleeves with three little bands of color at the cuff are really the only separate pieces to the frocks.

Nicole Groult is now making a lovely one-piece creation in supple red crepe. There are varied pieces that wind about the figure and drape into long separate points giving the frock both chic and shape. One cannot tell where they begin or end but they come from the one long length of fabric. The side effect is a veritable problem in solid geometry which, however, does not prevent it from being extremely chic.

All of these one-piece gowns are simplicity personified. Cut and material are paramount.

Trimming is nil. One in the new jersey tricot with silver or gold threads is charming for sport wear because there is no trimming to interfere.

SORRY, Jane, but I simply can't go into town today. This is my Kitchen Club day, and I never miss a meeting if I can help it.

"Kitchen Club, Nancy?" came the voice at the town end of the telephone. "What kind of a club is that? I can't imagine an artist's being interested in kitchens!"

"Well, for one thing, idiot, it's shown me that it takes a greater artist to keep house than it does to paint pictures. You catch the next train, and come out here, and I'll take you to a meeting."

The Kitchen Club to which Nancy Gordon and her neighbors belonged was quite an unusual development for a suburban group of modern young women, most of whom were artists or writers in addition to being the wives of "rising" young business men.

It had grown out of a visit they made to the rectory, to fix up the kitchen there before the new rector and his wife came. Nancy had suggested a new color scheme; someone else had rearranged the furniture; others had stocked the shelves with good things to eat. And before they were through, all the women were envying the rector's wife her new kitchen.

One of them said: "I wish you girls would come over and help me dress up my kitchen." And that began it. They went, made suggestions for improving the kitchen and received in return some most delicious refreshments with the recipes written out for everybody to take home.

After that it became a regular institution, every meeting bringing out new ideas for kitchen improvement, and new recipes. There were no officers, except that each member acted as secretary, writing up in a "Kitchen Club Notebook" the new ideas she received from the other members.

LEAVES FROM NANCY'S KITCHEN CLUB NOTEBOOK

If Jane will come out here often, she will get ashamed of giving her husband delicatessen stuff, and will cook him some real food. Mrs. Gray served us the most delicious refreshments this afternoon. Here are the recipes:

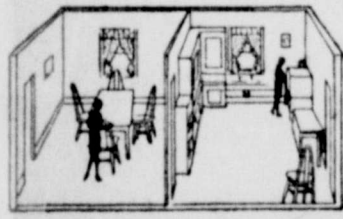

New Recipe for Chicken Salad

Dice the meat from one chicken boiled tender, and salted before it is removed from the fire. Add three chopped hard-boiled eggs, one cup diced celery, one-half cup chopped sweet pickle, and three-fourths of a cup of freshly toasted, salted nuts. Season with salt, celery salt and pepper. Mix with enough olive oil mayonnaise to moisten.

Cheese Tea Biscuits

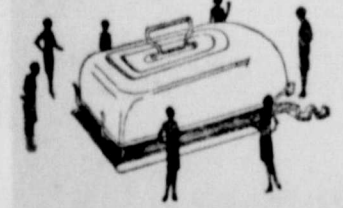

1 quart flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 scant teaspoon soda
1 lump of lard the size of an egg
4 tablespoons grated cheese
Buttermilk to make soft dough

Bake at once in a quick oven. She uses a live heat oven which can be set over one burner of an oil or gas stove, leaving the rest of the stove free for other cooking.

Rearranging an Old-Fashioned Kitchen

Mrs. Gray's kitchen was so large that she wore herself out trying to get around in it. We suggested two things: to group all her furniture in one end, using the other end for a breakfast room; or to put up a wall-board partition, making a separate room to be used for a breakfast room. She decided on the latter. Sketch shows how it will look.

New Covered Broiler

Mrs. Gray has a new kind of covered broiler that cooks meats on both sides at once. It's used on top of the stove. The cover keeps odors from spreading. She says the broiler is fine for baking biscuits as well as for broiling.

Plan Movies Of Animal Life To Keep In Future

(By International News Service) CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Rapidly dwindling animal life and vegetation of today will be preserved for posterity by motion pictures to be filmed in the wild life of North America, it was announced here by officials of the Chicago Academy of Science.

To photograph the thousands of specimens will require many years, Alfred M. Bailey, director of the museum of the academy announced.

Subjects in the Chicago area will be photographed first with the field of operations gradually broadening until the entire continental area is included. State and federal authorities and private individuals will be asked to help in completing the mammoth project.

"Even now mammalogists speak of the passing of the age of mammals and nature lovers are crying for the preservation of wild flowers. In some instances the government, realizing the coming extinction of certain species, has set aside areas to preserve animal life for future generations," said Director Bailey.

"Special species of wild life still within the memory of men living today have either now disappeared or have become exceedingly rare.

The motion picture machine arrived to late to preserve for mankind a visual picture of the vast herds of bison that once roamed the western plains.

The great auk and the Eskimo carlew have disappeared. The ivory-billed woodpecker and the Carolina parakeet are nearing extinction.

"There are many causes for the extinction of species of wildlife. Chief among these is the ever-increasing army of hunters and the march of civilization. Soon many more species will be gone, never to be replaced.

But with the aid of the motion picture camera and proper preservation of films, wild life in all its phase may be presented to our great-grandchildren in the forms we see it today. It is for this reason we are launching this project."

Says Public Is Concerned Over Proposed Rail Strike

J. W. Higgins, chairman of the Conference Committee of Managers of the Western Railways, today made the following statement:

"The refusal of the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen to arbitrate certain differences between them and the western railroad creates a situation of great concern to the public. The Watson-Parker Railway Labor Act was passed by Congress only two years ago, affording a peaceable means of settling such differences. It was drafted by representatives of all the railway labor organizations and a majority of the railways and its passage was urged by both of them. Persistence by the conductors and trainmen in their refusal to arbitrate would amount to a repudiation of this law.

On June 25, 1927, an arbitration board formed under the Watson-Parker Railway Labor Act, made an award in a wage dispute between the western railways and their conductors and trainmen. It held that the fact that employees of these classes on eastern and southeastern lines recently had been granted an increase was no reason why an advance should be granted in western territory, because road conductors and trainmen in road service in the west previously had been earning 6 1-2 to 7 1-2 per cent more than those in the east and southeast, and because, as the roads of the western group were earning relatively much smaller net returns than those of the east and southeast, they could not afford to pay an advance. While refusing an advance to conductors and trainmen in road service, the arbitration board awarded an advance of 7 1-2 per cent to the yardmen of the western lines.

"The award was effective until March 1, 1928, but in November, 1927, the conductors and trainmen renewed their demand upon the western railways for advances. Because of wage negotiations that were pending between the western railways and their locomotive engineers and firemen, negotiations between the committee of managers and representatives of the conductors and trainmen were not begun until July 16. Meantime the firemen secured an advance of 6 1-2 per cent by arbitration, and the engineers accepted a settlement on the same basis without arbitration.

"The Conference Committee of Managers was willing to give the conductors and trainmen equivalent to those received by the engineers and firemen, but asked for the elimination of certain rules which are not in effect in any other territory. These are rules arbitrarily restricting the use of more than one locomotive on a train and also the number of cars that may be hauled in train with two locomotives. They thus restricted the efficiency and economy that may be attained in operation.

"Desiring to effect an early and satisfactory settlement, the Conference Committee of Managers on August 1, after two weeks of negotiations, offered to grant the conductors and trainmen either an advance of 6 1-2 per cent in wage without any change in rules, or an advance of 7 1-2 per cent if they would agree to elimination of the restrictive rule in question. Either offer would raise their wage rates and earnings above the highest in history, that is the rates awarded by the United States Railroad Labor Board in 1920. The representatives of the employees refused to accept either of these propositions but insisted, as a minimum,

THERE is nothing that has ever taken the place of Bayer Aspirin as an antidote for pain. Safe, or physicians wouldn't use it, and endorse its use by others. Sure, or several million users would have turned to something else. But get real Bayer Aspirin (at any drugstore) with Bayer on the box, and the word genuine printed in red:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Mannesmannwerk of Salsgitterstadt upon the retention of the rules and an advance of 7 1-2 per cent. As previously stated, the engineers and firemen already have accepted 6 1-2 per cent. It is estimated that, without any change of rules, an increase to the conductors and trainmen of 6 1-2 per cent would cost the western railways $6,500,000 a year, while an increase of 7 1-2 per cent would cost $1,000,000 more.

"Mediation between the two parties has been conducted by the Honorable John Williams, a member of the United States Mediation Board. Mediation having apparently failed, the Conference Committee of Managers asked Mr. Williams to his good offices to bring about arbitration of the matter still in dispute. What this meant was simply that there should be arbitration as to whether the objectionable rules in question should be eliminated and the employees should be given an advance of 7 1-2 per cent, or the rules should be allowed to stand and they should be granted the same advance as has been received by the engineers and firemen.

"There has been no favorable change in conditions on the western railway since an arbitration board held on June 25, 1927, that their road service conductors and trainmen were not entitled to any advance in wages. The railways of this territory are still falling far short of earning a 'fair return' and are earning a relatively much smaller return than those of eastern or southeastern territory. The Conference Committee of Managers has offered the settlement it has with the conductors and trainmen because the engineers and firemen of these lines already have secured increases. It seems clear the conductors and trainmen are not entitled to larger increases than those received by the engineers and firemen, but the Conference Committee of Managers has even offered to leave the arbitration the remaining questions in dispute.

"In refusing to accept the actually generous offer of arbitration made by the Conference Committee of Managers the representatives of the conductors and trainmen acted in plain disregard of the spirit and purpose of the Watson-Parker Railway Labor act and thereby are imperiling its usefulness as a means of peaceful settlement of wage controversies between railways and their employees."

HYSTERICAL
South Carolina Lady Then Tried Cardui and Says She Noticed Remarkable Improvement.

Anderson, S. C.—"I suffered a long long time, before I tried Cardui, and my only regret is that I did not know about it sooner," says Mrs. Lillie Pruitt, 130 "K" Street, this city.

"I was badly run down in health. My nerves went to pieces, and I had to go to bed. I was not able to do my house work for many months.

"I got so bad off, I could not bear to have anybody walk across the floor of my room. The least little thing upset me. Sometimes I became hysterical. I had bad pains in my back and sides, and my head and limbs would take spells of aching, which almost set me wild.

"One day I was reading and I saw where a woman, who had a trouble like my own, had been relieved by Cardui. I decided at once to try it; so I began on a course of the 'Home Treatment.'

"It began to help me from the very first. I took Cardui regularly, for several months, and my improvement was so remarkable, that my family and friends were delighted.

"Cardui has no equal, in my opinion. I gladly recommend it to others."

18,000 A. E. F. MEN IN U. S. HOSPITALS

25,727 Additional Shattered Veterans Under Care of Veterans' Bureau.

Washington.—In a few months the United States will celebrate the tenth anniversary of the conclusion of the World War. Yet, according to Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, there are still in hospitals today more than 18,000 ex-service men who are undergoing treatment for disabilities due to their war service. The bureau is operating more than 50 government-owned hospitals at the present time. In addition, it is using every other government hospital, as well as 305 civilian hospitals, for the care of disabled American veterans. Under guardianship are 25,727 veterans who are incompetent to take care of their own affairs.

"The annual appropriation this year for the activities of the Veterans' Bureau," says General Hines, "amounts approximately to $750,000,000. Practically every activity of the bureau is on the increase. The annual cost of hospitalization to the government is about $100,000,000 a year. It will not be less. It will increase as we go along."

2,500 New Claims Monthly.

"It is somewhat surprising," continues the general, "although to those dealing closely with the problem not so surprising, that each month there are something like 2,500 new disability claims filed by American veterans. Over 1,000,000 of the 4,500,000 men who served in our forces during the World War have applied for compensation or some measure of relief. Approximately 40 per cent of those claims have been allowed."

"Hospitalization of disabled veterans today is still a problem of first importance. For the veterans' committee this year the bureau estimated that in the hospitalization of the disabled who bear the greatest sympathy—those with mental and nervous disabilities—we shall reach the peak, as best we can tell, in 1930."

Recognizing the growing aspects of rehabilitation, President Coolidge signed on May 23, a bill authorizing an appropriation of $15,000,000 for additional hospitalization facilities for the care of mentally afflicted World War veterans.

Many Rejected Claims Just.

Another estimate of the increasing importance and scope of rehabilitation is given by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, a national organization of disabled ex-service men established in 1921. This group has been named by congress as an official representative of the disabled who present claims to the government. The organization gave assistance and relief to 25,000 veterans last year. According to William E. Tate, national commander, during the next decade, more than 275,000 ex-service men will need help as a result of disabilities incurred during the war.

Commander Tate further estimates that in addition to this number, 80 per cent of the disability claims disallowed by the government should be re-examined. "Many of these disallowed claims," states Commander Tate, "are undoubtedly just. Insufficient evidence, poorly presented evidence, ignorance and numerous other causes have resulted in the rejection of claims which should be granted. Hundreds of these men are in distressing straits today; their cases should be opened and redjudged."

To Erase Time Limitation.

Commander Tate assigns five major reasons for the continuing and enlarging rehabilitation problem. "There is pending before congress at this session," he states, "an amendment to the law which will wipe out the time limitation when a veteran may file a claim and when he may file evidence. A man who has a just claim should always be able to present it. The amendment is an example of the government's commendable policy of liberalization of rehabilitation laws. Yet this policy, which none would care to see abandoned, constantly sharpens the need for assistance to our disabled veterans. The problem today is growing, too, because many disabilities are just now coming to light; many cases, such as tuberculosis, develop slowly. They become virulent only ten or more years after contraction. Insanity may not fully appear for ten, fifteen or more years."

"Further, great numbers of other disabilities are of such character as to require recurring hospitalization for a part of each year, year after year. Thousands of men, too, have made partial recoveries, only to undergo relapses under the strains of industrial occupations. Shortly after the passage of the United States veterans' act thousands of claims were filed within a brief period. A large percentage were disallowed by the government, because a war service connection was not established."

Large National Problem.

"The Veterans' Bureau, deluged with work, was forced to send a form letter of rejection, without stating reasons. Great numbers of veterans had sound cases. Improper or incomplete presentation brought denial of their claims. The Disabled American Veterans and other agencies are constantly going over these rejected cases as far as their facilities permit. They obtain omitted evidence, and arrange for proper representation. The volume of these necessary activities, many of them unknown to the general public, reveal rehabilitation to be still one of our largest national problems."

While the government is providing all hospitalization for disabled veterans whenever needed and grants all claims which establish a war service connection, the assistance of private agencies in this work is important. "In the problem of veterans' relief, co-operation on the part of service organizations is essential," says General Hines. "The Disabled American Veterans is one of three organizations recognized under the World War veterans' act to co-operate with the bureau in rendering aid to the disabled man. Disabled veterans are prevented by the same law from engaging an attorney, or paying fees to an attorney, or having a claim went present their claims."

Assist Many Families.

Seeing that service organizations have set up machinery not only to help the disabled man gather his evidence to meet the requirements of the law, and to follow claims through and present them to the various agencies of the bureau, General Hines added that their valuable activities include assistance to the families of many disabled men. "They are helpful, too," he states, "in pointing out to those charged with the administration of the bureau changes which would make easier the work of obtaining the benefits which the government desires to give claimants. They maintain, in addition, a very close contact with the legislative side of the problem."

Emphasizing further the assistance rendered the bureau by service organizations and pointing out that the government's function in rehabilitation can only be judicial, Col. George E. Hams, assistant director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, declares, "The government cannot go out and build up a claim against the government. We are prohibited by law from doing that. Here is where the ex-service organizations come into the picture. They develop the facts in these cases; they have been of great assistance in presenting them to the bureau."

Becomes More Complex.

Every day the problems of rehabilitation are becoming more difficult, according to Commander Tate. "Adjudication of claims is necessarily growing more complex, because we are so far away from the time when the facts occurred. Further, the government has not the facilities necessary to seek out those who need help. It can have no knowledge of any veteran's need until his claim is brought to its attention. It will be in this work, in seeking out and in assisting in the proper presentation of the claims of thousands of men during the next decade, that the great work of the service organization will lie."

"Recognition of the need for such assistance is becoming increasingly widespread among the general public today," says the commander in outlining the plans of the Disabled American Veterans to co-operate with the Veterans' Bureau during the next ten years.

"Our service now maintains 13 full-time men at various important regional offices of the Veterans' Bureau throughout the country. These men seek out and assist disabled veterans throughout the many complicated steps necessary in presenting a disability claim. With the scope of rehabilitation constantly enlarging, an increased service has been found necessary."

Will Extend Its Staff.

"The Disabled American Veterans plan to extend its staff of liaison officers to 54 trained men, distributed at the strategic points on the map of the United States Veterans' Bureau. During the next decade the Disabled American Veterans believe that it can reach and aid 275,000 disabled men and, in addition, assist another 200,000 men in the reviewing and redjudging of their rejected claims by the bureau."

"A careful study of the rehabilitation situation and the needs of the future has been made," says Commander Tate. "To assure the needed broadening of the activities of the Disabled American Veterans and their continuity over approximately a ten-year period, a $2,000,000 trust fund is now being sought. Both capital and interest are to be expended. The fund, it is planned, will be administered by a nationally known group of financiers. No expenditures of the fund are to be made for administrative purposes."

Under the leadership of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, a citizens' committee has been formed to co-operate with the Disabled American Veterans in its plan for its trust fund for veteran relief.

"CLOVER!"

"The slender girl with the large dark eyes and the very fair hair who had asked the monosyllabic question, frowned as she lifted the delicate china cup to her lips.

"Yes, clover!" continued her hostess as she daintily balanced a loaf of sugar in the tiny gold tongs and slipped it into her own cup. "Anyone is certainly in clover who has a chance to go on a Mediterranean cruise—especially at this season of the year and with a perfectly good father who spends money on his child—as she spends it on herself!" she ended with a laugh.

"But what if one doesn't in the least desire to go on a cruise or to have money spent on her pleasure, Phyllis Saunders?"

"Then you really mean you do not want to go, you silly child? Why, if it wasn't for Philip, I'd jump at the chance of being in your shoes."

"That's exactly it! If it wasn't for Philip!"

"I'm only just beginning to think," Phyllis returned with a knowing smile. "Which is he, dear?"

"But Helen ignored the question. "Father planned this whole trip just to get me away," she said. "I know he did. He wasn't going over until spring. He never did like Harvard men just because he's a Yale grad."

"Oh, ho! Getting warm!" Phyllis triumphed. "A Harvard man. Dark or fair?"

Just here young Mrs. Arthur Jamison was ushered in and joined the two at the tea table.

"Philip," Phyllis asked at the dinner table that night, "you're a Harvard man. Now's the time to show your knowledge."

"What's wanted, dear? Not a date, I hope. I never shone in history."

"Only modern history's needed. Which Harvard man most often makes a date with our dear Helen?"

"Frank Hughes and Russel Williams. Don't they both hang around No. 60 East pretty often?"

"Yes! I had forgotten they are both Harvard men."

"Both after my time. Nineteen twenty-one and '22. If I'm not mistaken."

"But which?" Phyllis was musing. "I have it! Phil don't you suppose you can get tickets for 'Sea Saws' for Monday night?"

"But say, didn't you say you saw it with Sully Ward last week? hopefully from Philip."

"Yes, I did."

"Then you certainly do not want to see it again?" triumphantly.

"Certainly not. And you said you didn't care to go at all, Phil."

"You know how I hate musical comedy."

"Thanks. Then you will get the tickets?"

"Must I go to that? Why not something—"

"No you mustn't. That is just it. Helen and the right Harvard man must."

It was noon the next day when Phyllis called Helen on the telephone. "You're coming to dinner Monday, Helen?"

"Why, yes, I said I would."

"I know. I simply failed to inform Philip of that fact. He just called up to say he has two tickets for 'Sea Saws' for that night."

"Then let me come another evening. That's quite all right, Phyllis."

"No. Come just as we planned. What I wanted to say is, I've seen 'Sea Saws.' Phil had forgotten."

"But he wants to go and you won't mind seeing it again to please him, will you?" Helen asked.

"Oh, he got the tickets to please me. He hates musical comedy. Won't you help me out and use the tickets? Then Phil will not mind so much. Ask some man to dinner, too, to go along."

"Why, thanks. I guess I might bring Mr. Williams if it's all right?"

"Absolutely. Good-by."

"I believe Phil said you were a Harvard man, too, Mr. Williams?" Phyllis innocently inquired of the tall, good-looking man with eyes as brown as Helen's own, who sat on her right at dinner the following Monday evening.

"Why, yes, I am," Russel Williams replied.

Helen started—then actually blushed. How had Phyllis found out her secret?

"When do you sail?" Philip Saunders was asking her, wondering why she seemed suddenly so ill at ease.

"In about two weeks."

"Helen says you don't want to go at all."

It was Russell Williams' turn to start.

"Why, I thought she was only too glad to go and leave us. She is always deserting us poor hard-working stay-at-homes and departing for Paris unknown except to globe trotters like herself. How about it, young lady?"

Helen tried to laugh. "One gets tired of traveling," she replied.

It was late that night when they were returning from "Sea Saws" in Russel Williams' car that he turned to Helen and said quietly:

"Then could you be happy if you settled down, dear?"

"I might if father didn't object too much to a Harvard man."

MANY FOREIGNERS NOW TILLING SOIL ON FRENCH FARMS

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Measures must be taken to keep Frenchmen down on the farm or most of the soil of France will be tilled by foreigners.

This warning was sounded by

M. Marcel Paon, chief of the labor service in the immigration department, in a paper with detailed statistics on the farm labor question, submitted to the Academy of Agriculture.

During the years of 1918-20, 1,455,000 aliens entered France to take the places in factory and field left by men killed during the war, 600,000 being employed on the farm.

Thrifty immigrants, according to M. Paon, have acquired 218,000 acres of productive ground, while a total of 1,017,395 acres yield crops through the work of non-French labor.

SERVANTS At-Your-Call

Wealth among the ancients was reckoned by the number of servants in the home. In the yesteryear of modern time one servant in a family was considered a luxury.

Today every family—poor or rich may have as many servants at their command as needed, and all this at cost of but a fraction of the family budget.

The modern servant is Electrical. It is always ready to do your biddings—never tiring—never complaining and no afternoons off.

Household drudgery is now a thing of the past. Wonderful electrical devices make house work a pleasure and Milady gains many hours of pleasure and social duties.

Farming and Ranching are now done scientifically. The lazy and costly farm or ranch hand has passed into history.

In spite of its constantly increasing usefulness and availability the cost of this service has steadily decreased, while all other costs have increased.

Are you enjoying the full time—usefulness of these servants? One of the distinctive privileges of this company is the opportunity to explain to you without cost just how you can use these modern electrical appliances.

CHICAGO HOTEL GETS JOBS FOR GUESTS WHO HAVE NO EMPLOYMENT

(By International News Service). CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—A hotel that procures employment for its jobless guests is the latest wrinkle in hotel management here.

The Allerton Club, official Chicago residence of the Inter-Collegiate Alumni Association has undertaken to secure employment for college men who are out of work and guests of the club.

Walter W. Dwyer, director of the club says that "the old story that a college man or woman has no more chance in the business world than a person without college training is pure bunk." In commenting on the employment situation here Dwyer said that "the great majority of large firms demand the college trained man."

The Allerton Club conducts personnel bureau in co-operation with the Inter-Collegiate Alumni Association free of charge and mails a "job list" to hundreds of colleges throughout the country.

Customs Men to Have High Speed Boat for Border Service

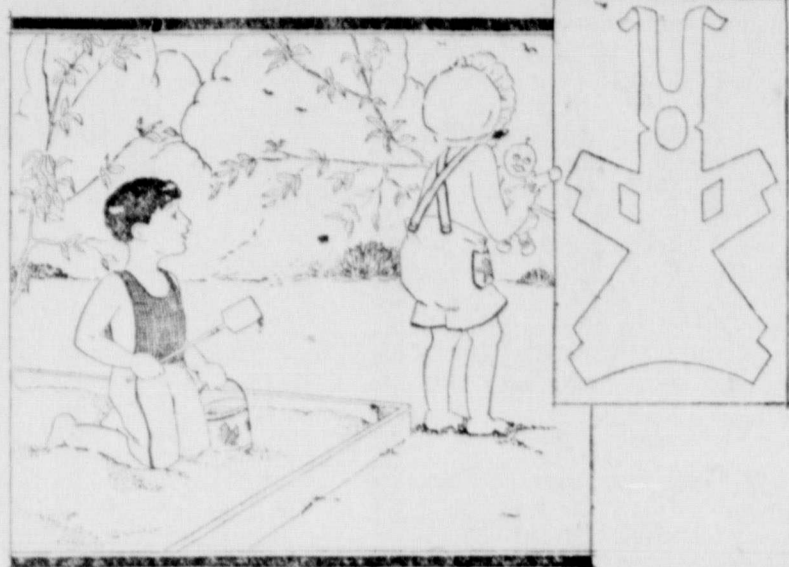

(By International News Service). TOLEDO, O., Aug. 21.—Powered by a Liberty 12-cylinder engine, and said to be capable of a speed of 60 miles per hour, one of the fastest speedboats on the Great Lakes will soon be launched by the United States Customs department border patrol, as the latest offensive weapon against rum running between this port and Erie, Pa.

Customs officers have announced that a "new and modern warfare" against Lake Erie rum runners is to be launched this summer. Three additional boats have been ordered to assist in the work, it was said.

SUN SPELLS HEALTH FOR KIDDIES

Every school child has always known that the sun is the source of life and energy to the globe, but it is only of recent years that the value of direct sunlight upon the exposed skin has been recognized. All children then, should be allowed to be out in the sun as much as possible. In the case of a sickly, delicate child, the family doctor should be consulted as to how long he should be exposed to the sun's rays. But the healthy child who needs plenty of sunlight to keep him so, should be put into a sun-suit and turned out to play every sunny day.

Almost any simple romper pattern can be altered to make a sun-suit, which will expose the limbs, back and chest. For a little boy, an effective sun-suit is the one shown here. The little shorts are made out of a used flour bag which has the advantages of being cheap, durable and washable. Also, not being dyed, it permits more light to pass through than does a colored material. The stamping is removed by covering the inked places with lard or kerosene and letting it stand a few hours before washing out in lukewarm water. The top part is simply a one-piece bib, back and front, made of cable net and bound with red bias binding. The net is inexpensive and the bag costs only a few cents from a baker. One bag will make two pairs of shorts for the small boy.

For the little girl, the sun-suit may have Dutch rompers of the flour bag material, with the same kind of open-work top, or the entire outfit may be made of the cloth with the neck cut fairly low in front and with straps crossed behind for the back. These garments can be trimmed with brightly colored binding, button-holing, appliqued motifs, animal pockets, and the like. Nothing should be done, however, which will detract from the real purpose of the suit, which is to permit great freedom of movement and to expose the body to the sun's rays.

A light-weight, broad-brimmed hat should be worn at all times in the summer.

Credit Holland With Origin of Popular Games

(By International News Service). WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Three popular sports—yachting, skating and golf, have been credited to civilization by Holland, this year's host to the Olympic games, according to a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society.

Yachting and skating have been incorporated in the Olympics, but golf as yet has not been added.

"All three of the sport terms are direct importations from the Dutch language; golf comes from kolf, meaning a club; yacht from jaht, which originally referred to hunting or the chase and skate from schaat, meaning skate," the Bulletin said.

"Although the Scotch receive credit for shaping golf into the game now played, the Dutch are held responsible for its origin. Certain etchings have been ferreted out of the art treasures of the nation which picture the ancient kolf players on the 'links.' So we know that in 1675 the well equipped Dutch golfer went forth swathed in a mantle like a Roman toga, that he carried a muff and wore skates, because kolf was an ice game.

In place of a golf bag he carried a sword in a scabbard. Yet he is not entirely an unfamiliar figure as he stands bodily in a typical visor cap, the same baggy plus fours, the golf socks and even the identical snappy knee tassels which decorate the fastidious golfer today.

One stick, according to the Geography Society, was enough for the Dutch player. It was large and like a hockey stick. The golf balls were large, too, and it has been found that although the Dutch earned a reputation of making the best golf balls, the Scotch, even in those days, were producing clubs of such quality that the Netherlanders sent across the North Sea for them.

The chief divergence between kolf and golf is that in kolf the players aimed to set a stake in the ice instead of trying to sink a putt in a cub. Other pictures have been found, however, which show that the Dutch themselves transferred the game to land and substituted a cub for a stake.

The sport of yachting originated, authorities consider, on the Zuider Zee, that shallow salt arm of the ocean which, quite appropriately, was the scene of the Olympic yacht races. The sport was started by old seadogs, who tried to retire and couldn't. Veteran captains grown so rich on the sea trade with the Indies and America that they lived a tease in Amsterdam, compromised with the call of the sea by sailing to meet the incoming merchant fleet.

"When word came that the ships were on the Texel roads the retired captains would sail out to meet them in small, luxurious ships designed like miniature galleons," said the Geographic Bulletin.

Sailing to meet the fleet soon became races so the old captains gradually adopted their little gal-

Among The Things That Void A Policy

An insurance policy is an important document. On the inside of the Standard Fire Policy are 122 lines setting out the general requirements common to fire insurance contracts.

Lines 21 to 40, inclusive, set out the usual or garden variety of policy violations that void the contract.

Every fire insurance policy holder should be familiar with lines 21 to 40, inclusive, of the Standard Fire Policy.

If the policy provisions are not clear, let us assist you. We do not feel that we have finished our duty merely by delivering a policy of insurance.

loons to get rather speed. One of these jahts was presented by Holland to Charles II of England who raced it on the Thames and thus the sport became implanted in Britain.

The Dutch developed the art of skating very early and they probably were among the first to substitute iron for bone skates and with this innovation the real history of skating began. To a Netherlander a pair of skates was in a great measure, and still is as necessary as an automobile to an American. In winter when the canals freeze the Dutchman skates to work, he tours the country on skates, his servants go to market on skates, the mail in some places is delivered by a postman on skates.
