213 Democrats Elected; 4 Seats Remain in Doubt

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—With the victory of Representative Selvidge, in the ninth congressional district of Minnesota, the Republicans today held 217 seats in the House, one less than a majority. Another Minnesota seat, that of the tenth district, is still undecided between the Farmer-Labor candidate and a Republican.

Definite information today is that 213 Democratic congressmen have been elected, with four seats remaining doubtful.

Republican and Democratic national committees both took the attitude of waiting for the returns from districts where the outcome is doubtful.

DALLAS, Nov. 6.—The status of the five constitutional amendments remained unchanged this afternoon, with Ross S. Sterling, of Houston, winning the governorship almost five to one over W. E. Talbot, Republican, of Dallas. The returns thus far give the amendments a ratio of two to one.

Harry M. Wurzbach is still Texas's only Republican congressman, winning handily in the fourteenth congressional district over Henry Diehlmann, Democrat.

Among the old timers here this week attending the Johnnie Richards' trial was Charlie Copeland, who is well known to many of the pioneers. Mr. Copeland now resides near Blackwell, in Coke county, and is a prominent ranchman of that place. He formerly lived near Wingate in Runnels county.

Turkey Market To Open Friday

The Runnels County Poultry Association will begin receiving turkeys in Ballinger for the Thanksgiving market Friday and Saturday of this week. The birds will be received at the Mid-West Poultry Association building and handled from that point.

C. W. Lehmburg, county agent, stated Thursday that he did not know what the market quotations would be Friday but poultry men were expecting prices around 14 or 15 cents a pound. The association will pay the street market price at the time the birds are received and every member of the organization will receive the benefit of any increase in the market that may occur before the Thanksgiving market closes.

Members are urged to sell on this market only No. 1 birds and to hold other fowls for the Christmas trade. There has been so little cold weather that turkeys have had little opportunity to put on flesh. Crooked breast birds will be bought on this market under the classification of No. 2 stock.

Mr. Lehmburg said he expected the Thanksgiving market to receive between 2,000 and 3,000 fowls. The nation's turkey crop this year is three per cent under normal, the Texas crop 10 per cent below normal, while in Runnels county turkeys are declared to be about 33 per cent less. Very few turkeys have been sold and if the Thanksgiving market is short it will make the Christmas

Richards is Freed Of Assault Charge

The jury hearing the evidence in the case of the state of Texas vs. John Richards returned a verdict of not guilty Wednesday afternoon, a few minutes after the arguments by counsel were concluded.

Richards was charged with assault with intent to murder in connection with a shooting affair which occurred at the closing of the Oak Creek school last spring, in which Richards was alleged to have shot M. A. Speer.

Speer was struck in the shoulder by a bullet and for several days lay in a hospital at Winters before it was certain he would recover.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS HOLD GOOD MEETING

Group "We-Stri-We" of the Ballinger Camp Fire Girls met at the home of the guardian, Mrs. Q. V. Miller, after school Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was called to order and twelve members answered to the roll call, with seven wearing their uniforms.

Several other meetings were planned. A number worked on symbols and head-bands.

More Bodies are Taken from Mine

(By Associated Press)
MILL FIELD, Ohio, Nov. 6.—The sixty-seventh and last body was removed from the Sunday Creek coal mine here today, where an explosion, fire and gas trapped the workers underground and wrecked the workings yesterday.

Fear that the death toll might grow arose from the serious condition of eighteen injured men in hospitals.

Most of the dead miners apparently inhaled poison gas.

Three hundred children were made fatherless by the disaster.

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Wardlaw came in Thursday morning from Del Rio, where they had been visiting for some time. They will visit here with their son, M. B. Wardlaw, before going to their home at Glen Rose.

John King Umpire For Texas League

(By Associated Press)
WICHITA FALLS, Nov. 6.—John King, veteran minor league outfielder, and manager of the Midland baseball club in the West Texas League during 1929, was signed as an umpire for the Texas League next season, President Alvin J. Gardner announced today.

King umpired in the Cotton States League last season.

John King formerly was a Ballinger player in the West Texas League, and was noted for his slugging, also for his tendency to argue. "Long John" has many friends here who remember past brilliant performances.

Officers Confer On Hobo Problem

Officers from all parts of West Texas are meeting in Sweetwater Thursday afternoon of this week to discuss ways and means for handling the hobo or tramp this winter. Chief of Police Lee Moreland, Sheriff-elect W. A. Holt and Deputy Carl Henson left here Thursday morning to be present at the meeting and hear speakers who will offer solutions for the problem that is causing officers in this section some worry.

There has been a constant increase of tramps in West Texas this year according to the authorities, and much of the thieving and other crimes are being committed by these drifters it is believed. The problem of what to do with the professional bum has been one that officers have been unable to cope with efficiently and so great has been the influx of undesirables that the meeting was called so that officers could exchange opinions. It is thought in this way much good can be accomplished.

Suspects who leave one town for easier pickings in another will have a reception committee to watch them upon arrival at their next stop, and in this way officers point out it may be possible to halt some of their depredations.

The West Texas officers also will take up other questions confronting them this year and which are unusual in their regular line of duty.

Rowena to Stage Program Nov. 11

Armistice Day will be celebrated in Rowena this year as established by previous custom, with an all-day program, dinner on the ground, and a big dance at night.

Advertising matter is being distributed in all parts of West Texas and the committee in charge of plans expects a crowd as large as that of previous years.

C. C. Baxter, of Dublin, has been selected as the main speaker and will address the audience at 11 o'clock on vital questions of the day. Mr. Baxter is an interesting speaker and as an orator is well known in this section.

The program at Rowena will begin at 10:30 when a parade will be formed in the business district and will march to O. D. H. S. Hall, headed by St. Joseph's Brass Band. The speaking will take place at this hall at the conclusion of the parade.

The principal attraction will be the dinner at 12 o'clock. The only statement made in regard to this on the advertising matter guarantees plenty of home-made sausage and chicken, but to all who have ever attended an Armistice Day program at Rowena this means many other delicacies as only the women of the Rowena community can prepare them.

During the noon hour there will be band concerts, orchestra music, and games and other amusements will follow during the entire afternoon. At night the annual Armistice Day dance will be held with good music.

Be wise and advertise.

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Nov. 6.—The disappearance of Dr. E. W. Provence, 51, president of Burleson College, Greenville, soon after his arrival here Monday, caused much concern and search here today.

Provence left a note for his wife at Greenville Monday, saying that he was going to Dallas, and would return Monday afternoon. Mrs. Provence, a teacher in the college, came here today to meet in the search. She said she carried a brief data concerning did not change.

Inquiries New Mexico, where Mrs. Provence said her husband could have gone to visit relatives. Provence came here with William Caylor, of Greenville, leaving Caylor's automobile near the Lakewood Country Club grounds, saying he was going to visit his sister, then would hold a conference with J. B. Cranfill and Cullen F. Thomas concerning college affairs.

No trace of the missing educator has been found since he got out of the automobile.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 6.—The voice that sky-rocketed John Boles to stardom in the first days of musical pictures also has been the means of placing him in a secure position—now that the earlier, cruder form of screen musical has been virtually abandoned.

After "The Desert Song," the first screen operetta, Boles was in great demand at all studios, and work in subsequent musicals built his box-office name. Thus he was lifted from comparative obscurity to a pinnacle where producers have been justified in giving him consideration for roles in which vocal ability plays only an incidental part.

Becomes An Actor

Now he is enacting the first strictly dramatic role of his career, that of Dmitri in "Resurrection," a picture being anticipated with unusual interest and not altogether because it is a talkie version of the film that made Dolores Del Rio a star, and is again directed by Edwin Carewe.

A carefully planned "musical background" by Dmitri Tomkin is expected to set it apart from previous screen works indiscriminately labeled "musicals."

Lupe Velez, in the Del Rio rôle, also has her first highly dramatic part. Boles—he's a modest lad—has never made pretensions to being an actor. He gave up preparations for another professional career to study voice in Europe, returned to New York broke and weekly landed in a musical show, "Little Jessie James."

Looking Back

It was Gloria Swanson who persuaded him to come to Hollywood as her leading man in silent pictures. Boles used to sing on the set, between "takes," and it was pretty well known in Hollywood that he could sing. It didn't mean much then, but when talkies came in that voice was money in the bank.

All of which affords opportunity for brief retrospection concerning this hectic movie industry. When Boles sprang up as a screen singer Hollywood was in a tremulous state of excited fear, fairly agog that a "silent" player had a voice! Producers were pouring money into expensive sound stages, many of which now are frequently idle because the once formidable microphone has been duly spanked, taken out of doors and commanded to do as told.

CHICAGO INVENTOR, AT 90, STILL WORKS EVERY DAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Six days a week, Adrian Cook, who is 90 years old and has lived in Chicago since 1874, may still be found at the work bench in his shop here. In his lifetime, Mr. Cook has patented 87 inventions, most of which have been devices for lightening the labors of housewives. He invented the "squeegee," a rubber-fitted appliance for cleaning windows. Millions of them have been sold. His mother lived to be 107; one of his grandfathers to be 114. Recently he himself walked 17 miles from a stalled automobile to his home without apparent ill effect. He has no special rules of diet. He began smoking at the age of 12.

BOMB IN SEDAN KILLS DRIVER

JAPANESE RICH MEN PAY BIG TAXES ON INCOMES

TOKYO, Nov. 6.—Baron Hachiroemon Mitsui, head of the House of Mitsui, the titans of economic Japan, continues, as for many years, the richest individual in the empire. Income tax assessments for 1930 show that he must pay 25 per cent on an income of 2,800,000 yen ($1,400,000). Next comes Baron Hisaya Iwasaki, senior partner of the Mitsubishi interests, who is rated at 2,400,000 yen a year. The Iwasaki family is the principal financial rival of the House of Mitsui. Of thirteen incomes assessed at more than one million yen, six belong to Mitsuis and three to Iwasakis.

Only two of the thirteen live outside Tokyo, Baron Kichizae-mon Sumitomo of Osaka, and Shinbei Inui, Kobe money-lender. Inui recently has been an unwilling resident, occupying a cell in Ichigaya prison under indictment for fraud.

WHITE VEST WORN BY TARDIEU SETS FRENCH SOCIALISTS AGOSSING

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Premier Andre Tardieu has declared himself a "bourgeois" by wearing a white vest.

He wore it first, with a formal cutaway coat, at a meeting at Nancy, in Lorraine. It was considered significant, because the white vest was regarded as a sort of distinguishing mark setting him apart from the socialists and the radical-socialists.

Those class conscious politicians wouldn't be caught dead in a white vest. They deem it too aristocratic.

Anyway, the premier's white vest has taken on political significance and having started to wear one he may have tied himself up to a life-long laundry expense.

Indians Believe They Have Found Long Lost Tahan

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 6.—Many Indians of the Kiowa tribe believe they have again located Tahan, the "White Captive," in J. K. Griffis of Vergennes, Vt., preacher, platform lecturer, author and historian, says Dan Peery, secretary of the state historical society.

History, Peery said, asserts that according to the Indians, Tahan, taken from his white parents by the Kiowas when a small child, was killed by one of the Indians after he had reached early manhood. Many of the Kiowa Indians now living believe that Tahan was not killed, but that he is Griffis who appeared at the historical society offices here recently.

Upon entering the historical society, Griffis, who stopped here on his way from California to Vermont, handed Peery his business card, writing after his name the word "Tahan." Peery immediately began questioning the visitor and found he knew much of the language and habits of the Kiowan tribe.

"His story ran that although he is a resident of New England now and was for many years Presbyterian minister and chataqua lecturer, his youth and early life was that of an uncivilization," Peery said.

"He claimed his father had been a government scout before the Civil War and was operating with the U. S. Troops along the Oklahoma-Texas border while his mother, with some other white women, were in a temporary settlement on Elm Creek, near the present site of Gainesville, Texas.

Griffis told him, he continued, that the wild Kiowas and Comanches raided the settlement, killing his mother and carrying him into captivity. For the next 20 years, he told Peery, he was a member of the tribe, becoming a warrior and participating in battles against white soldiers and other Indian tribes.

The book "Andele or the Mexican-Kiowa Captive" stated, Peery continued, that Tahan was captured by soldiers. The Kiowas attempted to recapture him, fighting for three days. Tahan eventually escaped and returned to the tribe. Zo-Yo-Yea, an Indian later killed Tahan with bow and arrow, the book related.

Griffis asserted that he left the tribe and went eastward to learn the ways of those of his race. After conversing with Griffis, Peery said he learned that Hoodie-Tau-Quodde, foster aunt of the Tahan of the Kiowas, resided in Oklahoma. When she heard that Griffis visited here, she came to Oklahoma City for additional information from Peery.

"The aged Indian woman, after writing Griffis in Vermont and receiving an answer, seemed convinced that he was the real Tahan of the Kiowa Indians," Peery said.

"She stated that she had been to an Indian council since she learned that Tahan was yet alive and the older members all were talking about Tahan. The old Comanche people told her they had known for a long time that Tahan was not dead and that Zo-Ko-Yea had not killed him as was told in the Andele book. She said that she herself knew that he had not killed Tahan. She laughed and said he was right there in our camp at the time he had told other Indians he was away with Tahan and had killed him.

Peery, in relating the story in the current issue of the historical society "Chronicles" said that "The writer will concede he was a little skeptical of this man's story, but all of the others to whom he has told his experience had no doubt that it was true."

Tahan, in a letter to the Indian foster aunt told her he expected to make another visit to the Kiowa tribe soon.

STATE MAY REBUILD BRIDGE THAT FELL

AUSTIN, Nov. 6.—Plans for replacing the old suspension bridge over the Brazos River in Young county, which fell into the river, are being considered by the state highway department. The bridge collapsed October 27. It was located on highway 121.

G. G. Wickline, bridge engineer, said the department was considering the advisability of replacing the structure with a steel and concrete bridge. The length of the bridge would be about 400 feet and it would cost approximately $100,000, Wickline said.

Pending construction of a temporary structure, traffic over highway 121, between Throckmorton and Newcastle, is being detoured by way of Olney on highways 79 and 24.

Runnels county farmers now engaged in planting small grain report much trouble from crows. These pests follow the drills to each much of the grain and also scratch the dirt from the shallow planted grain. Black crows are wise birds and it is difficult to approach them with a gun, as can be testified to by many farmers. The county agent is writing to the extension service of A. & M. College for the best method of taking care of this situation and a campaign will be launched at once against these destructive birds.

West Texas is infested with tramps this fall. Just why they come is not understood, but they are so numerous that officers are planning how to handle the situation. The presence of these characters means thieving, house-breaking and other petty crime. Citizens can aid the officers in this if they will carefully lock their homes and business houses, not allowing hobos access to the house when a meal is given, and to be careful about picking up stragglers on the highway.

Runnels county housewives are doing their share and a little more this year when times are forcing the head of the family to be a little tighter with the purse-strings. Canning being done by the women will mean the saving of thousands of dollars, and this is but a small item in the credit sheet written by the housewives. Many of the rural women are responsible for the turkey crop, most of the poultry, the marketing of eggs and dairy products, have raised gardens that not only fed the family but produced a surplus for the market, have made clothes for most of the family, prepared meals for the family and hired help, and at odd times kept the house, gone to church, and looked after the social side of rural life. Give the women their just dues and most men will admit they are successful when most men fail.

While some are downcast over present conditions, everyone should look to the things they have to be thankful for and give thanks to Him on the day set aside for that purpose. Do you have good health? This is the greatest asset and the loss of a little money fades into insignificance when health is compared. Look about at how others live and you will find those who are having a struggle where life is moving along fine for them. Our nation's leaders without exception are predicting a return to normal times, or better conditions at least, and so far very few have been hit hard. Is your family together and happy? Are you able to provide the ordinary comforts for them? If so, get off the disgruntled horse you have been riding, talk about something besides that which all are hearing too much and spread a little happiness where you have been smearing gloom. Some live, sleep and eat hard times until they drive business from their doors. They keep their own clerks and employes discouraged with this constant grumbling until they feel ashamed to try to make a sale to anyone, because the customer might not be able to buy. Don't go insane on the subject and ruin your business and yourself. The man who can smile in the face of discouragement is a winner but he who folds up is whipped before he starts.

SCHOOL AND THE CHILD

The five year old youngster going to school for the first time makes therein his initial contact with society and with social authority.

No matter what his home experiences may have been, he will encounter in the school and classroom a new type of relationship and a new discipline foreshadowing what he may expect in adult life.

Educators assure us that school is not, as some of us have been led to think, a place where the child learns his three R's.

He does that, but in addition, and what is even more important, he learns in school how to meet the demands which social existence places upon him.

This aspect of school life, thanks largely to the modern mental hygiene movement, is becoming ever more widely appreciated. What is, however, being somewhat lost sight of is the extent to which the school child's emotional and psychologic life is affected by his purely physical well being. In the early and most enthusiastic days of the intelligence tests the intelligence quotient of a child was held to be fixed and in the nature of a definite index to the mental capacities of the child.

More recent experiences, however, have shown that the quality designated as intelligence is deeply affected by such factors as defective hearing, poor vision, malnutrition, diseased tonsils, adenoids and the like.

It is evident, therefore, that in order to profit most by the valuable training which the school offers the child needs to be free from all serious physical defects.

All progressive schools now insist on a certificate of physical fitness for all children seeking admission. Schools alone, however, cannot secure for the child the fullest physical well-being. That in the last analysis is the privilege and obligation of the parents.

SOVIET RULES BANQUETS WASTE PUBLIC MONEY

(By Associated Press)

LENINGRAD, Nov. 6.—Banquets are an unnecessary luxury in Soviet Russia nowadays, and a crime if governments funds are involved.

For giving a banquet to the constructors of a newly built aluminum plant, its recognition of their excellent work, seven members of the board of directors of the aluminum trust, including the chairman, were severely reprimanded by the communist party control commission.

Their names were published in local newspapers as squanderers of state funds.

SUNDOWN STORIES

ANIMAL UMBRELLAS

By Mary Graham Bonner

"Now," said the Little Black Clock, "I'm going to let you two children wander around and talk to the animals."

"You'll be safe here in the zoo, and I thought it would be fun for you to be quite by yourselves for awhile. I'll take a little rest."

"Wander wherever you want to go."

"Suppose some of the animals won't or can't talk to us?" John asked.

"Oh, there are very few who can't make sounds. The vultures can't, so maybe you won't want to call on them," the Little Black Clock said. "They're not very interesting anyway."

But now the two children wandered off, and first they stopped in front of a yard where several large creatures looking something like oxen with long shaggy hair were wandering about.

"Hello," said John.

"Hello," said Peggy.

"Hello," said the creatures in chorus. Well, the children knew that these animals could talk—and because of the Clock's magic they could understand the animal talk.

"What is your family name?" John asked.

"We're the musk-ox family," one of them answered, "and we're never without our umbrellas."

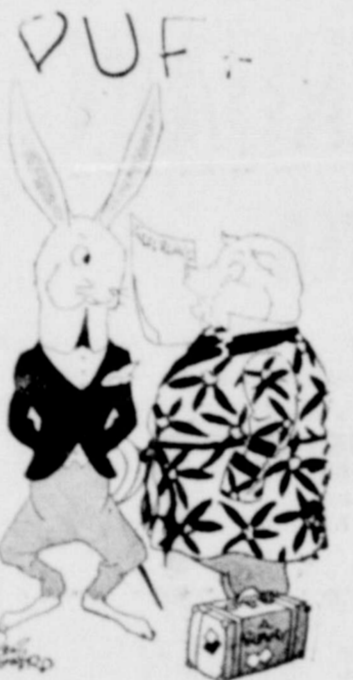

"I don't see any umbrellas around," Peggy told them.

"Well, then, poor child, you must have something wrong with your sight."

They didn't say anything for a moment, and Peggy looked at these shaggy creatures with their long faces and their horns and their solemn expressions.

"Have you your umbrellas hidden somewhere in your shaggy, funny long hair?" Peggy asked.

They didn't seem to mind

"To be real smart," says Puff, "a valet I should hire."

I need someone to press my pants—and maybe change a tire."

FIRE LOSSES IN TEXAS IN 6 MONTH DECLINE

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Nov. 6.—A reduction of $448,592 in the Texas fire loss for the first nine months of 1930 under that of the corresponding period in 1929, was noted in a report from J. W. DeWeese, state fire insurance commission. The report showed losses for the first nine months of the current year were $9,247,466 as compared with $9,696,058 on Oct. 1, 1929.

DeWeese attributed the reduction to the increased interest by civic leaders in fire prevention programs. Business men and women have been especially helpful in reducing the losses, he stated.

City officials, fire marshals and fire chiefs of Texas cities and towns are giving more time and thought to fire prevention and are eliminating many of the hazards that cause fires. Another aid has been the adoption of fire prevention programs by the regional chamber of commerce.

Residents are also being brought face to face with the knowledge that fire insurance companies do not pay the heavy losses but that it is paid by the people in increased insurance rates.

THIS "ONE-HORSE" FARMER TO CLEAR $2,000 ON CROPS

(By Associated Press)

MADISON, Fla., Nov. 6.—What is believed a record for a "one-horse" farmer in Florida has been set by W. W. Catledge.

His 1930 crop will net a profit of $2,000, according to receipts from products already sold, and other crops ready to be gathered and placed on the market.

Cultivating the farm with one mule, Catledge has four acres in watermelons, which he sold for $510. Four acres in tobacco brought $513; from three and a half acres he has sold two bales of cotton for $110 and there is more to be gathered. There are two acres in sweet potatoes and one acre in sugar cane yet to be sold, in addition to corn, other feedstuffs and a number of hogs raised for the market.

While raising his crop, Catledge lived from his garden and sold chickens and eggs from his poultry yard to pay operating expenses.

"Americans love to do their own thinking—But they welcome facts from others. You are wise in letting every smoker know that you employ the modern Ultra Violet Ray principle in 'Toasting LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos. This 'extra secret process' is a remarkable revelation."

James Francis Burke

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." CAPITOL News

By Charles E. Simons
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

AUSTIN, Nov. 6.—Come Johnson, member of the state highway commission from Tyler, is an advocate of higher education. But when he says education he means education and not just "book learning" and all the athletics that goes with average modern college curriculum.

Johnson has lived a few more years than the proverbial three-score and ten and should know whereof he speaks because of his bountiful experience in several lines of endeavor. Johnson would cut out the great football games and many extra-curricular activities.

Not that he is against football so much but because it has a tendency to disrupt the normal life of a college or university. "It wouldn't be so bad," he said, "if it affected only the members of the team and the squads, but it has a disturbing effect on the entire student body. Students that come to the schools with the intention of studying, become entangled in the maelstrom and enthusiasm of college football and the first thing you know they are thinking more about football than about their scholastic aspirations."

Johnson believes modern educational institutions are not as efficient as they might be and that they stress the acquisition of knowledge and sacrifice the power of the student to think for himself. Throughout college, the student is hemmed in by books and theories so that by the time a student graduates his head is full of the thoughts of someone else.

The really successful man, Johnson said, is one who has the faculty to think clearly and who has the ability and initiative to sit down and wrestle with the problem in a logical way. The truly ideal educational institution would be one where the student is acquainted with the thoughts of great men, imbued with the ambition and faculty to think for himself and then the theory is combined with actual experience. College students, Johnson said, are prone to regard themselves a little better than the average person and are inclined to a distaste for honest-to-goodness hard work.

Since becoming a member of the highway commission by appointment of Governor Moody, D. K. Martin has turned down numerous invitations to affairs of divers nature. Inturning down one, Martin said he "came in on the tail end of everything and would have to step on it to catch up with the rest of the members of the commission."

"Doc," as he is called by his co-workers, was a former member of the commission during the administration of Governor Pat N. Neff. He is a football enthusiast and is chairman of the campaign committee raising funds for Baylor University. He also is an aviation fan.

Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer, takes rank with the foremost as a supporter of the University of Texas. When the university wins a major contest, Gibb is jubilant; when they lose, he is desolate but still believes it is the greatest school in the nation.

BORN IN THE AFTERNOON, GRIDSTER GETS TO PLAY

(By Associated Press)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 6.—Whether you are born in the morning or afternoon is important—sometimes.

Fay McClure, local high school football player, was about to lose the chance of playing on his birthday—but the hour of his birth saved him.

It was McClure's 21st birthday. Under Tennessee high school rules, a player who has reached that age is automatically barred from the team.

Coach Ben Houston investigated McClure's birth record and found that he was born at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The game was over at 4:30 p. m.

It was McClure's swan song.

Berea college and Allied Schools of Kentucky have approximately 1,600 students working to pay their way through school.

Legion Play Dates Are Nov. 24-25

Dates were set Wednesday night for the annual American Legion show for November 24 and 25. This will be the eleventh annual presentation for the Pat Williams Post in Ballinger and practically the same cast will be seen in the latest offering.

The play selected for 1930 is a three-act fast moving comedy, "Shug-full" of laughs from start to finish. The play is light and well suited to amateurs but with elaborate settings and beautiful costumes the offering will be an outstanding one by the local post.

A matinee probably will be provided for the afternoon of Nov. 24, especially for school children, and bargain admission prices advertised. This and other details will be announced within a few days and advertising issued for all regular performances of the play. Out-of-town dates are being booked and it is thought that a number of these extra engagements will be made before the performance is presented here.

During the past eleven years the post has received excellent support from citizens of Ballinger and the players expect two full houses to greet them this year. Admissions to the 1930 show will be cut to the lowest mark ever set for a Legion attraction in the city. Reserved seats will be sold this year at 50 cents, with cheaper seats on the side tiers. Legion officials say this has been done to meet present conditions as the players would rather play to more people at less money than to meager audiences.

"She Loved The Other Man," a play secured from Harrison-Colegrove of Denver is a royalty attraction with snappy comedy lines running throughout five parts in three acts. Few alterations will be made in the cast this year. Mrs. Jack Rudd will play her first role in a Legion show. She has had much experience in theatricals and is a valuable addition to the cast. Other regular thespians who have good parts in "She Loved The Other Man" are Mrs. Charles F. Bailey, Mrs. H. T. Forson, A. R. Jones, Nell McAlpine, R. W. Earnshaw, Troy Simpson and Harry Lynn.

Ira Klutts Feeding Calf for Stock Show

Ira Klutts, 4-H club boy of Crews, has received the fine calf offered him as a prize by the T. & P. Railroad company and for which he competed this year in feed crop production and at the State Fair of Texas at Dallas. The T. & P., through the Feeder-Breeder Association, offered 28 calves as prizes to Texas club boys who made the highest production in feed crops. Twenty-two boys entered the contest in Runnels county and at the opening of the Dallas fair County Agent C. W. Lehmborg entered ten displays of feed crops for the boys in this contest.

Awards were announced a short time ago, and Ira Klutts of this county was among the winners. He has received his calf which he is now raising at his home near Crews.

Young Klutts will be expected to feed the calf this winter and enter it in the same division at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show next March. The boy who has added the most weight to a calf, cost of feed considered, will be given another fine prize, which will be announced later.

Mr. Lehmborg is delighted that a member of one of his clubs was a winner in this event, and declared that it shows the seriousness which boys give club work in this county. Only one boy could win in each county and Klutts will make an effort to win with his calf at the Ft. Worth exposition.

They visited the grave of Pat Odom, who was interred there just 45 years ago Wednesday. Decedent was a former husband of Mrs. Sinclair and brother of Mrs. Luckett.

After viewing the scenes of the old townsite the party made a short visit to Abilene, calling on friends for a short while. Mr. and Mrs. Pat Odom resided in Buffalo Gap at the time of his death.

Canning Program In Full Progress

Mrs. Lura Hollingsworth, home demonstration agent for Runnels county, states that there is more home canning being done this year than ever before in this county and much food is being preserved for winter use. Her annual report shows that in previous years something like 3,000 cans have been put up by housewives, but this year she expects that number possibly to be tripled.

Canning is not being done by just a few this year but practically all rural families are doing some of this and many of the table necessities will be taken care of by the thrifty Runnels county housewives.

A fine example of what can be done and the big saving effected is shown in Mrs. Hollingsworth's October summary of club work in the county. Mrs. Jim Massey is cited as having canned a 300-pound yearling which took 144 No. 3 cans to preserve all the various meats. The yearling was valued at about $22.50, and the cans cost about $7.50. The total value of the 12 dozen cans of meat is placed at $72.

Following is what was canned by Mrs. Massey, all cans the large No. 3 size. Thirty-two cans plain roast, 10 cans rolled roast, 35 cans chili, 43 cans steak, 10 cans hash, and 14 cans of soup stock.

A large number of other families have canned whole beefs and most of them have met with excellent success. Nearly every bit of a beef is preserved in the process, as shown by the above tabulation, and the entire value of the meat butchered is realized.

Club women are now planning fruit cakes for the Christmas holidays and many will be baked and set aside for that occasion. The November report of the home demonstration agent, which promises to be interesting, will be published in this paper at a later date.

Outdoor Action and Thrills Caught by Talking Screen in "The Texan"

Totally different in many ways, yet bringing the same carefree, swaggering, outdoor freedom of "The Virginian" to the talking screen, "The Texan," Paramount's second great romance of the West, opens a two-day engagement at the Palace Theatre tomorrow, closing Saturday night. Gary Cooper, "The Virginian," is also "The Texan."

O. Henry wrote the original story, "A Double-Dyed Deceiver," from which "The Texan" was adapted. It first appeared in a collection of stories, "Roads of Destiny," by the famous author, and popular acclaim singled it out as one of the most thoroughly human pieces from the pen of America's best-loved writer.

The story opens in Texas and climaxes on the pampas of South America. It tells of the Llano Kid, a young bandit, who is persuaded to go to South America to pose as the runaway son of a wealthy and aristocratic widow. There he meets the widow's beautiful niece, and finds a mother's love. Although he went to rob, he finds he cannot destroy the older woman's happiness.

Filled with splendid outdoor scenes and action, the picture has a clean-cut appeal. Gary Cooper is a fast-riding, fast-shooting plainsman, whose true honesty is forced to the surface in a human and logical way. Fay Wray is the girl, Emma Dunn gives another wonderful mother portrayal, one of the best of those which have made her famous on stage and screen for nearly a quarter of a century. John Cromwell, who directed George Bancroft in "The Mighty" and William Powell in "Street of Chance," made this picture.

Cast of "Just Like Heaven" Well Acquainted With Paris

Several of the players in "Just Like Heaven," Tiffany's love story of Paris, were born in France and know the atmosphere perfectly. But since all the others have lived there for a time not a single principal role was filled by a player unacquainted with the city and the language.

Anita Louise spent nearly a year in Paris while traveling with her parents, and she attended school there. David Newell, a Missoulian, had visited there for several months.

Gaston Glass, Ye'a d'Avril and Mathilde Comont were born there. Torben Meyer and Thomas Jefferson both attended school for years in France, although the first is Danish and the latter American by birth. Albert Roccardi likewise was familiar with life of the French capital.

R. William Neill, in directing

"Just Like Heaven," the attraction which closes tonight at the Palace Theatre, strove to obtain the most perfect technical investiture for the story, and his entire cast was capable, if called upon, to decide matters of a technical nature.

market about normal.

Seven out of the last ten years the Christmas prices have been higher than for Thanksgiving and many poultry raisers are predicting the same condition for this year.

Mr. Lehmborg spent part of Wednesday in Coleman, assisting the county agent there in conducting a turkey grading school. He reported between 40 and 50 farmers attended the school and all received valuable information regarding the new U. S. standards of grading turkeys for shipment. Action Without Harm Whenever Constipated

Here's a way to be rid of constipation and its ills—a way that works quickly, effectively, but gently.
A candy Cascaert at night—the next morning you're feeling fine. Breath is sweetened; tongue cleared; biliousness, headaches, dizziness, gas vanish. Repeat the treatment two or three nights to get the souring waste out of your system. See how appetite and energy return; how digestion improves.

The action of Cascaerts is sure, complete, helpful to everyone. They are made from cascaras, which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have the 10c boxes.

Don't Put It Off Until December

It's now time to be thinking of a gift for old friends you can't be with at Christmas time. They will appreciate that personal thoughtfulness that prompts you to send your photograph.

The gift that's not in Santa's pack.
