These are the three factors which make a bank more useful to a community. They are closely related, and each one is more or less dependent on the others.

This bank is strong, for is has more than ample capital and surplus in relation to deposits. Its stability has been demonstrated in good times and bad through a period of years. And strength and stability make it possible to offer a dependable and thoroughly modern banking service.

WHY REDS DIDN'T INVADE WEST BERLIN . . . French troops and armored cars line up in position along the explosive border of the French-Soviet zone of Berlin, Germany, in preparation for the much-touted and feared Communist youth demonstration. Communist spellbinders had been threatening an "invasion" of west Berlin on the big day. But the United States, British and French authorities showed they meant to nip any invasion attempt in the bud. So the Communists paraded peacefully on their own side of the fence and the day was marked by only minor violence and many catcalls between east Berliners and west Berliners, who it was feared would come to blows.
