Pecan Trees and Pecan Nuts.

I see with much satisfaction the growing interest for the cultivation of pecans and other nut-bearing trees, living as I do in the centre of one of the best pecan-growing sections in the world. Here the trees grow naturally all over the It occurs to me that, from observation and experience, I can offer a few hints that may be of service to those who are making these efforts. The peprotracted summers.

But there are other things to be considered. Most writers seem not to take as much difference in the quality as there is in the sorts and sizes. Some have thick and others thin shells. Some are very early, and others very late.

with fruit and other trees, its health and freedom from insects. Like the walnut, the foliage of the pecan tree is not infrequently totally destroyed by the cater-pillar. Hence those trees that have the thickest, toughest foliage do best. There is one sort growing here the nuts of which are an inch and a half long, with a medium thick shell, of short. stubby growth, and with foliage so thick and tough that I have never seen it injured by insects of any species. This variety is very early, and for this reason is frequently gathered by eager boys before fully matured. The nuts are soon gone, and seldom reach the markets.

Here we plant the seed in the fall soon after they are gathered. They sprout well in the following spring, growing about two feet the first year. As soon as they drop their leaves in the fall we lay bare one side of the root and root prune them, replacing the dirt. In the spring, before the plant growth begins, we pursue the same course with the other side. In this way a fine lot of young roots are developed, rendering the transplanting in the fall easy and as safe as other nursery grown trees. Pecan trees are easily grown, and will flourish in almost any kind of soil. Every one can have an abundant supply by planting the nuts.—Texas Cor. N. Y.

Watering Animals.

All animals should be watered before feeding. An interval of fifteen minutes is sufficient, but an hour is better. And they should be watered frequently and not permitted to flood themselves from excessive thirst. The reason for this is a good one. The system absorbs water very rapidly, so much so that a cow or a horse will drink at one time more than the stomach can hold. The water drank is absorbed with great rapidity as soon as it enters the stomach and intestines, and a thirsty animal will absorb it as fast, at first, as it is swallowed. This is especially the case with horses. But when the stomach is filled with food copious drinking dilutes the mass, which is carried into the bowels, past the stomach, where only it is prepared for digestion, and the food is wasted or worse. Water is not required to dilute and soften the food for digestion. This is the office of the salive which is an and a ring." is the office of the saliva, which is an and a ring." active chemical agent, and performs an actual share of the digestive function. All that is wanted is that the blood should be well supplied with water, so that the saliva should flow copiously, which it does to a larger extent in ruminants and horses than in any other animals. And this is done by a full supply of water when the stomach is empty of food, at intervals of a few hours, not more than six, during the day. -- N. Y

The Cost of Living in Russia.

A man had better not fall ill while in Russia, for all the doctors outside the arge cities are believers in phlebotomy and violent purgatives. They prescribe tea, but drug it without telling you, and the effects are felt a few days afterward. The prices of goods in Russian stores are assessed according to the apparent wealth of the customer. A stranger must first choose the article he wants, then offer what he thinks reasonable, and turn on his heel if the offer be declined. Should the tradesman hurry after him into the street he may be sure that he has offered too much Should he be allowed to go his bid has really been too low, and of course this is liable to happen with persons accustomed to Western prices, for the cost of everything in Russia is exorbitant. A suit of fairly good clothes costs seventy dollars, a pair of knee boots thirty dollars, an average cigar twenty-five cents these cannot be had at a reasonable price unless bought through a native. In the large hotels, where Parisian furniture and beds are to be had, the day's board for a bachelor, without a servant, cannot be put down at less than ten dollars. The price of a single room ranges from three dollars to five dollars; table d'hete dinner costs two dollars and fifty cents without wine; a bottle of pale ale seventy-five cents; one of champagne four dollars, and so on. Amuse ments, such as theaters and concerts, cost about three times as much as in Paris. The theaters and restaurants are luxurious, and so are the first-class railway carriages on the line from Odessa to Moscow and St. Petersburg. If a stranger confined his travels to a journey on this line he would go away with a fine idea of Russian comfort, for all the latest American improvements in the way of sleeping and dining cars, dressing rooms and attendance are available.

There is one good side of traveling in Russia, and it is this: If a stranger be not fairing for commercial purposes, he will be made a welcome guest at the houses of the authorities in any town where he may wish to spend more than a day. The Civil Governor will dispatch a Secretary to his hotel and be glad to have him to dinner for the sole sake of hearing what news he has to bring. This s pleasant enough, and the hospitality is the more gracious as the passing stranger cannot make any return for it beyond thanks. On the other hand, a stranger who settles for any term exthem out and feed on them year after ceeding a week in a country town will year until the last fragment is trans- have to be careful of the company into which he falls, for Russian friendship soon turns to familarity, and one of the first manifestations of familiarity is to ask the stranger to take a hand at ecarte. Then it becomes a question of refusing and being deemed a boor, or accepting and being promptly cleaned out. The Russians are fearful gamblers. and a stranger with circular notes in his pocket is a godsend to them. They do not cheat, but play and play until the result is utter impecuniousness to one of the two parties to the game. The women are as bad as the men, and think nothing of winning a few thousand dolcan tree will grow almost anywhere. It seems able to stand any amount of lars from a stranger whom they have cold, nor is it injured by the heat of our not known for more than a week. Odessa Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

Visiting Congressmen. "I suspect that Governor Long will develop into a visit," observed a fellowreporter the other day. Now this remark suggests an interesting subject and one not quite worn out, so perhaps These, however, are only matters of it would be well to let it lead me on. It must be introduced to begin with, by mount importance is with this tree, as saying that all Congressmen who are saying that all Congressmen who are worth anything have their own particular reputation in the reporters' galleries; and, as a rule, these reputations are just. I don't know a fairer estimate of the average opinion of the responsible correspondents stationed here. The Congressional visitor is a well-defined class. Generally speaking he is an old member, but there are exceptions, for, as the true poet is born not made, and lisps in numbers for the numbers came so the real visitor intentively begins his rounds at once. He is of a sociable and affable disposition and of an inquiring turn of mind. His neighbors interest him, and the machinery of Governmen is also a source of amusement. He finds himself thrown into familiar contact with successful men, representing every nook and corner of the land and of opinion. The "House" soon be-comes a club, and, as he is a clubable man, he soon gets on terms of good-fellowship with the members. The is one side of the visitor; he generally has another; for, as a rule, he is a practical man who combines business with pleas-The visitor is usually more than the idle-good fellow. Before long it appears that he has a little bill which he asks unanimous consent to have taken up out of its order and passed; a very little bill, to which he is sure no member can have the slightest objection. Ah, then the visitor's smile and happy story find their reward! For who so churlish as to raise the fatal objection to one with whom, half an hour before, he had so charming a chat! The Speaker, therefore, "hears no objec-tion," and the little bill goes through. - Washington Cor. Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

-The performances of the locomotive whistle we are told have been systematized on a Western railroad. whistles are to indicate "down brakes. thirty-two whistles, "up brakes;" forty whistles and two snorts, a "back-up."
The instructions add: "In case of doubt whistle like thunder;" at street crossings, "whistle considerably." Again: "Always whistle before dinner. Require

-English papers have charged their American contemporaries with being sensational and fond of the dark side of life, but the London Truth shows the hypocrisy of this charge when it says. "One good bloody murder, from a newspaper point of view, is worth more than anything else that can happen, and a murder in England interests Londoners a thousand times more than a campaign on the Nile."

Cheating Old Age.

Old age, which used to come gradually and be in no particular haste to begin ts visible progress, has recently caught the spirit of the time and advanced upon some people at a galloping pace. The fault is with the victims themselves. The life-endurance of any given person is fixed by nature, and the man who one can find scores of men who at thirtyplay (of the kind that uncharitable perbe arrested?

Many physicisns in New York are devoting themselves to the task of proonging the lives of persons who are not rapidly. Among the practitioners who study the subject carefully, there seems to be but little difference of method. Their first and hardest work is to convince their patients that it is dangerous to live "fast"—a word which has special significance which makes it ab solutely insulting to many eminently respectable transgressors of the laws of health. It seems impossible to persuade a merchant who does more work in one hour than his best clerk can do in three, that he is guilty of fast living and dis-sipation; even if he never drinks a drop and refrains from all improper pleasures. The lawyer or broker who accomplishes wonders in the morning, but feels a sense of "goneness" early in the afternoon, cannot be made to believe that part of him is literally "gone, and that if he urges himself beyond that point, without first taking a little rest, he expends vitality with frightful rapidity. Ladies who, between household cares, religious duties and socia responsibilities, are steadily active from eight in the morning until midnight, sometimes wonder why they lose the freshness of youth, while some of their sex, whom they occasionally see, but would not for worlds speak to, preserve face and figure in spite of lives of which the less said the better. But when these, as well as less inno cent classes, are convinced that they are living too rapidly, and physicians begin to arrest the advance of age by urging rest. No practitioner of high standing now prescribes stimulants to any per sons not really ill, excepting those are absolutely compelled to more exer-tion than is good for them. Short periods of relaxation throughout the day are always found beneficial; some business men have been greatly helped by dropping upon a lounge for five minutes in every hour or two; they may not—cannot—stop thinking, but there seems great relief in merely assuming a recumbent position for a little while. During the recent civil war a general whose men were noted for coming out of a hard march in fine fighting condition, attributed his success to his imperative order that his men should lie down whenever a halt was ordered. Regular and full hours for sleep are also insisted upon, and until the patient endeavors to adhere closely to this rule he does not begin to comprehend how nature's great restorative is diminished in quantity by the demands of business reat city. Or half-nights of sleep per week do not seem to mar the health of young people, but any person who has reached the age of thirty-five is weakened by such privations, and few of them who of eating concentrated food, with stimpublic men and public measures than ulating codiments and sauces. Much meat and little vegetables is the rule with active people in large cities. It is the result of a physical craving, born of rapid waste of physical tissue, for stimulation. A hard-working farmer, who is in the open air all day, would not, because he could not, eat as much meat as a slightly-built business man will consume daily in New York, and he would become excitable almost to madness were he to partake as sparingly of bread and vegetables. Good physicians place no restrictions on the quantity of food for a city man or woman of active habits, but they urge that the proportion of meats and pas-tries to vegetables be lessened. The free use of fruit and milk is strongly advocated, to correct the bad effects of overeating and of stimulating food. Fruit juices are believed to accelerate the natural and healthful action of the alimentary canal, to prevent the reten- CATTLE-Ship tion of wasted tissue, and to maintain a its normal condition the prespiratory system, one of the most important an least remembered portions of the physical machinery. While not delaying or diminishing nutrition in any way, fruit if used in sufficient quantity, is known to lower the temperature of the bloo that is overheated by liberal feeding combined with lack of exercise. Nev York has plenty of melons and peache during the summer months; but in eigh of the twelve months of the year fruit i regarded as a luxury rather than necessity. A physician with a larg practice in a fashionable district in Nev York said recently that careful inquiry failed to discover that any one of hi patients ever bought apples, except for special treatment in the kitchen, al though the apple is the most abund ant, cheap, and ever-present of the fruits which are peculiarly beneficial a food. The few rules given above do not ob viate the necessity for special treatmen for persons who are growing old to rapidly, for age nearly always manifest its approach by finding its victim' weakest part and attacking it. The are, however, so contrary to general custom that they will be new to most people who read them, as they are to nearly all who obtain them, for the first time, from family physicians .- N. Y.

"A freight car doesn't appear to be a big thing, but you have no idea what it will hold until you come to crowd it once," remarked a passenger, as we passed a "boarding car" for track hands. "I'll tell you what I saw once out in Nebraska. At a station called Sutton, on the extension of the Burlingdraws most largely and steadily upon his physical capital must be the first to month was one freight car. Yes, sir, display gray hairs and discover chronic just one freight car run out on a couple bodily weaknesses. In New York any of old rails by the side of the track. It contained the freight office, ticket office, five have whitening heads and nerves that need "bracing" at short intervals office, and a real-estate office, a grocery, every day. Whether they reach this condition by too much work or too much stock of dry goods, and the agricultural stock of dry goods, and the agricultural implement man had his stock scattered sons call dissipation), the indications of around, and his office in the car. The hastening age are equally significant. How is the progress of the destroyer to too, and his wife took in boarders. Nor that ain't all. The last day I was there I saw a sign on that car, "Furnished Rooms to Rent," but I afterward learned that meant a bunk in the tent on the ill, yet have begun to wear away too roof. I wouldn't exaggerate about this freight car just to squeeze in a little joke like that."—Chicago Herald.

CURES OF RHEUMATISM AND SCI-

ATICA. PEEKSKILL, N. Y., March 3, 1884. I am a boat-builder living at Peekskill, New York. I have been greatly troubled during the past winter with Rheumatism in my back and shoulder. I have used ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS and they always relieve the pain. I have used other plasters recommended by friends, but I find ALL-COCK's decidedly the best. We have used them in the family for some years, and would not be without them.

CROTON LANDING, New York, | Jan. 21, 1884. This will certify that BRANDRETH'S PILLS and Allcock's Porous Plasters cured me of a very severe attack of sciatica. I was taken with this severe pain on January 4, 1881, and, having tried various remedies without benefit, I bethought me of the above named medicines. I took two pills every night at bed-time, and put five ALL-COCK'S POROUS PLASTERS on my limbs. I had not used them over three days before I felt great relief, and in thirty days I was completely cured. They took all the rheumatism out of my system. Thanking God first, and you secondly, I am truly yours, E. CHASE, Principal Public School, Croton Landing. When purchasing a Porous Plaster, be sure to get "Allcock's." All other socalled Porous Plasters are imitations.

NERVOUS, dyspeptic individuals, whose distress of mind and body make life miserable, if your sufferings have been prolonged and increased by the use of bitters and pretended cures of kidney and liver diseases, throw all such nostrums aside and find health, strength and vigor in that simple remedy known as Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood, strengthens the urinary and digestive organs, and infuses new life into all parts of the body. No other remedy equals it. Have your druggist get it for you.
