Local Postmark Still Available

Postmaster Charles Townes wishes to deny stories that the local postmark is no longer available on outgoing mail. Many local postal customers have been obtaining the Tahoka postmark for months by using this method.

Lord Of The Mice

BY PAUL HARVEY

What works in the medical laboratory does not always work in the clinic.

Said another way, a medicine which cures a disease in animals may not cure the same disease in humans.

However, medical science has established that monkeys are much like man biologically - socially similar.

So when our nation's National Institute of Mental Health sought to create a microcosm of the total human society, it populated its "separate world" with mice.

What happened to them relates to you. They call Dr. John Calhoun "Lord of the Mice." For five years he has been playing god in a separate world of his own.

He turned back civilization's clock and started over. He created an Eden on earth - for mice. A Utopia in which there was plenty of everything - plenty of food, perpetual fair weather, temperate climate; freedom from all natural enemies, total isolation from disease germs, a paradise for mice. This mouse colony had everything a mouse could need and, at first, everything a mouse could want.

A formal and detailed report on what happened to the mouse colony is included in two current publications - a British publication, "Proceedings of The Royal Society of Medicine," and the international journal, "Technological Forecasting and Social Change." Space limitations allow no more than a synopsis here.

This Garden of Eden for mice was first populated with four couples in space adequate to comfortably accommodate 160. During the first two years the mouse population increased from the original eight to 200.

As the confines grew crowded, some mice began to segregate themselves into groups of about a dozen each and to reject outsiders. The rejection of others turned to violence toward others. The rejected resorted to sexual aggression.

From this preoccupation with sex, the social "order" disintegrated and was destroyed. That is to say, any respect for "law and order" was negated by carnal passion until a time when the social order had degenerated completely. After that there was a conspicuous lack of sexual interest. Ultimately the mouse population became passive and lost all interest in sex.

Dr. Calhoun observes that their needs were not supplied; there was a total absence of stress - except for that stress which the inhabitants themselves generated within themselves. He says this was apparent from the beginning. They were "not content to be content."

At any time in the past five years, particularly as their population dwindled, it was assumed the mice might have reverted to normal social relationships. But they did not. Apparently, by then, they did not remember how.

Today, from the peak population of 200 only five survive. And they are all males.

Puff, Puff, Puff

In 1492, Columbus and his crew saw natives smoking bundles of "certain dried leaves with a distinct fragrance." This tobacco, a substance widely known and long used throughout the Americas, was quickly adopted and the technique of smoking.

At first, tobacco was thought to be a great medical discovery, a "wonder drug," and its popular use spread far beyond any medicinal purposes. Within 150 years, tobacco had spread throughout the entire world and sailors and traders carried it even in isolated parts of Africa and Asia.

JAMES I of England strongly condemned tobacco smoking in 1604, as a "barbarous, vile and stinking custom." Nevertheless, as use increased he imposed heavy taxes on it.

In 1630, Pope Urban VIII decreed that anyone caught using tobacco inside a church will be excommunicated. Peter the Great tried to stop the use of tobacco in Russia with death penalties and mutilations in 1700.

Such early anti-tobacco decrees were of no avail. And, in 1883, James Duke, an American industrialist, installed a cigarette-making machine in his tobacco factory, marking the start of the age of the cigarette.

ROUND THREE

... PAST DAYS

Copied from March 1, 1918

The Lynn County Red Cross Chapter will hold a general meeting at the Court House Saturday March 2nd at 3:00 p.m. Every member is urged to attend this meeting together with everybody interested in Red Cross work. The chairman of each standing committee is requested to be present and make a report of work being done her respective committee. Let's not minimize the importance of the Red Cross work in this war, but give it its proper place alongside the other potent forces which will ultimately bring us the victory. Let everybody come out and have a good warm meeting. Learn what's being done by your own Chapter. Don't let a small thing like a sandstorm keep you away. We all need a little more "grit" to make us do our part in this world war anyway. So let's all come to the meeting Saturday.

There is a double inducement for the Texas farmer, the coming season, to pile up heavily increased output of things to live upon. On the one hand it is a patriotic duty, and on the other hand nothing he can do will bring him greater profit. In short, he owes it to his country and to himself to study and plan and work to make two pounds of "eats" to grow where one pound grew in previous years.

R.P. Wallis and Clarence Keever made a business trip to Lorenzo last Sunday.

J.N. Brashear, of the firm of Knight & Brashear, is spending a few days in Eastland County looking after business matters.

J.N. Adams is engaged this week breaking a bunch of young mules at the old livery barn.

J.S. Beard, the New Home merchant, transacted business with Tahoka merchants Tuesday.

F.O. Allen was up from O'Donnell the first of the week doing some trading.

Terry Nobles came from the West Point district Tuesday after a load of cake. W.R. Standefer, of Wilson, was in the city this week on business.

Sam Sanford is having a turn with "liberty measles" this week.

G.R. Jones of Grassland, accompanied by Prof. Hood and wife, visited with the family of N.M. Bray, Sunday.

Judge Lockhart and children and Mr. Larkin and family went to Lubbock Saturday to attend "The Birth of a Nation" at one of the picture shows there.

Dock Windham has received the fine hereford bull that he bought at the auction at the "Buyers" and sellers' Convention" at Amarillo recently. The animal is a very fine specimen and Mr. Windham is to be congratulated upon having made this addition to his herd.

oOo

This is the time of year when members of high school graduating classes are considering the matter of whether or not they shall add to their education by going to college. With the doors of the University of Texas open to all ambitious young men and women, even to those possessed of little money, there is no excuse for failure of any high school graduate to pursue his studies further. It is the opinion of educators that there never was a time when the value of education was higher than now, and it will be ever higher when the war is over.

oOo

Texas paid the biggest toll of lives in the sinking of the Tuscania, the nation learned today with the republication of the list of 131 known dead. Twenty four boys from the Lone Star State are buried in Scottish soil and the list will be added slightly. Texas lost twice as many men as any other state. Wisconsin, Oregon, California and Oklahoma each lost twelve. Twenty-eight states and Hawaii had sons who were lost, the list shows.

Manager E.L. Howard of the Star Theater should be complimented upon the class film that he is bringing here. Last Saturday night, he presented "Womanhood, The Glory of the Nation." It is doubtful if this picture has been shown in a town of this size often. Considering the expense to which he has put, it cannot be a money making proposition. Tahoka is indeed fortunate to have the opportunity to see this class of pictures at home.

oOo

We notice Tahoka has a scheme whereby it is proposed from windmills at a cost of $600 to irrigate 20 or 30 acres. We hope they can work this proposition out but if they now know as little as ye editor does about irrigation a year like the past has been they will irrigate one acre with ten windmills so that they grow anything on it unless they can cut off the blowing sand surrounding it. Here's some of the great difficulties in this country. All of this country is alike in this matter.

They Say

Well used safety belts three to ten years old may fail to meet federal standards due to breakage of the webbing at anchor and buckle. The National Bureau of Standards advises that belts weakened by repeated adjustments and the passage of time should be replaced.

"Don't believe the world owes you a living; the world owes you nothing -- it was here first." - Robert Jones Burdette.

Will Lynn County Be One Of The 100

A recent survey by regional planning commissions predicts that 100 of the 254 counties in Texas will continue to shrink in population as they have done every decade since the 1920 census was taken.

A statewide program is under way to stabilize the population of these 100 counties, but admittedly it is a hard struggle.

What about a purely agricultural county whose main crop is cotton? How about one of the counties of West Texas which has little for income except for oil, and it is produced by automated machinery instead of people?

In our own area, we held our own between the 1960 and the 1970 census. We are not listed in the 100 counties destined to shrink but neither are we listed in the areas most likely to grow in population, either.

The places where population will increase are those where the people are now - the metropolitan areas.

The key to a stable population and a growing population is jobs. Most of the jobs these days are connected with industry rather than oil or agriculture. Thus the effort needs to be made toward an industrial payroll if people are to remain in an area.

There is a federal rural development law which can help with loans for rural industry and businesses. But no amount of federal or state financial assistance can push industry into places where it is not sound and reasonable for industry to be.

Industry locates where there are markets, labor, raw materials and a demand for its products. If all of these factors are missing, there will be no industry there.

While a lot of hue and cry is heard deploring the crowding of urban areas, out in the rural areas where main streets are dotted with vacant stores, the tune is different. Rural America needs jobs and payrolls in order to keep folks at home.

1973 Texas Public Schools Week

Knowledge always desires increase; it is like a fire, which must first be kindled by some external agent, but which will afterward propagate itself. - Johnson.

You are the external agent who creates within your child a desire for knowledge. He may go to school, but only your encouragement, enthusiasm and support can spur him to achieve his potential.

One hundred nineteen years have passed since public schools were established in Texas. March 5-9 marks that anniversary, and as always, Texas Public Schools invite you to visit and observe.

Your interest - whether or not you have children - is needed to continue and improve education for those who will lead tomorrow.

Texas Public Schools are your concern. You pay tax dollars to support them. See that you're getting your money's worth and help to keep the lamp of learning burning.

Please visit a public school in your area or neighborhood during Texas Public Schools Week, March 5-9.

Togetherness

People in business, labor and government must work together if we are to achieve the highest standard of living for all, says the new chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, Burt F. Raynes.

"We have nothing to consume that we have not first produced," he explains. "Virtually all the necessities of life are contained in the outpouring of mills and factories. We are dependent on this output for clothes, means of transportation, food and housing."

This business contribution to our way of life needs to be understood more widely by the public, educators and members of government. Misconceptions must be corrected.

Mr. Raynes said that areas of agreement in labor relations also should be identified, so that areas of disagreement can be minimized.

These candid proposals by an industrial leader should be welcomed by all segments of the American public as logical moves in helping our country reach its social, economic and educational goals without self-defeating bickering between special interest groups.

FARM REVIEW

Cotton Leaders Get A Welcome To Lubbock

A joint invitation to attend the Southwest's most important cotton meeting, the Western Cotton Production Conference, went out this week to nearly a thousand producers and allied industry representatives from the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

This year's conference will be held March 7-8 at Lubbock's Ko-Ko Inn, stated Dr. Robert B. Metzger, Extension agronomist from Lubbock and a member of the program committee.

He said the opening session will get under way at 8:45 a.m. with a discussion of the government farm program by Jim Carter, executive vice president of Arizona Cotton Growers Association of Phoenix.

The two-day meeting, which will feature a wide range of topics on cotton production, harvesting and marketing, is expected to attract over 400 leading producers and representatives of the cotton industry from the southwestern and southern states.

Among the Texans participating in the program are officials and specialists of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas A&M University and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Also, representatives of farm groups including the National Cotton Council, Western Cotton Growers Association, Cotton Incorporated and the Plains Cotton Growers.

Other program participants will be officials of the Cooperative Extension Services of Arizona, New Mexico, and California, and numerous industry representatives and producers. In all, 45 speakers will address the group.

The event will be preceded, as last year, by a special technical conference, this one on cotton diseases.

Local hosts for the event are Plains Cotton Growers and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Cottonseed prices were steady and farmers received $47 to $56 per ton for their cottonseed at gins.

(43) staple 31 - 23.05, Strict Low Middling Tinged (44) staple 30 - 19.35 and Strict Low Middling Tinged (44) staple 31 - 19.45.

Just about all signs point to an increase in the amount of cotton stored in ricks on High Plains turnrows during the 1973 harvest season. Therefore the operation of a seed cotton loan program this year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture may assume added importance.

For this reason Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. is urging that the two year old program be continued.

In a letter to Glen Weir, Acting Administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson wrote "We recommend that the existing seed cotton loan program be continued in essentially the same manner as in 1972."

Loans were available to producers on unginning cotton in 1971 and 1972, but on a somewhat limited basis. Only a few gins on the Plains were approved as processors of field-stored cotton and many producers were unaware of the ease with which loans could be secured. Consequently of an estimated 50,000 to 100,000 bales stored in the fields this season, loans were made on something like 1,000 bales.

Johnson did suggest one improvement in the program. In 1971 and 1972 ginners who wanted to handle seed cotton under loan were required to make application to, and be approved by, the Washington office of ASCS.

"Assuming there will be a great increase in field-stored cotton this year" Johnson wrote, "this procedure may prove unnecessarily slow. Therefore we suggest that application blanks be placed in county ASCS offices and that County ASCS Committees be empowered to give final gin approval."

The ASCS looks to ginners for assurance that field-stored cotton is properly insured and for reports of bale numbers and weights when the cotton is ginned. And since the Washington office of ASCS must depend on county ASCS recommendations concerning the reliability of ginners in this respect, it is only logical that county offices be given authority to make the final decision. Johnson reasons.

A PCG check with the Lubbock ASCS office and with both producers and ginners involved in these loans for 1971 and 1972 revealed general satisfaction with other aspects of the program.

Loans on unginning cotton are made at the rate of 90 percent of estimated value, taking into consideration the volume of cotton ricked plus producer or gin records of turnout and quality characteristics from similar cotton ginned previously.

The field storage system was developed and promoted by Cotton Incorporated, the producer - funded dollar - a bale program. Much of the development work has done under research grants. Key to the system is a mechanized "rick compactor" which puts the cotton into free-standing ricks able to withstand high winds and resistant to moisture penetration. The rick compactor was developed at Texas Tech University under the direction of Dr. Milton L. Smith, Associate Professor of Industrial Engineering.

Market Report

"Beef prices have increased considerably during the past year due mainly to higher prices to beef producers and increased costs in marketing," Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt said this week.

The consumer marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, also cited beef values for the next week or two.

"Look for best beef values on chuck roasts and steaks, ground beef, beef and calf liver, and round steaks and roasts.

"Pork values appear irregular, hams, picnics, shoulder roasts and steaks, end-cut loin roasts and chops and pork liver."

Turing to poultry counters, Mrs. Clyatt maintained that chickens remain a bargain in most meat department even at higher price levels, as do grade A large-sized eggs.

Fresh fruit and vegetable items in best supply at the most economical prices include apples, oranges, grapefruit avocados and bananas.

Also potatoes, turnips, hard shell squash, broccoli, cabbage carrots and dry yellow onions.

age is to avoid, economically, the ginning bottleneck that has plagued the industry since the conditions its use can save up to $24 per bale in the total cost of moving cotton from farm to mill.

Obviously the "system" will not fit into the circumstances surrounding all farmers or all ginners, Johnson says, "but the seed cotton loan will just as obviously be of use to many of those who do find it to their advantage."

AG CAREER DAY, PRACTICE JUDGING - The Texas A&M University College of Agriculture will host its annual Career Day and practice judging session on Mar. 24. More than 3,000 Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club members from across the state are expected to participate. According to Dean of Agriculture Dr. H.O. Kunkel, Career Day is designed to provide youth with information on the many challenging opportunities in the field of agriculture. Career Day headquarters will be the Plant Sciences Building on the A&M campus.

Don't Gin Rick Cotton To Soon

Heavily moist cotton standing on ricks in the fields should be left to dry before transporting to the gin, warns County Extension Agent Bill Griffin.

"Excessive drying at the gin, Griffin says, "may depreciate lint and seed grades, shorten staple length and result in a poorer turnout."

"According to Dr. Milton Smith of Texas Tech University who developed the rick storage method," Griffin explains, "the cotton may be dry on top but wet eight to ten inches below the surface. If cotton feels moist and the seeds are soft at that depth, it should be left another two or three days."

Griffin emphasizes that research conducted by Dr. Smith has shown that lint and seed grades will not deteriorate during storage if the ricks are properly managed.

"It would be worthwhile financially," Griffin says, "for producers to wait a few extra days more to allow cotton to dry thoroughly before taking it in to the gin."

Weather Delays Harvest

The South Plains cotton harvest was delayed another week to ten days by the rain and snow over the area, according to W.K. Palmer, in charge of the Lubbock Cotton Classing Office of the U.S.D.A. However, farmers were able to harvest some cotton before the unfavorable weather halted all harvest activities. Some ginning, sampling and classing continued due to accumulated backlogs of cotton harvested before the unfavorable weather.

Samples from 113,000 bales were tested and classed at the South Plains U.S.D.A. cotton classing offices at Lubbock, Brownfield and Lamesa during the week ending Friday, February 23rd. This brought the total classed for the season to 1,779,000 bales.

More cotton remains in the fields across the region than at any other time in history at this late period in the harvest season. Approximately ten percent of the cotton crop remains in the fields.

Grades of cotton continued to decline as the harvest neared completion. Strict Low Middling Light Spotted (42) was the predominant grade, making up 17 percent of all cotton classed. Low Middling Light Spotted (52) made up 14 percent, Strict Low Middling Spotted (43) 13 percent and Strict Low Middling Tinged (44) 15 percent.

Average staple length was about the same as the previous week. Staples were predominantly 29 to 32. Thirteen percent had a staple length of 29, 38 percent stapled 30, 26 percent stapled 31 and 15 percent was 32.

Microaire readings remained steady. Only 10 percent of all cotton classed at Lubbock had microaire readings in the premium range of 3.5 through 4.9. 8 percent "miked" 3.3 through 3.4, 28 percent was 3.0 through 3.2, 34 percent 2.7 through 2.9 and 20 percent was 2.6 and below.

The Agricultural Marketing Service of the U.S.D.A. reported active trading on the Lubbock market. Prices were steady for cotton with microaire of 3.0 and better but were $10.00 to $15.00 per bale higher on cotton with microaire of 2.9 and lower. Prices ranged from $5.00 per bale over the loan for low grade, low microaire cotton up to $60.00 per bale over the loan for high grade, premium microaire cotton.

Average prices paid for the most predominant qualities in the 3.5 to 4.9 premium microaire range were: Strict Low Middling Light Spotted (42) staple 30 - 27.50 cents per pound, Strict Low Middling Light Spotted (42) staple 31 - 27.90, Strict Low Middling Spotted (43) staple 30 - 22.75, Strict Low Middling Spotted

BILL GRIFFIN SAYS

The rapid buildup of volunteer sorghum plants in West Texas grain fields has caused much concern among farmers, seed producers and weed scientists.

These pests, he explains, compete with grain sorghum for nutrients, water and sunlight. In addition, many of the off-type or weedy sorghums, because they are prolific seed producers, contribute to new infestations in succeeding years.

"Now that farmers are planning their cropping programs for the coming season," "this is the time to give some attention to controlling the problem.

"There are two primary sources of the off-type and weedy sorghums. One is the planting seed; few, if any, hybrid grain sorghum seed are completely free of the undesirable types.

"Another important source are volunteer plants that grow from seed remaining in the soil from previous years. These can come from off-type plants that went to seed in a grain sorghum field or from sudangrass and forage sorghum hybrids which were used for temporary summer pastures and for standing hay in the fall and winter. If these crops were allowed to head out, a large number of the seed produced will be present in the soil and volunteer plants may be even a greater problem in following years."

The length of time it will take to control the volunteer problem will depend on the severity of infestation, the types of sorghums which make up the volunteer crop, weather conditions and the cultural practices used.

"Relatively light infestations of the tall, coarse-stemmed off-type sorghums and may be virtually eliminated in one or two years. These type plants produce soft seed which are more apt to decompose or germinate during the off season, thus permitting volunteer plants to be eliminated by freezing weather or by fall and spring tillage operations.

"To encourage decomposition and volunteer growth in the fall or early spring," Supak says, "it is a good practice to shred and disc immediately after harvest."

"In contrast, several years may be required to eliminate the tall, fine-stemmed, open-headed weedy sorghums which resemble the sudangrasses. These types tend to produce hard seed which frequently shatter before harvest, remaining dormant in the soil for several years."

"Both the weedy and off-type sorghums are virtually impossible to control by any method other than rouging once they have emerged and are growing in a grain sorghum field. Although it is a fairly expensive operation, rouging is extremely important if crop rotation is not practiced and if the fields are still relatively free of weedy sorghums."

By far the best method for controlling volunteer plants, is rotating grain sorghum with wheat or broadleaf row crops such as soybeans or cotton. Rotation with wheat is desirable since it allows the fields to be clean-tilled during the spring and summer months. Rotation with summer broadleaf crops are especially good since herbicides recommended for controlling grasses can be used with these crops.

Farmers can help alleviate their problems with volunteer sorghums by buying seed from reputable seed companies which have a reputation for selling clean seed, by continuous rouging and by adapting good rotation practices in conjunction with effective herbicides.

EFFECT OF DEVALUED DOLLAR -- According to a specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the recent U.S. dollar devaluation should boost agricultural exports. However, U.S. consumers will pay higher prices for certain imported food and fiber products such as spices, vanilla, pepper, coffee, tea, bananas, cocoa, silk and rubber.

FOOD PRICE CHECK -- The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is proposing a check into food prices to determine the validity of claims such as "lowest prices" and "discount prices." A specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service explains that the proposed plan would involve a survey of all food chains accounting for one percent or more of the total grocery sales in a standard metropolitan statistical area (SMSA).

Down the highway, south, over the bridge, east, and across the railroad tracks and you are in the mobile home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Christie. Their acreage parallels the railroad tracks with their home in the northwest corner, surrounded by a yard fence. In the back yard is Richard's project, pens and barns for his pigs. The domain is watched over by the trusted family dog who comes to greet all visitors.

The young lord of the manor is sleeping - a sensible thing to do for one who is twenty-two months old and just had his lunch. Besides, the weather is disagreeable. It's cloudy and gray and raining outside. Not much else for an active little one to do but sleep, while the conservation is of "cabbages and kings and many other things."

In August four years ago Richard and Billie Christie moved to Tahoka. Billie was born in Sweetwater, Texas where she went to school and graduated from high school. After attending Tarleton State College a semester, she returned to Sweetwater to work in the Chamber of Commerce office as secretary. She and Richard were married April 14, 1969 in Sweetwater. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Scott still live in that city and have a butane business there. Many weekend trips are made to let the grandparents see their first grandchild Vance Scott Christie. Yet, come April things will be different as another heir is due then.

Vance is the only grandson or grandchild, on either side of the family and receives most of attention here. His other grandparents live in Idaho and are teachers. His grandfather is an agriculture teacher there. So, it matters not to young Vance which grand parents he visits for he can still maintain his interest in animals -- be it dogs, horses, sheep or pigs, whichever place he goes.

In Sweetwater, though, he has a little pony to ride. While his mother lived in Sweetwater, she was Sheriff Posse Queen from Nolan County and all the family enjoyed horseback riding. The dark-haired blue-eyed beauty has her hands full keeping up with young son Vance these days.

Other days Billie Christie has worked in the school office here and later in the Lynn County News office. Today she is vice-president of the Early Heritage home demonstration club, and is a member of the First United Methodist church and is vice-president of the Wesleyan Service Guild in her church.

The young prince awakes. After he gets his eyes open and his socks and shoes on, he is ready to have his picture made. Finally, the photographer agrees that one picture is printable. While Vance plays with a huge red balloon as big as he, his mother finds a desert recipe for us.

The rain has stopped. The sun is out and another delightful visit comes to an end.

Oh yes, husband Richard Christie - or main dragon killer -- works for USDA Soil Conservation Service Tahoka. (This is no fable. It is a true story of gallant youth today.)

In Memory Of Dwain Hess

DWAIN

God loaned him to us for a while
We caught his quick infectious smile -
His gentle ways - His tender touch -
How we shall miss him - Oh so much!

I loved him as a little boy
To care for him brought lots of joys -
He learned from God when very small -
To hearken to His every call -

He climbed his mts - one by one
From early morn to setting sun -
He climbed above things of the earth
And turned his face to Heavens worth.

At peace with God - in Heavenly rest -
The world behind - in Heaven blessed
He waits us there - a few short days
We'll see again his smiling face.

Let us be patient for a while
As yet we tread the weary mile -
Keep hearts and faces all aglow
I'm sure Dwain would have it so.

5 per cent guaranteed loan money for future telephone expansion. Prominent speakers from Capitol Hill and the Nixon Administration included Senator William Proxmire, Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, Rep.
