Large Crowd Attends Lyntegar Meeting

Lyntegar Electric Coop. held its 36th Annual meeting Tuesday evening at the Tahoka Bulldog football stadium with approximately 3750 members and guests attending the festivities and business meeting.

Preceding the business meeting, a barbecue meal was served with the persons sampling the beef, potato salad, beans, slaw, fried pies and drinks. The scene as always looked like an old fashioned picnic, with families spreading blankets and others taking to the stadium seats.

Master of ceremonies for the event was Tahoka Attorney Calloway Huffaker.

H.R. Dabbs, president, called the meeting to order and Rev. Aubrey White gave the invocation. The Welcome address was given by Meldon Leslie, Mayor of Tahoka. Attorney Harold Green was in charge of the business meeting.

President Dabbs reported that Lyntegar finished the year with an operating margin despite the heavy losses of the ice storm early in the year. A rate change will become effective January 1st. The amount will vary, but averages in total less than 10 per cent. Garland Pennington, who retired at the end of 1973 after serving more than 35 years as manager of Lyntegar, was a honored guest. Recognition was given to the late Mr. W.H. Moore, who had served for more than 30 years as a director and as president of the board for the past five years.

Officers elected for the upcoming year were W.C. McKee of Sudan to District No.1; Wade Terry of Post, District No. 6; and Roger Blakney of New Home, District No. 7.

Immediately following the business meeting, a drawing was held for a large number of prizes and the presentation was made by Joe D. Unfred of New Home.

Blood Needed By Area Bank

Donations of blood are needed by Lubbock Blood Services, which supplies blood for patients in hospitals of 23 counties of this area, John Schwartz of LBS told Rotarians in a talk before the local club last Thursday.

Schwartz told of the different types of blood and the importance of an adequate and safe available supply for people of the area who may need transfusions, many times in emergencies.

Any person donating a pint of blood provides free protection for his immediate family for 6 months.

Twice in the past year a blood collecting day has been held in Tahoka, and another day for donations will be set up before many weeks.

Rev. Frank Oglesby was in charge of the program and introduced the speaker.

Prowler Reports In Tahoka Last Week

Police chief Jack Miller said that this past week he had 22 prowler reports, but only 3 actually had evidence of a prowler.

Foot print casts were taken at the three locations, the prints were the same prints that were taken at the Paula Jones residence Sunday, Aug. 4.

Police chief Miller said that a suspect had been questioned but that no charges have been filed as yet, however the evidence gathered will be presented to the grand jury at the next term.

Miller has requested that if you suspect a prowler, do not hesitate to call the police--but please don't take the law into your own hands, lots of young people are out on these warm summer nights, and we do not want to accidentally hurt one of them.

Any time a family is able to gather for a reunion, it is an occasion to celebrate. But when the brothers and sisters of Fred H. White get together as they did last week end in Ft. Morgan, Colorado, they continue to set family records. The children of Texas homesteaders who settled in Lubbock County in 1898 or 99 seem to have had their share of good health and a good bookline, for their average age is 75½ years. That is 580 years among them. Not only that, but according to sister Della Thomas, Fred, Wal-

We always appreciate the various churches that bring us our gospel services since we can't get to church any other way. We know God gives special blessing for the good deeds.

They are still busy putting shingles on the roof, but from the sounds of the storm last night we may still yet get some hail before the season is over with. We are still praying for speedy recovery. Corine Izard will check into the hospital Tuesday for a check-up and series of tests.

Lynn County Superintendent's Office To Close

An act of the Texas Legislature approved by the County School Superintendent and the Lynn County School Trustees was passed to abolish the office of County School Superintendent at the end of the term for which he was elected, Dec. 31, 1974, or if a vacancy occurs before the expiration of the term, by resignation of the incumbent or otherwise the office shall cease to exist.

All duties and functions of the abolished office shall be performed by the Superintendents of the independent school districts located in Lynn County. All prior records and documents of the abolished office shall be transferred to the control and custody of the County Clerk.

The salaries of the County Superintendent and his assistant is paid by the Texas Education Department from funds of the state available school fund. The amount as set aside from the per capita apportionment for said county. The Supervisor of the O'Donnell, New Home and Wilson schools and the school nurse for Wilson and New Home schools are hired and paid by this office and the Education Agency reimburses each of the schools with the pro rata part of nurse and supervisor's salary. The schools in turn transfers the money to the County School Superintendent's office, plus their half of the social security paid these cooperative personnel which, is all the cost of the 2 cooperative teachers to the schools.

My assistant, Mrs. Teddie B. Kelley and myself have decided that it would be to the best interest of the schools involved to close this office on Aug. 31, 1974, rather than the transferring of our duties to occur in the middle of the school term.

The only county funds involved in the office of County School Superintendent is furnishing an office, utilities and telephone.

We are now involved with Texas Education Agency with the exact method of transferring duties over to the Superintendents of the schools in the county. As soon as we get this worked out, we will notify each of the school Superintendents of the county.

This office space will be connected to the Tax Assessor-Collectors office.

BILL GRIFFIN SAYS . . . . .

Texas swine producers are facing declining local markets because several Texas hog slaughter facilities have been closed. Even though some of the remaining packers are expanding hog slaughter capacities, and taking steps to eliminate the vestiges of poor management that caused the demise of some slaughter houses, the lack of convenient competitive outlets for slaughter hogs has served to lower the price received by many producers.

According to a Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist at Lubbock, an attempt to improve these conditions through group action in pooling market hogs and negotiating collectively with packers has been launched by Texas swine producers.

Marvin Sartin, Extension area specialist, says that an association in the Texas Panhandle is in the process of organization, and a producer-owned cooperative is being chartered on the South Plains.

These two organizations each plan to obtain a collection facility and receive hogs from their participants two days a week, he reports.

The animals when delivered will be sorted by weights and graded on USDA standards. They will be sold by telephone to packers on a bid basis. The sorting and grading will allow packers to bid on the quality and quantity of animals meeting their specific needs.

Another cooperative is currently operating in the McGregor area, Sartin says. These producers are marketing on grade and yield, utilizing the organization to accumulate truckload lots for shipment to various packing plants.

The specialist said that interest is rampant among hogmen throughout Texas for improvements in marketing, with organizations soon to organize in other swine producing areas.

"Marketing has historically been the neglected stepchild in agriculture," Sartin explains. "While most producers are excellent production managers, they spend little time and effort in marketing their products. The opportunities to significantly improve market conditions are limited for each individual because he is only one of many producers of that product."

Lynn County News

Negotiations between individual swine growers and packers necessarily disadvantage the producer, he says, because even the largest producers do not have enough volume to provide an assurance of supply to a packer. The packer must have a specified quantity of animals each day to maintain an efficient operation. If these animals are not locally available, they must be purchased from other areas (often from the cornbelt) and shipped in.

A significant percentage of the hogs slaughtered in Texas originate in other parts of the country, he adds. Simultaneously, because of the market conditions in some areas, many hogs produced in Texas are shipped out of the state for slaughter. Market efficiency suffers when live animals destined for slaughter pass each other at the Texas border.

Real gains in marketing can come only with large volumes. Thus, agriculturalists must organize and collectively help each other.

Despite the need for changes in the marketing structure, a potential hazard of operating numerous independent market organizations exists, the economist cautions. Dissimilarities in operations and procedures, competition between organizations, personality conflicts between managers and packers, and the limited capital available in each organization to hire capable market management are possible problems of having several independent marketing organizations.

"These problems could be combated and market efficiency significantly increased by organizing overall market coordination for all organizations," he says.

"Delegating the responsibility for contact with packers and actual sale of hogs from all organizations to one coordinating office would significantly increase the volume and associated market impact while maintaining local organizations and fostering local interest and support.

"Increased volume would ease the burden of the cost of market management and would allow the coordinator to be in the market every day contacting the same people. Additional services to packers (that will result in higher prices) would be increased significantly, and potential competition among local organizations would be eliminated."

He emphasizes that the structure of a coordinated multi area market effort needs some consideration. If local organizations are structured as cooperatives, a regional cooperative to handle the market coordination can be formed by the local co-ops. While this type of organization is not the only possibility, it has appeal because each member owns a part of the total structure.

The market effort by Texas swine producers is exciting, Sartin adds. Their attempts to help themselves potentially have far-reaching effects. But each swine producer must recognize that the success of this effort depends on the commitment of the participants.

Carolyn Haley Says...

"Opportunity" is calling for Lynn County whether or not they answer the call can have an important effect on their experiences down the pathway of life.

That opportunity is 4-H. 4-H is a youth development program for boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 19. Its purpose is to help boys and girls develop a positive image of themselves and to help develop their full potential.

As some may think, 4-H "ain't" all cows and cooking. It "ain't" all girls or all boys either. And it "ain't" all whites or all blacks or all browns. 4-H experiences can help every youngster in America grow mentally, spiritually, morally and physically.

4-H provides youth an opportunity to learn something that will help them in everyday life--many practical things, such as health, safety, conservation, and nutrition. They learn other things, too, that may lead to a fuller and richer life, such as knowing how to grow vegetables, how to cook and sew, how to raise and train an animal, and how to care for a bicycle, to name only a few.

And there's a uniqueness about 4-H that makes it a special type of program. 4-H is something different to everybody because of the different backgrounds and experiences that each and every member has. Thus, 4-H'ers learn from one another by sharing these experiences.

The 4-H program also involves the youth's family--it's a family affair. Many 4-H experiences happen at home, and this is where 4-H'ers actually work with their projects. So the youth and their families work and learn together. Hopefully, these experiences will help family members communicate more openly and thus become more close-knit.

With summer almost gone and school about to begin, it's about time for 4-H work to begin again. Any youth or parents who are interested in the 4-H program are urged to contact the local county Extension office. Remember that 4-H is open to all boys and girls 9-19 years of age. Youth of all races places of residence, socioeconomic situations or educational backgrounds are welcome.

FINNEY

SAYS

To Richard Nixon: Hail and farewell. We voted for you and we are not sorry.

The country was inflamed when you took office, our universities were being burned down by mobs of young men and women. Our young men, the flower of our nation, were fighting a war which never should have been started. The seeds of inflation had been sown 20 years before you took office. You have reaped the harvest sown by other men.
Today even with inflation, our standard of living is higher than any other nation in the world. Our businessmen and our farmers are more prosperous than at any time in our nation's history.

So once again, Hail and Farewell! Your only sin was in trying to protect your subordinates, a most commendable trait.
