City Property Valuations Up

Total valuation of property in the City of Tahoka has been set at $32,036,750 it was reported this week, almost twice the approximately $17,000,000 which has been used in the past in the city for tax purposes.

The figure was made available to the city this week, but county and Tahoka Independent School District totals still were not available. Some of the school district property in Terry County still had not been reported. Once the taxing jurisdictions in the county, including the county itself and all the cities and school districts, get the reappraisal figures, they must set a tax rate.

The rates will be lower in most instances, because the valuations have been raised to 100 per cent, or actual value, as stipulated by a recently enacted state law. The actual tax bill to the property owners, though, will mostly be higher. An outside firm was hired by the newly-created county tax appraisal board to set values on all property. Within a week or so, notices will be mailed to property owners in the county telling them how much their property has been appraised for. The same figure will be used by all taxing agencies.

The notices will also tell the property owner when and where a review board (equalization board) will meet, so that the taxpayer may appear to discuss or protest values set on his property, if he wishes.

The city total valuation was the only one available early this week.

Regardless of the tax rates or appraisals, all the taxing units in the county are facing increased expenses and will need considerably more money to operate next year than before. School districts also give homestead exemptions which provide relief for some, but others must make up the difference.

WORKOUTS START--The Tahoka Bulldogs started workouts this week, and here some of the backs run through plays. The Bulldogs will scrimmage Olney at a neutral site and Morton there prior to opening the season here against Stanton Sept. 5. (LYNN COUNTY NEWS PHOTO)

Tahoka Scout Group Takes 50-Mile Hike

Troop 721 Boy Scouts from Tahoka and Scoutmaster Guy Witt and Assistant SM Pierce Halmark attended a week-long camp at Tres Ritos, N.M., a well-known scout camp. Five Scouts made the trip.

Those on the outing included Harvey Hallmark, Monty Witt, Joe Dell Patterson, Rusty Cook and Randy Konstantana.

The group arrived at the camp on Sunday, July 27. On Monday the group went to Santa Barbara campground and began a 50-mile backpacking trip in the Pecos Wilderness National Forest. On Wednesday the group climbed the second highest peak in New Mexico, and during the hike saw bighorn sheep and mule deer. On Friday afternoon the group completed their hike back into camp. Witt said each participant would get a 50-mile-hike patch, once a required amount of conservation work has been completed.

There were no roads where the group went backpacking, only trails. They twice crossed the Santa Barbara Continental Divide during the week.

"The boys had a great attitude and demonstrated a real eagerness to learn," said Witt. "Also, we all enjoyed the fellowship, and I'd like to commend the young men for being really fine scouts."

Pictures and slides of the trip will be shown in September during a Court of Honor, with the date not yet set.

Calloway Huffaker was master of ceremonies, and Rev. Jerry Haley, pastor of First Baptist Church, Sunday, gave the invocation. County Judge Melvin Burks welcomed the group and Harold Green conducted the business meeting.

Sherry Etheredge Says....

Under the Sun: Sun-dried foods are a new harness to the world's oldest techniques: heating the food to evaporate the moisture present, and some means of removing the water vapor formed, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Make sure your solar drier has enough ventilation to let air circulate around the food trays and is adequately enclosed to keep out birds and insects.

Select the highest quality fruits and vegetables for drying, says USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service. Fresh and Fully ripened produce is the best. Immature produce lacks flavor and color and overmature produce may be tough and fibrous or soft and mushy.

Prepare produce immediately by washing or cleaning thoroughly. Sort and discard defective, decayed or moldy food. For convenient use and to speed drying, peel, pit or core and slice fruits and vegetables.

To stop the action of enzymes which cause color and flavor changes during ripening, produce must be pretreated to reduce enzyme activity.

Blanch vegetables to pretreat. Blanching helps save some of the vitamin content, sets color and hastens drying by relaxing tissues. Blanching may also prevent undesirable change in flavor during storage, and improve reconstitution during cooking. Steam-blanching retains more water-soluble nutrients in vegetables.

To keep light-colored fruits such as apples, apricots, peaches, nectarines and pears, from darkening during drying and storage, pretreat by blanching or use a suitable dip. A solution of table salt, ascorbic acid or a commercial antioxidant mixture containing ascorbic acid may be used. Syrup blanching will yield a sweetened candy product.

Before drying pretreated food, remove any excess moisture by placing the food on paper towels or clean

New Source Of Food Stamps Seen

Some Texans may now apply for food stamps through Social Security offices, according to the Texas Department of Human Resources, the state agency which administers the food stamp program.

An agreement between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Social Security Administration now makes it possible for a person to apply for food stamps at a Social Security office under the following conditions:

1. If you and your household (all the people who live and eat with you) are applying for supplemental Security Income (SSI), or
2. If you and your household already receive Supplemental Security Income (SSI) but are not receiving food stamps.

The arrangement is designed to allow the elderly and disabled to participate in the program without having to travel to a separate office to apply for benefits.

Persons already receiving food stamps who did not apply for them through a Social Security office, must reapply at the food stamp office when their benefit certification period ends.

Also, persons still may apply for entry into the food stamp office rather than the Social Security office, if they so desire.

Applicants who have questions about this change or want more information may call the toll-free Food Stamp Hotline at 1-800-252-9330, or may contact a local food stamp or Social Security office.

Magazine Article Features New Home Woman

An article in the August issue of The Farmer-Stockman features Elna Preston of Llano; Proxie Warminski, White Deer; Billie McCraw, Raymondville; Shelia Fillingim of New Home; and Martha Crawford of Ballinger, all farm and ranch wives.

The article, written by Dr. Betty Jo Smith, Extension Family Life Education Specialist, presents an inside look at the lives of the farm and ranch wife/mother, whose often unrecognized achievements and contributions lend themselves to the real successes of rural existence. Through interviews with five of these special women Dr. Smith gives an insight to some of the unique problems and benefits this dwindling spectrum of farm and ranch life contains for itself and our country. A picture of the Fillingim family is included in the article.

The Farmer-Stockman is one of the largest regional farm magazines in the U.S. It has more than 200,000 subscribers in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

Record Prices for Wool, Mohair Pushes Total Over $65 Million

AUSTIN--Wool and mohair production for 1979 reached a total of more than $65.9 million due to record prices received for the two fibers, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

A price average of 97 cents per pound was paid for wool; mohair sold at an average of $5.10 per pound, Brown said. The 1979 total for wool was $18,503,000, for mohair $47,430,000.

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service annual report on income and production showed a three percent larger wool clip for 1979 from 2,720,000 sheep.

"Last year's wool clip of 19,075,000 pounds was the largest in value since 1973 when there were a million more animals shorn," Brown said.

Mohair production in Texas totaled 9,300,000 pounds, 15 percent above the 1978 production. The number of goats clipped increased to 1,275,000, and the average clip per goat rose to 7.3 pounds.

Brown said that the Texas Department of Agriculture and the sheep and goat industry leaders are working together to improve predator control methods.

"The world demand is increasing for natural fibers," he said. "If we can develop means to remove offending predators that are satisfactory to environmental groups and federal agencies, the number of sheep and goats is going to climb in this state."

More than 300,000 eligible veterans and their survivors received larger Veterans Administration pension checks, effective July 1, thanks to a 14.3 percent increase in the government's cost of living index.

At the home of Mrs. Tommie Cox were Mr. Ronnie (Carolyn) Duncanville and Mrs. Larry Witt of Willsboro. Mrs. Cox visited with her sister in Willsboro.

Thomas had surgery in Methodist Hospital Tuesday. After being home only a few days Thelma Raindl again entered Methodist Hospital on Sunday for more tests and possible surgery later in the week.

Mary Edna Lancaster was a patient in Methodist Hospital from Wednesday until Monday. She is at home and doing well at this writing.

The Wilson Sewing Club met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Elmer Rice and Mrs. Charlie Lichey as hostesses. Because of the heat and several sick members the club had not met for several weeks and there were only five present. It was decided to get back on a regular schedule of two meetings per month. Next regular meeting will be Aug. 25, at the Museum Building in Wilson.

Bridge Winners

Winners in T-Bar Tuesday bridge were: Mrs. Carol Maule and James McAllister, first. Mrs. Olen Renfro and Mrs. Frank Hill, second. Mrs. H.W. Edwards, Jr. and Mrs. Audie Norman, third. Mrs. Meldon Leslie and Mrs. Bill Barham, fourth.

Charlie Lichey entered Methodist Hospital Tuesday for tests and possible surgery on Friday. His son, Curtis, from Beaumont, was here Thursday through Sunday last week and will be back for the surgery later this week.

Lynn Co. Pioneer Club will have the regular noon luncheon Friday 15. This will perhaps be the last covered dish luncheon as such, as the five day a week meals program will begin in the very near future. The center is still very much in need of volunteers to pick up and bring persons to the center for meals.

Student Is Missionary

Jay Kelley of Tahoka served a 10-week term as a Southern Baptist Home Mission Board student summer missionary. Kelley, a student at Wayland Baptist College, served in Kansas-Nebraska. He was among 1,480 students appointed by the Home Mission Board and state Baptist student unions to work with churches and missionaries in many aspects of home missions including general and special missions.

Pythian Sisters

Lynn Temple, Pythian Sisters met Aug. 5, in regular session, with MEC Opal Hines, presiding. Due to illness in Lamesa Temple-Lynn will host District #9 convention here Sept. 13; Helen Ellis is the District Deputy. Home coming at the Childrens Home in Weatherford is Aug. 31. Knights and Friendship Lodges of Lubbock are sponsoring a charter bus for the trip; any one wishing to go may contact any Sister of Lynn Temple. The bus is scheduled to go in the morning and return in the evening. Thirteen members were present with two visitors from Lubbock, Ann Frenkin and Fay Hough. Next meeting will be Aug. 19.

Each year more than 79 million overweight people spend $10 billion trying to lose weight; problems related to smoking cost more than $18 billion; illnesses linked to smoking kill at least 320,000 people; more than nine million alcoholics cost the nation over $44 billion in medical bills and other expenses.

Short Sees Act In Effect Soon

"Full implementation of the Family Farm and Ranch Security Act, approved by Texas voters last year, is coming soon," according to State Sen. E.L. Short. Short said it was his understanding that the sale of $10 million in bond sales authorized by the act would be sold in one package by the last of August or the first of September. Bond sales would enable young farmers and ranchers who qualify under provisions of the act to receive guaranteed loans up to 90% of the loan for farm and ranch land purchase.

Short continued by pointing out that it was his understanding that the overseers of the program, a board appointed by the governor and the Texas Department of Agriculture would be giving priority to seller-sponsored transactions. He stressed that seller-sponsored transactions could lead to smaller interest rates and smaller down payments and therefore provide even greater financial benefits to the young farmers and ranchers.

Brochure tells what to do during a hurricane

During an approaching hurricane, people should be told specifically what to do, where to go and how much time it will take to evacuate, a Texas A&M University study concludes. Project director Dr. Carlton Ruch and psychologist Dr. Larry Christensen found that persons should also be told about the difference in hurricane intensity.

A Force One storm with winds less than 95 mph may only damage trees or small boats and require limited evacuation while any hurricane over Force Three (111 to 130 mph winds) could result in mass evacuation and widespread destruction.

The pair's findings are summarized in a brochure now being distributed by the Sea Grant office here to news media, Civil Defense offices and weather forecasters along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Veterinarians say to thank the skunks for rabies increase people the governor had appointed to the application approval board.

For the first five months of 1980, rabies cases in the state are 10 to 15 percent ahead of the same time last year, previously the worst on record.

Despite widespread appeals for people to vaccinate pets and avoid contact with skunks, rabies has continued to be one of the largest health problems overall because of the skunk population and its ability to tolerate mankind's encroachment, said Dr. Leon Russell, professor of veterinary public health.

"They are ornery little beasts. They can live in culverts, under a porch or in a storage shed," said Russell. And although skunks can adapt to city life, some of their natural enemies — coyotes, bobcats, and foxes — have a harder time doing so.

Faith Circle Has Luncheon

Faith Circle of United Methodist Women met Monday, August 11 at noon in Fellowship Hall for a salad luncheon.

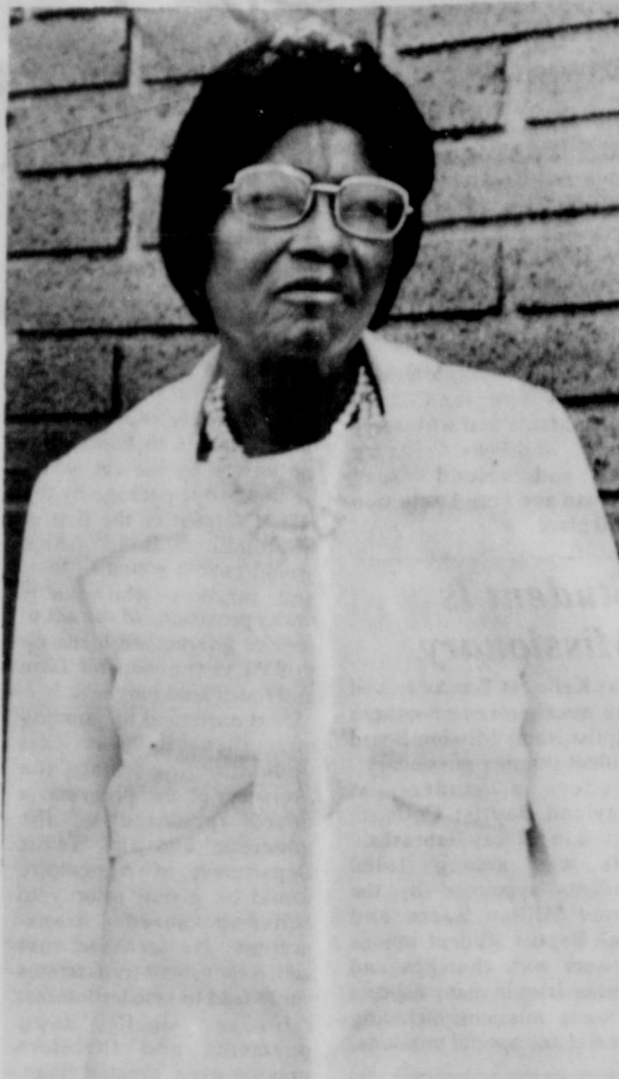

For the devotional, Mrs. Prohl reviewed a short story about a church circle of women who had a bossy troublemaker as a member. By joining hands and each one saying something in behalf of the woman or saying a prayer for her, they discovered that she was a very helpful and kind person with problems of her own.

In a short business meeting "Beyond Brokenness" was chosen as the book for the fall study.

The meeting ended with the Circle benediction.

Charles W. Stenholm

Congressional Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Everyday that Congress is in session, the session begins with a prayer. There is no law that requires that daily prayer nor is the content of that prayer dictated by any law. It is a simple reminder of the faith in God that this country was built upon.

It seems an extreme contradiction for that same governmental body to refuse the same freedom of spiritual expression to every schoolchild in this country. That is the reason that I support current attempts in Congress to force debate of the school prayer issue before the full House of Representatives.

Until 1962, it was common in many public schools to open the day with a classroom prayer. Then, in 1962 and 1963, the Supreme Court struck down this practice, on the grounds that state-sponsored religious exercises in the public schools violated the First Amendment of the Constitution. It is argued that the Court did not prohibit individual, private prayer by students during the school day, but rather any type of state-sponsored religious practice. It is that argument that I support being debated in Congress and the freedom of voluntary prayer absolutely established as the law of the land.

The means for accomplishing that goal, the Helms Amendment to the Supreme Court Jurisdiction Act, is not, I'll be the first to admit, perfect. It would, basically, remove jurisdiction over such questions from the Federal courts, reaffirming states' rights in deciding this sensitive question.

That amendment, at present, is being held up in the House Judiciary Committee and I have joined some 174 other members in signing a discharge petition which would force the bill to the floor for consideration.

Controversy has surrounded this issue for far too long and a generation of our children have been denied this basic freedom guaranteed by the writers' of our Constitution.

Our country was built on three great principles. The first of these was faith in God; the second was Constitutional government and the right of private property. We have witnessed a dangerous erosion of those three principles in years and a return to prayer is one step toward rebuilding the strong foundation.

Boy's Ranch Rodeo To Be Held

The young cowboys at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch are getting ready for their thirty-sixth annual rodeo that will be held over the Labor Day weekend. About 150 contestants will be seen in the riding events, competing for the best times on bareback broncs, Brahma bulls, steer, calves and stick horses. It is the only rodeo of its kind in the nation. The only contestants are boys riding professional rodeo stock under R.C.A. rules. The rodeo is also a traditional homecoming for the Ranch's graduates. More than 3,000 have lived there since 1939.

Most sections of the rodeo arena were covered with a roof last year to provide protection from the elements, and the general admission sections were enlarged to accommodate an extra 150 people. For those wanting to eat lunch before the rodeo, boys will prepare and sell Texas-sized barbecue beef plates for only $2.

Reserve box seat tickets for $3.50 have gone on sale at the Boys Ranch Office, 600 West 11th Street in Amarillo. They can be obtained by calling 806-372-2341. General admission tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1 for children six through twelve. Performances are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. each afternoon.

Weston A. Pettey, O.D.

PROGRESSIVE MYOPIA

Dear Dr. Pettey: Ever since I was nine years old frequent changes in my lenses have been necessary to keep me seeing clearly. I'm twenty now, and I'm a little tired of having changes every year.

From your brief description, I would suppose you must have progressive myopia, a regular and continuing increase of nearsightedness.

Little has ever been found to control that condition consistently, although much research and experimenting have taken place in an effort to halt it.

There is strong evidence that heredity is involved, heredity at least to the extent of inheriting physical and chemical elements that might encourage progressive myopia.

Often patients with cases like yours are studious, with a compelling urge to learn. That means more hours spent reading. Many researchers are convinced that long periods of reading will tend to increase the myopia.

You have one consolation: Before many more years pass, perhaps before you are thirty, you can begin to expect a slowing down of the frequency of lens changes.

In the past, those of us in Congress who sought energy assistance for cooling—as well as for heating—have faced a tough battle from our Northeastern and Midwestern colleagues.

It's easy enough for TV newscasts and newspaper pictures to portray the dangers of death from the cold—homes buried in snowdrifts or cars stranded snowbound along desolate highways. But how do you dramatize heat, with a picture of a thermometer registering 115 degrees?

Last year, Senate debate on the Low Income Energy Assistance Act was tinged with the sort of aggressive, intolerant regionalism which, unfortunately, dominates many Senate discussions of how federal funds are to be divided among various states and regions.

Legislators from the Northeast and Midwest succeeded in channeling the bulk of energy assistance to their regions, pointing out that many elderly people in their areas faced the hard choice of buying food or fuel; between eating and freezing.

In considering the energy assistance legislation, those of us representing Sunbelt states argued that heat was every bit as serious a threat to vulnerable groups in our region.

Our Sunbelt colleagues ridiculed us, some even going as far as to oppose aid for cooling even under the limited, medically-qualified conditions finally included in the bill.

They insisted that cool air is a luxury, not a necessity, and that hot weather posed no real threat to life.

Sadly, it took a sweltering heat wave this summer, resulting in over 2,000 deaths—many of them needless—to drive home the point that heat kills as surely and cruelly as cold.

All across Texas, throughout the Southwest—and even the Midwest—the poor, the elderly, and the ill perished in steamy rooms with temperatures shooting over the 100-degree mark.

Many died because they couldn't afford to own or operate a fan. Reports show that some victims had cooling units or fans, but were afraid to turn them on for fear of running up an electricity bill that they couldn't afford to pay.

Many of the elderly victims kept their rooms tightly secured because they were afraid of being robbed. They were afraid to leave their homes and seek help at cooling centers or elsewhere.

The heat wave developed into a national tragedy; suffering Americans needed help quickly—they couldn't wait until October, November or some indefinite future date. I was determined to correct the mistakes of the past and make the Low Income Energy Assistance Act—which I voted against last year—more consistent with reality.

We weren't talking about a program to buy air conditioners for low-income Americans, any more than the existing program would buy furnaces in the Northeast and Midwest. We were dealing with an energy assistance program that would help pay the increasing cost of running coolers on an equal basis with the cost of running heaters.

I was pleased this month when Congress acted quickly and the President signed into law my emergency legislation to help hard-pressed Americans cope with the deadly summer heat.

My bill changed a provision in the energy assistance law to, in effect, allow $21 million in unspent aid to be redirected from the North to the Southwest to aid heat wave victims. As a result, energy assistance aid has been flowing to Texas and other parched states overcome by the heat wave. The funds are helping millions of Americans who are in need of a fan or the assurance that they can run their fan or window unit without fear of going bankrupt.

Sadly, a tragedy resulted before Snowbelt lawmakers could see the justice in giving equal weight to cooling needs and heating needs when it comes to energy aid. It reminds us again what crises we face as a country when regional—not national concerns—are placed first.

I intend to continue working for national unity. I intend to continue working to develop a permanent energy assistance program that recognizes that extreme heat is as harmful to human life as extreme cold.

Inflation Fighting Ideas

Four initials that could save you money are SEER. They stand for Seasonal Energy Efficiency Rating, a criteria established by the U.S. Dept. of Energy to designate how efficiently air conditioning products use energy.

What it all boils down to is this: the higher the SEER, the more effective the use of electricity; correspondingly, the lower the utility bill for a job well done.

When choosing an air conditioning unit, the SEER rating is as important to check as the BTU rating.

One air conditioner, Carrier's new two-ton Premium Round One, a central, residential air conditioning unit, has a SEER rating of 12.0, the highest yet announced by any manufacturer.

A key feature contributing to this high SEER is an extra-large, all-aluminum, wraparound condenser coil. Other features include: simplified system controls; easy hatchback access for convenient installation and service; a high-efficiency, low-noise compressor; a two-speed automatically shifting fan; factory-installed, high- and low-pressure protection devices; a liquid refrigerant accumulator, and a heavy-duty, galvanized steel cabinet.

Whatever air conditioner you eventually get, however, you should be sure to see that its SEER is high.

INSUR-MATION
By JOEY MEADOR
Lynn County Farm Bureau
I have a whole life insurance policy which I am planning on borrowing against next month. The insurance company will loan the money to me at 6% interest according to the loan rate stated on the policy. I am concerned whether the loan rate on the policy is the rate I will pay or if there are any catches or hidden charges in paying back the loan. There will be no hidden charges. The interest charged you will be the stated loan rate of 6%. However, if you fail to pay the interest on the policy when it is due, the interest will be added to the loan amount by deducting it from the policy's remaining cash value. The result of this is future interest charges will be based on a larger amount of loan principal which is in effect owing interest on interest. However, at today's steep interest rates of anywhere from 12% to 17% plus, a 6% interest almost seems like an interest free loan.
