BEN G. ONEAL IN POLITICAL RACE FOR CONGRESSMAN

SENATOR BEN G. ONEAL

We are announcing in our political announcement column in this issue the candidacy of Senator Ben G. Oneal for nomination in the Democratic primary this summer for Congress from the 13th Congressional District.

Senator Oneal, who is serving his second term in the State Senate, is, because of his services in the Senate known throughout this section of the state. He was raised on a farm and ranch in Stephens County and educated in the public schools of Texas and the University of Texas. He started the practice of law at Weatherford, Texas, and removed from there to Wichita Falls, where he has lived the last twenty years.

Senator Oneal is a life-long Democrat. He has never offered himself to the voters for any office except in the two races in which he was elected State Senator for the 23rd Senatorial District. In each of the two primary elections in which he was nominated, he carried each of the forty-five precincts in his home county. In the second election, that is in 1934, he was nominated by a majority in every county in his Senatorial District, receiving a total majority of between 8,500 and 9,000 votes.

He conceived it to be his duty as Senator to keep in touch with the people of his entire district, and he has frequently at his own expense and on his own time visited all parts of his district to learn at first hand the needs of the people. He has been particularly interested in the problems of the farmers and of rural communities and has sought at all times to be of service wherever he could.

He has studied not only the problems facing the people of the 23rd Senatorial District, but also those facing the whole state of Texas. He has taken an even broader view and interested himself in many problems that the various states have in

Ritz Theatre to Show Famous Picture of "Mutiny On Bounty"

The mystery of the original H. M. S. Bounty logs, relating the complete story of the mutiny on the Bounty in Captain William Bligh's own handwriting, has been solved!

Director Frank Lloyd, after a two year search, located the ancient originals in Australia and has photostat copies from the historic yellowed pages to prove it.

Coincidence led Director Lloyd to the successful end of his hunt. While at Papeete, filming scenes for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Mutiny on the Bounty" opening at the Ritz Theatre, in a prevue Saturday night, and showing Sunday matinee and night, also Monday night, he was dining at the Blue Lagoon with James Norman Hall, co-author of the famous "hell-hip" story.

Didn't Believe It Existed

Lloyd was telling of his futile search for the original Bounty logs and expressed his belief that they did not exist. An elderly lady arose from a nearby table, apologized for her intrusion and introduced herself as Ida Leeson, librarian of the Mitchell Library, Sydney, Australia.

Miss Leeson had devoted several years of research to Captain Cook, South Sea explorer. Her research, time and again, uncovered many new phases of Captain Bligh and The Bounty's Mutiny.

"She told me she had discovered the original logs in the vaults of her own library," said Lloyd. "I was skeptical and she agreed to send me photostat copies of Bligh's own handwriting to prove it.

"She told me there were three logs, two in Sydney and one in England. The first log she said, had found its way to Sydney from Pitcairn Island, where Fletcher Christian and his mutineers settled.

"This is one mystery yet to be solved—how the log of Captain Bligh, who never saw Pitcairn, had reached Australia from the mutineer's island.

"The logical explanation is, that when the mutineers put Bligh aboard in a long-boat, they kept the ship's log so that it could not be presented against them as documentary evidence."

Director Lloyd explained he withheld the news of his discovery until the arrival of the photostats. One of the photostats tells of the Bounty's departure from Spithead in 1787 on its fateful journey:

A Remarkable Record

"Sunday, Dec. 23: At 4 A M hove short and got up Yds. & Top Gall. Mast and at ½ past I weighed and lay too until daylight then I made sail and took onboard John Low pilot to carry me through the Needles. At ½ past 10 abreast of the Needles and discharged the pilot . . ."

"Mutiny on the Bounty," produced by Irving G. Thalberg, has a notable cast headed by Charles Laughton, Clark Gable and Franchot Tone, also fifty other featured players.

Clay County School Library to Open In Henrietta Soon

Within the next few weeks a Clay County School Library will be opened in Henrietta, containing grammar school fiction, biography, etc. According to County Superintendent J. W. Callaway, approximately five hundred dollars worth of books have been bought to be placed in the library which will be located in the Specialty Shop, operated by Mrs. Rex M. Gates. The books purchased include the complete state reading course list that is recommended by the state department.

The list of books is suitable for students in the fourth through the seventh grades, and the State Department of Education offers a reading certificate bearing the seal of the State of Texas and the signature of the State Superintendent of Education to any student in these grades who completes the reading of twenty books chosen from the list. The reading must be done under the direction of the teacher and reports made to her. A student reading an additional twenty books from the list may receive an additional seal to be placed on his reading certificate.

The purpose of the reading certificates is to develop an appreciation for reading among the students. By the time a student has completed the fourth through the seventh grades, he should have read the greater number of books on the State Reading Course list.

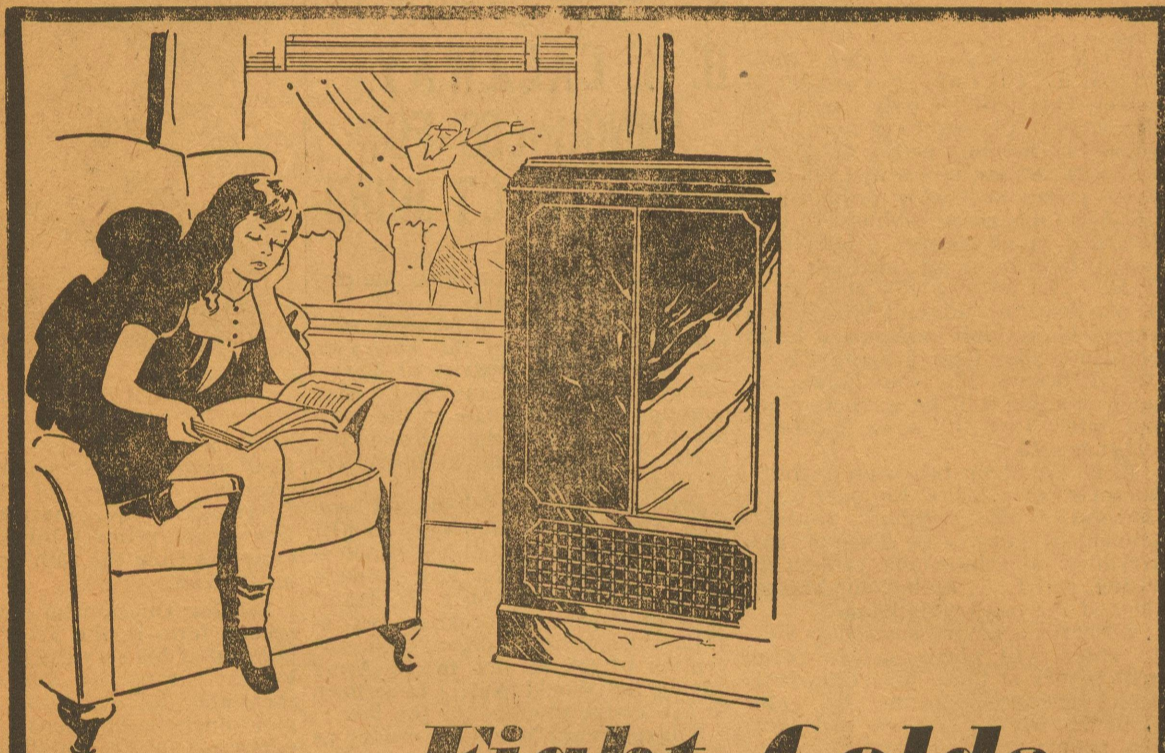

The books are expected to arrive here within a short time and the library opened for use. Each year new books and additional copies of the most popular books will be added to the library.

Fight Colds with UNIFORM TEMPERATURE

Any sudden CHANGE IN TEMPERATURE as you go from a warm room into a cold one disturbs the heat regulating apparatus of the body and makes it susceptible to cold germ attacks.

Protect your family against becoming overheated or chilled. Give them the benefit of healthful, pure, warmed air THROUGHOUT the HOUSE.

If your home is inadequately heated . . . if you "huddle" in one or two rooms, SUDDEN TEMPERATURE CHANGES ARE UNAVOIDABLE. Your family goes from a heated room into a cold hall or adjoining room.

Then, shivering and chilled, they return to the heated room. This happens many times a day, and each time they have unnecessarily subjected themselves to conditions that make them susceptible to highly communicable diseases. America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, finds a fertile field in inadequately heated and poorly ventilated homes.

Keep comfortable temperatures and adequate ventilation THROUGHOUT YOUR HOME. You will find that it will add to your happiness as well as assist you to protect your health and that of your loved ones.

Cagney Coming to Dorothy Theatre In "Frisco Kid" Sat.

"Frisco Kid" Warner Bros.' thrilling tale of the glamorous Barbary Coast of old San Francisco, coming to the Dorothy Theatre Saturday night in a prevue and also Sunday matinee and night with an all star cast headed by James Cagney, Margaret Lindsay, Ricardo Cortez and Lili Damita.

The picture is set in the colorful background of the early fifties when the Golden Gate was a flaming panorama of gilded gambling halls and palaces of pleasure; when murder, arson, crimping and robbery was winked at by the authorities who derived huge revenues in bribes from the denizens of the underworld.

The characters are based on historic personages of the time who flocked to the city of gold from every port in the world—adventurers all, ready to risk their fortunes or lives on the throw of a die.

Into this picturesque atmosphere comes a sailor, strong, purposeful, crude, ignorant, but a man of tremendous force and magnetic personality, who rises to be the master of the Coast, and who dares to fall in love with the most beautiful girl of San Francisco's highest society.

James Cagney and Margaret Lindsey, as the two characters, carry on this strange romance in the midst of a series of thrilling episodes when the city is rocked by terrific battles between the vigilantes and the denizens of the Coast.

More than two score talented actors have important roles in the picture while thousands take part in the gigantic riot scenes in which the dens of the waterfront are set ablaze. The leading characters, besides those mentioned, include Donald Woods, Barton MacLane, George E. Stone, Joseph King, Robert McWade, Joseph Crehan, Robert Strange, Joseph Sawyer, Fred Kohler and Claudia Coleman.

Miss Katherine King of Rockwall, who formerly lived here, underwent an operation on her leg Friday in a Dallas hospital. Miss King received a broken leg in an automobile accident in July, 1934 and has never recovered.

Douglass to Make Effort to Visit Voters

To the voters of Clay county: As I will be busy issuing car license plates until April 1st, it will be after this date before I can be out of the office and make an active campaign of the county. After the above date I will make every effort to see every voter in the county before July 25th.

W. H. (Ham) Douglass.
For Second Term as Assessor-Collector, Clay County.

First Baptist Church

At the First Baptist church last Sunday we had two good services, morning and evening hours. The Sunday School was the best in attendance since our coming to this field, also the B. T. U. was good.

We were glad to welcome one into our fellowship as a new member, we hope that her coming will be the means of a great blessing to the church, and that the church will be a great blessing to her and family. We find a great number of Baptist in the community with their membership in other places, Christian folks, think seriously about your Christian home, and read that old church covenant, then come and find your place in the church where you can carry out the covenant, as thy first Love.

The Clay County W. M. U. Quarterly meeting will be with our church, the First Baptist church, next Tuesday, January 21. The theme: "Following Jesus." Everyone is welcome. We want you to come and will be disappointed if you don't come.

The subject for the morning hour will be "How to Create a New Interest in the Church." The evening hour subject: "Grace." A continuation of a series of sermons on this subject.

Last Sunday morning it was suggested that this Sunday be a sacrificial Sunday, in that every one bring into the church as much money as we spent foolishly throughout the week, such as tobacco, gum, drinks, shows, ball games, cosmetics or anything that is not absolutely necessary. Let's see the difference in our offering by seeing how much we spend unnecessarily.

Go to Church Somewhere Sunday!
Rev. R. E. Harrison.

MID TERM EXAMS

Mid-term examinations have been given this week to the pupils in the local public school. This closes one-half of the school term and the parents should know the work that their child is doing by this time.

If the child is failing, investigate the cause for there is some reason why he is not doing the required work.

If the child is not doing satisfactory work there will be time during the last half to make up the work and to pass the year's work. Encourage the child to do his best and the teachers at the same time will use their influence upon his work.

Co-operation between the pupil, teacher and parents will make a more successful school.

Small Farms Can Save What's Best in American Life

Fourth and last article of a New Year look into the future, by Carl C. Taylor, assistant resettlement administrator, Resettlement Administration.

If the farming of the future is to be on the best lands; if it is to follow the ideals of conservation instead of exploitation; if a greater number of families is to live and work in the occupation of farming; and if the majority of these families are to make production for home use equally important with production for the market, then we will see a great increase in small holdings and it is small, home-owned holdings and not absence of mechanization or lack of modern facilities which makes up the heart and soul of peasantry.

I suppose no one can know whether I am correct in this attempt at analysis and prediction. I am sure

I don't know. But I am equally sure that even if agriculture, together with industry, is making increased use of technology and business, is a gross, if not a violent assumption that it must and will adopt the whole pattern of industry. It is an even grosser assumption that the social characterization of urban culture must develop as dominant rural characteristics.

There is, for example, no need for concentration and congestion of population in rural life. Increased social contacts can and will be accomplished by rapid means of transportation and apt means of communication and there will be no need to coagulate in cities to accomplish it. If corporation farming can be escaped, and the tide of farm tenancy stemmed, there is no reason why marked differentiation and stratification of rural social groups should ever occur in American rural life. The reign of law and other social controls will, however, probably increase because interdependence in markets, knowledge of the laws of health and sanitation, and the growing density of population will demand it. The rural birth rate will probably fall because of the desire for higher material standards of living. But again, there is no reason to believe that rural life must follow the whole pattern of urban life, merely because world culture, both technological and social, gradually filter more and more into rural areas.

There should be a great increase in part-time farming and the application of mechanization to small unit production. Rapid means of transportation and transmissible power will make it possible to decentralize industry to a considerable extent and the cheapening of electricity will make it possible to motorize dozens of farm and household tasks that are not now performed even by horse power. When this has come to pass, farm people can live in villages or suburban settlements and industrially employed persons can live in garden homesteads.

Commercialized industry to the status of slaves of the price system. It is possible that a mechanized peasant type of farming will retrieve the soul of science by turning it into its manifest destiny of lessening the manual labor of production and increasing the volume of consumable goods and services. Commerce never will, for its impulse and practice will be to sabotage invention and thwart its application at all points where it does not yield economic profits.

ADVERTISING REPRESENTS EMPLOYMENT AND WAGES

No private enterprise has a greater interest in industrial development and business expansion than the newspapers. By the same token, no private enterprise suffers greater harm when industry is taxed, regulated or regimented to the point of inertia.

The invention and expansion of the automobile industry, for example, with its related businesses such as tires, gasoline, repair shops, etc., created the greatest single advertising account of all time.

Newspaper revenue is often imperiled by radical and destructive political attacks on industries. The ruthless use of taxation is potent in discouraging future advertising accounts.

In addition to staggering general taxes, many industries are now penalized with additional class or special taxes which cut deep into the operating revenue—for example, witness the purely class taxation of utility companies, insurance companies, retail stores, etc. It often happens that it is impossible to cut expenses materially in any other direction than advertising.

Advertising represents business for everybody. Lack of advertising shows lack of business with resulting lost jobs and lost earning power by the nation.

The estimated volume of local newspaper advertising, including classified, in 1929, reached a peak of $600,000,000. From this point it dropped to a low of $325,000,000 in 1933, and unemployment was the greatest on record. Nothing could more graphically illustrate the newspapers' interest in future economic, political, taxation and industrial policies which encourage business.

“We strive for a better America, and if we shall succeed, as by God's help we will, America will point the way towards a better world.”—President Roosevelt.

Ben G. Oneal in Race For Congressman

 common with the State of Texas. Recognizing this fact, the Senate of Texas sent him in the spring of 1933 to represent that body in the first Interstate Assembly that met in Washington, D. C. That assembly is made up of a representative of the Senate and of the House of Representatives of each state and meets to consider questions of great interest to the states as states. Again in 1935, Senator Oneal was sent by the Senate to the second Interstate Assembly which met in the spring in Washington.

When the first assembly created in 1933 the Interstate Commission on Conflicting Taxation consisting of fifteen members from various sections of the United States, to study the conflicts in State and Federal Taxes, Senator Oneal was selected as member from Texas and the Southwest, and has been continued by each member since that time.

His many conferences with leading members of the Legislature of other states and his study of the similar problems arising in various regions and groups of states have confirmed him in his belief that much good can be accomplished by compacts between groups of states having like problems. And he believes that the Federal Government should adopt a liberal policy toward state compacts.

Because of Senator Oneal's deep interest in the problems before the Interstate Assembly and the Commission on conflicting taxation and his attending the meetings not only of the Assembly but many meetings of the Commission, he is probably the most widely known member of the Legislature of Texas.

It is generally conceded that Senator Oneal's business and legal training and experience and his ability and willingness to deal seriously with the questions coming before the Legislature have caused him to be regarded as one of the most able members of that body. Recently, in writing of the work of some of the members of the Senate, the Austin correspondent of the United Press said of him:

"Senator Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, depends on knowing his subject from start to finish and the history of other Senators on the topic."

Senator Oneal promises the same services as Congressman that he has rendered as State Senator. He will later make a more detailed announcement.
