Brownfield Items.

June, 6.—Farmers are all busy planting since the rain, which came, May, 28.

There will be a fair acreage of cotton planted in our neck of the woods, and would be a much larger had the farmer assurance of a gin nearer than Lubbock or Big Spains.

Our good neighbor, N. L. Nelson, will soon have his house under course of construction. Will start soon to Big Springs for another load of lumber, and will bring carpenters to commence work at once. I will be a nice structure when complete.

Jesse Hill, son of our townsman, Mr. J. R. Hill, has been quite sick from an attack of measles, but is some better at present writing.

Mr. Virgil Boon is having a well drilled, and will move his residence a short distance south where he will have a lovely view of the surrounding country.

Mr. E. S. (Bunks) Groves, left Terry county, 20th of May on an extended trip to Kaufman and Rockwall counties, to return, June, 20th.

With best wishes for Voice, will close.

A Sad Letter.

The following letter from a mother to her son, who is now in the Longview jail, convicted of theft and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, is searching and pathetic, and should be a warning to every boy in the land; Grand Saline, Tex., May 6, 04.

Dear Boy:—It is with a broken heart that I try to write to you. My love for you is the same, though you have done such a wrong. Oh, how I have prayed and talked and plead with you, and now to think what trouble and disgrace you have brought on me, and your poor old father in his grave. Oh, why did you so soon forget his examples and teachings? It is hard to think that my boy is a convict and your old mother has to work to take care of your little sisters and to keep them in school. May God bless you, my boy, and permit nothing to come on you only what will be for your good; put your trust in Him and ask Him to pardon your sin, and he will, if you ask in spirit and in truth, He will freely forgive you. Oh, may He bless you, as none but Him can, is the prayer of your old mother. I would come to see you if I could; you may never see me again and if you do, it will not be the mother you left. Oh, how many troubles and trials I have seen for the last few

California.

Letter 3rd.

Biggs, Butte, county, Cal.

June, 4, 1904.

Letter 2nd left me at Los Angeles, which is quite a city, as you doubtless know, and the metropolis for Southern California; her interests are varied, the production of fruit being the leading industry.

There are quite a lot of crude petroleum pumped from the numerous oil wells there, being used largely for fuel. The great southern Pacific railroad system has largely adopted oil, and are adapting most of their locomotives to the use of oil, as it is declared to be more economical in every way than coal. This city is a great resort for eastern people, and to some extent for travelers from all parts of the world; its Italian climate, nearness to the Pacific ocean, easy transit system, and surrounding attractions, lends it much interests.

We old Texans boast the vastness of "Grand old Texas," and while none have to stretch the truth to do this, yet even one from the great Lone Star State has to admit in his own mind, the greatness of California before he has tramped far over her borders, both as to size, large resources, and natural wonders. As to size of territory, California equals to the states of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Ohio all combined with their 157, 878 square miles of territory, and have 482 square miles left, or throw it in for good measure, as there is said to be nothing small about her.

Starting northward, from the city of Los Angeles one will begin elevate, after a few miles ride upon the train, until a range of mountains, or chain rather, is reached, crossing the plain from the Sierra Nevades, to the coast range, chaining these two ranges together, as it were, and forming the head-piece to the great San Joaquin river which has its beginnings in this chain—the Te-hachipe mountains, and trends north for several hundred miles gathering volume rapidly as progresses, to meet the other great river of California, the Sacramento, which is a like manner rises in the mountains way north and takes its course south.

Doubtless a great deal of fine engineering skill was required to build the S. P. R. R. through here, as the passenger must attract some twenty tunnels, in crossing the Tehachipes, as well as face every point of the compass before finally emerging into the beautiful valley of the San Joaquin, north of the range. A few hours run, and the little city of Bakersfield is reached, the business mart of the upper San Joaquin. With greater volume of water, and more extended irrigation it seems this vicinity might become a veritable paradise however the land is not free from large Alkali tracts, though there is much fine land too.

There are many happy, prosperous homes hereabouts, the owners of which swear by their country, and think there is none other with as many advantages.

Here are more oil wells, indeed this is truly a well oiled town, and is I believe, considered the greatest oil field in the state. Bakersfield is 170 miles north from Los Angeles. Next to oil, the cattle, and dairy business (Continued on last page.)

children belonging at Brownfield into districts when the school houses of these districts were entirely out of reach of the children? And for what reason did you draw the lines as you did but why did you draw them at all? Where did you get your authority for this high handed act?

This was the business of the commissioner's court. The court had placed Terry county all in one school district and the court only had the authority to make provisions for any change. You tell us that the money had been apportioned and teachers contracted with at the time that we asked for our part of the funds and to sign the contract of our teacher. If I am rightly informed, there had been no contract with the teacher for either the Meadow or the Needmore school at that time and the contract with the teacher for Gomez was not legal, he having no certificate at this time. Now you have sworn that the apportionment had already been made which is also untrue for Judge Anderson, alone, had authority to make the apportionment but he had never approved any of your doings and even if you had had authority to make the apportionment you would not be cleared for you knew there was a school house being built at Brownfield. But Dr. Norris, instead of putting the finishing touch to your actions by making this affidavit, would it not have been better just to admit that malice and hatred lurk in your heart and that you wanted to take from Brownfield and give to Gomez, that having the upper hand, you stocked the cards and did as you wished.

Well dear readers, we will not follow this man's trail further. All of us, no doubt, can read his heart without the aid of an X-ray machine. And Dr. Norris, if a time should come (but it will not) when the coarseness of your nature is held in check by higher and nobler impulses just reflect for a few minutes on your treatment of the children and the people of the east side of the county, then you will despise yourself as others now despise you.

And as I bring my remarks to a close my mind continues to reflect on the mysterious ways of man. Men disgrace themselves, of this, I am sorry, they are sent to the pen for stealing a horse or a sheep, this, I think, is right. I see around me children who were not enrolled for school last year. They have had to spend their time in idleness and the year has past beyond recall. The wrong you did them is more than a property wrong. Their usefulness is after life, to some extent, has been impaired and the main influence that leads to the upbuilding of manhood and womanhood has been denied them. Now I see Dr. Norris roving about over the country at liberty but treated well by his fellowmen. I see this same Norris gather about him a santonious look that says "I'm so good," now bend your knee, bow your head low, lift your hands and eyes heavenward and forgetful of the past repeat the Golden Rule. "And my mind is wandering, what has the recording angle recorded?"

haps as religious as those at Gomez.

Now Bro. as to the child and potatoes, you will find that the child has become a giant on the 28th, and I'll eat your potatoes on the 29th, for I know you will not have an appetite on that day.

Now I would gladly close here but up out of the filth and slime rises one Doctor Norris, and perhaps feeling that mere statement from him would not be believed, he tries to make what he says, seen the truth by swearing to it.
Be it understood that a part of what I say about this John Norris applies also to his friend and accomplice, W. R. Youngblood.
Now Dr. I'm not gifted with any X-ray power as spoken by J. M.
Lane. I wish I were. I would like to turn the X-ray on your heart and see what a mixture of vinegar, snakes, scorpions water-dogs, snakes, scorpions and other unclear things would be found therein. But as I say, I am not gifted with X-ray power, so I will have take your trait and your heart by your deeds. The facts, so far as I have been able to gather, are about as follows: You perhaps did a little riding over in this part of the county, enrolled a few out of fifteen or twenty children, then go before Judge Ford and state under oath that you carefully went over the east and southeast parts of the county—and right here the thought strikes me would you attend to your duties as commissioners in this same careful manner should you be elected, but God forbid that any such men ever being in office. Then the thought runs through my mind, why did you see necessary to draw sub-dividing lines that cut

J. M. next takes my statement that there is not 1-4 mile difference in the distance from the center of the county to the two towns. And here, again, he tries to make white appear black.
He tells us that Joe Lane's home section is the center section, etc.
So it is, and a line running north and south through the center of the county would pass near the east edge of Joe's home section.
Now Bro. get a map and draw this center line and your little son Dosis will show you that my statement was exactly correct.
Now Bro. Lane, while the above mistakes are numerous the people will not think hard of you, I have done all in my power to sueid you by assuming in the very outset that you had no intellect whatever. I hope, but cannot feel sure, that the people will consider your head and not your heart at fault in another matter of which I shall speak.

We can see him picturing to himself that he is a powerful giant standing upon some high point dropping stones on the town of Brownfield, each one of which is crushing Brownfield father and father into the inner-most bowels of the earth.
Through the cause of some one or ones, quite a number of children in the Brownfield community have been deprived of their rights to a school during the past year, their parents not being able to send them away from home to coneges. For these children to be robbed of their rights is a sin of the darkest hue. When I called J. M.'s attention to the fact that Mr. A. W. Long is the only man in Gomez whose heart was large enough to help on our school house. J. M. at once replied that he knew the facts in the case and did not nor would not have given one cent. It is evidence to any one who reads Lane's paper that he is really rejoicing that Brownfield children got nothing and Gomez got it all.
And yet this same J. M. Lane is supposed to be a minister of the gospel and is supposed to be walking in the foot prints of Jesus. J. M., as he comes near a close, reaches a grand climax.
He propounds seven great stunning questions.

All right, we will analyze these questions and see what great things are contained therein. (1) Hardin bought the section for a county site in May, 1903. He paid money on it at that time, but the deed was not made till Aug. 12. (2) Hardin & Small left in the early part of the winter and returned last month, hence have had nothing to do with your organization question. (3) A man does not necessarily have to own land the first of Jan. in order to pay taxes on same. (4) I do not know all these fellows paid taxes on, but I do know that they paid the taxes on the Brownfield town section last month for 1903. (5) I do not know that I can give the names of all the children that were in the Brownfield community at the time the census was taken, but here are the names of them who were here at that time and are here yet. If any doubts, come over and I will take you and show you the children: There are two at McNary's, one at Ahmon, three at Hamilton's, one at John Walkers, three at McDaniel's, one at Kanda's, two at Hill's.
All these were nearer Brownfield than any other school. (6) Now to the 6th and 7th questions, will say that while not knowing their goodness from the house tops, at heart, the people of Brownfield community are per-

Brownfield Rebutts.

Well indeed had the Creator made all skulls of the same thickness and shape as J. M. Lane's would seem to be, judging from the last newspaper he wrote. I would throw my pen down in disgust and despair. But knowing most people have been gifted with some degree of intelligence and a desire to know the truth, I will come again. And remembering too that even a parrot can be taught to talk, I will take courage and try and induce my brother to open his eyes and see facts as they really are. For while he may be devoid of mind he at least has instinct for I have seen him feed himself without any help from others. This instinct of his seems foxy and snake-like in disposition, for when called to account for his statement, that the Brownfield people had conferred together, decided on organization and were the cause of the same; he tries to "wiggle" out by asking, "will you deny the fact that one Jesse Black came to Gomez and called for the petition, carried it away, signed, and returned it with a number of names on it?" No, Bro. Lane, Black did go to Gomez, got the Gomez petition, got signers on the Gomez petition, then took the Gomez petition back to Gomez. But it was not the little measley lot in Gomez that Gainer promised to give him in Gomez that caused Mr. Black to do this.

Now Bro. Lane you tried to impress a fausehood upon the minds of the people when you stated that the promoters of Brownfield were the cause of organization. They have had nothing whatever to do either for or against oaganization. J. M. explains his own actions in regard to the organization by showing that it was just simply a mistake. Joe understood him to say one thing, while, in fact he said just the opposite thing. Alright, Bro., I am glad to know that it was nothing worse than a mistake, and regret having call your attention to such a number of mistakes in your last paper.

Brownfield entered the race for County Site in May, 1903. J. M. says that I am aware of the fact that a goodly number of the people now having houses at Gomez had erected these houses before Brownfield entered the race for county site. I repeat my question, "are there any?" Suppose J. M., you take the census.
You need say nothing about having been in error for it is evident that to admit having been in the wrong, gives you much misery. J. M. next brings an his fun making facades into play and tries to ridicule the idea of shallow water at Brownfield.
I stated that water could be had at from 60 to 75 feet. J. M. says Bess tells him the well is 69 feet deep, but J. M. does not tell us how deep Bess went after striking water, neither does he tell us that the well lacks as much as 4 or 5 feet being in the bed of the draw. Bess told me that he found water at 48 feet and an abundance of it at 50 feet and that he wanted to quit at that, but Howard had him to go deeper.
But J. M. tells us that Dick Brownfield's well is 115 feet. I will also add that there are wells

... on this ... that the ... road is a ... system of ... best manned, and ... on all of Uncle ... territory. ... found a more ... set of employees; ... able and anxious ... their whole duty, seems to ... the rule, on the "Sunset" lines.

For some unknown cause, the Voice reaches me a little less than semi-occasionally. So did not see my letter 2nd in print. Did it reach you? I suggest that you add the county, when writing my address, as I do appreciate a Voice from Texas.

T. J. Wilbourn.

Mr. Wilbourn, your second letter reached us O K, but sorry to say, was lost after it had reached us, and this is the reason we failed to publish same. We have every week sent you the Voice, but can't say why it has not reached you. We will as you suggest add the county to your address. We appreciate your letters, and will try and not get any more of them misplaced.—[Ed.]

Death of Mrs. Gave.

The wife of W. W. Cave of Terry county, died Tuesday morning about 10 o'clock, at Mr. Porterfield's hotel here. She had been sick with fever for several weeks at her home but upon getting better, desired to be taken to Roby in Fisher county, their old home and where her relatives still reside. Her husband got to Tahoka with her, but seeing she was unable to stand the journey no further, she was taken to the hotel. Her condition became worse and death resulted. It was her request that she be buried at Roby so yesterday afternoon her husband and relatives who had come from Roby left for that place with the body. Her death left motherless three little children the oldest about six years of age.

J. W. Cave and wife came over from Roby several days ago, making the trip without stopping. This caused his wife to get sick and they are yet at the hotel.—Lynn County News.

We called at a private home not long since, and the young lady of the house met us at the door with a cook apron on, her sleeves rolled up and her hands were a-dish water. She begged her in the excuses for, no, no. Young folks—when you find a girl of this kind, plaw around in the front yard until she gets through, then lead her into the parlor, or on under the mulberry tree and make a bargain with her just as quick as you can; if you don't you miss a jewel—one that's very valuable is wedlock—Albany News.

The Pros Won in Mitchell.

At the local option election held in this county Saturday, the pros won by a little over one hundred majority. The day passed off without any disturbance of any kind.—Colorado News.

A combination of the Terry County Voice and The Dallas Semi-Weekly News is just what the farmers of this section need in order to keep thoroughly posted upon local news, Home Enterprise, Personal Items, State News, National affair; Foreign matters. With all the Beasts.

A story is told of a Cherokee woman who married six times and has never gotten out of the animal line, says an exchange. When she was a girl she was known as Miss Mollie Panther. She married an Indian named Coon, and when that gentleman was transferred to the happy ground, she soon became Mrs. Fox. The Fox did not last always, and when he entered the chase, the widow married a mild and placid man name Mule, who never had any kick coming till he harnessed up to draw his load across the great divide. After a period of mourning the widow again entered the matrimonial bliss and became Mrs. Wolf, and when his selap went to the Great Father along with his coryoreal remains, she became the wife of a man name Tiger, and when Mr. Tiger changed his stripes for a pretty white robe in the Great Beyond, the widow became Mrs. Hogg. It is said that despite the fact that this woman has lived with all the beasts of the field she is a woman of refined instinct, a good wife and mother, and in her present surroundings her house is as clean as a pin.—Exchange.

Strange Coincidence.

The octogenarian Earl of the Staff, a great personage in Scotland, has just died. His ancestor, for the first time, was mainly responsible for the MacDonaldis at the battle of Bannockburn, in 1314, in which the Earl's three stalwart sons were slain. A curse was pronounced against him that no future earl should have three sons until his crime was expiated, and in derision he tied up certain valuable properties so that it should be inherited only by the third son of his successors.

Absentmindedness.

An amazing story is told of a well-known professor of science in his days of wooing. So liable was he, even in those days, to moods of abstraction that he would frequently walk by his fiancée's side for many minutes without apparently being aware of her presence. One day the young lady, in a mood of mischief, slipped away from the side of her self-absorbed lover and hurried home. A few minutes later the young scientist mounted the steps of her house and rang the bell, when to his intense astonishment the door was opened by the girl who, to the best of his belief, was still by his side.

Cloves for nausea.
"Cloves," said a physician, "make an excellent and handy remedy for nausea, for the headache due to train rides and for slight attacks of seasickness. I went abroad last year and on the boat the first lay out I began to feel the approaches of seasickness. I took a clove every hour all the rest of the day and by midnight the attack had left me and it did not return again. My wife is much given to indigestion, particularly when she eats pastry, but experience has taught her that she may now eat pastry with impunity, provided that she swallows a clove now and then for several hours after the meal."
