Chief Engineer Here

Chief Engineer C. F. W. Feltz, and aids, of Chicago, head men of the engineering and locating department of the Santa Fe, came in Wednesday afternoon and as his time was limited, he and the local committee got busy with autos, and went over proposed routes through the town, though it was pouring down with rain most of the time. A route was agreed upon, and the big surveying crew left for Lubbock, yesterday, as their work is now finished.

In conversation with Mr. M. V. Brownfield, head of the local railroad committee, he said: "The railroad people have decided to take the last route they run, or the one entering town from my 250 acre tract, where the switch yards will be, through the extreme northwest corner of the Welch ten acre tract, on between the residences of D. J. Broughton and R. R. Lewis, between the McDaniel and Williams blocks, thence straight on through town and crossing the draw just west of J. T. May, thence on to the S. W. corner of the town section, where the survey takes a direct course southwest."

"Mr. Feltz was well pleased, and asked us to hustle the deeding of right-of-way, as they want to begin grading at the earliest possible moment."

The company has not decided on the exact location of the depot yet.

Judge and Mrs. W. R. Spencer from Lubbock, were here visiting friends last week.

Old Soldiers Reunion,

We have been requested by Uncle Bill Howard to announce that there will be an old soldiers reunion held at Gomez, Texas, 1st Saturday in September, that being the 2nd day of the month.

All are urgently requested to come and bring a well filled basket, and help these old Veterans celebrate another anniversary together.

Also, the Brownfield Band has a special invitation to be present and make music for the occasion.

"Dad" Ellis' Brother is Murdered

From accounts in the daily papers we learn that W. L. Ellis' sheriff of Baylor county, was shot and killed near Seymour Sunday. He was a brother of Dad Ellis, who lived in Lynn county for several years, but now lives at Lovington, New Mexico. It seems the sheriff had arrested and handcuffed a negro and the negro hit him on the head with the handcuffs knocking him down and then shot him with his own revolver which the negro snatched as he fell. The sheriff died three hours later. A mob pursued the negro a short distance and riddled him with a volley from a dozen shot guns and pistols.—Lynn County News.

W. R. Slaughter and family, also a brother and uncle of Byers Texas, came in this week in a jitney. Mr. Slaughter formerly resided here, having land in the southwest part of the county, near the new railroad right of way. He is looking for some resident lots in town and may locate here, and says people all along the road from here to Clay county are coming or talking of coming to Brownfield.

Build the Home Fair

The fairs in the Panhandle and South Plains have been so arranaed ttis year that owners of registered herds of cattle' hogs' and other live stock can show at many fairs. This gives every body opportunity to see prize winning live stock without great expense for travle. This is very important in this section so favored by nature for the production of meat and dairy animals.

But the home part the country fairs is yet to be made. Everything that grows has a place in the local fair and the younger people should more especially be given a chance to show what they can do in every line. The pig, the colt, the calf, and every variety of poultry must be there. Every body needs take a hand in showing what the country can do. The management will look after the entertainment features.

Santa Fe Insurance

Every employe of the Santa Fe Railway in the service two years or more has after July 1st this year the advantage of life insurance without cost. The benefit goes directly to the family of the employe. The lowest amount to be paid is $250.00 and the highest $5,000.00. It is figured on the employe and the number of years in the service of the company. The longer the service the greater the benefit.

The plan is not philanthropic. The purpose of the company is to give its men safe insurance in exchange for the faithful service and ability to stay on the job, as the employe as a rule become more valuable as he becomes older in service. The matter has been under consideration for years two and the system effective July 1st will be given a fair test the next two years.

ON MARKETING.

All civilized governments extend their credit facilities beyond the point of private profit, but some extend such facilities further than others in the direction of public service. Take the United States and England as opposite examples. Under our national banking system the Federal government directs its cash reserves into commercially selected channels, and extends its credit facilities along commercially established lines. With all, except for the sake of water conservation, (witness the Roosevelt dam) the United States government has not as yet seen fit to extend its credit facilities outside the industrial domain. Whereas England, under her recently inaugurated "State aid to land purchase" policy, is extending her credit facilities even to the agricultural area, with the result that the impoverished Irish tenant is now in a position to borrow money directly from the powerful British government, in order to become a freeholder in his own right. This, I take it, is a typical example of governmental co-operation. Heretofore, under the formerly prevailing private profit system, the flow of purchasing power has been economically inward, from the agricultural area of Ireland to London, which is the financial and also the fiscal center of exchange; henceforth, under the recently inaugurated public service principle, a politically promoted outflow in the opposite direction is to be observed, from London, which is the fiscal and financial center of exchange, to the agricultural area of Ireland. And in the end, after an equilibrium is arranged, the peasantry beyond the pale will no longer be penalized by reason of their unfavorable position around the Irish agricultural rim.

But enough of the disabilities of place; pass over now to the vicissitudes of time and consider first the farmer's requirements for long-time agricultural loans. In so doing I will ask you to think of American farmers pyramidally arranged. Across the broad base of our agricultural pyramid are the tenant farmers of the United States. Already there are over two and a half million of them, and their number is increasing at an alarming rate (of tenant farmers over free farmers at the ratio of two to one) in the South especially, since the abolition of slavery, and the Southwest also, because of peonage in Mexico, and yet Texas has the largest percentage of white tenants of any of the United States. But eliminate the large number of negroes, if you like, and exclude the small number of Mexicans, if you choose, there still remains considerably over a million and a half tenant farmers in this country that can claim Caucasian descent. Under our Democratic doctrine, and according to our declared principles, each and every one of these should be a home-seeker and become a home-owner. Small chance of either under our profit-seeking system, with agricultural land selling exclusively at speculative prices and agricultural loans offered only at prohibitive rates. One way of solving the tenant problem is to reduce the price of agricultural land to its actual value, through the so-called single tax or some such device. But this of itself is not enough in order to purchase such agricultural land; even at its actual value, tenants have to be provided credit facilities in the way of long-time agricultural loans, including amortization privileges at equitable rates.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

Elihu Root

ON THE CITIZEN'S PART IN GOVERNMENT.

A large part of mankind still regard government as something quite apart from the main business of life—something which is undoubtedly necessary to enable them to attend to their business, but only incidental or accessory to it—a function to be performed by some one else with whom they have little or no concern, as the janitor of an apartment house, whom somebody or other has hired to keep out thieves and keep the furnace running. In reality, government is an essential part in every act of all this wide range of human activity. If it is bad, ruin comes to all; if it is good, success comes according to capacity and courage. The fairest and most fertile parts of the earth have been for centuries wilderness and desert because of bad government; not only lands capable of supporting multitudes in comfort and prosperity, but lands that have actually done so in the past, are today filled with wretchedness and squalor, with ignorance and vice, because of bad government; while under good government, industry and comfort flourish on the most sterile soil and under the most vigorous climate.

Men may leave all this part of the business of life to others and treat it as no concern of theirs; men may voluntarily elect to play no part in the control of the affairs which make up their daily life and to play no part in the working out of the great questions upon which the prosperity of their country, the future of their children, and the welfare of the race depend; but they need not fetter themselves that these things are matters apart from them, or that they are leading free and independent lives. Abstention is impossible under the conditions of modern life and modern popular government. Men must either govern or be governed; they must take part in the control of their own lives, or they must lead subject lives, helplessly dependent in the little things and great things of life upon the will and power of others.

After many centuries of struggle for the right of equality there is some reason to think that mankind is now entering upon a struggle for the right of inequality. It remains to be seen how democracy will work under these new conditions. Another lesson the experience of popular government has already made plain is that the art of self-government does not come to men by nature. It has to be learned; facility in it has to be acquired by practice. The process is long and laborious; for it is not merely a matter of intellectual appreciation, but chiefly of development of character. At the base of all popular government lies individual self-control; and that requires both intelligence and a willingness to do justice.

Some races appear to be incapable of combining in the support of a common political ideal beyond a certain point. The races that have this capacity to the highest degree persist and rule the world; the people that have it to a low degree lose their national entity and cease to govern.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION SIDELIGHTS

One of the most interesting features of the recent Democratic convention at St. Louis is the fact that it took lovely woman to force the only roll call demanded on the national platform, as well as to inspire the only real excitement that marked the convention.

"Votes for Women" was the issue that stirred up things. The Mexican plank, nailed in at the last minute by the platform builders, did not create a ripple. "Americanism" and "preparedness" received polite ovations, but it remained for the woman suffrage plank to start a real fracas.

Headed by Gov. Ferguson of Texas, the anti's endeavored to wrench the suffrage plank from the platform. But President Wilson's feelings on the subject, as presented to the convention by Senator Walsh of Montana, were not to be ignored. And so, after a three-hour battle in which the term "political expediency" was used with telling effect, the anti's were routed by a vote of 888½ to 181½.

The vote, however, does not tell the real story of the battle, which was one of the most vigorous and picturesque ever staged at a national Democratic convention. Fifteen women delegates fought from the floor on the side of the pro-suffragists, while hundreds of their sisters waved yellow pennants and cheered them on from the balconies. A thunderstorm that almost drowned out the voices of the delegates as they answered the roll call brought both the suffrage battle and the convention to a most melodramatic finish.

THE SUFFRAGE PLANK.

"We recommend the extension of franchise to the women of the country by the states upon the same terms as to men."

It was the above little plank that inspired Gov. Ferguson of Texas to mount the platform in the Coliseum and read a minority report withholding the party support from the ladies who want the vote. That the Democratic party should scorn the political exigencies of the situation and defy the 12 western states in which women vote was the burden of his argument. Sharing the same opinion with him were C. L. Bartlett of Georgia, Stephen B. Fleming of Indiana and "Jim" Nugent of New Jersey, the old-time enemy of President Wilson. This trio signed the minority report with the Texan.

Lined up against Gov. Ferguson, who acted as spokesman for the minority, were Senator Stone of Missouri, Senator Pittman of Nevada and Senator Walsh of Montana.

Senator Walsh did not mince matters in his argument for the adoption of the suffrage plank. He stated plainly the adoption of the plank was necessary as a matter of political expediency, adding that the present political situation in this country was a condition and not a theory.

"The states in which women vote control 91 votes in the electoral college," he said, adding significantly, "every political party has declared for woman suffrage in some way or other. It becomes a simple question whether you will incur the enmity of these women."

"Now, my friends," he continued, "as late as 1907 there were but two states west of the Missouri river that returned Democratic senators and now we have 15 of them. The question is, are you ready to surrender the 15 votes you have in the United States senate and turn them over to your political enemies?"

In conclusion, Senator Walsh said that he revealed no secret when he said President Wilson knew all about the suffrage plank.

"The president believes it vital to his success that it stay in the platform," he said. "I ask you in all the fervor of my soul, who is there wiser or more patriotic than he?"

Following Senator Walsh's speech, Gov. Ferguson was allowed five minutes for rebuttal. The vote was then taken and his minority report voted down, after which the original suffrage plank, as approved by the resolutions committee was unanimously adopted.

The Women Delegates.

The presence of the 15 women delegates at the Democratic convention not only added color to the affair, but changed the views of a number of the men delegates on the subject of political activity for women. For the women delegates were a fine, wholesome-looking lot and they fought just as enthusiastically for the best interests of the party as the men.

Three of them, Miss Mary E. Foy of California, Mrs. T. S. Talliaferro of Wyoming, and Mrs. W. A. Harris of Kansas, spoke before the resolutions committee in favor of the suffrage plank which the National American Woman Suffrage Association presented to the convention.

One of the other delegates, Mrs. Teresa E. Graham, of Idaho, was nominated by the National Democratic committee to be one of the committee that will notify Vice-President Marshall of his nomination.

Died

Mrs. Mattie Elmira Snodgrass wife of W. B. Snodgrass, of west Terry, died at her home on Tuesday the 15th at 12:30 p. m. She had been sick more than a year, with cancer of the stomach and to this noble Christian woman, death came as a sweet relief from acute suffering. A true and devoted wife and a good mother has gone to her eternal home, and her life here can leave no doubt in the mind of any one who knew her that it is the home the Savior promised, when he said: "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, there ye may be also." She leaves a husband, a daughter, Mrs. Lena Surginer and four sons, Will, Bob, George and Hugh and their families to mourn the loss of the angel of that home. May an all wise God so lead them that one and all may ultimately join her in the Heaven of the blessed after this life is o'er.

She was buried in the Brownfield Cemetery, Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 p. m. Elder D. C. Lofton of the Church of Christ, conducting a very beautiful funeral service. The floral offerings were profuse, attributing the high respect in which she was held. Deceased was born in Grayson county, Oct. 15, 1856, and Miss Davis married W. B. Snodgrass in 1880, and the twain started out with little of this world's goods, but through frugality have amassed a comfortable fortune. Their home was always open to friend, neighbor and weary traveler alike, there being no limit to their hospitality. A true, Christian mother has gone to receive her crown of Life, and the whole county extends sympathy to the bereaved. Deceased was a member of the Methodist Church.

The Christian meeting is in progress at the tabernacle. Rev. Skaggs is doing some excellent preaching.

Hugh Snodgrass and wife carried their baby to Post City for treatment last week, and were there Tuesday when they were summoned home by phone on account of Hugh's mother's death.

Earley Key and family came in from their home near Tatum, N. M., two weeks ago for a visit to relatives here, and last Monday

Earley carried a load of Post out to his home and will return later for his wife and little ones.

Max Bullock, who made his home in Terry all the past spring, but now lives in Aspermont, is here now visiting his Uncle Stonewall Miller.

Richard Whitley has gone to Mitchell county.

Prof. and Mrs. Harrison, Sam and Sue, came in last week from their home in Plainview. They brought Jack Harrison and Miss Althea Fulton, back from a two weeks visit up there. Prof. Harrison and wife resigned their positions in our school for the coming term and their positions are now to be filled. We sincerely hope that our trustees may be able to fill the vacancies with teachers who realize that listening to recitations is not the only duty required of a teacher, and drawing a salary should not be the only aim and end in view by one who signs a contract in a public school. Children need instruction and the result of being told when they ask for aid "go dig it out for yourself" is usually very unsatisfactory to both pupils and patrons.

John Hays and wife and baby Francis, visited ye scribe last Thursday. John reports rain enough in southwest Terry that grass is good.

Grandma Willis visited over at Brownfield last week and part of this.

Mr. Ginn, sheriff of Stonewall county, accompanied by his family, are visiting out at Stonewall Millers. Mrs. Ginn is a sister to Mrs. Miller.

Messrs. Day and Lester, accompanied by their families left last week for Hall county, where they expect to make their home.

Mr. Dodd who recently moved to Gomez, has bought the Day crop, on the Youngblood place.

Mrs. Will Snodgrass and children came in to church Monday. They visited Mrs. E. E. Simms and ye scribe. Both parties were the recipients of a nice mess of snap beans. Many thanks.

Clyde and Joe Week are in this week for a few days.

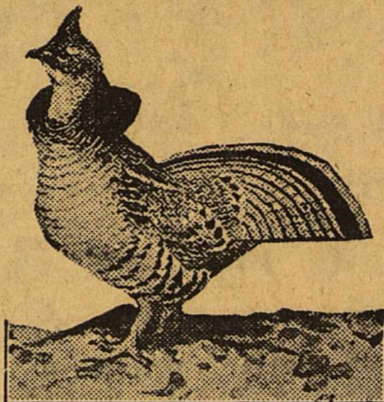

We have seen letters this week from north, east, south and west, from people who have left here seeking work, or else a home, and all say the average condition here in Terry is as good as anywhere and better than many places they have seen.

Oats, Hay and other feed, cheap, at Shepherd's.

Lee Fulton, F. D. Crowder and T. H. Green, have gone to Tahoka, this week after cottonseed cake.

RUFFED GROUSE

(Bonasa umbellus)

Length, seventeen inches. The broad black band near tip of tail distinguishes this from other grouse.

Range: Resident in the northern two-thirds of the United States and in the forested parts of Canada.

Habits and economic status: The ruffed grouse, the famed drummer and finest game bird of the northern woods, is usually wild and wary and under reasonable protection well withstands the attacks of hunters. Moreover, when reduced in numbers, it responds to protection in a gratifying manner and has proved to be well adapted to propagation under artificial conditions. Wild fruits, mast, and browse make up the bulk of the vegetable food of this species. It is very fond of hazelnuts, beechnuts, chestnuts, and acorns, and it eats practically all kinds of wild berries and other fruits. Nearly 60 kinds of fruits have been identified from the stomach contents examined. Various weed seeds also are consumed. Slightly more than 10 per cent of the food consists of insects, about half beetles. The most important pests devoured are the potato beetle, clover-root weevil, the pale-striped flea beetle, grapevine leaf-beetle, May beetles, grasshoppers, cotton worms, army worms, cutworms, the red-humped apple worm, and sawfly larvae. While the economic record of the ruffed grouse is fairly commendable, it does not call for more stringent protection than is necessary to maintain the species in reasonable numbers.

Round trip ten day summer excursion to Galveston, Corpus Christi, Aransas Pass and other seaport resorts, on sale Aug. 25th Sept. 1-8-15-22 and 29th at fare of one-way plus $1.00 for round trip.

FAMILY AVOIDS SERIOUS SICKNESS

By Being Constantly Supplied With Theford's Black-Draught.

McDuff, Va.—"I suffered for several years," says Mrs. J. B. Whitaker, of this place, "with sick headache, and stomach trouble.

Ten years ago a friend told me to try Theford's Black-Draught, which I did, and I found it to be the best family medicine for young and old.

I keep Black-Draught on hand all the time now, and when my children feel a little bad, they ask me for a dose, and it does them more good than any medicine they ever tried.

We never have a long spell of sickness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught."

Theford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and has been found to regulate weak stomachs, aid digestion, relieve indigestion, colic, wind, nausea, headache, sick stomach, and similar symptoms.

It has been in constant use for more than 70 years, and has benefited more than a million people.
