Another Great Fair

The West Texas weatherman has tried his levellest to knock us out of a fair this year, but he couldn't cut 'er. First thing, along about May and June, he gave us a long seige of dry, hot weather, heavily spread on with a thick coating of hot winds, the only hot winds we have ever had before to amount to anything, but by the last of July, he saw that would not do, and turned the big rains aloose on us.

Well, over night, you could almost see the improvement in the old stuff, and the farmers got busy planting late feed crops. Then, as the time for the fair drew near, here comes the said Mr. Weatherman with one big rain right after another and almost had our fair on the bum, but enough good people braved the elements to make, not the largest collection, but one of the best exhibits ever seen in this county. We usually have about sixty or seventy exhibitors, and with fair weather ought to have had one hundred this year, but there were less than forty listed.

The corn was good, the cotton was fine, the kaffir, maize, cane and feterita splendid, while the goobers, turnips, squash, ker shaws and pumpkins were immense, not to say anything about the pretty things the ladies had on exhibit in their department, and the fine stock and poultry.

It is a fact that the dinner part was a knock out, for the reason that it rained and threatened all day Friday, and no one would venture to kill a beef, although the ladies had prepared their pies, cakes and other dainties, and then it began raining Saturday morning, and only the usual week day crowd came in from the country before noon, so the dinner was not necessary after all.

Right after noon the clouds began to scatter, and wagons, buggies and autos began to roll in with products of the field, or chard and gardens, and by four in the afternoon, the sun burst fourth from behind the clouds, and we had a lively little crowd of Terryites, sprinkled here and there with admiring prospectors and visitors.

The following is a list of prizes won, as turned in to us by the judging committees, and if any mistakes are found, cuss them but remember the time consumed in judging was very short, as they began late in the afternoon, and you should be reasonable with them:

My Auto, 'Tis of Thee

My auto, 'tis of thee, short cut to poverty, of the I chant. I blew in a pile of dough on you two years ago, and now you refuse to go, or won't or can't, thru town or country side. You were my joy and pride; one happy day. I loved the gaudy hue, thy four so white tires so new, now down and out for true, in every way. To the old rattle box, came many bumps and knocks, for thee I grieve. Badly thy top is torn, frayed are thy seats and worn, a cough affects thy horn I do believe. Thy perfume swells the breeze, while good folks choke and wheeze, as we pass by. I paid for thee a price, 'twould buy amansion twice, now all are yelling "ice", I wonder why? The motor has the grippe, thy spark plugs have the pip, woe is thine. I too, have suffered chill, ague and other kindred ills, trying to pay my bills sence thou was mine. Gone is my bank roll now, no more would choke a cow, as once before. Yet if I had the tin, so help me, John-amen, I'd buy a car again.—H. P. R., Jr.

TEXAS

A little girl baby was born the 19th inst to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hamilton, but the little one was dead when it came to this world, and was buried in the Brownfield cemetery the 20th at 12 noon. They have the sympathy of the entire community.

We wish to announce to our readers that the bargain days with the Star Telegram, the paper that is a friend of West Texas, has opened up, and those that are not taking it, and want to start now, will get the paper from now till December 1st 1917 for the price of a year; in other words you get the paper from now till December 1st free. The price of this year will be $3.65 instead of $3.25 as heretofore, or a penny a day. The cost of production has nearly doubled, but the publishers have divided this cost with the readers, giving the latter the advantage by odds. To old readers who wish to renew, any time between now and Dec. 1st will be alright, and don't forget that the Herald is the agent authorized to take their subscriptions in Brownfield.

The Dallas News is sending out notices to the country paper notifying that if they wanted the daily News next year, they will have to send them at least 60 subscribers to the Semi Weekly Farm News. We absolutely refused, and hope every self respecting country paper in the State did the same thing. We believe we have for the past several years sent the News in the neighborhood of the required amount, but we do not propose to be bound up to them with any such a task hanging over us, and they should remember that in a great measure, it was the country weeklies that were instrumental in building their big circulation, both daily and semi-weekly editions, and now to deliberately turn their back on the country weeklies just because paper has doubled in price, is a mighty poor way of returning a just favor. Possibly they forget that the cost of paper has doubled with the country weekly also. Their requirements are almost impossible for some little country weeklies to fill, even though their editors get out and make a personal canvas of their constituents. As far as the Herald, it believes it can fill all the requirements and get the News, but it isn't going to, and wishes to inform the News that it is able to subscribe for a daily if it has to. We wish to further inform them that we take no more subs for them.

The Great Plains

The Great Plains are smooth treeless sloops that extend eastward from the foot of the Rocky Mountains into central Kansas as well as into adjoining States on the north and south. Their western margin has an altitude of almost 5,000 feet near the Rocky Mountains, from which they make a practically continuous descent to an altitude of 2,000 to 2,200 feet in central Kansas where they merge into rolling prairies. The plains are trenced by the relatively shallow valleys of many rivers and creeks flowing to the east, but extensive are of the remarkably smooth tabular surfaces remain between these valleys.

The major part of the Great Plains is covered by sands, gravel and loams of late Tertiary age (about a million years old), varying in thickness from 50 to 200 feet in greater part and in general lying on a relatively smooth surface of the older rocks. The materials were brought from the Rocky Mountain region by streams which ran in various courses across the region some times cutting valleys but mostly depositing sediments. The time was one of relatively arid conditions probably in general similar to the present, the streams bringing out of the mountains a large amount of sediment than they could carry though to the great rivers on the east. The process was long continued, and it is likely also that at times the streams grades were somewhat less than they are at present, so that the deposits were not to any great extent deeply trenched by small creeks as they are now. It is known from the fossil bones found in the deposits that it was inhabited by numerous animals of a sort very different from those of the present era. There were rhinoceroses, camels three-toed horses, elephants and bisons of peculiar types as well as great many species of smaller animals. At certain places in the region large numbers of bones of these strange animals have been found and dug out, and many of these bones are now carefully preserved in museums. (U. S. Geological Survey.)

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months."

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.

At all druggists.

Mr. Carswell, the mill man happened to a very painful accident this week while trying to put a belt on a pulley. It seems that the shaft had gained considerable momentum, and in trying to push the belt on, his hand slipped, and a spoke in the fly wheel struck his hand just below where the thumb joins the hand, cutting an ugly gash to the bone about two inches long. A physician took two stitches on the wound, and he is getting on fine.

While pouring hot coffee at the restaurant, Monday morning, Elbert Oakley got his hand badly scald. It seems the handle of the pot caught in his shirt sleeve. A physician dressed the scald.

John B. King of the South Plains Land Co. returned to day from Lubbock where he met and closed a deal with Will Fletcher, of Van Alstyne, Texas for W. A. Chisholms, land and cattle. Consideration $7500.00. After visiting Mr. Sawyer's orchard west of town and seeing his trees bending with beautiful apples, Mr. Fletcher quickly saw the possibilities of old Terry as a fruit country and placed an order for a four acre orchard, on his place, with John.

The stores are full of buying people most any time of day, and all the merchants report rushing businesses.

I. A. Lowe and family, of Lou, also J. C. Bond and family, were here this week shopping. They are sure coming to Brownfield to do their fall and winter shopping.

Mr. W. T. Richardson, State expert printer, of Austin, was here this week taking to the good fresh air of the glorious plains. Mr. Richardson says he has had a hard summer's work, getting the printing contracts through, owing to the high cost of paper, and is now ready for a good vacation on the Plains. He owns considerable property interests in Yoakum, and will look after it while up here, returning by way of Seminole and Midland, taking the T & P to Dallas for a few days at the State fair.

All the local land companies have sure enough decorated their offices since the fair. We were called in the Brownfield Land Co office this week, and found that they had remodeled their apartments, and had decorated them with Terry county product spelling out TERRY with kaffir corn and maize. Why fellows, even the land agents in Brownfield are boosters; fact.

In conversation with Dr. Summitt this week, he said he had not been here but about two weeks, but was thoroughly in love with the country.

Foundation was layed this week for the handsome new residence of W. A. Bell. Let the good work go on.

R. H. McCormack's new residence is nearing completion, and he says he is going to build another for rent purpose just as soon as this one is complete.

In conversation with Manager Levy, of the local McAdams lumber yard, this week, he informed us that he was selling lumber right along, and it was hard to keep a stock on hand. He is now figuring several bills.

John Dooley, of Gomez, was over this week and handed us three dollars to keep 'er going to three of his children in the east. He said money was not so awful plentiful with him, but that he wanted to keep telling them how good old Terry was a commercial bank account is inspired with the ambition to add more to it, to keep it up to a certain amount, and pass that mark if it is at all possible. Open an account with us if you havn't one already, and just see what difference it will make in the money you will have at the end of the year. You will be surprised.

Mr. Brown, district and localing manager of the Kemp Lumber Co., was here this week, and had Boyce Cardwell to grub off and level their location, preparatory to erecting sheds in the near future. We are pleased to say that Boyce has secured a very lucrative position with this big company.

Maneger Geo. Small, of the Higginbotham Harris Lumber Co., was here this week and let the contract to Geo. McWhorter and Henry Pulliam to grade up and fill in their grounds, and make them turn the water. This will be a very pretty site for a lumber yard.

Some of you are wondering why the Herald is late this week and in explanation, we wish to say that John Franklin Stricklin was born early on one frosty morning, which happened to be press day also, being Friday the 20th. The firm now has been changed from Herale & Son to Herald and Sons, and there never was the head of a firm prouder of his partners. Of course there are just a few peoyle in Brownfield now that we speak to.

HORNED LARK (Otocoris alpestris)

Length, about seven and three-fourths inches. The black mark across the breast and the small, pointed tufts of dark feathers above and behind the eyes distinguish the bird.

Range: Breeds throughout the United States (except the South Atlantic and Gulf states) and Canada; winters in all the United States except Florida.

Habits and economic status: Horned larks frequent the open country, especially the plains and deserts. They associate in large flocks, are hardy, apparently delighting in exposed situations in winter, and often nest before snow disappears. The flight is irregular and hesitating, but in the breeding season the males ascend high in air, singing as they go, and pitch to the ground in one thrilling dive. The preference of horned larks is for vegetable food, and about one-sixth of this is grain, chiefly waste. Some sprouting grain is pulled, but drilled grain is safe from injury. California horned larks take much more grain than the eastern birds, specializing on oats, but this is accounted for by the fact that oats grow wild over much of the state. Weed seeds are the largest single element of food. The insect food, about 20 per cent of the whole, includes such pests as May beetles and their larvae (white grubs), leaf beetles, clover-leaf and clover-root weevils, the potato-stalk borer, nut weevils, billbugs, and the chinch bug. Grasshoppers are a favorite food, and cutworms are freely eaten. The horned larks, on the whole, may be considered useful birds.

RUBY-CROWNED KINGLET (Regulus calendula)

Length, about four and one-fourth inches. Olive green above, soiled whitish below, concealed feathers on head (crest) bright red.

Range: Breeds in southern Canada, southern Alaska, and the higher mountains of the western United States; winters in much of the United States and south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: In habits and haunts this tiny sprite resembles a chickadee. It is an active, nervous little creature, flitting hither and yon in search of food, and in spring stopping only long enough to utter its beautiful song, surprisingly loud for the size of the musician. Three-fourths of its food consists of wasps, bugs, and flies. Beetles are the only other item of importance (12 per cent). The bugs eaten by the kinglet are mostly small, but, happily, they are the most harmful kinds. Treehoppers, leafhoppers, and jumping plant lice are pests and often do great harm to trees and smaller plants, while plant lice and scale insects are the worst scourges of the fruit grower—in fact, the prevalence of the latter has almost risen to the magnitude of a national peril. It is these small and seemingly insignificant birds that most successfully attack and hold in check these insidious foes of horticulture. The vegetable food consists of seeds of poison ivy, or poison oak, a few weed seeds, and a few small fruits, mostly elderberries.

What Becomes of the Goats.

The reported goat shortage in the United States may be due to anything from British interference with neutral trade to the fact that neighbors with autos honk loudly before the houses when returning home at midnight. What becomes of gotten goats is another of those questions like that concerning the whereabouts of lights that go out.—Springfield Republican.

In the Same Box.

The Village Grocer (peevishly)—"Look here, Aaron! What makes you put the big apples on the top of the bar!" The Honest Farmer (cheerily)—"What makes you comb that long scalplock over your bald spot?"—Puck.

Daily Thought.

A man's own conscience is his sole tribunal and he should care no more for that phantom "opinion" than he should fear meeting a ghost if he crosses the churchyard at dark.—Lytton.

Where They Lived.

The Dominican republic has been the home of a great many of Spain's explorers and conquerors. At Azua, in the southern part, about sixty miles from the capital founded by Diego Velasquez, the settler of Cuba, there dwelt at one time Hernando Cortez, the celebrated conqueror of Mexico; Balboa, who discovered the Pacific ocean, and Pizarro, famed for the conquest of Peru.

Not a Matter of Gossip.

"Ah!" I have often heard of you, Mr. Gloom," suavely said the representative of an eastern publishing house who called on only the few persons in each neighborhood who were of sufficient intelligence to appreciate the valuable literary works which he was purveying. "Uh-huh!" returned the dour and savage citizen. "Never heard of my being civil to a book agent, did you?"—Kansas City Star.
