THEATER TO BE MADE INTO ONE OF MOST MODERN IN THIS SECTION; CONTRACT LET TO BILL KING

Improvements which are expected to cost nearly as much as the original value of the building are to be started on the R. & R. Palace theater in Colorado Tuesday, June 14, according to information received by A. E. McClain, local R. & R. manager.

The building is to be remodeled and renovated both inside and out. Two downstairs rest rooms and a large inside foyer are to be arranged. An entirely new decorative scheme will be carried out, including new drapes, new carpets, and new lighting effects.

Plans are to make the entrance one of the most modern in West Texas. The flooring will be laid around a new box office, and the most modern outside lighting and display systems are to be installed. Bill King is contractor for the work. McClain stated this week that the final picture show at the Palace before the improvements begin will be on Monday night, June 13. Beginning Tuesday night, June 14, the pictures scheduled for the Palace will be shown at the Ritz, and the Ritz pictures will be shown in the Gem theater building. This arrangement will be continued until the Palace improvements are finished.

LOCKHART'S NO. 1 BOB SCOTT CALLED BEST WELL IN AREA

OFFSET TO HEUSINGER IS RATED AT 1520 BARRELS PER DAY

Described by oil writers as the "area's largest well," H. L. Lockhart's No. 1 Bob Scott in Howard county was completed last week and tested 1,520 barrels on a 24-hour run.

The well, located in the NE corner of section 86-29, W&NW, between Snyder and Chalk pools, topped pay at 2,698 and was bottomed at 2,865. It was given a shot of 760 quarts of nitroglycerin.

Drilled as an offset to Lockhart's first well, No. 1 Heusinger, the well tested much heavier than the original well. The Heusinger test was completed for 963 barrels.

Lockhart's No. 2 Heusinger, a west offset to the No. 1 Heusinger, was drilling past 2,038 feet early this week. Drilling was also begun this week on his No. 2 Scott 330 feet from the east and north lines of section 86, block 29.

WATER PITCHER BUSINESS OF RIORDAN REACHES EVEN UNTO MAINE CAMPS

Until a certain tourist came along from Maine and peeped in his show window, Jerold Riordan, Colorado hardware and novelty dealer, didn't know there was anything unusual about the water pitchers he was displaying.

The tourist, Mrs. Mabel Blair Burns of Haines Landing, Maine, manager of the Mooselookmeung Hotel and Log Camps in the Haines Lakes region, found in the pitchers just what she'd been looking for, she said. When she got home she had Riordan order her a dozen of them, and the other day he received another order for three dozen.

Strangely enough, Haines Landing, Maine, is closer to the factory where the pitchers are made than Colorado is, so Riordan had the orders sent directly to Mrs. Burns from the factory.

MODERN PLANT FOR GRADING GRAVEL TO BE OPERATED HERE

BUILDING OF HILLSDALE COMPANY'S PLANT IN WEST COLORADO NOW NEARING COMPLETION

A modern plant which will supply washed and graded gravel from the gravel beds just west of Colorado is to be put into operation by the Hillsdale Gravel company of Sweetwater within the next few days.

Construction of the plant, located northeast of the company, was being completed this week under the direction of C. C. Johnston of Sweetwater, who is manager of the large plant maintained by his company at Sweetwater and who will also manage the new plant here.

The graded gravel to be turned out by the plant will be used principally in road topping work, Johnston said Tuesday in reply to questions about the new enterprise. Gravel taken from the Colorado bed in this vicinity has never been thoroughly graded before.

The plant will be capable of producing about 400 cubic yards of separated material daily. About 10 men are to be employed regularly. Claude Storey, recently of Sweetwater, is to be plant foreman. Johnston, who is a member of the Sweetwater Board of City Development and who is well-known all over West Texas, will divide his time between Colorado and Sweetwater, although he will continue living in Sweetwater.

In connection with the plant, which includes a large conveyor system in addition to its grading and washing equipment, a new road along the river bank has been constructed. The plant will be electrically operated.

CROWD OF NEARLY 5,000 ATTENDS OPENING NIGHT OF RUDDICK PARK AMATEUR SERIES

Nearly 5,000 Mitchell countians overflowed Ruddick park amphitheater Friday night for the opening of the third summer series of chamber of commerce amateur hour programs.

Even though enlarged 46% through extension of terraces, the amphitheater failed to offer terrace seating for all those attending. In a brief talk before the program opened, Mayor J. A. Sadler assured the audience that additional seats will be available for next Friday night's program.

Carolyn Ray Womack, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Womack of Colorado, walked off with the evening's top honors and a cash prize of $5 for her song, "They Always Pick on Me." The second and third prizes, amounting to $5, were to be divided between tiny Marlene Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hammond of Buford, and a group of singers and dancers who staged a skit entitled, "Professor Rhythm and His Swingsters."

VARIED PROGRAM IS SLATED FOR RUDDICK PARK FRIDAY NIGHT

Arrangements are being made for presentation of a wide variety of numbers on the second amateur hour program of the summer at Ruddick park Friday night, beginning at 8 o'clock.

H. B. Spence, manager of the Colorado chamber of commerce and director of the amateur hour, assures the public that the entire program will not last over an hour and fifteen minutes.

A few changes in the program arrangements are to be tried out Friday night, according to Spence. Instead of having all the band concert at the beginning of the evening, the band numbers will be spread over the entire program, played between amateur offerings.

It is believed that this arrangement will not only be advantageous to those staging the amateur numbers, giving them more time for preparations and rest between appearances, but will also enable the band to rest between its numbers and to remain seated through the evening instead of having to vacate the stage. The band is to be seated below the stage, according to present plans.

In the case of Ona Caswell vs. L. C. Caswell no divorce was granted, but custody of the Caswells' one child was awarded to the mother.

The grand jury reported only six indictments last week after one of the briefest grand jury deliberations in this county in many months. Three of these dealt with chicken theft, one with forgery, one with a 30-cent burglary, and one with driving while intoxicated. No plans had been made Wednesday afternoon for the grand jury to reconvene during this term of court.

Beulah Ashford Is Married In Abilene

Of interest to Coloradans was an account of the Saturday evening marriage of Beulah Ashford of Abilene, formerly of Colorado to James Wellington McBrayer of Lamesa in the Abilene Reporter-News on Sunday.

The bride's father, the Rev. W. C. Ashford, was pastor of First Baptist church here for several years, coming here in 1928. He is now pastor of the South Side Baptist church in Abilene.

The Reporter-News account of Miss Ashford's marriage follows:

Muted music of a violin ensemble filled the South Side Baptist church Saturday night at the twilight hour as the pastor, the Rev. W. C. Ashford, read the marriage service in which his daughter, Beulah, became the bride of James Wellington McBrayer of Lamesa.

Candles illumined the church and the altar, where the bridal couple recited vows as they stood before an arch of greenery and blossoms. Vari-colored garden flowers and banked palms also adorned the edifice.

Wearing a bridal costume of white mousseline de soie and finger-tip veil of illusion, the bride entered the church on the arm of E. A. Ringold of Ranger, uncle of her mother. Featuring a deep drop yoke of lace, the bride's dress was a basque model with full skirt shirred at the waistline. A halo of orange blossoms held her veil to her hair and she carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies. Her only ornament was a brooch, which belonged to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Emma Ringold.

Bouffant organdy gowns in pastel hues, fashioned alike, were worn by the bride's attendants. They carried colonial bouquets of sweetpeas in variegated hues and wore flowers in their hair.

Mrs. Carl T. York as matron of honor, wore blue organdy; Virginia Plummer, maid of honor, was attired in pink, and the bridesmaids, Lucile Ashford, sister of the bride, was gowned in orchid, and Valda Moore, in yellow. Joy Hughes was ring bearer.

Bill G. Allen of Lamesa served as Mr. McBrayer's best man.

Ushers were Dr. Raymond Wray, Bud McDonald and Tommy Thompson.

Mrs. Francis J. Pruitt was at the piano as the violin ensemble played. They gave "I Love You Truly" as the nuptial music, then changed to Wagner's "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" to announce entrance of the wedding party. Traditional Mendelssohn music was used for the recessional.

Mrs. Bryan Lawlis lighted the candles in the church, which was filled with friends of the bride's family.

From the church, forty guests went to the Ashford home, at 1866 Belmont boulevard for a wedding reception. They joined the bride in cutting a decorated wedding cake, which was served from a flower-adorned table where Mary Ellen Fry presided, assisted by Lyndell Smith, Margaret Rowell and Frances Ringold.

After a honeymoon trip, the couple will live in Lamesa, where Mr. McBrayer is manager of a gas appliance store.

FFA BOYS, CARRYING ON CROP AND FIELD PROJECTS DURING SUMMER VACATION TIME LEARN EARLY THAT FARM WORK NEVER DONE

The old truth that work on the farm is never done is being learned early by Future Farmers of Colorado High school as they carry their field crop and livestock projects on through the summer months, which bring vacation from study to most other students.

F. C. Shillingburg, FFA sponsor and head of the Colorado vocational agriculture department, says that he has about 30 boys cultivating a total of 300 acres of cotton, and about the same number working an equal acreage of grain sorghums.

Nine boys are feeding gilts during the summer, and four are raising nurse calves. The latter are Clay Smith, Raymond Fuller, Oscar Roberts, and Nathan Welch. All calves raised by the FFA boys during the winter were dry-hot fed. Shillingburg's boys are now busy selecting calves for their dry-hot feeding next year.

Records of their projects are being kept by all the boys during the summer, and the FFA chapter plans to meet at least once a month. The boys are going to the encampment at Cisco some time during the summer.

SPADE CATTLE PRAISED IN FT. WORTH COLUMN

A cartload of cows which were raised and grass fed on the Rendelbrook ranch in Mitchell county drew this complimentary paragraph from Frank Reeves, Sr. in his "Chuckwagon Gossip" column in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram for Sunday:

"An excellent load of fat cows from the Spade Ranch in West Texas sold on the Fort Worth market at $6.50 on Thursday. This price was made despite the fact that cows are lower than they were a week ago. The Spade cows were purchased by Kelly Wright on order account."

FEEDING OF CALF KEY TO MILK PRODUCTION

Efficient milk-producing animals can be developed economically from heifer calves if feeding formulas are carefully observed. The aim in feeding dairy calves, explains P. C. McGilliard of the Oklahoma A. & M. College dairy department, is to develop the paunch (rumen) in order that when the cow is grown she will be able to handle large quantities of feed necessary for extensive milk production.

"Early feeding of dry matter to calves in gradually increasing amounts is the best means of developing the cow's digestive apparatus, so that when mature she can handle large amounts of feed. And it is necessary that the cow be able to handle large amounts of feed. Feeding milk alone for any length of time will not accomplish this development of eating ability."

A rule for feeding that is found satisfactory at the experiment station is to allow the calf to go with the cow during the first three days, or until the milk is fit for use, then hand feed the calf at the rate of one pound of whole milk per day for each ten pounds of body weight. Two feedings are used.

Hay should be kept before the calf at all times after it has been placed on hand feeding; and it should be encouraged to eat as much roughage as possible. Legumes are not recommended for early feeding, since they tend to promote irregularity in elimination. Prairie hay is better for early nutritional work.

After a month of whole milk feeding, skim milk may be used by substituting a pound of it for a pound of whole milk, then, after a few days, substituting another pound. As the calf grows, milk rations are increased until they reach the maximum of eight pounds per feeding.

Feeding of skim milk should continue, McGilliard says, until the calf is 6 months old, when it is gradually tapered off.

Addition of grain to the ration should also be done gradually, after starting with a handful (about a quarter of a pound) of a concentrate when the calf is changed to skim milk. The amount of grain increased gradually as the calf is able to eat it.

The importance of feeding sufficient roughage, hay or pasture, cannot be overemphasized, McGilliard says. That is demonstrated by the practice on the Jersey Islands, where cows are fed but little concentrates until a few months before the first freshening. The main item of feed is roughage, increased gradually until the cow is able to eat large amounts.

"The ability to handle large amounts of roughage is the economical thing in dairy cows," McGilliard says. "If a cow is unable to produce large amounts of milk, for which she will need huge amounts of hay, she will not pay a profit on her feed and the care needed to keep her."

MR. AND MRS. KEATHLEY, MARRIED 40 YEARS, OWN LANDMARK WHICH WAS FIRST HOTEL

Their home is the building which housed Colorado's first hotel back in the town's booming infancy, and Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Keathley, who quietly passed their fortieth wedding anniversary on May 30, are the type of historic-minded pioneers who should fittingly live in such a landmark.

Mr. and Mrs. Keathley have lived in Colorado since 1901, and have owned a home here all that time. In the course of the years they have, for reasons pertaining to business and health, made several attempts to move elsewhere, but have always, in their own words, "had to come back home."

Until ill health forced him to begin living carefully and quietly a few years ago, Mr. Keathley did business in many lines under the motto, "Any old thing." He has an excellent memory, and augments it by keeping files and records on many phases of life and local activity. For many years he has carefully kept a personal diary which, it has been predicted, will be of real historic value in future years.

Mr. Keathley was born on a farm near Rutherford, Tenn., on Jan. 2, 1869, and moved into Rutherford with his family in March, 1878. He became a Texan in December, 1884, when his family moved to Breckenridge.

Attending Baylor university in Waco in 1890, Mr. Keathley was a friend and classmate of Pat Neff, who later became governor of Texas and who is now president of the university where he and Ernest Keathley were classmates. After his university years, Mr. Keathley taught school in Stephens, Eastland, and Jack counties for 15 years.

His marriage to Flora Irene Robertson, native Texan, took place during these years, the ceremony being said on May 30, 1898. Flora Irene Robertson was born in Bosque county on Feb. 18, 1874. Her family moved to Stephens county in 1877. She attended Baylor university at Waco in 1891, and later taught school in Stephens county for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Keathley moved to Colorado on July 5, 1901, three years after their marriage. For six years after coming here Mr. Keathley was employed as bookkeeper and collector for the Colorado Water, Light, and Telephone company, which was owned by the late Robert M. Webb. When the present City of Colorado was incorporated in 1907, he became its first tax collector and continued to serve in that capacity for five years.

The Keathleys made their first attempt to move away from Colorado two years after coming here. The move was to Sweetwater, where they remained only five months before returning here. The second attempt was in 1929, when Mr. Keathley's health was at low ebb. At that time they moved to Abilene, where they remained two years. They returned to Colorado in May 1931, and have been here ever since.

The hotel which is Mr. and Mrs. Keathley's present home became their property in 1918. It has been known for years as the Alamo, but when it was opened in January, 1884, it was known as the Pacific house. Along with his hotel business, Mr. Keathley continues to have several side-line duties, though not as many as he had before his health broke in 1929. He has served the local Woodmen of the World lodge as clerk for around 32 years. Both he and Mrs. Keathley are active members of First Baptist church.

Two sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Keathley. The older, J. G., died in San Francisco, Calif., in 1936. The other son, Sterling Keathley, is in business in Colorado.

STATE CAPITOL IS NOW 50 YEARS OLD

Our magnificent state capitol has completed 50 years service to the people of this imperial commonwealth. When formally opened in 1888 it was the seventh largest building in the world.

Before actual construction was started, a 60-mile railroad was built by the contractors to haul the native granite from the quarries at Burnet, and stone masons were imported from France to set the granite in place.

The largest, most beautiful and palatial state-house in the entire nation has 250 rooms, 900 windows, and 500 doors and is still the pride of all Texas.

The massive cornerstone, weighing 18,000 pounds, was hauled 15 miles from the quarries to the railroad at Burnet by 15 yoke of oxen, and was set in place with appropriate ceremonies on March 2, 1885—the 49th anniversary of Texas Independence.

A complete list of the things placed in the cornerstone will be sent to any reader of this paper upon receipt of a self-addressed stamped envelope, and we'll be delighted to hear from you. Our address: Box 923, Austin, Texas.

WORK ON FEEDER HIGHWAY STARTED THURSDAY MORNING

DRAINAGE STRUCTURES TO BE BUILT FIRST ALONG NEW ROAD

Work was begun Thursday morning on drainage structures along the 4.8 miles of Robert Lee feeder road on which paving contract was let some time ago to R. W. McKinney of Nacogdoches.

E. W. Pittman, construction engineer stationed here by the State Highway department to supervise the work, stated Thursday morning that H. C. Polly of Glen Rose is superintendent in charge of the work. Requisitions have been made for about eight men through the U. S. Employment service, and more will probably be used later.

The feeder road branches off Highway One at the cemetery junction east of Colorado and will follow the general route of the Robert Lee road southward.

COLORADO DOWNS SWEETWATER AS BALLPARK OPENED

WINNING STREAK FOR LOCAL TEAM IN EIGHTH INNING RUNS SCORE 6-5

Downing Sweetwater's Swatters 6-5, Harvey Munns' semi-professional baseball team officially opened his new ball park in East Colorado with a victory Wednesday afternoon at 3:30.

Colorado's winning streak came in the eighth inning, the opening of which found the score 5-1 in favor of Sweetwater. At the close of the inning Colorado was in the lead, 6-5. Colorado's only home run was hit by Stuffy Selman of Mabank in the eighth inning.

Joe Cooper and Harvey Munns pitched for Colorado. Wilbur Coffey was catcher. Others playing on the Colorado team were Richard Howell at third, J. Smith at shortstop, Charles Spikes at second, Bailey White at first, Al Simmons at leftfield, Selman at centerfield, and Black Adams at rightfield.

Sale of tickets for this game was sponsored by the Colorado chamber of commerce. Each ticket was 40 cents, but admission will be only 25 cents in the future, Munns says.

LONG ILLNESS OF MRS. MARTHA FEASTER ENDED IN DEATH ON MONDAY

Ending a long period of ill health, death claimed Mrs. Martha Feaster, prominent Buford resident, at a local hospital Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Feaster, widow of L. F. Feaster, was 73.

Mrs. Feaster had been an invalid since she was stricken with paralysis four years ago. She had been seriously ill since May 29.

Born in South Carolina on October 1, 1864, Mrs. Feaster came to Mitchell county with her late husband 33 years ago. They lived in Ellis county before coming here. Mr. Feaster died August 27, 1937.

Funeral services were held at the home near Buford Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock with the Rev. C. E. Jameson of First Methodist church officiating. Burial was in the Colorado cemetery beside Mr. Feaster. Grandsons were pallbearers.

Survivors include five sons, Hiram, Luther, Clint, Arthur, and Claude, all of Buford; and two daughters, Mrs. Sudie Smith and Mrs. Young Hammond, also of Buford.

Kiker & Son had charge of arrangements.

The first successful adding machine was sold in 1884.

FIRST CAR OF 1938 WHEAT SHIPPED FROM COLORADO ON TUESDAY

First car of the 1938 wheat harvest in Mitchell county to be shipped out of Colorado was billed to Fort Worth Tuesday by John A. Thompson, local grain dealer.

J. W. Watson brought in the first wheat for the car on last Thursday, June 2, from his farm northeast of Colorado. He had 91 bushels. W. D. McAdams of Landers brought in 325 bushels on June 3. A. M. Taylor of Landers 182 bushels on June 4. Joe Boatright of Spade 22 bushels on June 4. H. M. Moore of Hyman 988 bushels on June 7, and W. B. Averett of Hyman 205 bushels on June 7.

Thompson was loading his second car of wheat Thursday noon. He expects this year's harvest to be less than that of last year, when 10 cars were shipped from here. Only about 7 cars are being planned on this year.

Quality of this year's grain is below that of last year, Thompson says, because of late freezes, insufficient moisture, and unseasonably warm weather. He was paying 54 cents per bushel Thursday, but paid only 52 cents for the first wheat.

Combines running in the Colorado territory belong to Jim Boyd, Casey McAdams, Dell Barber, H. M. Moore, P. K. Mackey and Bob Scott. The harvest is expected to be over in about 10 days.

RANGE INSPECTION IS COMPLETED BY BYRNE

Thirty-five ranches complied with the program last year, according to B. J. Baskin, county farm agent. Tank building will be continued as the major range conserving activity in this county in 1938, Baskin says.

making of an egg basket out of a 24-inch square of hardware cloth costing 30 cents.

Miss Crippen pointed out the need of keeping nests clean, and advised against the washing of eggs, since water causes the shells to become porous.

Present in addition to the hostess and Miss Crippen were Mrs. J. C. Shepherd, Mrs. G. M. Howell, and Mrs. J. C. Franklin. Mrs. T. W. Daugherty will be the next hostess.

MAGAZINE ARTICLE ON MRS. E. W. BOUNDS OF FORT WORTH IS OF SPECIAL INTEREST HERE

Because its subject came here in 1887 and called this county home for 10 years, and because she is still strongly connected with Colorado through family ties, Coloradans were especially interested in the Southern magazine's May article on Mrs. E. W. Bounds of Fort Worth, past president of the Texas Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

It was in Colorado that Mrs. Bounds began the civic and organization work which eventually led her to this prominent post, as well as other positions of leadership. The Colorado chapter of the U.D.C. was not organized during her residence here, but today her daughter, Mrs. Jack Smith, carries on her mother's traditions in this work, having served as president of the Colorado chapter several times and being vice-president at this time.

Mrs. Bounds was born Julia Attaway Brewer in Honest Ridge, Texas, on April 14, 1870. Her father, Col. Samuel Brewer, had been a prosperous plantation owner in Tuskegee, Alabama, before the Civil War. He served in the Twelfth Alabama Regiment, Company F, during the war, then moved to Texas to escape the worst effects of reconstruction.

Married to Columbus Franklin Dickson in Chilton, Texas, in 1886, Mrs. Bounds made her covered wagon journey to Mitchell county in the spring of 1887 as a bride of less than a year. She and her husband had bought two sections of land in what was then known as Bone Hollow, located a mile east of the present site of Buford in northern Mitchell county. The hollow had gotten its name from the large amounts of bleached buffalo bones which were found there in Colorado's earliest days. These bones were hauled into Colorado for shipment via the new T. & P. railroad to points east, where they brought good prices when ground for fertilizer.

A year later Mr. and Mrs. Dickson moved into Colorado. Three children were born to them, Mary (now Mrs. Jack Smith of Colorado), Rebie (now Mrs. Clarence Ferguson of Hamlin) and C. T., who is somewhere in Arizona.

Mr. Dickson died in 1895, and four years later his widow married E. Wiley Bounds, young Hillsboro attorney who had come here to live. Later he became known as Judge Bounds. He was elected Mitchell county attorney in 1902. Two children, Jane (now Mrs. Earl Powell of Stanton) and E. W., Jr., now of Seguin, were born to Judge and Mrs. Bounds.

While living in Colorado Mrs. Bounds became a charter member of See MAGAZINE ARTICLE, Page 3

Balancing their Thursday night defeat, Westbrook downed China Grove 11 to 7 Tuesday night. Bullock made three hits for Westbrook out of three times at bat. B. ## RANCE DOCKREY OUTLINES PLATFORM AS CANDIDATE FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The platform on which he will base his campaign for state representative of the 117th district was outlined this week by R. T. (Rance) Dockrey of Colorado, as follows:

I believe that, in choosing a man to represent them in the Legislature, people should select one who has lived, traveled and worked among them, so that he may know their desires and needs, and may therefore best legislate for their benefit. I am forty-two years of age, and during my span of life, have spent my time in occupations which have brought me into constant contact with people of every station in life in this state. I was born and raised on a farm, and hence know only too well the problems of the farmer, and what he needs. Since then, I have lived in town, and therefore am well acquainted also with what is needed by people who do not live on the farm. For the past twenty-four years I have been a resident of Mitchell county, and during that time have become acutely conscious of the problems of the people of this and the other counties comprising this legislative district, and also the problems of this great state as a whole.

Space does not permit me to here set forth my platform in full. However, I should like to say that, if I am sent to Austin by the people of this district, I will go with the avowed intention of doing all in my power to abolish the present scandalous waste of taxpayers' money which is now going on in our state government. I here cite a few instances of this. The State Liquor Control Board can be abolished, and the work it is now doing can be handled efficiently by local officers who are receiving pay for keeping law and order in the various localities. In this way alone we can do away with expenditures of in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, and this money will go into the Old Age Pension Fund, for which all liquor revenue was originally destined.

Another $1,000,000 can be saved by the abolition of the Old Age Pension Board. Locally, the work of that body can be done by the Commissioners' Courts, who are much closer to the people to be served by this fund, and who are therefore better qualified to do the work. In Austin, the Comptroller's office can handle the work of the state in meeting out the pensions. Revenue from liquor in this state was earmarked originally for old age pensions—hence, we must see to it that the maximum of revenue from this source is utilized to pay people entitled to the pensions, instead of keeping up a group of persons who needlessly spend money that could otherwise go to those which the people of this state have deemed to be in need of, and entitled to it.

Here, I have already shown how $2,000,000 of taxpayers' money could yearly be better put to work. My study of our present governmental set-up has convinced me that there is a great deal larger amount than this which can be saved, and hence taxpayers can be relieved of a portion of the great burden which they now carry.

A glance at the records show that, over the short period of years from 1915 to 1937, tax receipts of Texas have increased from $14,954,917 to $154,200,031, a fact of which the people of this state are only too well aware. I not only intend to try to keep this amount from increasing, but I will do everything humanly possible to reduce the present figure. There are a great many expenditures now being made which are useless so far as the operating efficiency of the government of the State of Texas is concerned, and it is at these which I will level my guns in Austin. Although my study of the government of our state to this date has been quite extensive, if I am elected, I intend to make a detailed investigation of all state departments in an effort to see to it that all money taken from taxpayers is utilized to the last penny—I want there to be no waste of that money which it is so hard for us all to gain, and of which a large portion is at present being needlessly robbed by a government which is so full of departments, boards and bureaus that there is no efficiency about it anymore.

I am against the proposed legislature of one house, because the experience of those states which have tried it, shows that this virtually amounts to taxation without representation, against which our forefathers of this great nation went to war so many years ago. I believe in a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, and such a plan as this seems to me to be but one step nearer to a dictatorship.

In closing I should like to say that I possess only the virtues and defects of the average man; and that I have studied and know the people of this state and this particular district and their desires and needs so thoroughly that I can well represent them at the seat of their government. I promise that, if I am elected, I will heed the behests of my people, and, forgetting my own personal problems and taking their interests as my guiding star, will make a supreme effort to work best for them in the operation of our glorious state for their benefit and the benefit of Texas as well.

My campaign slogan is "I'm Agin' It," meaning that I'm against anything that raises taxes.

The following letter has been received by me in regards to my campaign:

PICKED UP ALONG THE NEWS PATH

Turning his ever-ready candid camera upon a freight train as it crossed a trestle near Colorado, George Black got a picture which won third place for him in the first of a series of monthly print contests held by the Big Spring Camera club. Prizes were awarded at the club's meeting in Big Spring Friday night.

Two neighbor women of Colorado are said by friends to have worked out a Sunday morning arrangement which, this column believes, is worthy of mention. These two are Mrs. C. E. Way, a Baptist, and Mrs. D. R. Hardison, widow of the late Rev. D.

The town was talking Monday about the sheer good fortune which befell Mr. and Mrs. Bob Langhorne, a pair of new Coloradans, at their former home in Dalhart last week.

The Langhornes, it seems, had decided to buy a new car. Mrs. Langhorne went to Dalhart last week to see about selling their furniture, which has remained in storage most of the time, and applying the proceeds to the cost of a car. While in Dalhart she happened to go to a special picture show where a car was being given away, and—well, when she came out, she was the possessor of a shining new 1938 deluxe model four-door Hudson Terraplane, license paid and everything! The Langhornes and their young son drove the car in Sunday night—that much, at least, was the way they'd planned the trip. And all because Mrs. Langhorne went to a show that cost $1.

You've heard of "birdies" on the golf course? Well, "Shep" Shepperd (he who linytypes at The Record office when he isn't wrestling with par on the golf course), shot a birdie what was a birdie when playing in the Sand Belt golf matches Sunday. His ball landed, of all places, in a bird's nest in a tree on number two. No, you curious-minded golfers, he didn't have to shoot it out of the nest, because winter rules prevailed on the fairways and the judges ruled that the nest overhanging the fairway and therefore the ball could be moved. Neither did he make a real golf "birdie" on that hole, in case you're wondering about that.

Sitting in Ruddick park amphitheater Friday evening while the summer's first amateur hour throng was gathering, this writer had a sudden feeling of town pride and unity that has probably come to many others out there. When you come to think of it, Colorado has no other place and no other time to assemble as a unit. Besides, those park gatherings have an enthusiasm, a relaxation, and a neighborliness which could hardly be achieved within four walls. Families come and bring "the kids" and grandpa. Some sit on the terraces, some on the ground, and there's neighborly talk. Day is over, and the heat and rush and work of it are soothed away by twilight coolness, the green of trees, and the quiet blooming of stars in the open sky. Martial band music, softened by evening air, plucks whatever patriotic chords one may have tucked away. Personally, I don't need band music to make me feel patriotic about Colorado for I just naturally like the town, but I like the way band music marshals that feeling for me. It makes me realize that, in spite of its shortcomings, Colorado must be a pretty good town to have accomplished and be able to appreciate things like Ruddick park amphitheater and its "home talent" programs.

Our apologies go this week to Princess Martin for having the name of her prize-winning poem wrong in last week's issue. This time we just must alibi a little. The mistakes we make are usually our own and nobody else's, unmistakably so, but this time we do have at least the semblance of an excuse. The name of the poem was turned into us as we used it, whereas it should have been "The Ballad of Murland Hill." Incidentally, Princess did not bring this to our attention—a friend of hers did, and we appreciate it. We don't make mistakes because we like to, or because we're contrary—honest we don't—and we are always more than glad to make corrections.

Mention of Colorado cropped up in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram pioneer column again Sunday in a sketch about Mrs. Luther Moss of Mineral Wells. She was, according to the sketch, Jennie Capps of Arkansas, and when she was a little girl her father, Wm. E. Capps, lived on the LA ranch near Colorado from May until December, 1882, having come here by ox wagon. Her memories of seeing herds of wild horses and antelope in this country were recorded in the sketch. On the LA ranch the Capps family lived in a two-room picket house with a dirt floor and sod roof. She recalled one time when they had to flee their home and seek higher ground when Champion creek went on a rampage in the middle of the night. The Capps family moved away from here when Mr. Capps traded his oxen for two broncs, then made the broncs for some land near Vernon, where they subsequently made their home.

practically made Mildred Coleman a grandmother. All because I got mixed on my greats and grands and wrote a story last week about her having entertained for her "grand-nieces" and "grand-nephew," when all the time I meant "great-nieces" and "great-nephew."

When Mrs. J. E. McCleary made her trip to California recently she had some experiences which everyone who tours California would like to have, but which comparatively few attain. She and her son, J. E., of near Andrews, made the trip, you will recall, with Ed Miller of Fort Worth and Lamona and his mother, who lives in Fort Worth. J. E. and Ed knew each other in the University of Oklahoma, and have kept up that friendship. Ed Miller knew a Hollywood girl who had played extra parts in "The Texan," "Robin Hood," and other pictures, and it was she who wangled passes for the group to visit in the movie studios. Mrs. McCleary and the others watched Ann Shirley and Ruby Keeler do a scene from "Mother Carey's Chickens," and Mrs. McCleary met and talked to Ann Shirley, with whom Ed Miller's friend was acquainted. Movie makeup causes the actors to look as if they are about to come down with yellow jaundice, Mrs. McCleary says. The group also saw Richard Dix and Chester Morris in a scene from "Ground Crew." When that picture comes here and you see these two play the scene in which they are supposed to be high in the stratosphere and short on life-giving oxygen, you might remember that Mrs. McCleary saw it in the making, and sure enough they weren't in the stratosphere or even in the air—they were sitting in a studio-built plane with scenery whirling mechanically past them to give the appearance of flying.

It was through another friend of Ed Miller's, this time a girl who knew a girl who was secretary to a power-plant or something similar, that the group obtained passes to the Kraft Music Hall's radio broadcast one night. Tickets to this broadcast cannot be bought, so it takes managing to get in. The Kraft Music Hall broadcast aspires to be nothing but what it is—a radio broadcast, given in a small broadcasting room, Mrs. McCleary says. There is no play to the audience, no ostentation. Bing Crosby comes in the clothes he's been going in that afternoon, and so do some of the others. Bing looked nervous to Mrs. Miller when he sang, but Mrs. McCleary thought he was just "keeping time" instead of shaking. Bob Burns is, surprise of surprises, the nicest looking "regular" on the program—Mrs. McCleary says he dresses well, and is really a rather fine looking man. Isabel Jewel and Basil Rathbone were guests on the Kraft program the night Mrs. McCleary's group was there.

Anything but informal, however, are the radio shows put on when the "Good News of 1938" broadcasts are given from the imposing El Capitan theater stage, Mrs. McCleary says. Robert Young, whom Mrs. McCleary describes as "very, very clean-cut and nice," was master of ceremonies for this program the night the Coloradans were there. Robert Taylor is most of the time, you know. Joan Crawford, described by Mrs. McCleary as "unbelievably thin," was guest artist—maybe you remember hearing her in that broadcast a few Thursday night's ago, the time when she was supposed to be a helpless invalid who had died and whose voice, from the dead, was trying to comfort her nurse and friend about the fullness of the life she had really lived in her imaginary world. The theater was in darkness during this portion of the broadcast, Mrs. McCleary says, only a spotlight being used. Joan Crawford has red hair, and wore a plain print dress that night. Fannie Brité (Baby Snooks to you) doesn't dress the part she plays—she is, in truth, very much nicer looking in person than her pictures make her appear. The group also visited the Al Johnson broadcast, which is done on a scale almost as elaborate as that of the Maxwell House Good News.

The Mystery of the Missing Hat, which kept The Record office in something of a dither Saturday, has been solved, and, much as it hurts, we must admit publicly that we have done wrong by Ralph Lee. But we do so in the full confidence that we will have the sympathetic understanding of all those who are acquainted with Mr. Lee's habits. You see, the boss' hat was gone, and J. Ralph Lee had been in the office—now, we ask you, what would have been your first thought? Well, it was ours, too. Stout denials were forthcoming from Mr. Lee, but his face—plus known facts of his past history—convicted him. Imagine our embarrassment when the hat turned up Monday morning in the possession of Jack Christian, who really had grounds for thinking that he was putting on his own hat when he went out of the office Saturday. The hats were identical, even to size, the only trouble being that Jack Christian had come to town bare-headed in the first place, and forgotten about it. In all friendliness, however, we want to warn J. Ralph Lee to start running if he is ever in the vicinity of a murder for which he could even be remotely

A few changes are to be made in the amateur hour program at Ruddick park Friday night, as you've probably already read. Instead of having the band do all its playing before the amateur numbers begin, those in charge are arranging to have band numbers scattered out through the program. This is designed to give relaxation for both audience and programmers between amateur numbers, and to give the band relaxation while the program numbers are presented. The changes are being made in an effort to make the amateur programs even more to the liking of Colorado and Mitchell county folks, and if you don't like them, H. B. Spence, manager of the chamber of commerce, would like to know about it. He aims to please.

GINGER ROGERS, JAMES STEWART IN TOP ROLES OF HIGH COMEDY, 'VIVACIOUS LADY'

GAY STORY OF BROADWAY BUTTERFLY AND WANDERING PROFESSOR BROUGHT TO SCREEN WITH SPARKLING COMEDY CAST

Co-starring two of the screen's leading favorites, Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, "Vivacious Lady" offers a brilliant and up-to-date romance to film-goers. It is scheduled for the Palace Theatre, Saturday midnight prelude, and Sunday and Monday.

The stormy love affair of a nightclub entertainer and a studious young professor is the theme of this story, the action of which takes place in a sleepy little college town, in whose dignified atmosphere the heroine is astonished to find herself.

Stewart, as the young pedagogue, marries Miss Rogers, the entertainer, after a brief whirlwind courtship in New York City, and takes her back to his father's college. Fearing the stern tongue of his Puritanical father, who is also the president of the college, the boy hesitates to tell his family of the marriage.

Only Stewart's cousin, played by James Ellison, knows the truth, and he loyally tries to help out the couple. A series of complications, fostered by the determination of Stewart's boyhood sweetheart to marry the young man, and by Miss Rogers' growing impatience with her husband's lack of decision, make up the interlocking crises of the story, with many hilarious situations piling high the entertainment values of the picture.

The two stars have strongly colorful roles that give them notable opportunities to display their abilities, and they are given grand support by a hand-picked cast. Ellison is featured as Stewart's playboy cousin, and Charles Coburn and Beulah Bondi as Stewart's parents, Frances Mercer as the "other woman," Phyllis Kennedy as a bored housemaid and Grady Sutton as Stewart's laboratory assistant, all fill prominent roles.

The settings range from the glitter of a Broadway night club to the ivy-clad walls and sedate classrooms of the small-town college. And against these settings the conflict of modern romance with old-fashioned ideals is played in striking fashion. A sparkling modern ballad, "You'll Be Reminded of Me," is sung by Miss Rogers in the night-club sequence. It was written by George Jessel, Jack Meskill and Ted Shapiro.

George Stevens directed this Pandora S. Berman production for RKO Radio; it is based on the magazine story of the same name by I. A. R. Wylie.

Still another in the apparently endless madcap comedy cycle, this, through the weight of a star-studded cast and a brimming load of laughs, should receive more than ordinary patron attention and prove a top money grabber at the turnstiles. Fashioned in the pattern of "My Man Godfrey," the film gets away to a slow start but soon gathers whirlwind speed, which in many respects sets a new high for sheer screwball hilarity and dizziness. The cast is universally competent with the more arresting performances coming from Constance Bennett, Billie Burke and Alan Mowbray. It's all about a wild socialite family and a noted author, whom they think a tramp, who becomes the chauffeur and mentor-general of the menage. Directed by Norman Z. McLeod.

Players are Constance Bennett, Brian Aherne, Alan Mowbray, Ann Dvorak, Billie Burke, Patsy Kelly, Clarence Kolb.

"TORCHY BLANE IN PANAMA"
Ritz—Thursday, June 9

Shot-in-the-arm stuff at best, this bears the unmistakable mark of feeble production. Pointless and improbable, with obvious flaws in plot construction, it is a waning combination of newspaper pursuits, romance and studied humor. Lola Lane fails to impress as a reporter and Paul Kelly's detective role engenders little conviction. Tom Kennedy provides some laughs, but these are far from commensurate with his efforts, some of which are misplaced. A bankholdup and murder gives rise to a boat trip to Panama. The idea was conceived by Miss Lane, after she gets a clue that her romancer, Kelly, misses. Both pursue the assailant amid a welter of quarrels until Miss Lane's deductions prove correct.

Players are Lola Lane, Paul Kelly, Tom Kennedy, Anthony Averill, Larry Williams, Betty Compson.

Ritz—Friday and Saturday

Below standard for the Three Mesquiteers is this effort, smacking faintly of the achievements of the hooded legion. There are some hard-riding scenes, but the story lacks coherence and, as a result, the film suffers from absence of suspense and snappy climax. In this, the trio are called in by a friend to aid the local vigilantes in cleaning up the town. When this has been accomplished, one of the vigilantes seizes upon the idea of forming a gang and cashing in on the idea. The gang starts committing mayhem, throwing the blame on the friend of

No More Fooling

By Lois Bull

The deck-chair brigade clicked their knitting needles and tongues in happy unison as they watched the tall, heavily overcoated, dark-haired man and the tiny, fair-haired girl, with the bright eyes and red lips, coming along the deck. With heads bent toward the rising wind that came with the sinking sun—the news bulletin reported bad weather sweeping up from Cape Hatteras—the two strode arm in arm.

A third figure, lithe but muscular beneath baggy tweeds and a battered trench coat, was striding in the opposite direction. The deck-chair brigade twittered in anticipation. The Menace to Romance was approaching! What would happen?

The two men were formal; the girl delighted, apparently. For she held out her free arm to the second man, and all of them continued their stroll.

The dark young man's smile flashed, hiding his annoyance. "Of course, my dear. You tell him. Soon, of course, the whole ship will know!"

"Ricardo has just asked me to marry him. I was about to say yes—when you interrupted, Mr. Keene. That's why he's scowling so."

"My heartiest congratulations!" But Mr. Keene's smile seemed forced. "I hope you'll forgive my intrusion." And then, gallantly, "The best man always wins."

With that, he bowed and left them. "Ricardo, I do believe he's just a little bit jealous. How jolly!" said the girl.

Ricardo bent toward her. "Let's be married right away, darling. After dinner—the captain. I can't wait until you're really all mine. I'm the one to be jealous."

Judith clung to his arm. "We land

It was lifeboat number seven, upside down, with three survivors on it.

The tall dark man seemed ill at ease as, for the moment, the second monopolized the conversation.

"You can see it's her first voyage," a thin-lipped woman in tweeds remarked.

"It's obvious," sniffed her companion. "She didn't know either of them when she came aboard. Now they're fighting over her. Can't ever be too careful of shipboard acquaintances. A woman, traveling alone..."

If only the deck brigade could have listened in on the conversation of the girl and the two men, how delighted they would have been!

Judith, the girl, was saying: "Ricardo, dear! Don't scowl so. Don't you think we could tell Mr. Keene our little secret?"

Characterized by excellent dramatic handling of a difficult theme—the incorrigible child—this film not only has plenty of entertainment punch but carries a well-told moral to the family trade will insure profitable runs everywhere. Again cast as the child you love to hate, is Bonita Granville, whose characterization, as always, is above reproach. The story, told simply and with much heart appeal, concerns a young girl who, denied the love and affection she needs from her wealthy parents, becomes a problem child and is sent to a school of correction. There, under the handling of an understanding teacher, she develops into a fine girl. Arthur Lubin directed.

tomorrow. Surely you can wait—until then?"

"Please, darling. Let's begin our honeymoon on the ship."

The girl flashed him a smile. "Then go find the Captain. See if he can arrange it. I shall go below to make myself beautiful for the occasion."

But a few moments later, as Judith sat silently on the edge of her stateroom bunk, she didn't look exactly as a girl about to be married should look. And her lips kept saying, over and over, "Tomorrow tomorrow... tomorrow is the day."

That was at five o'clock in the afternoon. At eight-thirty that evening, the second dinner sitting was just beginning on the entree. Within two hours, the whole world knew that, while proceeding toward New York, the S.S. Princess Hestia had been caught in a hurricane off the Virginia Capes and was sinking. That was all that came through before her radio was cut off. A dozen ships within steaming distance hazarded the hurricane zone to hurry to her aid.

What had happened? No one knew. The first stories of the survivors varied. There had been a horrible crash during dinner. Explosion? Fire? Some had seen smoke and flames. Others had not. An assistant engineer, badly burned, told of those trapped in the glory hold of his climbing the emergency exit in a cloud of acrid fumes and leaping clear from the ship as she dove downward at the bow like a huge fish. The toll of the missing was large but, at daylight, all but one of the ship's lifeboats had been found, filled to capacity.

Lifeboat No. 7 continued to be missing. A deck officer recalled seeing number seven swing off the davits. Had it tipped? Possibly. He'd been too busy helping launch number nine to watch number seven over the side once she'd swung clear.

Two days later, oars and part of the kit from number seven were found drifting off shore below Norfolk. Three days after that, a Coast Guard cutter off Charleston sighted a drifting object. Steaming toward it, they saw it must be lifeboat number seven, upside down, with three survivors on top of it.

Bound to the overturned keel by a rope through the oar locks, lay one man. The two other survivors were signaling feebly. How had they managed to stay atop the overturned lifeboat for five days? A rescue launch from the cutter ran alongside. And then the rescuers saw. The rope holding the first man had been passed through the straps of the life preservers of the other two.

It was a matter of minutes for the launch's crew to cut the trio loose—two of them shaggy with beards, the third a young boy wearing a huge overcoat. All were sunken-eyed and hollow-cheeked.

As the three were taken aboard the cutter, the tallest one stood erect, with a pathetic attempt at a salute to the captain, and said: "Investigator John Keene reporting, sir. Bringing in Ricardo Santoso, wanted for the murders of Trudie Abrams, Dorothy Cartwell and Beatrice Angerson, former wives of the accused whose estates he confiscated."

With that, he collapsed. "The young boy was struggling out of the great coat. And suddenly, the captain saw that it was a girl standing before him. An evening gown beneath her coat hung in sodden tatters.

"Operative Judith Haslett reporting, sir. Missing bonds from the Angerson estate are in a waterproof skin sewed to the lining of this coat, which belongs to the accused."

Then, with a sob, she knelt beside the prostrate Keene.

"John, darling. Now you understand why I couldn't let you tell me that you loved me, and couldn't say how much I loved you. How could I tell you? We were both out to catch the same man!"

John Keene's eyes opened slowly. He smiled wanly.

"I might have guessed if I hadn't been so dumb. I thought you really loved him—that he had fooled you just as he had those other poor girls."

"No—this time it was a girl who fooled him—and you, too, unfortunately. I must have done a good job..."

John grinned. "No more fooling—ever again. Promise." He kissed him. He smiled. "You don't need to promise. I can tell."

brakes may stop the wheels, the tires must stop the car. When that small amount of rubber is worn smooth, chance of stopping quickly is poor.

"When getting cars checked over for holiday driving, motorists should by all means see that tires are in good condition. By so doing they may avoid not only inconvenient stops along the roadside, but possible danger of accident as well."

GOODYEAR TIRE DEALERS RECOMMEND TIRE CHECK

The vacation season is here and, as usual, many local motorists are going to suddenly awaken to the fact a day or so before they plan to take a lengthy trip that their cars need considerable service work or need new tires, before holiday driving is safe, according to Thomas Bros. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company dealer.

"It happens every year," said Luke Thomas. "Motorists put off until the last minute the very necessary job of having their cars checked over after the winter season. There are many items that should be attended to before a holiday trip is attempted."

"Of prime importance is a check on tires," he continued. "If tires have worn thin during the winter, they should by all means be replaced before any trips are taken. Roads are beginning to get warm, and heat is the greatest enemy of tire life. Naturally an old, worn tire is far more susceptible to failure after it gets hot than is a brand new one with thick tread rubber giving protection."

"While danger of icy roads is past, there will still be plenty of rain, and a smooth tire on a wet, slippery road can cause plenty of trouble, especially if brakes must be applied quickly. Sharp, gripping tread designs, such as those found in the Goodyear tires we handle, give utmost protection against skidding. After all, motorists should remember that while

LIONS CLUBS AND BOY SCOUTS WORK TOGETHER BUILDING BETTER CITIZENS

By Dr. James E. West

Chief Scout Executive, Boy Scouts of America, and Editor of "Boys' Life"

The Lions Clubs and the Boy Scouts of America have a common interest. Both are very definitely concerned with the welfare and progress of our nation. We in Scouting are grateful that in your work in behalf of boys you have promoted the program of the Boy Scouts of America. You made fine progress in 1937. Our records at the close of the year show that 697 Boy Scout Troops and Sea Scout Ships from coast to coast owe their existence and accomplishments to the Lions Clubs which have actively and intelligently sponsored them. This is a net gain of 58 Troops in 1937.

There is an increased activity in Cubbing. This increasingly popular program for younger boys was launched within the decade. The program was designed especially by outstanding educators and specialists to meet the needs, interests and circumstances of boys 9, 10 and 11 years of age who "graduate" on their twelfth birthdays into Boy Scout Troops. Lions Clubs now sponsor 43 Cub Packs, showing a net gain of thirteen Packs in 1937.

We are not greatly concerned with the kinds of service rendered or the practical help which results from these "good turns." It is the educational value of the "daily good turn" which concerns us and the organized Patrol and Troop service which comes to every Scout in a properly maintained Troop program.

The True Spirit of Service

Every time a boy is led to do something for somebody else in the spirit of service, because of that service he becomes capable of doing a little bit more. He develops an inclination to be thoughtful of others.

The Scout Oath and Law is the fundamental factor in the program from which springs the boy's attitude of mind and his habits of conduct. Character development, after all, is primarily the result of habit, and habit is the result of influence, instruction and activity.

Our 28 years' record shows a wealth of services rendered by Scouts in behalf of their fellow man. In the California floods of March, 1938, as in every national catastrophe since the Ohio and Indiana floods of 1913, Boy Scouts have demonstrated again and again their usefulness under trying circumstances. Floods, tornadoes, earthquakes, explosions and other disasters have brought hardships to hundreds and thousands. Quietly and efficiently Boy Scouts have entered into each emergency with every type of needed service.

It is nothing short of amazing what Boy Scouts, properly trained, can do at a time when their services are sorely needed. The Red Cross and officials in charge of relief work have testified time and time again how Scouts can be depended upon no matter how serious the situation may be.

Dependable in Every Emergency

When disaster strikes, it is gratifying to find thousands of Boy Scouts, far from the scenes of desolation, immediately at work collecting food and clothing, and helping agencies like the Red Cross and Salvation Army in countless ways.

Scouts are performing "good turns" every day. We are not surprised any more to hear the recipient of some small service say, "I'll bet you're a Boy Scout."

We are rightfully proud of another type of Scout service. Perhaps it is the greatest service one can render—saving the lives of those in peril. In the last 28 years our National Court of Honor has recognized the deeds of 2,108 Scouts who saved the lives of others at great risk to themselves.

The 17 Scouts who were awarded Gold Honor Medals in 1937 rescued 24 persons.

Valuable Training for Youth

All nations are giving increasing attention to the training of youth. Their role in the future of the world is recognized today. Dictators have decreed the forms of their training so that dictatorships may be continued. Communists and Fascists are trying to pull young people away from the ideals and methods of democracy. American boys need understanding of American traditions to help them stand on their own feet, when approached by those who would supplant our democracy.

There never was a time when strength of character in youth was as important as it is today.

Lions Clubs have been generous in their support of Scouting. We'd do I remember, as I addressed your Ninth Annual Convention at Cedar Point, Ohio, in 1925 and asked how many in the audience had been connected with the Boy Scouts of America as a Scout, a Scoutmaster, a Troop Committeeman, a local Council member or as a contributor, practically every delegate indicated that he had been active and participating in some way.

Lions Train 15,000 Scouts

Your support has increased through the years. Today Lions clubs make it possible for 15,000 boys to be Cubs, Scouts and Senior Scouts in the Packs and Troops under your leadership. These boys are affiliated with the largest movement for boys the world has ever seen. In the 49 countries that have Boy Scout Movements today, all of them adhering to the same high principles as Scouting in the United States, there are now 2,812,074 boys and leaders living under the Scout Oath and Law, and the accumulated membership of three decades since Lord Baden-Powell gave the world this wonder program for the boys of all nations, is in excess of 15,000,000 men and boys.

Our Scout Oath reads:

- On my Honor I will do my best:
- 1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law;
- 2. To help other people at all times;
- 3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

Here are some of the things Lions Clubs are doing to make it possible for American boys to live up to that creed. Your clubs provide meeting places for Scout Troops, donate equipment and assist in establishing, maintaining and improving Boy Scout camps. You are making it possible for deserving boys to have some form of camping experience under adequate supervision and under conditions that contribute to their health and social development. Some of your clubs have established Troops for blind boys.

Lions Always Help the Scouts

Lions Club members, in their efforts to make the Scouting experience a high point in the lives of these growing lads, have participated in the planning and management of Boy Scout circuses, Merit Badge shows, and camporees. All of these activities bring great joy to boys, giving them a chance to put into use the skills they have learned in their Troops.

There are 536 Local Councils chartered annually by our National Council. Your Lions Clubs have contributed a great deal to the work of these local Councils. I am told that in 1937 members of Lions Clubs furnished the manpower in 122 campaigns for funds to maintain the local Scout Council, and 223 Lions Clubs made contributions to such campaigns. The Lions Clubs in several instances came to the rescue and helped pay the salaries of local Scout Executives in times of great difficulty, that the work need not be curtailed. We are most grateful for this help from the Lions.

In twenty-eight years 7,858,931 boys and men have been active in Scouting in America. We have abundant evidence that their Scouting experience has played a vital part in the lives of hundreds of thousands of young men. If we are going to reach more American boys and train them to assume the responsibilities of participating citizenship in the years ahead, we must have more new Troops and more man power and more financial resources.

Troops Are Needed Everywhere

There are ample opportunities for Lions Clubs in the smaller cities to create Troops among less-chance boys. Some people think there are no slums in smaller communities. Virtually every town has some boys living "across the tracks" or "down by the river." There are opportunities for service by making Lion-sponsored Cub Packs, Scout Troops and Senior Scout groups available to boys of immigrant parents in the industrial centers, and among Negroes and whites in the rural areas. Out there in the "open country" in communities of less than one thousand population is our greatest need and opportunity, for there we are reaching but 9.2 per cent of the boys becoming twelve years old.

To the above article this writer would like to also say:

What should prove to be a valuable source of supply in youth leadership has been selected for development by the national council, Boy Scouts of America, starting this year. At a conference of 2,000 leaders held in Cleveland it was decided to extend the efforts of the organization into areas where the scout organization is yet to exert its full influence, which means in its best interpretation, the rural district, where 60 per cent of the boy population of the Nation is to be found.

The underprivileged of congested areas have already come to the attention of many local councils of this boy organization and now boys of the country who are also underprivileged, not because of congestion and poverty that is a marching mate of congestion but because of isolation, are up for attention.

Seeking potential leadership, the council conferees are extending their activities in the right direction. Many great national leaders have sprung from a farm background and all of the professions made richer from this source. But most of the leaders who have come from the land have made progress by their own efforts and without practical training in leadership.

At the Cleveland conference, Wheeler McMillen, editorial director of Country Home Magazine, pointed out that 80 per cent of country boys belong to no free-time program or organization of any kind that can supplement their training in school, church and home. Although Mr. McMillen said that a fine beginning has been made in farm boy training by such groups as the 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America, Juvenile Grange, Junior Farm Bureau and even the scouts, he contends the direction of farm youth by organizations thus far is "painfully inadequate." He concluded by saying that the scouting movement must be rural if it is to be truly national in scope, which is quite apparent in view of the fact that considerably more than half of the boy population is found in districts that are termed rural and that so few of them are scouts.

True enough, the details of organizing farm scout troops may be more difficult because of the comparative isolation of eligible individuals and the rural expansion may not be expected to keep pace with development in cities. Nevertheless, the present all-time high membership of 1,200,000 Boy Scouts in this country is capable of wide expansion if, as and when scouting is made as attractive to farm boys as it has been these many years to boys of towns and cities. And it will do as much if not more good.

THE SCHOOL BUS

A school election was held here Saturday simultaneously with Elizabeth Grove to determine whether to consolidate the two districts. Savoy without a dissenting vote invited the consolidation while Elizabeth Grove voted to come in, and it now becomes a part of the Savoy district.—Savoy Star.

The consolidated school will give advantages perhaps not possible to either school singly. For one thing, no doubt, there will be a free bus to bring the Grove children to Savoy and take them back again—not that Savoy wouldn't be glad to keep them but that their parents will be looking for them to come home after school. We envy those who ride back and forth to school in a free bus. We had to walk, through rain, sleet, snow and hail. No wonder we didn't learn much. It took us all morning to dry out. However, the school bus is performing less than its duty in the way of service. Being a great hand for thinking we have thought up a way whereby to make the school bus useful in vacation time. It should be employed in giving the teachers excursion trips to summer resorts. The principal at each school should be the driver, the teachers the only passengers. The school board should furnish the gasoline and oil, the air and the water. Naturally, the passengers would expect to supply their own hamburgers. Some parents might want their children to go along on the excursion trips, but it should not be allowed, no matter how heavy the political pressure. Parents shouldn't expect to get rid of their children all the year around. What do you think of this suggestion? Isn't it real good?

ROGERS RAMBLINGS

My high resolve: Peace and power. I will move forward in power of quietness. God is all about me. He protects and guards me. He enfolds me in His love and power. No harm can befall me. I am at rest in His unfailing care. Yesterday I leave with Him. Today He is guiding me. Tomorrow He is crowding full of blessing and opportunities of service so I have only cause for peace and expectancy. Therefore I rejoice. I am safe. I am His precious child. All is well O Father—teach me how to remain a little child in spirit. I am resting in Thee. Thy power undergirds me. Peace and power are mine in Thee. I am triumphant. I am happy. I rejoice.

To live nobly, energetically, up to one's best, and yet without worry is one of the highest attainments possible.

Sunday school Sunday as most everyone of this community attended the singing convention at Cuthbert Sunday. Everyone reported a nice time, good singing and plenty to eat at Cuthbert Sunday and it is understood that the next quarterly convention will meet here at Rogers the first Sunday in September.

Golden Text—Not what I will but what thou wilt.—Mark 14:36. Let us all go to Sunday school next Sunday with our lesson prepared for Sunday, June the 12.

Our singing class is still going fine. We had a large crowd out including visitors last Sunday night. We are always proud for visitors to come for it makes us feel like our singing class is worthwhile. Two quartets were sung, one by the girls and one by the men, and it was hard to tell who sang the best. But anyway we want you quartet people to give us more quartets.

Rev. T. A. Patterson preached for us here at Rogers last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock and brought us a wonderful message and was enjoyed by all who heard him. Bro Patterson will preach for us every first Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

These of this community that accompanied the Cuthbert school bus crowd to Carlsbad Cavern in New Mexico were Misses Eula May Smallwood and Pauline Robison. They reported as having a nice time and an enjoyable trip.

Wash day is play day to her! The reason is simple: Her home has a gas-automatic hot water service. This gives her, without waiting, all the hot water she needs to make creamy suds for her play-washing. But whether a play-washing or a real one for a big family, plenty of hot water is needed. Learn the luxury of doing good. He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more excellent who can suit his temper to any circumstances.

Think healthful, happy, cheerful, youthful thoughts. Your bodies are largely changed every two years. Every cell is stamped by your thought life. So you can stay fresh, young, happy, healthful and successful if you studiously think right.

Pleasures waste the spirits more than pain. Therefore the latter can be endured longer, and in greater degree than the former.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday school at 10 a.m.
Preaching services by the pastor at 11 a.m. and 8:30 p.m.

We take this opportunity to invite you to be in your places on next Sunday morning for both your Sunday school and church. We would like so much for you to be there and we will be looking for you. You will never know the disappointment to us if you should fail us at this time. This is to all who will and can come.

May God bless you all in His prayer.

REV. R. B. WALDEN.

Several prayers were offered at intervals.

Following the program an interesting Bible contest was conducted by Mrs. H. L. May, after which a refreshment plate was served to 25 ladies.

WESTBROOK METHODIST CHURCH

To take up the thought again of going to church and the importance of it.

Let's think for a little while what it must mean to the church and what it will mean in days and years to come if we fail to raise our children to be church-going children.

lasting impression on them. Or you may say that your child has to sow its wild oats. But don't forget that we also have to reap and if we sow corruption we shall reap corruption. But if we sow to the Spirit we shall reap joy, peace, happiness, and a useful life. But you may say that you do not like the preacher. Then that is a good sign that your children will also have a dislike for him. So one of the best ways for you to help your child is to point out the good things you may see in your preacher and say nothing about the little things that after all do not amount to so much. Of course we all may feel our weakness and our inefficiency for the great task before us and many times we fail to do because that you will not cooperate in the work. So if your preacher preaches just a few minutes overtime don't criticize him for it for if you do your child will not want to go any more because the old preacher will preach too long. You should be very careful as to how you speak about the preacher before your kiddies.

It is a sad thing that the devil has his traps set with easy chairs and you will hear them say that it is so cool and comfortable in the theaters and places where we may be amused for a couple of hours without becoming the least worried except that it did not last as long as you thought it should. Then why don't you get busy and make your church more comfortable and a place where your children will enjoy going. So come on now let's be good sports and work together for the Kingdom of God. "I gave my life for thee. What hast thou given for me." Does this mean anything to you.

A friend and pastor,
R. B. WALDEN.

All the girls near Westbrook are urged to come and join.

SENIOR TRIP

The Westbrook Seniors left at 12:30 Saturday, May 21, on their final jaunt together. They had bus trouble in Coahoma, Big Spring, Monahans and Pecos, finally getting to Pecos about 9 o'clock p.m. They all piled out and went to see "Kentucky Moonshine." Then they returned to the bus to go to Red Bluff dam. They found that the bus was not fixed and would not be all night. Then they put their cots down on a used car lot on the main street of Pecos and slept the rest of the night. The next morning they went by Red Bluff Dam and on to Carlsbad where they went through the cavern.

Going to the city of Carlsbad Sunday night most of the group went swimming. Some of them went to see "Jezebel" at the local theatre, some went to a ball game, some went to bed, and others "sensibly" went to bed. Monday morning they started to El Paso. After about 4 1/2 hours bus trouble they reached El Paso in time to get a camp before bedtime. During this time they saw El Capitan, the highest point in Texas, the old Butterfield trail and other interesting sights.

Tuesday morning the group "took in" El Paso and Juarez. They went over the El Paso scenic drive, climbed one of the mountains, went to the College of Mines and Woolworth. Then they went to Juarez where everyone bought souvenirs, postcards and visited places of interest. Some of the group went through the old missions and the jail which proved to be worth the money they paid to see it. About 2 o'clock Tuesday they started home.

It was put to a vote whether or not to go through the Davis mountains. They voted to go home. Just out of El Paso one of the tires blew out. They were held up about two hours. They got as far as Kent Tuesday and stayed all night there.

About 3:30 Wednesday the group reached home just before the rain and hail. Everyone had a grand time and the group was tired and happy. Happy because they were home and sad because it was the last get-together of the Seniors of '38.

the Hesperian club and otherwise took an active part in civic, social, and church affairs. She and Judge Bounds moved from here to Marlin in 1907, and from Marlin to Fort Worth in 1919. Judge Bounds died there October 18, 1936.

Mrs. Bounds was elected treasurer of the Texas division of the U.D.C. in 1917, and served four years during the administration of Mrs. Oscar Barthold of Fort Worth, who was president of the division. Mrs. Barthold is the author of the Southern magazine article on Mrs. Bounds.

In one place in her article Mrs. Barthold wrote: "With pleasure the writer recalls a talk with a distinguished judge of West Texas several years ago. Mrs. Bounds had just closed a beautiful address before a large audience composed of Confederate veterans, sons of Confederate veterans, and daughters of the confederacy when the judge said: 'What are we raising in our schools and colleges for future citizenship of Texas to take the place of such, marvelous women as the speaker? I fear for the South when cultured, refined Christian women like Mrs. Bounds shall have answered the call to a higher service. To my mind... the girls of today will never acquire the elegance, poise, and social charm of daughters of the Old South.'"

From 1922 until 1924 Mrs. Bounds was president of the Texas division. Her slogan was "Educate" and in line with this the 1924 Texas Division Loan Scholarship fund was launched, to be awarded to students of Confederate lineage who are working their way through college. When she went out of office as president in 1924, Mrs. Bounds was made chairman of education, and under her guidance the loan fund was increased to $2,500.

As a reward for her work she was made fund director for life. A long illness later forced her to resign this post.

At the state meeting in Brenham in October, 1936, the name of the fund was changed to the Julia Brewer Bounds Loan fund to honor Mrs. Bounds. To further honor her, her little granddaughter, Earl Bounds Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Powell of Stanton, was named as division mascot. The child is also the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lay Powell of Colorado.

Mrs. Bounds is a life member of the executive board of the Texas division of the U.D.C. She has also held various offices in the D. A. R. at Fort Worth. She served for eight years on the state board of control for the Juvenile Training school at Gatesville, having been appointed by Gov. C. B. Colquitt. She engaged in Stone Mountain Memorial work in Texas in 1929, and she was on the Texas Centennial advisory board in 1936.

She was organizing regent for the Willis A. Brewer chapter, Daughters of 1812, in Ft. Worth, and is honorary life president of the chapter, which is named for her grandfather. Before going to Fort Worth she was a charter member of the John M. Jolly chapter, U.D.C., in Marlin and held every office therein.

For 50 years she has been an ardent member of the Baptist church—and therein lies another connecting link with Colorado and West Texas, for she was baptized in the Colorado river.

THE COLORADO THAT USED TO BE 25 Years Ago 15 Years Ago

25 YEARS AGO

From The Record for June 13, 1913 Colorado's baseball team had taken four games out of six that week, the Colorado team including Lovelace, Majors, Jenkins, Bodine, Farrar, Dobbs, Wulfjen, Cooper, Bennett, and Cooksey.

An editorial read like this: "The spirit of brotherhood is spreading abroad over all the earth. While nations are arming and preparing for war, yet the leading representatives of the different governments are advocating peace... urging the establishment of a central system of authority, or a board of control..."

R. E. Dolman was to teach a cotton buyers' school in Fort Worth. Plainview news reported a tacky party at the G. B. Copeland's on Friday night, with Mr. Harvey and Miss Rosie Leach winning the prize. The city council had granted Mrs. Cooksey's request that water used for sprinkling the streets be reduced from 10 cents to 5 cents. "Is it right to advertise Coca Cola?" asked an editorial, which went on to say that the religious press had been attacked for such advertisements.

Howard Cooper, who had a good job with the Southern Pacific railway in San Francisco, Calif., was here on a visit. Mrs. C. C. Blandford, Nora Blandford, and Miss Pauline Hargitt of Arlington were visiting here that week.

Prentiss Jeffress had been over from Roscoe to visit home folks. Lucille Daniels of El Paso had spent Friday with Nell Ruth Arnett. Harry Landers, Jr., was on a trip to Stanton and Lamesa. J. F. McGill and family had gone to visit their old home in Alabama. C. C. Blandford had been visiting friends here.

Leonard Simon had been punching cows at Toyah and other western points. Mrs. H. B. Broadhus had measles. A picnic honoring Miss Blandford and her guest from Arlington had been chaperoned to Seven Wells by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Whipkey.

15 YEARS AGO

From The Record for June 8, 1923 "Storm cellars were being dug after the destructive cyclone which had struck southern Mitchell county on May 14, leaving more than 20 dead."

Mitchell county's cooperation with the Red Cross in storm rehabilitation work was praised. Two more storm victims had died, raising the death toll to 27. The two were Tommie Shelton, 14, whose mother, Mrs. S. W. Shelton, had died a few days after the storm, and little Mavis Gilliam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Gilliam of Westbrook.

The new Colorado river bridge on West Second street was to be opened June 25, according to F. F. Dubose, resident engineer. A new plant was being built at Buford by the Farmers Gin company.

County Judge J. C. Hall was home from a busy week in Austin. New Essex coaches had been bought by Jim Davis, A. L. Whipkey, and Byron Bryant.

Loraine items recorded that Chas. Brazil was home from Metropolitan Business college in Fort Worth. That Bessie Hendricks had had her tonsils out. That Mrs. Hall Hooker had had surgery for appendicitis. With a Mae Murray picture (Pascination) heading the bill, the 1921 Study club was to present a special program at the Palace theater on Thursday and Friday nights. P. K.
