

CHECKING FARMS FOR 1938 COMPLIANCE TO BE STARTED JUNE 20

TWENTY-FIVE SUPERVISORS BEING NAMED FOR WORK BY COUNTY AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE

Twenty-five supervisors are being appointed by the Mitchell county agricultural conservation committee to start checking farms of the county for compliance with the government's 1938 farm program on June 20, according to John Mogford, agricultural adjustment assistant in the office of B. J. Baskin, county agent.

The supervisor in each community is to be a resident of that community, Mogford says, and his purpose in visiting a farm will be to help the farmer establish correctly an exact reproduction on the aerial map of how his farm is planted. It is the farmer's responsibility to check with the supervisor while he is at the farm and see that the farm's aerial map is turned in correctly.

Those farmers who have lost cotton on their allotted acreage through sand, wind, insects, or drought and who have replanted feed on the lost acreage are advised to have the supervisor designate on their aerial map the exact acreage originally planted to cotton but now turned back to feed so that they may be paid on full cotton acreage.

Farms are being checked early, Mogford explains, because the farmer cannot market his cotton until he receives a marketing quota based on his compliance. Quota for the farmer complying fully with the government's program is all the cotton he can raise on his allotted acreage. Quota for the farmer not complying with the program will be his allotted acreage times his base yield. All raised in excess of this amount will be taxed two cents per pound.

ANDERSON-PRICHARD BUYING NEW LEASES TO ASSURE SUPPLY

PRODUCING LEASES BEING BOUGHT IN MIDLAND'S OIL TERRITORY

New producing leases are being purchased in the Midland territory by the Anderson-Prichard Oil corporation with a view to assuring constant supply of crude oil for the corporation's Col-Tex refinery here, according to the following oil item which appeared recently in the Midland Reporter-Telegram:

"Anderson-Prichard Oil Corporation, Oklahoma City firm, today announced that, through its Midland office, it had purchased another producing lease in the McCamey pool of Upton county. Lease acquired was the southeast 160 acres of section 15, block 3, M. K. & T. survey, Joseph H. Sherk fee.

"There is one producing well on the lease, the Falcone & Smith No. 1 J. H. Sherk, which was completed for an initial of 1,146 barrels a day on pump after acidizing with 2,000 gallons. It topped pay at 2,633 and is bottomed at 2,669 feet.

"The Oklahoma company closed the deal with Dan Easter, of Fort Worth, N. Z. Falcone and Selwyn S. Smith, both of McCamey, paying them $27,500 in cash, with an additional $25,000 to be paid out of one-eighth of the oil as produced.

"Anderson-Prichard recently bought the Harve Nolan and Oxford Oil Company leases in the McCamey pool. Mr. W. R. Jarrett, chief of the West Texas and New Mexico district at Midland for the company, stated that Anderson-Prichard is augmenting its production in this area with a view to assuring constant supply for the Col-Tex refinery, which it operates at Colorado, Tex."

MANGLED BODIES OF CLYDE STORM DEAD 'TOO HORRIBLE FOR DESCRIPTION' SAYS A. D. KIKER, WHO HELPED PREPARE THEM

"Too horrible for description... That is the way in which A. D. Kiker, Colorado undertaker, spoke of the things he saw in the storm-broken little town of Clyde Friday night and Saturday morning.

Responding to telephone calls for help from his brother of the Kiker-Knight funeral home in Abilene and L. F. Patterson, Clyde undertaker, Kiker took one of his ambulances and went to Clyde soon after the storm struck Friday night. He spent the night making ambulance trips between Abilene and Clyde—only they were hearse trips rather than ambulance, for he carried the dead.

The detachment which those who work with the bodies of the dead must develop was absent from the Kiker's manner when spoke of his work with the Clyde storm victims.

"I've never seen anything like it," he said. "In fact, I didn't know that human bodies could be so mangled and torn in the space of such a few minutes. Their flesh was beaten to a pulp. Arms and legs had been twisted off. We had to go back to Clyde when morning came and look for two missing legs. We found them about a half a mile or more from where the bodies had been lying."

Five of the storm dead were prepared by Kiker-Knight, so the Colorado man had a good opportunity for observing what the storm had wrought on its victims.

One startling thing he noticed was that every victim with which he dealt was scalped. In some instances the scalp was not completely torn away, but always it had been loosened. While searching for the missing legs Saturday morning he happened to see a dead rabbit. It, too, had been scalped.

Clyde was in darkness except for the wavering lights of lanterns, lamps, and candles when Kiker got there, he says. He was so busy with the work of hauling away the dead that he had little time to notice what the storm had done to the town until next morning.

In all cases where it was possible the undertakers prepared the bodies so that caskets could be opened at the funeral, Kiker says, but in several instances it was impossible to put them into human shape again.

Kiker has prepared many train-ground bodies for burial, and has worked with bodies in advanced stages of decomposition, but he says nothing he has ever had to do affected him as did his experiences

DONATIONS WILL BE RECEIVED HERE FOR STORM-TORN CLYDE

If any town in this area of West Texas should go to the aid of storm-torn Clyde more than another, then that town would be Colorado, which was fighting its way out of a similar catastrophe at this time 15 years ago.

This sentiment has been voiced by Coloradans time and again since the storm swept down on Clyde last Friday night, leaving at least 14 dead or seriously injured and destroying scores of homes.

Believing that many citizens of Colorado and vicinity would like to donate their bit toward helping Clyde if they had a place to make donations, The Record office and the Mitchell county welfare office in charge of Mrs. Bonnie Burt are undertaking to fulfill this need.

Plans are being made to send some sort of donation from Colorado to Clyde Saturday morning.

Remember Colorado as she was 15 years ago. Remember the money which poured from everywhere when news of our disaster spread. Remember at this, and bring your donation to The Record office or to Mrs. Burt at the welfare office. Do it before Saturday morning if you can.

An audience of around 4,000 Mitchell countians gave their heartiest applause to the offering of 9-year-old Joan Hamilton at the second weekly amateur hour program of the Colorado chamber of commerce in Ruddy park amphitheater Friday night.

POSSIBILITIES OF CHEESE PLANT FOR COUNTY DISCUSSED

MEETING OF FARMERS AND BUSINESS MEN HELD AT COURTHOUSE SATURDAY

Possibilities of a cheese plant in Mitchell county, should such be established, were analyzed at a meeting of farmers and other business men at the courthouse in Colorado Saturday afternoon.

Judge J. C. Hall and Alonzo Phillips, both of Loraine, took the lead in the discussions. They have visited plants in Plainview, Haskell, and other points, and have worked up considerable data on the proposed project. H. B. Spence, manager of the Colorado chamber of commerce, presided over the meeting by request. Hall and Phillips have held several meetings on the plant in eastern Mitchell county.

It was pointed out at the meeting that if a cheese plant is established in Mitchell county its territory will probably take in several surrounding counties. The plant would be operated on a cooperative basis. Sponsors estimate that at least 700 farmers would have to take stock to launch the plant.

C. E. Bowles, A. & M. extension worker, is to lecture on cheese plant possibilities and problems at the theater building in Loraine Thursday, it was announced.

COUNCIL VOTES ON MATTER IN RESPONSE TO REQUEST PLACED BEFORE BODY BY C OF C GROUP

Following a suggestion laid before them by a Colorado chamber of commerce committee at council meeting Monday night, the city council has authorized Roy Buchanan, city engineer, to draw up a skeleton project asking WPA help in paving Colorado's residential streets.

The chamber committee appearing before the council included Dr. Oscar Rhode, Dr. R. D. Bridgford, and L. J. Taylor.

Mayor J. A. Sadler and other members of the city council pointed out after the meeting that this does not mean that Colorado residents will be forced to take part in a paving movement, but the council does feel that those citizens desiring pavement should be given an opportunity to secure it under the WPA plan now being used in a number of towns.

Under this plan streets are paved, curbed, and guttered at a cost of about $1.15 per front foot of the property owner. The cost of the Colorado's other residential streets were paved was between $6 and $7 per foot.

If the project is approved by the WPA, paving will be done as units are formed by property owners. The city is to furnish equipment for the work and sponsor the project. Buchanan was instructed to start work on the skeleton project at once.

Twelve tables, each table representing a month of the year, were arranged in the hut. Those attending sat at the table representing the month of their birth, and each one brought a penny for each year. More than $66 was raised, the money to be used in making parsonage repairs and improvements. Mrs. J. A. Ferguson was general chairman for the occasion, and the Rev. C. E. Jameson, church pastor, was master of ceremonies. Each table presented a stunt.

Mrs. W. W. Rhode had charge of the January table, which stood under a "Happy New Year" sign and which was centered with a New Year "baby" figure. Noise-making and singing of "Happy New Year" were the stunts offered by this table.

Lincoln's log cabin home and several flags decorated the February table, where Mrs. L. B. Elliott presided. J. L. Pidgeon and R. P. Rose gave an instrumental number with Mary Elizabeth Pidgeon accompanying.

The March table was in charge of Mrs. Eddie Pyland. A green and white color scheme and Irish symbols were used here, and the stunt was an Irish song by Mrs. Chas. Spikes.

Centerpiece of the April table was a miniature garden being drawn along by Easter rabbits. Umbrellas were placed favors. April fool numbers were given by a "silent" quartet composed of Eddie Pyland, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bennett, and Mrs. Roy Dozier, with Porter Richardson as director and Mrs. J. I. A wedding bell hung over the table.

Flags were in evidence at Mrs. C. C. Thompson's July table. Sparklers were displayed in darkness as this table's stunt.

Carrying out the picnic and travel idea, a tiny wayside park, with rocks and rustic benches, was arranged at the August table, where Mrs. H. C. Hicks had charge. Those seated at this table had brought their lunch in paper bags. Carolyn Ray Womack gave a song and dance number.

Japanese lanterns and Japanese parasols decorated the September table. Mrs. Oscar Majors had charge. Mrs. J. V. Glover read a comic take-off on a pre-school examination, and J. Ralph Lee read an essay on cats.

October's table, presided over by Mrs. L. A. Costin, was arranged to represent Halloween, with black cats and witches and jack o'lanterns in evidence. Hazel Grubbs sang "Shadows on the Moon" and was accompanied by Elizabeth Pidgeon.

Soldier figures and a centerpiece of flags adorned the November table, where Mrs. W. J. Manly presided. Those at this table sang "There's a Long, Long Trail Awaiting" and J. A. Ferguson sang taps.

A lighted Christmas tree centered the December table arranged by Mrs. Ed Richardson. The group sang "Jingle Bells" and Mrs. J. G. Merritt read "Twas the Night Before Christmas." Clyde Young played the part of Santa Claus and distributed gifts.

At each table a menu in keeping with the month represented was served. Out-of-town guests for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Baker of Abilene, Mrs. Mike Smith of Sweetwater, Mrs. Vance Phenix of Houston, and Mrs. Nig Grindstaff of Rotan.

TODAY'S PICTURE STORY--MODERN EAST AND WEST

1. Up-to-date express liners, like the Queen Mary, provide air conditioning with stream-lined luxury and speed. 2. Here's a brand new dish which delights guests at the Worth, in Fort Worth. Modern devices open new fields to culinary art—even for skilled chefs. 3. How'd you like to "unlax" in a chair like this modern Radio Clubber. It has a broadcast receiver, telephone, cigar lighter, lumbar, beverage bar, bridge table, etc.—all conveniences for an all-day stay. 4. Here's West Texas modern hotel—the WORTH in Fort Worth. On the highway to and from all points west, it dispenses the peculiar brand of hospitality that regular folks like—tasteful food, all modern conveniences, including silent air conditioning—with ingratiating and appealing simplicity. 5. Now, from all quarters of the compass come modern air conditioned streamliners of the rails—into Fort Worth—these miracles of our wonder age. 6. But we'll always have the "refreshing beauty and rough glamour of the western plains, Home on the Range and all the other lasting traditions. 7. There's new interest in breakfast where air conditioning adds to comfort. 8. The joy of "dining out" is greatly increased in this air conditioned room at the WORTH Hotel. Superb food is the first of Manager Jack Farrell's requirements for his guests. 9. If you've never seen what makes the wheels go 'round in scientifically cooling a modern hotel—here it is. This is a typical compressor which makes resort weather on summer's hottest days.

Farmers, ranchmen, and 4-H club boys to the number of 7,324 have banded together into cooperative game management associations in 54 counties. The associations run in size from two or three farms to more than fifty parcels of land. In some instances these areas involve an entire community and are com-rules, Callender said. The first step is to make an inventory of the various species of game and their abundance, and to take steps to increase the game. This is accomplished to some extent through artificial restocking, but the main improvement follows: the provision of food and shelter, protection from natural enemies, and by restricted hunting.

Game management research has established the fact that game will not increase beyond a point determined by the available amount of food, shelter, and range, and a regulated harvest is recommended when wildlife becomes abundant.

The rules of the associations usually provide that, when game is plentiful enough to permit hunting, permits or leases may be issued through the secretary of the group. Such hunting is strictly regulated.

Revenue from hunting permits is divided among the members on a predetermined basis and a reserve is accumulated for the introduction of new game and for further protective measures.

In addition to the establishment of the preserves for game management demonstration purposes, 1,089 farm ponds or lakes with a total area of 5,642 acres were constructed in 1937 and stocked with more than a million fish.

Callender gave credit for much of the success of the plan in its initial year of operation to sportsmen groups and civic organizations which recognized the possibilities of the game preserves.

MRS. NELLIE SHRODER OF EL PASO REMEMBERS INTERESTING FACTS OF EARLY HISTORY HERE

Although she has stayed in El Paso with a son for several years, Mrs. Nellie Shroder, pioneer West Texan, still calls Colorado her home and remembers many things of interest about the early history of this section. She frequently visits here with her close friend, Mrs. Belle Vaughan, also a pioneer Coloradoan. In letters written to Colorado recently, Mrs. Shroder recalled some facts connected with her early years of life in West Texas. Her father, an Englishman named Wilson, was employed by the government at San Angelo and Fort Concho for several years in the late seventies and early eighties. A native of Chichester, Sussex, England, where she was born Nellie Wilson on October 12, 1887, Mrs. Shroder came to Texas in 1883 to join her father in San Angelo. She arrived in Abilene by train on a Saturday night. In those days there was no railroad connection between Abilene, so on Monday morning she boarded a stagecoach to complete her journey. Water sold at 50 cents a barrel while the Wilsons lived in San Angelo, Mrs. Shroder recalls, and was selling at 25 cents a barrel in Colorado when she and her father came here by covered wagon in 1885. It was while buying meat in a Colorado market one day in 1886 that Nellie Wilson met her future husband, H. P. Shroder. Mr. Shroder was born in Hanover, Germany, on April 30, 1844, and came to the United States in 1866. He and his brother went first to St. Louis, where they separated. H. P. coming on to Texas where he had bought some land in Dallas county. Later he traded this land for a wagon and team, and came on to Comanche. After a short time in Comanche he came on to Colorado, where he hunted buffalo before going into the meat market business. During his business life Mr. Shroder was in partnership at various times with A. A. Bailey and D. N. Arnett, both of whom are now dead. The marriage of Mr. Shroder and Nellie Wilson took place on February 19, 1888, in the old Cumberland church in East Colorado, the ceremony being said by a Rev. Mr. Robinson. Mrs. Shroder recalls that she bought her wedding dress material from Mrs. C. H. Earnest who was then employed as a saleslady in the Bee Hive store owned by a Mr. Kolker. Mr. Shroder died in July, 1923. Since that time Mrs. Shroder has spent most of her time with her children, principally in El Paso. The children are: Will Shroder and Mrs. Harry Skinner of El Paso; Harry Shroder of Huntington Park, Calif.; Charles Shroder of Sierra Blanca; Jim Shroder of Odessa, Mrs. A. P. Baker of Sweetwater and Mrs. Albert Wilson of Stanton.

CHURCHES

CHURCH OF CHRIST
5th and Elm
Our continued plea is that Christians forsake not the assembling of themselves together as the manner of some is, Heb. 10: 25, and that those who are not Christians be interested in visiting the services to learn more of God's will concerning them. This plea is being heard as our audiences continue to grow. The Sunday evening audience is increasing each Lord's Day. The subject for discussion in the evening is, "Why Be A Member Of The Church Of Christ?" Many are already interested. Why not have a like interest in why you stand as you do religiously? Look for a "thus saith the Lord" for your convictions. Come often to the church of Christ. You are always welcome.

THE IMPORTANCE OF A GOOD BREAKFAST

Recently, prominent health authorities flayed the "snack and run" breakfast and asserted the need for a hearty meal to start the day. In emphasizing the importance of a good breakfast it was pointed out that upon rising the whole body is at low ebb as a result of being without food for 13 hours—6 p.m. to 7 a.m.

The temperature is down to 95 or 97, the blood pressure is down 10 to 20 points and the pulse rate is down 4 to 8 beats. The body needs stimulation. That's why the proper breakfast means so much.

But stimulation is not the only need for a good breakfast. The body requires proper nourishment to maintain its efficiency until the next meal. This was illustrated by two noted doctors at Harvard University who were able to show that it was "hunger" not "tiredness" that lessens one's working ability toward the end of the morning.

Naturally, the people doing physical work—the farmer, the factory hand, the housekeeper—require the food energy of a substantial breakfast to sustain them until lunch. But office workers and professional people, who largely account the "snack and run" class, also need a sustaining breakfast.

Their argument for an insufficient breakfast is that a substantial meal may not leave them mentally alert. However, if they arose a bit earlier and took their time at breakfast they would find themselves as keen minded as ever, when ready to start work an hour or so later. It is that group of people who also prefer a light lunch. Therefore it is particularly important they eat a good breakfast.

Growing children, too, especially need a sustaining morning meal if they are to develop properly and be mentally alert.

A good sustaining breakfast should include a cereal, such as Quaker Oats. For it supplies food and energy and other elements needed to maintain physical and mental efficiency until the noon hour.

WON'T QUIT—According to a sifter of the Mexican insurrectionist General Saturnino Cedillo, shown in this caricature by Hayle, the Agrarian rebel leader will not surrender to President Cardenas, against whom he revolted. Twice the general has escaped capture, fleeing into the hills of San Luis Potosi state. Meanwhile some of his peasant army have given up arms and President Cardenas announces the rebellion broken.

SUBSIDY VOTED FOR COTTON FARMERS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The House approved Friday a proposal to permit immediate distribution to cotton farmers of subsidy, payments totaling $113,000,000.

The House accepted a Senate amendment to the Agriculture Department supply bill allowing subsidy payments on the 1937 cotton crop to farmers who signed certificates of compliance with the 1938 soil conservation program.

Representative Hampton P. Fulmer (Dem.) of South Carolina, one of the advocates of the proposal, said that without the amendment, farmers would have to wait several months while the Agriculture Department checked compliance.

The amendment, he said, would permit immediate payment of 3c a pound on approximately 65 per cent of the 1937 cotton crop.

DIARY KEPT BY PRIEST IS OF HISTORIC VALUE

A diary kept by a Catholic priest who accompanied the expedition of Martin de Alarcon, sent in 1718-1719 to establish a settlement on the San Antonio river and to carry supplies to the mission settlements of East Texas has been translated and published in the latest issue of the Southwestern Historical Quarterly. This periodical is issued by the Texas State Historical Association, through a board of editors composed of Drs. R. L. Biesele, C. W. Hackett, and W. P. Webb, all professors of history at the University of Texas.

This translation was made by Fritz L. Hoffman of the University of Colorado, himself a graduate of the Texas institution. He points out that this diary, kept by Fray Perez de Mezquia, is the second known diary of the Alarcon expedition. The other, that of the chaplain of the expedition, Fray Francisco de Celiz, has already been translated and edited by Hoffman, and was published by the Quivira Society.

The Celiz diary follows the activities of Alarcon to February 10, 1719, whereas the Mezquia diary stops with June 22, 1718, the day on which Alarcon returned to the Rio Grande settlements for supplies before beginning his long journey to East Texas from San Antonio, which he had founded on May 5 of the same year, Hoffman pointed out.

His translation of the Mezquia diary was made from a transcript copy in the Library of Congress, the copy having been made from an original in the archives of the Franciscan college of Santa Cruz de Queretaro prior to the conversion of that college into a military barracks and the subsequent loss of the archives. The essential data in the two diaries, with very few exceptions, it almost exactly alike, he added.

G. P. STEWART DIES IN LOCAL HOSPITAL OF SHOTGUN WOUNDS

Shotgun wounds which he sustained Friday proved fatal to G. P. Stewart, 52, of the Cuthbert section in a Colorado hospital Tuesday afternoon at 6 o'clock.

Stewart was found slumped over in his car in front of the home of a nephew, Brooks Stewart, on the Huron Dorn place northeast of Colorado shortly after noon Friday, his left arm almost torn away by a discharge from a shotgun which stood between his knees. He was unconscious, and had lost considerable blood. The wounded man was alone at the house at the time the shot occurred, the Brooks Stewart family having gone to the field. Brooks Stewart found him when he returned to the house for a drink of water.

Brought to a Colorado hospital, Stewart was given surgery for the removal of his arm on Saturday. It was thought for a time that he would recover. He is said to have told members of his family that the gun discharged accidentally.

Mr. Stewart had lived in Mitchell county 15 years. He was born in Alabama on Jan. 18, 1886. Survivors include his wife and the following children: John V. Stewart of Roswell, N. M., Mrs. Ernest Clipper of Colorado, Mrs. Bill Ford of Fort Sumner, N. M., G. P. Stewart, Jr., and Eugene Stewart of Colorado.

Also surviving are three brothers, J. W. Stewart of Colorado, O. L. Stewart and N. E. Stewart of Armatan, Alabama, and three sisters, Mrs.

FEED ACREAGE FIGURES NOW BEING MAILED TO FARMERS OF THE COUNTY

Feed acreage allotments for Mitchell county farmers in 1938 are being mailed out this week by John Mogford, assistant in agricultural adjustment in the office of B. J. Baskin, county farm agent. The allotments arrived early in the week from state AAA headquarters.

In mailing out the allotments Mogford re-emphasized the fact that farmers who wish to comply with the government program this year are primarily concerned only with planting the correct number of acres to feed and cotton. Cotton acreage allotments were sent out some time ago.

Government payments made under the 1938 program will be based only on whether the farmer has complied in planting the allotted number of acres to feed and the allotted number to cotton. When the farmer has done this, Mogford says, he does not have to worry about the remainder of his acreage.

Friday night and Saturday. He had never worked with storm victims before.

An indication of how Kiker reacted to what he saw and experienced can be found in the fact that a few hours after coming home Saturday noon he convinced his son-in-law, N. H. White, that the two families ought to have a storm cellar.

"It's no use trying to be brave and unconcerned in the face of a force like the storm which hit Clyde," he explained. "And the thing is this: All those who were in cellars were safe. We're going to have a cellar—and use it."

Work of constructing the cellar in the yard at the N. H. White home was begun Monday. It is to be walled solidly with concrete, and will measure 7x14 feet.

A total of 45 inches of rain has fallen in Colorado since Saturday, according to rain gauge records kept here.

PRANKISH WEATHER OF THIS SEASON HAS MADE MITCHELL COUNTIANS CONSCIOUS OF THE GAMBLE AND DRAMA IN CROP-MAKING

The prankish weather which has prevailed over Mitchell county these past few weeks and months has made observant citizens realize, even more than usual, the gamble which a farmer has to make with nature when seeds are put in the ground.

Crops all over the county have had to be planted several times because of hail, hard rain, drouth, or sand. Winds have blown nearly every day, and even when they didn't bring sandstorms in town they were lashing destructive sand at tender young cotton and feed out in the fields.

The romance, drama, and suspense which go into the making of a cotton crop have been effectively set forth in the following story, which was clipped from a neighboring newspaper several days ago:

There's a romance to cotton, although those who toil with and are dependent upon it can seldom see anything but drudgery, uncertainty and existence out of its planting, cultivation and harvest.

Perhaps it is this uncertainty that makes each year's crop a gripping romance in a queer sort of way.

From the time farmers lay their land by in mid-winter until the time the first killing frost bites the cotton stalks, doubt and suspense surround the outcome.

The first problem is always rain. Sometimes the winter seasoning is plentiful, but planting rains fail to fall. Spotted showers may come, leaving this farmer ready to sow his seed while his neighbor helplessly scans the skies for promising clouds.

Or maybe the rains come. Then there is wind to be reckoned with. Tiny plants up to a perfect stand can be burned and shredded to the ground in a few hours time. Sometimes feverish work with plows can stop the raking sands, and more often nothing can keep the stinging blast from leveling all before it.

Then come the weeds. Fields kept clean in the winter are comparatively safe, but others require plenty of work with the "go-devil" and hoe. All cotton must be methodically hoed or thinned so that the spacing will be right and the thrifty plants left with a better chance for life.

If hail and washing rains fail to damage the cotton, the sun has its fling. In the hot summer months, it can literally pour down on the drooping stalks, day after day. Winds blow again, this time like a breath off a furnace—drying and searing.

In the niche of time, another rain falls. Plants, resilient beyond all understanding, take new life and spring up in a miraculous recovery.

But worms come with rains. Flea hoppers, army worms, and leaf worms have their try at the verdant and sappy foliage. Poison machines swing into action and the carcasses of the tiny invaders shrivel on the ground.

This is only part of the menace, however. The greatest is yet to come—the grasshoppers. Little hoppers and big jumbos—there is little to choose between them—venture from the grass and weeds into the cotton patches, cutting like scythes. And again the poisoning apparatus is put into motion, killing off one generation only to see another rise in its stead.

Finally the fields are saved from the insects. They have many boils, but late planting has caused the fruiting to be equally late. A consequent race against the autumnal elements develops and the killing frost charts are pulled out for study, for a hard freeze will sour the unopened boils.

Farmer, banker, merchant anxiously await the verdict with mingled fear and hope. And almost invariably this is it—"We made a lot more than we thought we would."

Romance? Yes, plenty, with all the appeals to hold all the people.

JAPANESE MOP UP AFTER FALL OF SUCHOW, IMPORTANT CHINESE CITY

Here are Japanese soldiers engaged in the post-battle operation of mopping up, after the fall of Suchow, important Chinese city on the Lung-Hai railway. After each major battle in China and the capture of important posts, the invading forces must clean out marauding bands of Chinese and individual snipers who frequent vantage points.

GOVERNMENT TO LET FARMERS PLANT FEED FOR RUINED COTTON

With this week bringing what Mitchell county farmers concede to be the deadline on planting cotton, many farmers who have lost cotton through wind, hail, drouth, and insects during the past few weeks are welcoming news that the government will allow them to plant their lost cotton acreage to feed.

Such news was received this week at the office of B. J. Baskin, county farm agent, from agricultural conservation headquarters. This concession was made only because the cotton-planting deadline found so many ruined acres too dry for replanting to cotton, it is explained.

Farmers who have to replant a portion of their allotted cotton acreage to feed are cautioned by John Mogford, county agricultural adjustment assistant, to have supervisors show such acreage on their aerial map when farm check-ups are made, beginning June 20.

SEVEN WELLS WOMAN IS MAKING KITCHEN PLANS

Mrs. E. F. Hammett, kitchen demonstrator of the newly-organized Seven Wells home demonstration club, has made enthusiastic plans for improvement of her kitchen.

She has running water in her kitchen now, but she plans to change it to the south side of her kitchen from the west side. She will also put in a sink, and will build portable cabinets, so that they may be moved whenever she moves. She will build cabinets for her preparation and cleaning units.

Her color scheme is to be green and ivory. She will paper her kitchen, will paint the woodwork in ivory, and will have new linoleum.

Mrs. Hammett also plans to put in a grease trap to take care of the waste water from her kitchen, so that she may use the water to irrigate a frame garden which she is to install in the fall.

HERE FROM ROYCE CITY

Mrs. J. O. Cox of Royce City has been visiting here in the home of her son, Jack Cox, and family. She left for Haskell late last week with another son, A. W. Cox, and his wife, who came here for her.

OLD JOSE, WHO USED TO BE FAMILIAR FIGURE ON COLORADO STREETS, WANDERS TO BIG SPRING AND GETS A WRITE-UP

"Old Jose" Carillo, who used to be a familiar Mexican figure on Colorado streets, seems to have wandered into Big Spring and renewed his acquaintance with an old friend, J. H. Greene, formerly of Colorado. The following story by Joe Pickle on "Old Jose" recently appeared in the Big Spring Daily Herald:

Jose Carillo, older by three years than Texas, if his figures are correct, pulled the brim of his crumpled straw hat through his hand, half lifted his head, opened one of his eyes a bit wider than the other.

"Pretty soon," reflected Jose in perfectly good Spanish, "pretty soon I die and leave all that."

The years hang heavy on the aged Mexican who has seen 105 summers come and go, and when he pushed his two wheel cart here from San Angelo, a distance of 90 miles, possibly he sensed there were not too many miles left in his tottering legs.

More than that, he was homeless and friendless. There was no "dinero" in his pockets, and sharp hunger gnawed at his stomach.

He put his push cart down and hailed a passing Mexican. "These pants," he cried in remarkably clear Spanish, "these pants that I have on, I will sell them to you, amigo. I am very hungry and I must eat."

Manuel Lujan stopped short and recognized Old Jose, this hombre who would sell his pants because he was famished.

Manuel took him to his humble quarters in the Mexican section and fed him. Later when Old Jose had rested his legs, he followed along behind Manuel, who brought him to the business district and to J. H. Greene who had known both of them at Colorado.

Old Jose laughed, smiled and shook his head like a child caught in a prank when Greene joked about Jose having slipped away from the cotton patch years ago, when he caught an unexpected ride to San Antonio.

His memory, like his hearing, is going back on him now, but years ago he told Greene that he was born near Laredo on Feb. 3, 1833.

When Santa Anna, or San Tana as Jose calls him, moved on rebellious Texas, the Carillo family lived in San Antonio. That was before Jose could remember, but when the family moved back into Mexico in 1840 Jose saw the self-styled Napoleon of the West.

As he grew up, said the aged Mexican, his father, Dariedo Carillo was sheriff at Laredo. Jose fell to doing odd jobs, mostly sheep herding. He worked for decades at a time with one employer.

Several years ago when he was a younger man of 99, he got word his mother was dying. He went to her bedside and helped lay her away in her 126th year. With him at the last rites were three brothers and five sisters, all younger than he.

He returned to Colorado and took odd jobs on farms and ranches. Many times after he passed his 100th birthday, he has picked more than a hundred pounds of cotton in a day, according to Greene.

Old age pension is out of the question, for Jose is not a citizen and cannot be one because the land where he was born was Mexico and is now Texas. Now there's not much ahead for Old Jose. For the time being, at least, he has a home.

"I wan' let him go on," Manuel says. "I got too many kids, but he's ol' and don' eat much. He ain' got no place to go 'cause nobody wan' him."

Old Jose can't make out the words. He blinks his half opened eyes at coins placed in his hands, makes as if to say something, and then returns to pulling the brim of his hat.

Why does he live so long? Well, perhaps he's an Indian. Are you Jose?

"Comanche?" echoes Old Jose, cocking his head. "Yo Comanche. Si, Si."

Smiling like a boy making a joke, he rattles away in the Comanche tongue.

Plans to increase club attendance were discussed. Each member present agreed to try and attend the next meeting in company with a member who was absent at this meeting.

H. B. Spence, manager of the chamber of commerce, presided at the luncheon.

The Methodist Missionary ladies met Monday at the home of Mrs.

that it is an institution of God. Tell them that it is for the saving of souls. Tell them that it is for the protection of the home, the country, and all that we hold dear to our hearts.

For I see in the forerunner of every great institute: schools, colleges, hospitals, orphan's homes, in fact there is nothing good that we have to enjoy but that the church has made it possible.

You fathers and mothers listen to me. What would the future hold for you and your children if it was not for the church. We have seen it tried in other countries where the home, church, the gospel, the destroying of which has been a great question, and it is still a great question in my own mind as to what hope could we have had we not these things that give us hope and courage and a will to carry on.

So it seems to me that if there was ever a time in which we should stand together and fight for the right of our children with so much to lead them off the right path, it is now. Every town and community in this nation should say down with the booze, down with gambling, down with the vulgar picture show, down with everything that goes toward the destroying of the manhood, the womanhood of our beautiful land, this God-given country where He has smiled His wonderful blessings on the people of America, where the flag of the stars and stripes has been flying and thank God is still flying, which means that whenever it flies there will be found protection for our people, for our homes, children, churches, schools, colleges, but would like to say that we have a greater protection than that—that is the protecting hand of our God who is able to guide us through to victory.

But will say that He alone cannot do that for us. That He would if we do not through ourselves into action and do His will. My friends let us sing together and then do something about it:

Do not wait until some deed of greatness you may do.
Do not wait to shed your light afar.
To the many duties ever near you now be true.

Brighten the corner where you are!
Brighten the corner where you are!
Brighten the corner where you are!
Someone far from harbor you may guide across the bar.
Brighten the corner where you are.

How true is this poem. For there are many who are drifting far away from the shore. Mother it may be your boy or girl or it might be your wife or husband. Or it might be some father or mother. So won't you rekindle the home fires, relight the candle so that those about you may see the breakers ahead, that some may turn back that they may not go on and be dashed against the rocky shoals of sin and be lost and ruined and damned.

May God bless you and help you to see the great need of standing true to the church.
Your friend and pastor,
R. B. WALDEN.

stronger but not longer. It is due to this same method of growth that the lint in an immature boll that is caught by a freeze may have good length but very weak. A bolly crop usually has plenty of time to get its length but not enough time to get its strength.

Any influence, therefore, that would retard growth, such as drought, immediately following blooming, would effect the length of the lint whereas any influence that would retard growth during the period more than 25 days after blooming, would influence the strength of the lint. The Chillicothe station has not been doing work on soil problems, and soil moisture determinations have never been made to find the relationship between lint length and soil moisture; however, there are other results that show the relationship that exists.

"TEST PILOT" HAS FIRST AVIATION LOCATION TREK

PLANES TRANSPORTED EAST AND EQUIPMENT TO LOCATION RANCH SIMULATING AVERAGE KANSAS FARM IN DRAMA OF DARE-DEVIL PILOTS

Half of the location equipment required for the filming of the new Clark Gable-Myrna Loy-Spencer Tracy aviation drama, "Test Pilot," playing at the Ritz theater Saturday night, Sunday and Monday, June 18 and 19, was sent by plane.

Heavier equipment, such as the sun arcs, cameras, dollies, lumber, electrical wiring and properties were conveyed by regulation motor vans. The first aviation picture made by the studio in two years was handled with an air-minded attitude. Whenever feasible, plans supplanted slower transportation.

The company was grounded on one of the smoother pastures of a ranch. A three-hundred-yard field served for landing and take-offs. Six cameras were spotted around the field to catch spectacular flying scenes. Dressing rooms were hastily constructed, offering a sharp contrast to the luxurious studio dressing rooms. Half the company wore straw hats in harmony with the bucolic scenery.

Modern planes on the set were either silent while a ground scene was made, or roared into action for sky scenes. One of these, a tiny Sevrosky, had a top speed of 325 miles an hour and used 126 gallons of gasoline in an hour's flying.

The setting duplicated the average Kansas farm. Trees had been brought from the studio, fences were built, a silo was constructed to match the photographs of those of farms in the Mid-West.

The farm provides the opening locale for "Test Pilot." Clark Gable, trying to break the transcontinental air record, with Spencer Tracy at his side, is forced down on the farm. There he meets Myrna Loy, unsophisticated country girl.

Studio experts reconstructed the typical Kansas farm on the Phillips ranch at Chino, California. When it was ready for filming the first aviation location trek was under way.

"FLIGHT INTO NOWHERE"

Ritz—Thursday, June 16
Rapid-action adventure drama of aviation and seething jungles, this rates well with the better programs. In production details it is a vast improvement on its predecessors in the Jack Holt series which Larry Darmour is making. In this feature Holt is an aviation company executive who leads an expedition into the uncharted jungles of Central America to save a lost and irresponsible pilot, whom Holt knows is secretly married to his superior's niece. After hair-raising encounters with head-hunting natives he reaches the grounded flyer in a forgotten Mayan village only to find that he has gone native and bigamously married a wilderness belle. The problem is solved when the renegade aviator is slain by a jealous tribesman. Lewis D. Collins' direction is impressive.

Players are Jack Holt, Dick Purcell, Jacqueline Wells, James Burke, Howard Hickman, Lotus Long, Robert Fiske, Hector Sarno.

"CRIME SCHOOL"

Ritz—Friday and Saturday June 17 and 18
Although as to story this is more or less of a junior version of the formula motivation which Warner has used in previous prison pictures, the splendid delineation by the "Dead End" kids of a gang of tenement toughs elevates the feature from mediocrity and establishes it as above-par entertainment which probably will enjoy substantial grosses. The screenplay, which essays to be a preachment against existing methods of juvenile crime correction, is halted in several sallies toward the maudlin by a comedy relief—again contributed by the talented youngsters. Humphrey Bogart is featured, and delivers his usual sincere and acceptable performance, while the rest of the supporting cast is adequate. Directed by Lewis Seiler.

Players are Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Huntz Hall, Leo Gorcey, Gabriel Dell.

"HUNTED MEN"

Ritz—Tuesday and Wednesday June 21 and 22
Nicely balanced and dramatically compact, this offering is geared for punch entertainment. Top-notch performances by the cast more than offset certain plausible defections in the plot. As a result, under Louis King's brisk and authoritative direction, the film's amusement value exceeds its budgetary classification. Furnishing a new twist in gangster stories, the yarn deals primarily with the regeneration of a gang leader who forces a model family in a small community to harbor him from the law. Lloyd Nolan contributes a convincing portrayal as the gang leader who goes to his death to show he's bigger than the gun in his hand. Mary Carlisle does some of her best work in a sincerely appealing role. As the parents, Lynne Overman and Dorothy Peterson, turn in some grand troupings.

Players are Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle, Find What's Wrong, Fitzpatrick Travel Talk.

PICKED UP ALONG THE NEWS PATH

Little knowing that we were looking at a storm-shot mantle of death, many of us who sat in the calm moonlight at Riddick park amphitheater Friday evening took note of the silver and blue beauty of a cloud-bank which lay low over the eastern horizon. . . . There were comments on how incessantly the lightning flashed within that cloud soon after the program got underway. . . . While we sat in the cool, calm evening, chatting and listening to band music, that cloud was battering out trees and destroying homes in the little town of Clyde. . . .

We of Mitchell county can fully sympathize with Clyde, for we had our own storm baptism 15 years ago in May with a twister which plowed through southern Mitchell county, leaving 27 persons dead or fatally injured. . . . We know the desolation, the grief, the stalking, stealthy fear which such a catastrophe leaves in its wake. . . . It will be many, many moons before Clyde can watch even the most harmless of clouds form without having its heart squeezed dry with the awful feeling that what has happened before can happen again. . . .

But the years will pass, and the trees which the storm has torn away will grow again over new homes and new schools. . . . Grief will be laid away in the places where grief must be laid if people are to go on living. . . . Gradually the fear of clouds and the elements will be lulled, and 15 years from now those people who still run for storm cellars will be given an indulgent smile. . . . That's life. . . .

This story on a former Coloradoan, Pete McCurry, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. McCurry of Colorado, appeared in the "Know Your Neighbor" column of the Monarchs News last week along with a picture of the subject. . . . When not busily engaged with his duties as bookkeeper at the First State bank, Pete "Banker" McCurry, one of the late converts to "cow pasture pool," spends much of his time out on his golf course polishing up on his game. . . .

"Born on a farm near Gatesville on May 18, 1909, Pete moved to Colorado with his family in 1924. . . . Pete was not long in proving his prowess as a football and basketball player. During the school years of 1925-26 and 26-27 he was an all-

"RIDIN' THE LONE TRAIL"

Gem—Friday and Saturday June 17 and 18
This is one of those dependable westerns that keeps humming along at a good pace. All the familiar ingredients are dished out to please the western fans. As the spearhead of the action, Bob Steele does a lot of hard fighting and fast riding, in the role of a sheriff who runs down the leader of a gang that has been robbing a gold mine. His only clue is a horse, White Peril, ridden by the gang leader and belonging to the girl he loves. . . . The identity of the owner is, of course, cleverly hidden to the last. Claire Rochelle handles the heart interest nicely and Charles King is adequate as the villain. Sam Newfield directed. . . .

Players are Bob Steele, Claire Rochelle, Charles King, Ernie Adams, Lew Meehan, Julian Rivero.

in Burt Smith's car, when all the time he was getting in its twin, belonging to H. M. Moore of Spade. . . . Moore couldn't know that, tho—all he knew was that his car was missing. . . . But it came back o.k. when Green learned, through Chief of Police Dick Hjekman, of his mistake. . . . Advocate of a town clock for Colorado is L. W. Sandusky, following his return from a trip to Stephenville and Decatur, where town clocks strike regularly. . . . Mrs. J. W. Dorn has just received her first "from abroad" letter from daughter Gladys Dorn of Washington, D. C. who sailed May 21 for a European and Asiatic tour. . . . Don't you envy Mrs. H. B. Broadbudd the experience of returning to her early girlhood home in Lebanon, Tenn. for the first time since she left it as a girl of fourteen? . . . Who can think up a pun about Dad's day and Emancipation day coinciding on June 19? . . . I could, but I'm funny about rotten tomatoes in my face—I don't like 'em. . . . This comes on good authority: When they insisted that H. E. Grantland be the blushing bride in the June table stant at the Methodist "birthday" party Tuesday night, he finally consented thusly: "Alright, but if I am, all you fellows have got to kiss the bride." . . . T. W. Daughtry, who farms southwest of town, credits terraces with saving some of his sandy land crops from the ravages of recent high winds. . . .

A letter mailed to Phyllis Berman from Marian Britton, who is in a girl's camp near Comfort, bore "Miss Phyllis, Colorado, Texas," as its only address. . . . Phyllis got it without delay. . . .

They're hurrahing the Rev. C. E. Jameson about the Father's day sermon he wasn't going to preach last Sunday. . . . And they say it took Dick Billingsley more than half a day to begin believing that he had really drawn the first chance as Lions club delegate to Oakland, Calif. . . . Such is his trust in human nature—but who can blame him, considering the pranks he's always playing on somebody else? . . . Isabel Ratliff had her hands full at the park Friday night, trying to keep Hubbard Harry quiet about his game of mumble peg with Sam Bodzin. . . .

The wedding of Marion Rice to Maxine Jones of Abilene Tuesday night was one which this column predicted some time ago—member?

Aftermath of the Clyde storm in Colorado was the unusual call of Agnes Williams of the Modern Beauty shop was acquainted with several of the storm victims, but so far as The Record had been able to determine this week none of the victims had close relatives here. . . . A number of Coloradoans visited the storm scene Saturday, and some even went over Friday night after news of the storm reached here by wire, phone, and radio. . . . John A. Thompson's second car of Mitchell county wheat was one of those blown from the T. & P. tracks by the tornado, but he suffered no loss, the car still being intact when set back upon the track. . . . This car was the one which landed on the home of T. W. Briscoe, principal of Clyde schools who later died of his injuries. . . . A former Coloradoan, the Rev. A. F. Click, now pastor of the Clyde Methodist church, was a busy man following the tornado. . . . He conducted funerals all Sunday afternoon. . . . Mentioned as his assistant at one funeral was the Rev. J. T. Griswold, also a former Mitchell resident. . . . However, A. D. Kiker of the Kiker & Son funeral home probably had a more active part in the gruesome work which had to follow the storm than any other Coloradoan. . . . Kiker took one of his ambulances and went to Clyde about two hours after the storm in response to a call from his brother of the Kiker & Knight funeral home in Abilene. . . . He worked all night making ambulance trips between Clyde and Abilene and stayed until noon Saturday helping his brother prepare five of the twelve storm victims for burial. . . . In his own words the condition of those bodies was "indescribable. . . . A fuller story about his work is to be found elsewhere in this issue of The Record. . . .

Little H. B. Spence (the who manages the chamber of commerce) had a birthday cake this week, and with it an impromptu birthday party in The Record office. . . . Little John Baze bought ice cream to make the occasion complete, and the "little" guests sang happy birthday, very sweetly—you betcha. . . .

Here's a fistful of flowers to those rural Mitchell county women who serve the various home demonstration clubs as reporters. . . . They sent in club reports which are like balm to the heart of this oftentimes harried editor (?). . . . Joy of joys, they hardly ever fail to give names—full names, which are really the only kind of names a newspaper should use. . . . Anybody who has ever had to spend thirty minutes or so in pursuit of an initial or initials can understand how we appreciate this. . . .

Here and thereabouts: J. Ralph Lee says he already has a lawyer engaged to sue The Record for libel after the cracks this column made last week. . . . Joe Smoot has given us permission to quote him as being in hearty agreement with everything we said, however, and that's some comfort. . . . A car thief seemed to be loose in Colorado Tuesday morning, but it turned out to be a case of mistaken identity as to cars. . . . Ocie Green thought he was getting

United States are changing their steel-wheeled tractors over to Sure Grips.

One of the big reasons for rapid acceptance of the new tire is the fact that farmers know that the Goodyear engineers who designed and developed the Sure Grip know farm conditions and farm problems. Goodyear itself farms on a large scale, having 32,000 acres on which all kinds of crops are raised, and which serves as a huge laboratory for development of tractor and implement tires. The vast acreage gives engineers an excellent opportunity to produce the best possible tires for farm use," he concluded.

Ever since they were first announced, more and more tractors have been appearing with Sure Grips as original equipment, and thousands of farmers in every section of the

Like all those who work for the telephone company, from executives to office boys, the operator's aim is more than just giving fast, accurate, dependable telephone service, at a reasonable price to you. It is to serve you in such a manner that you can say, "They're nice people to do business with."

EDITORIAL

PART OF THE EQUIPMENT

Those of us who have traveled the road from our first day in school to the mastery of our trade or profession know that moral equipment is most necessary. This includes courage, patience and persistence, as well as the virtues of honesty, industry, self-sacrifice and self-reliance.

Until a boy realizes that self-denial and self-sacrifice must be a part of his experience, his education has not even begun. He must know that disappointment and losses are some of the experiences which he must surely pass through, and unless he is prepared to meet them, they may get the best of him. Sometimes they come, as Shakespeare says, "not single spies, but in battalions." It requires courage and determination to face and overcome these. He who is without these virtues is whipped already. He doesn't have to wait till the fight comes off to find it out. Suffering is required of every living thing.

OVERCOME HANDICAPS

One of the most serious handicaps any youngster starts out with is timidity and lack of self-confidence. If he allows either of these to persist he will be under a terrible burden. Timidity often induces a lack of self-confidence, and the two in combination create an inferiority complex that is almost a guarantee of failure. Such a one is self-defeated.

Many men who had a delicacy in asserting themselves and their capabilities because of timidity, have failed to reach their coveted and well-deserved goal because of an inferiority complex. This writer has seen men eminently talented and thoroughly capable fail of their ambition because of their deference to others not half so well equipped.

There are in every calling and profession noisy self-exploiting quacks who do not hesitate a moment to take advantage of the skilled man's modesty to brazenly butt into the situation and monopolize it with ignorance and presumption.

VERY IMPORTANT MATTER

So soon as a child has arrived at the age when it can be done, he should be assisted in choosing what trade or profession he shall follow. If parents are alert they may discover by observation his natural tendencies toward certain lines of business. Some youngsters give decided evidence of their preference. This, coupled with their tastes as to reading and entertainment, make the parents' part of the choice of a vocation for him easy.

When this important matter is decided he can settle down to directing his thought and effort, study and observation, to the attainment of proficiency and efficiency in his chosen vocation. Often the choice can be made by the time the high school period is reached, which gives him a helpful advantage over the boy who has not selected his work. From this point on through college and university he can major in studies that will be most helpful to him in the trade or profession that is to be his means of livelihood.

This column is not much given to poetry but this week we submit a few epigrams.

COURAGE

There's the courage that nerves you in starting to climb
The mount of success rising sheer;
And when you've slipped back, there's the courage sublime
That keeps you from shedding a tear.

These two kinds of courage—more strength to the word!—
Are worthy of tribute; but then
You'll not reach the summit unless you've the third—
The courage to try it again!

MI LADY'S BONNETS

We were criticised by the ladies on having so much to say about their Easter hats. Well the styles have changed again and this time it is bonnets.

Any girl who wishes to look girlish, sweet, old-fashioned and blessed could do no better than to wear one of these alluring bits of milliner artistry. The name such confections are called by is sunbonnets. But we would have them not only sunbonnets but Sunday bonnets, picnic bonnets, bonnets for every public occasion.

"Maud Muller on a summer's day" wore the like while making hay. The Judge who came riding by asked for a drink and passed on with a sigh. And no wonder. Maud in her sunbonnet touched a secret spring in the capacious breast of the passing stranger, and he went on his way lamenting his lost youth and forgetting lawyers and litigants and the forthcoming election.

REFORMED FISHERMEN

This written especially for Ed Jones, Dock Dulaney, Cliff Ethridge and Tom Russell.

The man who was voted the world's champion liar says he is out of a job and he has appealed to the townsmen to help find him a job.

Says he needs it to support his family. Since he has been crowned King of liars how do we know he is telling the truth, the Pittsburg Gazette inquires. He is a reformed fisherman.

It is not surprising that a man who has spent his prime in thinking up prevarications finds himself out of work and in need of help. He acquired skill in formulating falsehoods when he should have been learning how to support a family. We doubt, though, if the citizen in question is a reformed fisherman. Fishermen do not reform. They may become embarrassed but they never become repentant of their evil doings. We are speaking of avocational fishermen, of course, not vocational fishermen. Gentlemen who fish for a living and call their activity work rather than sport are as truthful as other men. Saint Peter was a vocational fisherman and his only lapse from veracity was only a momentary one, soon repented. Men who go down to the sea in ships to bring up fish from the depths are hard workers. Their exploits are not matters of which they boast but episodes within the day's work. The farmer who has to combat Johnson grass does not brag on his skill or persistence. No more does the fisher who fishes for meat. All of which implies that people who cleft and crown a so-called king of liars have very little to do. Those who bear false witness are not kings. They are limbs of the U'pas tree, a dreadful forest specimen which exhales a poison of such potency as to slay all those who approach it.

EMPTY HEADS

While talking with W. W. Porter one day this week we were reminded that it would have been better if things had been so arranged that an empty head, like an empty stomach, wouldn't let its owner rest until he put something in it.

A Colorado fisherman last week said the mosquitoes below the mouth of Sterling Creek were as big as a hawk. That fisherman was a liar. No one ever saw a Concho mosquito larger than a blackbird.—Sterling City Record.

Dr. Ratliff in talking to one of his patients who had been in a highway crossing accident said, "A foot on the brake is worth two in the grave."

Truett Barber in a political speech last week said, "I'm pleased to see this dense crowd here tonight." A voice from the back, "Don't be too pleased. We ain't all dense."

Joe Smoot, when looking at his son's report card from the school said, "Do you know that Geo. Washington was at the head of his class when he was your age?" "Yes," said his son, "But he was President of the United States when he was your age, pop."

BIRDS AND MAN

BIRDS. The birds of the air are the most happy creatures in this old world. The birds of the air are accounted happy creatures, as no doubt they are, but their lives are severely routine. They wake in the morning, sing a couple of verses, if they are in good voice, then proceed immediately to hunt bugs for breakfast. They keep this routine up all their lives, with occasional times out for nest building and egg-laying.

MAN. Is less happy for we are bedeviled by ambitions, irked by inspirational exegeses, nagged by intellectual itches.

NATURE

God's marvels are revealed in nature. Mountains are God's thoughts piled up. Spreading lakes reflect His smile. Blooming flowers radiate the perfume of His love; and golden sunsets portray the riches of His grace.

David, gazing upon the starlight skies of a Syrian blue, announced: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork" (Ps. 19:1).

SPENDING TOO MUCH

It is a fact that can not be truthfully denied that our national, state and local governments owe too much money. Over spending brought about this unfortunate condition, and under spending will have to get us from under this burden of debt. It took more than a day or year to get us into this mess, and it will take more than a day or a year to get us out of it.

EDUCATION

Education is a very profitable thing to have, but what benefit is it if it is not put to a profitable use? Unless an education bears useful fruits it is unprofitable, and may be very dangerous. The Man of men once passed by a barren fig tree and condemned it to death. A highly educated criminal is a menace of the most dangerous kind. Character and education make a good team. Education without character is the devil's sharpest tool.

EXPENSIVE

According to the Texas Tax Journal the traveling expenses of state employes for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1936, amounted to $1,057,867, and for the year ending August 31, 1937, the traveling expenses of state employes amounted to the enormous sum of $1,344,312, an increase of $286,445, which is a growth of about 21 per cent for the fiscal year 1937.

COLORADO LAD, 8, GETS LETTER FROM GOVERNOR ALLRED

A penciled letter which a Colorado lad wrote to Governor Allred during National Air Mail week recently merited the attention of an Associated Press writer in Austin in the following story:

Eight-year-old Richard Franklin Marshall of Colorado, writing with pencil in a neat hand and enclosing a small photograph, brought a smile to the governor's face. The governor has three small sons and he knows all about little boys, their likes and dislikes, their aspirations and their disappointments.

"I am a little boy 8 years of age," young Marshall wrote. "I am in the third grade. I like to go to school. I think we live in the best state in the union. I think you are a good governor of our state."

"I am the only child in our family. I hope to be a bigman and work for Uncle Sam some day. I am sending this by air mail as this is air mail week."

"Your friend," etc. To which Gov. Allred replied: "My dear Richard: I have received a great many air mail letters this week, but none that I enjoyed more than yours."

"I appreciate your compliment and hope that I shall always merit your confidence and that of my other friends. It was thoughtful of you to write me, and I am happy to have your letter and picture."

"With all good wishes, I am," etc.

Fourteenth Floor

By Annie Austin Flint

Comparing her wrist watch with the clock Jim had given her on her birthday, Clare discovered she was dressed for dinner ahead of time.

She tiptoed to the library, entering cautiously. Jim sat at the writing table. Her innocent plan of the moment was to steal of the back of his chair and cover his eyes with her hands, asking him to guess who was ready for dinner on the stroke of the hour.

Before she could make the move, however, she saw his face in the opposite mirror. His expression rooted her in horror. He was loading a revolver.

He put it away in the table drawer, then sealed and addressed a letter—probably for her—that he placed conspicuously on the table.

Her brain clicked agonized telegraphic dots and dashes. "Mustn't say a word! ... Something general about the children? ... Usual thing. ... Me? ... Usual thing, too. ... Usual things don't go down with Jim. ... But can't stand like a fool to let him see I know!"

She crossed over to him, laid cold fingers teasingly against his eyes. He sat motionless.

"Guess who's punctual for dinner? ... Can't be Clare!" His voice was natural. "What's wrong with the clock I gave you?"

"Fifteen minutes faster than my watch."

She slipped her hands to his shoulders and drew his head against her, stooping to kiss him.

"Jim, it's eight. Do we go down for dinner?"

His voice now had a rasp in it. "We do—always. Why not tonight?"

"Fourteenth floor," she laughed. "Anything's likely to happen. Elevator might drop."

He smiled. "What's wrong with number fourteen that the elevator should drop?"

She saw his face in the mirror. His expression rooted her with horror. He was loading a revolver!

"A lie." She tried to speak lightly. "Really the thirteenth floor. An idiotic superstition made more idiotic by the wrong number."

"You were never superstitious. If you are, we'll change"—he choked over the final word and laughed—"tomorrow."

She laughed back. "No, we sha'n't! We'll live it down."

What she chatted about at dinner, she didn't know. ... One always takes chicken in a restaurant. Wonder why? ... Would the meal never end?

On leaving the dining-room: "Now for the fourteenth floor! Take us up with care, William." This to the man who ran the elevator.

"Superstitious?" said William.

"Not a bit! Only poking. Good-night."

"Good-night, madam. Good-night, sir."

"Oh! Good-night," Jim slipped something into the fellow's hand.

He led the way to number 1401, unlocked their door, and stood aside for Clare to enter. Going directly to a window, she threw the double casement wide.

"Must have air. Steam's on."

He took her by the wrists. "I'm nervous tonight, darling. Don't stand at that window."

She twisted her wrists free. There was a narrow balcony to which she stepped. She leaned far over the rail to peer down into the street.

"Have you thought what it would mean to you, Jim, if I should throw myself from the fourteenth floor?"

She waited, breathless, for his answer. Though it made her dizzy, she leaned further, turning her head towards Jim to see the effect on him.

His voice was strangled. "How did you guess?" he asked roughly.

"Didn't guess. Saw you in the mirror load your revolver." After a pause: "Is it money?"

"Wiped out."

She drew a sharp breath. "Not any of the firm's? Just ours?"

"You can ask that?" His voice broke. "You know better."

"Have you thought of the children?"

"You and the children are my reasons. You've not a penny in the world but my life insurance."

"Would they pay it to the wife of a suicide? You haven't thought so far as that. Anyhow, I don't want it! There're enough of the family to bring up the children. If the man I love means to kill himself, I mean to do the same. I'll go over this rail."

Suddenly, before Jim could seize her, she lost her balance. ... was caught in her fall on a lower ledge. Frantically, she clung to the fret-work, her terrified face upturned.

"I lied! I am superstitious! It's—the thirteenth floor and we know it, Jim! Don't let me die!"

He bent down till he could clutch her shoulders. The strain of the position was terrific. Grimly he set his mouth, but there was fierce joy in the effort he was forced to make. It sucked through his body like fire. He was a man again, and Clare needed him!

"You sha'n't die! Hold on, sweetheart, till I get a better grip!"

At the feel of his hands tightening sufficiently to drag her upwards, she fought with the insane terror of the drowning. It only stimulated him. His strength redoubled, and, put forth to the last ounce, lifted her to safety.

A moment—or was it an hour later?—she had lain quiet in his arms interminably, with the horror past—her eyes smiled into his.

"You there, Jim?" she said weakly. "I'm so glad, dear. Kiss me."

DEBT ADJUSTMENT GROUP TO HOLD MEETING HERE

"Farm property owners can be saved more cheaply than they can be created," Aubrey E. Horn, county supervisor for the Farm Security Administration said in urging all persons involved in farm obligations to attend the meeting of the Farm Debt Adjustment Committee to be held at Colorado at 2:30 o'clock p.m., June 20th.

Guy H. Tomlinson will be present to assist in negotiations being carried out by Augustus F. King and Urda D. Wulfsen who constitute the local committee.

The services of the committee are not limited to FSA borrowers, Horn emphasizes. Any case in which an agreement between debtor and creditor will preserve the foothold which the owner has gained for himself and protect the interest of the creditor may be placed in the hands of this group of men who are donating their time to assist in solving the financial problems of their community, Horn said.

DON'T SCRATCH THE CHIGGER IS ADVICE

DALLAS.—Nobody loves a chigger. They are lazy, useless, despicable little pests with one-track minds and a feeling that the world owes them a living.

That's why it's wise now to keep the lawn closely trimmed. Dusting every 1,000 square feet with a pound of finely ground sulphur is said to help.

Chiggers don't like sulphur, according to Dr. E. W. Laake, chief of the United States Bureau of Entomology here. It kills them.

"As a matter of fact," said Dr. Laake, "chiggers really don't like human beings. Whenever a chigger hooks on to a human, it signs its own death warrant. But these little insects are so lazy and grasping in their philosophy, that they just sit on shrubbery or grass or ground and snag the first thing that comes along."

What the insects really prefer is a nice lizard or a juicy snake, or perhaps a tender chick.

The chigger is a "Beck's Bad Boy" of the insect world. It is the larval stage of a large red velvet mite, which grows up to be entirely harmless.

Contrary to widespread opinion, it does not burrow under the skin, but merely attaches itself for the purpose of sucking blood.

And herein lies the value of scientific treatment of chigger bites. If the victim scratches, the chigger's head, attached to the skin by barbed teeth, comes off and stays in the bite, making a painful spot. If the insect is merely irritated with kerosene, ether or sulphur, it gradually withdraws those barbs and falls off.

The crop this year is said to be unusually early and exceptionally blood thirsty.

After exposure to chiggers, the scientists say, bathe as promptly as possible, lathering the body freely with medicated soap and scrubbing with a coarse rag or brush.

"But," they conclude, "no surgical remedy for the bite is known. Ammonia water, strong salt water, soda water, cooling ointments and many other treatments have their advocates."

My high resolve—Gladness. My soul is made for gladness. Great joys are mine by divine right. My soul, open your gates to the mighty tides of a pure, beautiful, infinite love. Peace, power, love and joy are mine. Each day holds wealth divine for me. Great experiences are in my path up ahead. Why should I not be glad. I do rejoice. Heaven plans to flood my soul with peace and love. I shall shine for him. Light shall show forth this day from my life to gladden others.

O Father, thou light divine, my soul is thine for the radiance of a glad and happy life. Our Sunday school was well attended Sunday. We had with us Mr. W. W. Porter from Colorado and he made a very interesting talk on the lesson, "The Challenge of God's Will" before the two classes, the seniors and adults which was enjoyed very much.

Next Sunday, June 19th, our Sunday school is going to entertain the fathers of this community with a picnic in honor of the fathers, so everyone is invited to come and bring a well-filled basket of good things to eat for our dads and let's see if that don't make them smile for real joy on that day. We are still having good singing at Rogers every Sunday night. The quartet people are getting better all the time. Our chairman of the singing class, Mr. George Sweatt was re-elected as our new chairman last Sunday night so we feel sure that our class will continue to be a good singing class with our new chairman back with us.

The weather is about the same as it has been here in this section for the last few weeks, still windy and threatening but no rain yet. Although the crops are holding up fine and the farmers are on the optimistic side of life and feel sure that a good rain will come when it is really needed.

CARR'S CHAMPION 'SWINGSTERS'

They "swing it" in championship style, these youngsters who composed the Carr school rhythm band of northwestern Mitchell county this year.

The little band has been in existence only two years, and both years it has won the rural championship of Mitchell county in rhythmic band contests of the Interscholastic League. Mrs. Lynn Halbert, teacher at Carr and wife of the school principal, organized the band last year, and is still in charge of it.

Uniforms, which the youngsters wear are white and yellow with a black "car" on the capes. The selection which they played to win the championship this year was "Listen to the Mocking Bird," featuring bird-whistles. Mrs. Halbert plays the piano accompaniment for the band.

Four members of the band were unable to appear in the above picture, which shows the band members with their director and the two championship cups which they have won. The four not in the picture are

SUMMER-TIME CALL TO 'COME OUT OF THE KITCHEN' HEADED BY MITCHELL HD WOMEN

Heading the summer-time call to "Come out of the kitchen," rural clubwomen of Mitchell county have turned their attention, appropriately enough, from a study of kitchen utensils to a series of programs and demonstrations on family recreation in the home especially in the yard.

Under the guidance of Miss Vara Crippen, county home demonstration agent, the women have been learning about home-made games, inexpensive play equipment, and types of recreation for family enjoyment.

Importance of family recreation in the yard was stressed when the Hyman club met at the home of Mrs. Carl Lowry. Talks and demonstrations emphasized the contentment and pleasure added to home life by family games. Present at this meeting were Mrs. Walter Averett, Mrs. Otto Schuster, Mrs. Elred Cremshaw, Mrs. Frank Andrews, Mrs. Edgar Andrews, and Mrs. Lowry.

Favorite games for the family were discussed at an Iatan-Carr meeting with Mrs. Terrell McKenney of Iatan. Mrs. Tom Jackson had charge of this program. She demonstrated a home-made target game made of a fruit box with nails as targets in the centers of wood squares, these targets to be looped with fruit jar rubbers tossed from a distance. This meeting was attended by Mesdames Lee Coleman, Tom Jackson, R. M. Jones, F. L. Eikenberg, and Terrell McKenney; Miss Rozelle McKenney.

Mrs. C. M. Dalton had charge of the Plainview club's home recreation program at the home of Mrs. Lee Taylor. Each woman present told of her family's favorite games, these women being Mesdames J. C. Franklin, Dee Bynum, Jack Carpenter, J. C. Shepherd, G. M. Howell, L. W. Pierce, and Dalton.

Home games were studied by the McKenzie club when it met with Mrs. R. B. Allen, those on the program being Mrs. Frank McCabe and Mrs. Allen Jameson. Others present were Mesdames Sam Savage, Ed Snowden, Sherman Anderson, Jahew Jameson, Zurl Phillips, and Carr.

Women of the Fairview club acted out the games presented by their program chairman, Mrs. L. A. Strain, at their home recreation meeting with Mrs. W. W. Jenkins. Twelve were present.
