

CITY'S PROPERTY OWNERS TO VOTE ON BONDS FRIDAY

MANDATE TO BE WRITTEN ON ISSUANCE OF $60,000 IN BONDS FOR WATER WORKS AND SEWER EXTENSIONS

Property owners of Colorado will go to the polls Friday from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m. to write their approval or disapproval of two bond issues totaling around $60,000 for the extension and improvement of the city's water works and sewerage systems.

A PWA grant to be used on this work has already been applied for. The $60,000 in city bonds will, if voted, represent not more than 55% of the total cost of the extensions planned.

If the bonds are voted, approximately $25,000 will be used to improve, enlarge, and extend the water system. The remainder, around $35,000, will be used on the sewer system. Although the city faces no water shortage at present, Mayor J. A. Sadler and other city officials are urging the voting of the bonds to take care of a need that is certain to be felt in the near future while generous PWA funds are available. The need for sewerage extensions and enlargements has been recognized for some time, officials point out.

The bonds to be voted have been described by city officials as follows: They are to bear interest at a rate not exceeding 4% and mature in 20 years. To pay the principal and interest on these bonds will take approximately $5,400 the first year, $5,280 the second year, $5,160 the third year, etc., and will add 20 cents per $100 valuation to the tax rate.

Work to be done with the money, if the bonds are authorized, has been outlined thus: The sewer disposal plant will be put in first class condition, and additions necessary to serve East Colorado and that portion of North Colorado east of Austin street will be made to the sewer system. Additional water mains will be laid, and some two-inch mains will be replaced with larger pipe. All dead-end water mains will be tied in in order to make the city's water distribution a circulating system. Two or more additional water wells will be drilled and equipped on land owned by the city at the north water works. Additional storage will be built for 500,000 gallons of water.

ONE LION DELEGATE HOME, OTHER STILL ON PACIFIC COAST

Dick Billingsley, one of the Colorado Lions club's delegates to the Lions International convention in Oakland, Calif., returned home Sunday, but the other delegate, Jake Richardson, local president, is still in California, vacationing at Long Beach.

Billingsley and his wife and niece, Bebe Boone, made the trip to the convention by car. Richardson went to the convention on the Texas Lions special train. Mrs. Richardson joined him in Oakland later, making the coastward trip by car with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pond of Big Spring. The Richardsons and the Ponds are understood to be spending this week at Long Beach.

COUNTY'S OUTLOOK ENHANCED GREATLY BY SOAKING RAINS

SUNDAY SHOWER BROUGHT TOTAL RAINFALL FOR WEEK TO 3.54 INCHES; LEAFWORMS FEARED

Soaking rains that reached a total of 3.54 inches in Colorado with Sunday morning's shower have greatly enhanced the prospects of Mitchell county farmers and ranchmen, although farmers are faced with the new danger of leaf worms which got well started during last week's prevailing damp weather.

The moisture assured bumper feed crops in nearly every section of the county, it is reported. Ranchmen are unreservedly pleased, because, as one local cattleman said, "ranches can't get too wet in July." Watering tanks are full.

Skies cleared slowly Sunday and Monday after having been overcast most of the time for a full week.

Evangelist Cogdill is to go from here to Stephenville to hold another meeting.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS FILE APPLICATION FOR A PWA GRANT

APPROXIMATELY $74,000 IS SOUGHT; $90,000 BONDS WILL BE NECESSARY

Application for a PWA grant of approximately $74,000 to be used in the proposed construction of two new school buildings in Colorado and modernizing other school structures here has been filed by the Colorado school board in the Fort Worth PWA office.

Voting of some $90,000 in bonds by tax payers of the Colorado independent school district will be necessary to go forward with the proposed work if the grant is approved, according to J. W. Watson, president of the Colorado school board.

Plans are to replace the present primary school building, known as the Coleman school, and the junior high school building, which used to be the high school, if the grant and bonds go through. Considerable work would also be done on the Hitchcock grammar school building and the high school building.

COUNTY'S CHOICE

W. Lee O'Daniel, whose majority for governor in Mitchell county was in nearly the same ratio as that which he commanded in the rest of the state.

Although 2.10 inches of the week's moisture fell in little more than an hour on last Wednesday afternoon, most of the fall was gentle and did no harm.

Other portions of the state were not so lucky. Fourteen- and eighteen-inch rains on the watersheds of Brady creek, the San Saba river, and the lower portion of the Colorado sent disastrous floods into Brady, Menard, San Saba, and even Austin.

MCKENZIE, COUNTY'S SMALLEST BOX, GOES 100% FOR O'DANIEL

If there was anybody in the governor's race besides W. Lee O'Daniel, the folks down in the McKenzie voting precinct of Mitchell county apparently didn't know—or care—anything about it.

Nineteen votes were cast at the McKenzie voting box, of which C. N. Stubblefield is judge. All nineteen were for O'Daniel.

O'DANIEL MAJORITY FOR GOVERNOR HOLDS IN MITCHELL COUNTY

'HILLBILLY' CANDIDATE GETS 1,675 OUT OF 3,000 VOTES CAST; NELSON, MANN, AND LEMAY FAVORED

With a hillbilly song in their hearts and an ever-ready "please-pass-the-biscuits-pappy" greeting on their lips, Mitchell county voters went to the polls Saturday and gave W. Lee O'Daniel a majority vote for governor in practically the same ratio as his majority over the state.

Of the 3,000 votes cast in the county, O'Daniel claimed 1,675. His nearest opponent in what can hardly be referred to as a race any longer was Ernest Thompson with 749 votes in the county. Wm. McCraw was a poor third with 194 votes, and he was hard-pressed for even this position by Tom Hunter with 193 votes. No other gubernatorial candidate polled as many as 50 votes.

The county gave its vote for lieutenant governor to Senator G. H. Nelson, who claimed 1,238 votes. Pierce Brooks was second with 482 votes, and Coke Stevenson third with 389 votes.

"Mann was the man" for the office of attorney-general as far as Mitchell county was concerned. He polled 1,228 votes against 616 for Walter Woodul and 421 for Ralph W. Borroughs.

For associate justice of the supreme court the county gave its "big hand" to W. H. Davidson with 1,302 votes. Richard Critz was second with 784 votes, Smiley third with 455. James A. Stephens of Knox county got 1,146 votes for the unexpired term in the court of criminal appeals. For railroad commissioner the county gave Jerry Sadler 1,489 votes against 638 for C. V. Terrell and 308 for Robert A. Stuart.

George A. Sheppard walked away with the comptroller's race in the county, polling 2,269 votes. Each of his opponents, J. J. Biffle and Lane Terrell, got 155.

The county favored Wm. J. McDonald for commissioner of the general land office to the tune of 1,881 votes. Morris Browning was second favorite with 297 votes, and Bascom Giles third with 274 votes.

Charley Lockhart held his support as state treasurer, receiving 1,989 votes. Lewis Foster got 479. E. B. Barnes 226.

The county turned to S. R. LeMay as its favored candidate for state superintendent, giving him 1,191 votes as compared with 997 for Dr. L. A. Woods, incumbent. W. E. James received 463 votes.

J. E. McDonald took 1,105 votes for commissioner of agriculture, leading Leonard Westfall with 950. George H. Allen claimed 506.

Unopposed for re-election to his third term, George Mahon received 2,937 votes as representative from the 19th congressional district.

A tabulation on votes by boxes in all these races can be found elsewhere in this issue of The Record.

B. J. Baskin, county farm agent, and probably another adult will accompany the boys, who will be conveyed to the camp by bus. Their expenses are to be defrayed by the Colorado chamber of commerce.

Only those boys who have attended all club meetings and who have kept records of their 4-H club work are eligible to attend, Baskin says.

RAIN DAMPENS BUT FAILS TO RUIN ELECTION PARTY HELD AT RECORD OFFICE

Drizzling rain dampened but apparently failed to do any appreciable damage to The Record's "election party" Saturday night. Hundreds of Mitchell countians ignored the wetness to stand in the roped-off street in front of the office, hearing and watching the marking of election returns.

Members of The Record force and their helpers worked until past 1:30 receiving and tabulating returns from all over the county, district, and state. The Western Union office, with L. M. Guest as manager, remained open until 1:30 to serve The Record with Texas Election Bureau flashes.

Eddie Pylant, Harry Ratliff, L. J. Taylor, and Walter Henderson, assisted the regular Record force in handling the "party." Pylant was announcer over the loud-speaker system. Taylor installed a new Phico radio and kept posted on several state races by means of radio broadcasts. Henderson was on hand to check the operation of the loud-speaker system. Ratliff was official tabulator of returns. Earl Hammond, who helped hold the election at Buford and who was one of the first in with complete returns, assisted Ratliff in tabulation for some time.

The Record management wishes to thank all election judges and others who assisted in the "party" by calling in or bringing in their election figures, as well as those who helped in the Record office. Cooperation extended by Guest and the Western Union office is also appreciated.

T. BARBER AND DOCKREY GIVEN MITCHELL VOTE

BARBER LEADS DISTRICT'S COUNT FOR ATTORNEY; DOCKREY IS FOURTH IN LEGISLATOR RACE

Candidates of the only two Mitchell countians who were running in contested district races Saturday received strong support from voters of the county.

Truett Barber received 1,899 of the 3,000 votes cast in the county for district attorney. George Outlaw got 472. Zolite Steakley 479.

Rance Dockrey, running for representative of the 117th district, polled 1,026 Mitchell votes in a five-way race. Marshall Pior of Sweetwater was second in the county with 571 votes, and R. Temple Dickson, also of Sweetwater, got an even hundred less. C. A. Jones, who got a big hand from his home county, Fisher, ran third in the county with 368 votes. John Barry Hubbard of Sweetwater, the fifth candidate, received 280 votes.

Barber was leader in the district attorney's race throughout the district. His total was 3,820 votes, compared with 3,601 for Outlaw and 2,949 for Steakley. Barber polled 1,143 votes in Scurry county to Outlaw's 898 and Steakley's 754. Barber led in Borden county with 193 votes to Outlaw's 186 and Steakley's 38. Returns for the district were as follows:

Steakley Barber Outlaw
Scurry	754 1143 898
Borden	33 193 186
Nolan	1673 585 2945
Mitchell	479 1899 472

In the legislative district race Dockrey came out fourth in the district-wide count. Dickson led the field with 3,556 votes, and Pior was second with 2,224 votes. Third place went to Jones of Rotan with a total of 1,767. Dockrey's count was 2,232 ballots, and Hubbard's was 1,041.

The vote by counties in this race was as follows:

Mitchell Nolan Fisher
Dockrey	1,026 75 151
Jones	368 306 1093
Hubbard	280 487 274
Pior	571 1137 516
Dickson	471 2173 912

MODERNIZED PALACE OPENED ON SCHEDULE LAST FRIDAY NIGHT

R & R OFFICIALS HERE FOR OCCASION; LARGE CROWD ATTENDS

Hundreds of Mitchell countians turned out Friday night in spite of threatening skies to attend the formal opening of the modernized Robb & Rowley Palace theater.

The type of beauty achieved in the thoroughly renovated building won the enthusiastic praise of practically all who attended. "It doesn't look like the same building" was an expression heard over and over again. With its ivory backgrounded beauty enhanced by indirect wall lighting arrangements, the interior of the theater has been given a pleasing illusion of majestic depth and distance by wide colored stripes painted in modernistic manner on the ivory ceiling and on the walls. Wall columns are a brilliant blue, and it is

LOCAL RED CROSS IS ASSIGNED $75 QUOTA FOR FLOODED TOWNS

A quota of $75 has been assigned to the Mitchell county chapter of the Red Cross for flood relief work in Brady, Menard, and other stricken towns, according to information received by Dell Barber, county Red Cross chairman.

PALACE STANDS AS 'LAST JOB' OF OTTO BOWMAN, DECORATOR

Breathing the beauty which it was his life-work to achieve, the modernized R. & R. Palace theater stands as the "last job" of Otto Bowman, 57, widely known Dallas decorator.

Bowman designed and supervised the decoration of the theater's interior. His job done, he left here Monday for Dallas. Less than two days later—Wednesday afternoon, to be exact—he succumbed to a heart attack while supervising the decorations of a Dallas home.

Fellow workmen said that he complained of a pain in his chest about 2 o'clock, and went to his car. When they went later to see about him, they found him dead.

RUN-OFF WILL BE NECESSARY IN ONE COUNTY-WIDE RACE

HELTON AND HART WILL RUN FOR TAX OFFICE; INCUMBENTS ALL MADE SUCCESSFUL RACES

Only one run-off race for strictly county-wide offices faced Mitchell county voters, who braved dripping skies to cast an even 3,000 ballots Saturday, as tabulation for the July primary was completed early this week.

This one county-wide race will be Jack Helton of Colorado versus Bruce Hart of Lorraine for tax assessor-collector. There will be, however, two run-offs necessary in commissioner races—S. O. Givens and Frank Crownover in the Lorraine precinct, J. H. McCullough and Obie Bolin in the Spade-Hyman precinct.

Helton led the ticket in the assessor-collector race, receiving 1,260 votes. Hart's count was 883 votes. Third in line was Gilbert Leach of Westbrook with 704 votes. J. G. Waters of Conaway received 136 votes.

In every county-wide race where incumbents sought reelection they were successful, although only one of them was asking for the traditional second term. This one was B. N. Carter, successful over Joe Earnest for county attorney.

A. F. King was returned to the county judgeship for his fourth term in a close race over W. W. Porter. King was defeated in 1934 after his first two terms, but was returned to office in 1936. J. H. Ballard, running for his fifth term, defeated Harry Pond for district clerk. Seeking a third term as county clerk, J. M. Herrington defeated Floyd Quinney by a safer margin than the six votes that gave him victory over Quinney four years ago. R. E. Gregory retained the sheriff's office for his seventh term, defeating J. B. Pritchett.

Mrs. Ed L. Grubbs of Colorado won the race for county treasurer by a wide margin over Basil Hudson. Roy

FARMERS REPORT LEAFWORMS IN ALL PARTS OF COUNTY

BASKIN RECOMMENDS USE OF CALCIUM ARSENATE AS A SPRAY

Farmers in practically all sections of Mitchell county have reported leafworm infestation in their cotton following recent rains and damp weather, according to B. J. Baskin, county agent.

Even before the rains ceased farmers were getting their poisoning equipment into shape for use as soon as skies should clear sufficiently to lessen the danger of the poison washing off. Little poisoning was necessary in the county last summer.

Baskin recommends the use of calcium arsenate as a spray in fighting the leafworms. He says it should be used at the rate of about two pounds to the acre.

Some bollworm infestation is also reported in the county, Baskin says.

RAVAGES OF FLOOD WATERS IN BRADY WITNESSED BY COLORADOAN SATURDAY

Flood waters that ravaged the town of Brady Saturday afternoon were witnessed by John Mogford, Mitchell county agricultural adjuster, assistant in the office of B. J. Baskin, county agent.

Mogford left here Friday evening for his home in Menard, planning to cast his vote there Saturday. Due to the floods he arrived Sunday morning at 8 o'clock—too late to do what he'd started home to do, but the destruction he'd witnessed enroute kept him from worrying about a little thing like not getting to vote, he said Monday.

The bus on which Mogford traveled was turned back by flood waters the other side of San Angelo, and was re-routed via Ballinger, Coleman and Brady. It reached Brady on Saturday afternoon just as traffic over the bridge spanning the usually harmless Brady creek in the heart of Brady was stopped. Water then was lapping at the top of the bridge, Mogford says, and he and other bus-passengers watched while the swift current rose swiftly over the bridge and into Brady streets at the rate of two feet an hour.

They kept watching while Brady homes were torn from their foundations and floated down main street, where water surged from six to eight feet deep. The creek which was rampaging through the town emptied into the San Saba river about 20 miles below Brady. The flood followed in the wake of more than 12 inches rainfall in the area west of Brady. Mogford declared that newspaper stories of the flood were not exaggerated in the least.

After staying in Brady from 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon until 11:30 Saturday night, the bus load of passengers were taken to Mason for the night. Before going to Mason they had a scrambled egg supper at the home of a Brady housewife.

Mogford arrived at his home near Menard Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. Menard, too, was suffering flood damage from the San Saba river, but to no such extent as Brady had been. Water had risen about three feet in the Menard business section, but was receding Sunday. No homes were destroyed there. Mogford started back to Colorado after having "chicken dinner" with his people, arriving here Sunday night.

BROTHER OF JOHN BAZE IS UNDERGOING SURGERY

Word has been received by John Baze, mechanical superintendent of The Record, that his brother, W. E. Baze of Denver, Colorado, is to undergo surgery Friday for a brain tumor.

The Colorado man and his two Snyder brothers, Boss and B. L. Baze, were called to the ill man's bedside in Denver last Tuesday night. They returned home Sunday, but Boss Baze went back to Denver to be with his brother through the operation. W. E. Baze has been living in Denver 18 years. He is employed by the Union Pacific railroad.

A special commission to represent him in organizing Brazil's exhibit at the 1939 World's Fair of the West on Treasure Island, has been appointed by President Getulio Vargas.

MAYOR SADLER WILL ATTEND AUSTIN CONFERENCE ON UNDERGROUND WATER

Since Colorado depends entirely on underground streams for its water supply, Mayor J. A. Sadler will be among the city officials and others from all over the state attending a conference on Texas' underground water supply in Austin Saturday.

The following statement in connection with the conference has been issued: "The Texas Planning Board has repeatedly called attention to the rapidly diminishing supply of underground water in Texas. Several sections of the State even now are facing serious difficulties in obtaining sufficient underground water to meet the demands of industrial and domestic users.

"The importance of underground water is seen in the fact that three out of every five persons in Texas are dependent upon water which is drawn from the ground. Eight of the larger cities in the State are dependent entirely upon underground water. Numerous rich agricultural regions rely entirely on underground water for irrigation purposes.

"Research by the planning board and other agencies interested in natural resources has proven the fallacy of the popular belief that underground water is inexhaustible. Underground water can be used faster than even a provident Nature can replenish the supply and this is what is happening in many parts of Texas today. The water is being taken from the ground faster than Nature can replace it.

"Immediate conservation steps are necessary if Texas is to be insured a continuing and adequate supply of underground water. Just what those steps should be will be discussed at a statewide meeting in Austin on July 29 of all persons interested in underground water. The meeting was called by Gov. James V. Allred who is vitally interested in a sound and constructive program for the conservation, and proper utilization of the natural resources of Texas."

QUINTON HAMRICK IS AWARDED LONE STAR DEGREE AT FFA MEET

Awarding of the Lone Star Farmer degree to Quinton Hamrick, president of the Colorado High School Future Farmer chapter during the year just closed, was a highlight of the state FFA convention in El Paso for the five Colorado boys who attended with their instructor, F. C. Shillingburg, and his wife.

Hamrick received his award at the convention banquet held on Thursday night. He and 101 other Texas FFA boys who rated this honor out of the approximately 22,000 FFA boys in the state were featured guests at the banquet.

To merit the Lone Star Farmer award Hamrick had to meet requirements which include the following: Satisfactory completion of two years vocational agriculture instruction; pass some occupational test supplied by the state staff; earn $200.00 from supervised farming program; be familiar with parliamentary procedure; hold group discussion forty minutes; represent local school in some event; have held responsible position in student or chapter activities.

Raymond Fuller attended the convention as retiring state treasurer. Others going in addition to Hamrick and Fuller were Ross Glover, Corley Rogers, and J. F. McCabe. They stopped for a trip through Carlsbad Caverns enroute to the convention. The return trip was made Saturday afternoon. Temple was chosen as the next convention place.

The Colorado boys who were to have attended to play in the state FFA band were unable to go to the convention, Shillingburg reports.

RURAL BOX CLEAN-UP WEEK TO BE OBSERVED

Observance of "Clean up rural mail box week" in Mitchell county has been announced by Postmaster J. Y. Fraser. The week begins nationally on Monday, August 1, and lasts through the week.

Object of the observance is to correct unsatisfactory situations such as nonregulation, old type boxes and makeshift receptacles exposing mail to the elements, and to encourage rural patrons to possess pride in their boxes.

Among prime requirements of rural mail boxes are that they be situated on the right side of the road conveniently so that the mail carrier will not have to leave his conveyance; that the box be weatherproof, neatly erected, neatly stencilled and tidy in appearance.

Postmaster Fraser said rural carriers would gladly cooperate with patrons in cleaning up their boxes.

OFFICE GIRL

By Patrick Brigham

Mary and Jean pushed their way through the noonday crowds of the financial district to the tea-room where they usually lunched. It was crowded, as usual, and nearly ten minutes passed before they were finally seated.

"How's the big handsome Cough-Drop King today?" asked Jean. "Still fighting off his creditors and working you to death, Mary?" "Oh, I do wish there'd be an epidemic of colds so he could sell some of those darn things," Mary replied. "He tries so hard. But he hasn't enough money to advertise them properly. That man who was going to put some money into the business got cold feet, and the poor boy is up against the wall. The cough-drops are really good, too. Here, I've got a package in my bag. I want you to try one."

Jean chortled. "So you'd spoil my lunch to make me taste them? To think that the shy, demure Mary Telford I knew in grade school would become a super-salesman—for cough-drops! No, I won't spoil my conscience. But I will take the package back to the boss, as I said I would. Don't be too hopeful, however. If your young god couldn't sell to the purchasing agent for Rhineland Drug Stores, don't expect that gentleman's secretary to beard the lion. But you can't tell—maybe he'll hear my plea and send you an order for a trial gross or two."

"Oh, Jean, that would be wonderful. To get them into all the stores of the Rhineland chain would give them a chance. Even a trial order would give Mr. Hill a new lease on life."

Jean looked sharply at her enthusiastic companion.

"You don't have to call him 'Mister' to me. I can read the truth in your eyes. Well, darling, I'll try to help you get a break."

Both girls hurried through their lunch, and Jean, with a knowing wink, left Mary at the door. On her way back to her office, Mary paused at a "one-arm joint" and procured the sandwich which her boss, Chet Hill, had asked her to bring back to him.

Reaching the little office, she hurried in with a smile on her face—then stopped short. Sitting on Chet Hill's desk, was a gorgeous blonde creature. She turned casually to survey Mary.

Chet rose. "Oh—Miss Telford, I want you to know an old friend of mine, Miss Deibridge, who is paying us a flying visit. I've already converted her to Snow Drops, the cough-drops that 'cool and soothe'."

"Awfully glad to know you," murmured Miss Deibridge, gazing at Mary with a languid smile. Mary felt more uncomfortable each minute, but politely acknowledged the introduction.

Miss Deibridge hopped off the desk and stood for a moment with her hand on Chet's shoulder.

"Well, Chet, old dear, I must be running along. You'll be sure to come to my dinner tonight, won't you? You know, Father could do a lot for you if you approach him in the right way." She smiled archly, and gathered up her things to depart.

When she was gone, Chet turned to Mary excitedly.

"Gee, kid, wouldn't it be great if Elise's old man would put some dough into this thing. Oh boy! National advertising campaign, distribution all over the country! The Snow Drop Company would be made! Wouldn't that be swell?"

Mary bit her lip and flushed.

"Yes, it would be fine." "Elise is a great kid," Chet continued. "I knew her at school. Say, did you bring my sandwich? Oh—thanks, Mary."

The afternoon was a slow century to Mary. She forced herself to smile with Chet at his optimistic pronouncements. But she knew "that girl" was just looking for a new playmate. And in the long run, her interest and money would sap Chet's initiative and desire to get ahead on his own. Then she'd let him down as fast as she picked him up—and he'd be ruined for work.

That night, Jean phoned Mary.

"Listen, Mary, the boss likes your Snow Drops. He passed them around to several of the officials and they liked them. I got him in a good mood and then fed him a line. There's a signed order in the mail tonight for ten gross. How do you like that?"

"Oh, Jean! It's wonderful! I can't tell you how much I want to thank you."

"Never mind, darling. Good luck to you, too!" She laughed meaningly and rang off.

The next morning, Mary was down at the office bright and early to get the mail the moment it came in. Ten minutes later, she was thumbing through the bills and circulars. There it was! She tore open the letter, and her unsteady hands held the order from Rhineland Drug Stores, Inc. She heard a step outside and hastily pushed the order under her blotter.

Chet walked in. But his usual brisk manner was lacking this morning. His eyes were bloodshot and had dark circles under them.

"Morning, Mary." He flopped into his desk chair. "Wod, what a hang-over!"

"How was Miss Deibridge's party?" Mary asked cautiously.

"Oh, all right, I guess. Her father turns out to be a director of the Jones Brothers Cough Drop Company among his many other activities. He's interested all right. In fact, he's perfectly willing to buy our name and the whole shebang—if he can get it for about a dollar and ninety-eight cents!"

"I guess we're all washed up, Mary. I've got so many debts I don't know where to turn. I'm afraid we'd better give up the ghost. But I'm hanged if I'll give it to Mr. Deibridge for nothing!"

Mary smiled, and reached under her blotter.

"We're not going to give it up to anybody. Here's a signed order from the biggest drug chain in the State for ten gross of Snow Drops!"

Chet's eyes popped. He was out of his chair in a wink and staring at the order Mary held out to him.

"Mary! How did you get this? Marschner up there wouldn't even talk to me!"

Mary explained. "I had lunch yesterday with his secretary—and—"

"But Chet was dancing her around the room. 'Will we go places! We can do it now, Mary. This is the break. We'll make people forget there is a Jones Brothers brand. Gee, Mary, you're wonderful!'"

TAXABLE VALUATIONS IN STATE SHOW BIG GAINS

AUSTIN.—Texas valuations for state ad valorem purposes increased at least $67,253,300 in the past year.

Comptroller George H. Sheppard announced today a preliminary estimate of new property valuations in 227 counties and those for last year in the remaining 27 subdivisions which have not reported totaled $3,445,927,851.

The figures are those of county assessors and are submitted for consideration by the automatic tax board which soon will set the 1938 state ad valorem tax rate.

Reviewing the increased valuations, Sheppard said the largest gains were associated with those counties in which the oil industry expanded during the past year.

CASA MANANA IS TO BE FULL OF MUSIC, COLOR

Once more the world's amusement seekers will throng to Fort Worth for Casa Manana. Starting its third triumphant year Friday night, July 29th, when Wayne King and his celebrated orchestra, Morton Downey, famous stage, screen and radio star, and a host of other luminaries, will be offered in what promises to be the most pretentious program of big time entertainment ever seen in the Southwest.

Mirth and melody will fill the air. Bounding acrobats, cheerful comics, lovely dancers, golden-voiced singers, and Texas' all star dancing beauties, 52 in all, and coming from all points in the Lone Star State, will be presented in the cleverly designed Paul Osgard routines which will spice and space the feature attractions.

Incoming Casa Manana patrons will observe many innovations installed for their comfort by the new management. Seating space and tables have been rearranged, numbered and placed in position so that each diner has a clear and unobstructed view of the giant stage, on which will be presented the five hours of entertainment scheduled.

Campaign Makes Money: Austin—W. Lee O'Daniel's race for governor showed a profit, his campaign statement revealed here. He spent $5,791 in the race and contributions placed in the barrels passed around by his pretty daughter, Molly, at the rallies brought $6,588.

THE COLORADO THAT USED TO BE 25 Years Ago 15 Years Ago

25 YEARS AGO: From The Record for Aug. 8, 1938. 'Muns Mows Them Down' read a headline story on baseball. 'Muns (Harvey) did some fine work in the box,' read the story beneath that headline.

15 YEARS AGO: From The Record for July 27, 1938. Pipeline production in the West-brook oil field had reached a new high. 'Thirty-one cars had already been run out during July.'

Plans for the organization of an aero club here were being worked out by S. A. Sloan of the Sloan Oil company. He was buying a new plane. The families of J. L. Pidgeon, Sam Wulfjen, and Chester Jones were fishing on the Llano.

Given surgery at the Colorado sanitarium that week had been Gladys Roach of Colorado, Irvin Strain of Loraine, Mrs. N. J. Richburg of Loraine, Vera Andrews of Colorado, Mrs. Lucille Paulk of Loraine, John Houston Lupton of Colorado, John Murphy of Westbrook, Reginald Compton of Loraine, Jess Davis of Snyder, the John Dunn baby of Colorado.

his associate, Lauretta Jefferson, the vaudeville attractions, whose routines have been worked up by King's orchestra and the alternate band will be ready for the Friday opening in its entirety. The new costumes, brought directly from New York and designed especially for the 1938 Casa Manana, are colorful to an extreme, and the Spanish costumes very picturesque.

The atmospheric production overture, which opens the show, features some of the hits of yesterday such as 'The Night is Young,' and 'The Last Mile,' but also includes a group of modern numbers especially written and incorporated into the score for the 1938 edition.

Officials in charge of production have outlined the show to start at 7:45, with dancing on the giant stage until 8:15. The show itself starts soon after, and continues, with dancing interpolated, until 11:30, when the gorgeous finale concludes the show.

The first week's program will be featured by added bits, such as the honoring of State dignitaries and well-known personages, and the attendance of several out-of-town booster delegations, who will be honoring girls from their respective communities who are appearing in Casa Manana routines.

NOTICE TO THE QUALIFIED VOTERS OF THE CITY OF COLORADO

There has been called an election on July 29, for the purpose of letting the qualified voters of the City of Colorado pass on whether or not the City Council shall be authorized to issue bonds on the City of Colorado in the principal sum of $60,000 for the purpose of repairing, extending and enlarging the present water works and sewer systems. Said bonds to bear interest at not to exceed 4% and to mature in 20 years.

The United States of America proposes to aid in the form of a grant through its Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works up to 45% of the costs of the project.

To pay the principal and interest on these bonds will take approximately $5,400 the first year, $5,280 the second year, $5,160 the third year, etc., which will add 20c per $100 valuation to your tax rate.

This is not written to try to influence you to vote either way, but to simply set out the facts in the case.

If authorized the money will be used to put the sewer disposal plant in first class condition as recommended by the department of health at Austin. To make additions to the sewer distribution system in order to serve East Colorado, East of Austin street. To lay additional water mains and to replace some 2 inch mains with larger pipe. To tie in all dead end water mains in order that the water distribution system might be a circulating system. To drill and equip two or more additional water wells on land owned by the City at the North water works and to build additional storage for 500,000 gallons of water.

At the present time there is no shortage of water in Colorado, the drilling of additional wells is a form of insurance that there will be no shortage. There is a need at present for additional storage facilities.

TOWN TAKES PRIDE IN HONOR PAID TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE DR. P. C. COLEMAN BY TEXAS TECH AT LUBBOCK

If Colorado had a gallery of honor, one of the most prominent pictures therein would be of the late Dr. P. C. Coleman, outstanding pioneer in medicine, religion, and education in West Texas.

Lacking such a gallery, the town is expressing its pride in the fact that a framed picture of Dr. Coleman, known for years before his death as the "grand old man of West Texas," is being hung in a place of honor at Texas Technological college in Lubbock.

The picture was delivered to the college this week by Mrs. P. C. Coleman of Colorado at the request of Judge R. C. Crane of Sweetwater, president of the West Texas Historical association and officials of the college.

Perhaps Coloradans remember more vividly than any others the hard work and long dreaming that Dr. Coleman contributed to the establishment of a West Texas college. Texas Tech became the realization of that dream.

Before it there had been other dreams, nearly all of them realized. Almost from the time Dr. Coleman came to Colorado in the early part of 1883 he worked for better education almost as much as he worked, as the doctor he was, for better health.

He is known as the father of Mitchell county's public school system. In 1890 he became president of the Colorado school board, and served in that capacity 16 years. He was re-elected to the board time and again after that. Colorado's primary school building is called the Coleman school in his honor. For years he was a member of the board of regents at Austin college, Sherman, and he gave liberally to the support of the college.

Perhaps the importance of education was emphasized for him because his own education was so dearly earned. Born in Murphreesboro, Tenn., on Jan. 2, 1853, he lost his mother when 11 years old and his father five years later. At 16 he was in charge of the meager estate left by his parents. His primary education was a sketchy one, received from country schools. He began the study of medicine at 19 under his uncle, and before he was 20 he was enrolled in the medical school at the University of Nashville. His education was completed at the University of Louisville.

He practiced in Murphreesboro for several years, marrying there and becoming the father of two children.

It was after his wife's death that he became so dissatisfied in Murphreesboro that he resolved to "go to the most remote place" he could find. That place, he decided, was Texline, Texas. He had started there when he stopped over in Colorado to spend the night.

Colorado then was less than two years old, a rip-roaring cattle-shipping town of 5,000 with accommodations for about half that many. Young Dr. Coleman spent his first night here on the floor of a feed store for want of better accommodations. He was called on his first case that night—it was, incidentally, to set the broken leg of a too-gay "lady" who had fallen off the west bridge—and he decided that, if doctors were so badly needed here, he'd stay.

His early practice carried him by horseback and buggy over the wild new country within a 100-mile radius of Colorado. During his medical career he brought more than 2,000 babies into the world. He was always active in medical societies, serving at one time as president of the Texas Medical society.

Romance came into his life again little more than a year after he came here. He met the beautiful Lucy Ham of Tyler, known as a belle of Texas society, while she was here visiting her cousin, the late Mrs. G. W. Smith. They were married in Tyler on April 21, 1885.

Dr. Coleman's definite connection with the establishment of Texas Technological college began in 1916, when he was made president of the West Texas A. & M. College Campaign association organized that year in response to a call issued by the late Thos. F. Hodges, then secretary of the Sweetwater board of city development. By a coincidence Mr. Hodges' widow, Mrs. Pink Wade Hodges, is also a Coloradoan at present, being manager of the Colorado hotel. Her husband's picture is also to have a place of honor at the college, for it was he who campaigned the state for the first appropriation toward the college that eventually became Texas Tech.

For 22 years, from the time of its organization until his death, Dr. Coleman was president of the Colorado chamber of commerce. A few years before his death he was made honorary vice president of the West Texas chamber of commerce for life, an honor which had been accorded to but two men before him. He was an elder in the Presbyterian church from the time he was 18.

All these things—education, religion, and medicine—were his "life work." Wolf hunting, a sport in which he spent many a wee morning hour until stricken by his final illness, was his hobby. He died on October 29, 1932.

His wife and youngest daughter, Miss Mildred Coleman, live in Colorado, as does his only surviving child by his first marriage, Mrs. J. Max Thomas. A son, Dr. Reaves Coleman, lives in Washington, D. C., and another daughter, Mrs. Roland Burchard, lives in Sacramento, California.

PAGE WRITE-UP GIVEN TO THE COLORADO RECORD IN CURRENT STATE PRESS MAGAZINE

A page write-up was given to the Colorado Record in the July issue of the Texas Press Messenger, official organ of the Texas Press Association. Accompanying the write-up was a picture of F. B. and Walter Whipkey, publishers of The Record.

The write-up follows: "For thirty-three years, come the last of September, The Colorado Record has been proving, in its own small way, that a country weekly newspaper can be conducted primarily as a 'business proposition' and prosper, as one counts newspaper prosperity."

"But let it be hastily explained that the term 'business proposition' is used in this instance to cover a multitude of related meanings, and among these dollars and cents can be truthfully listed as results rather than reasons."

"To begin with, there's a business man at the helm of The Record. The publisher, Walter W. Whipkey, son of the paper's founder, F. B. Whipkey, received his degree in architectural engineering at A. & M., and followed that work entirely for several years after graduation. All the time his father was urging him to return to Colorado and help him run The Record and the job printing office maintained in connection with it. In 1922 the younger Whipkey consented to do this, with the understanding that he should continue his architectural work on the side. Since 1928 he has had full charge of the work, F. B. Whipkey having retired in that year.

"The habits of accuracy and precision which Walter Whipkey had to learn in his work as an architect have shown up to advantage in his work as publisher of The Record. He expects accurate ads, accurate printing jobs, accurate news stories—and helps to get them. Press time is met each week, no matter what delays or handicaps may come along. Accurate circulation reports go out to advertisers and prospective advertisers, and accurate prices are quoted for advertising and printing."

"In line with its business-like attitude toward the newspaper game, The Record believes that a well-supported newspaper belongs largely to its sustaining advertisers, so long as those advertisers make no demands that violate the paper's convictions of right and wrong. When one views this belief with an open mind, one can see that following it will lead to good practices rather than evil, and that no real 'freedom of the press' is violated in so doing. "Conscientious advertisers wish to please the people, or they would not advertise—at least, that's the way The Record sees it. In striving to be a newspaper that such advertisers will use consistently, The Record believes that it will fulfill most 'good newspaper' requirements."

"For instance, in striving to be a newspaper that advertisers will use, The Record has to be a newspaper that readers will like, and this brings it directly back to belonging to its readers, after all. And that's where journalistic tradition concedes that a newspaper should belong."

"So strong is The Record's feeling for its readers that it frequently comes out with from two to four more pages of news than its advertising justifies in order not to disappoint any reader by leaving out his news story, large or small. This certainly does not come under the dollars-and-cents division of 'good business,' but The Record believes that it's a paying policy in the long run."

"Special advertising editions of the Record are few and far between. Walter Whipkey is innately wary of anything that smacks of 'high pressure.' He takes on no transient promoters of either advertisements or subscriptions. 'If we can't make the Record good enough for people to want to read it and pay for it,' he maintains, 'then it's just too bad for us.'"

"The Record leaves news of national and state interest entirely to the daily papers, believing that its readers are seeking only to learn about the comings, goings, and doings of their neighbors and their town and county. 'Locals' are recognized as the important details they are, and society items are given prominent display. Editorial attacks on persons or organizations are never employed. Sensational stories are played down or left out completely. "Although he is 'boss,' Walter Whipkey seldom gives orders, leaving each fellow to do his own job in his own way. Night work and overtime are taken as part of the game, and the 'boss' is never missing when there's overtime to be done. He's usually the fellow in the ink-smearing overalls at the back of the shop, melting metal, casting cuts, or working with the press. When an employe makes a mistake, his first thought is to 'talk it over with Walter.'"

"That's the way the employes see the boss. Here's the way the boss sees the employes: 'I believe that the Record owes much of whatever success it has had to the loyalty of the people who work on it.' "As for his private life, Walter Whipkey was born in Graner and came to Colorado with his parents from West when the Record was established in 1905. With the exception of the years he spent at college and his years as an architect in Paris, College Station, Quero and other points, Colorado has been his home since that time. He was married in 1913 to Lattie Buchanan of Big Spring.

"Whipkey has always taken an active part in civic life. At present he is a member of the Colorado school board, chairman of the Mitchell county parole board, a director of the Colorado chamber of commerce, a deacon in First Baptist church. He served several years as city alderman, and is a past president of the Colorado Lions club and the Colorado Country club. He and Mrs. Whipkey belong to a number of Colorado's social clubs."

HELTON 'CAN'T EXPRESS' APPRECIATION TO VOTERS

"I can't find words to fully express my gratitude to Mitchell county voters for the way they supported me in the election Saturday," Jack Helton, candidate for tax assessor-collector, said this week.

In facing the August run-off, Helton added, he wants to solicit the continued consideration of every Mitchell county voter who can conscientiously support him.

STORAGE OF SURPLUS FEED CROP IS URGED

ABILENE.—Taking note of the unusually bright prospects for bumper grain sorghum crops throughout West Texas, the Agricultural Board of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is urging that regulations of the federal soil conservation act be amended so that this feed raised on soil conserving acres can be silaged.

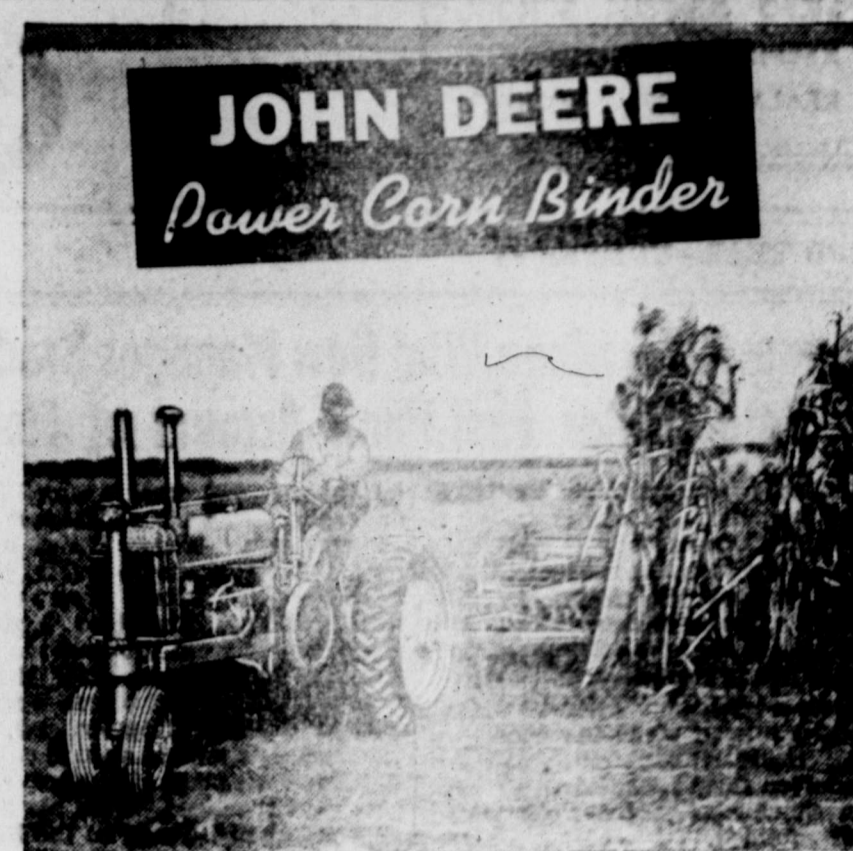

Under present regulations the grain sorghum must be grazed or cut for hay. Because a good feed crop is not grown every year, WTCC officials believe it would be good economics to lay something by in the good years for use in the bad years that may come.

"We believe such a change in regulations would not mitigate in any way against the spirit of the act in which we understand that Congress endeavored not to disturb the present dairying situation," J. J. Steele, Anson, member of the Agricultural Board says. "In addition, we feel that such a regulation is thoroughly consistent with the very laudable conservation aims of the government and would, in addition, perhaps save the government from making feed and seed loans in subsequent drought years."

TEXAS FARM POPULATION REMAINS ON EVEN KEEL

COLLEGE STATION.—Farm population in Texas is shown by a survey recently completed by C. Horace Hamilton, economist in rural life, Texas agricultural experiment station, to have remained virtually stationary in 1937.

There was an increase amounting to approximately 1,900 persons but the number of farms operated decreased by more than 20,000. The total farm population Jan. 1, 1938, was found to be 2,291,000 compared to 2,290,000 a year earlier, and the number of farms fell from 492,956 to 478,000.

"This decrease in the number of farms," Hamilton said, "is due largely to the increase in farm tractors and to the consequent consolidation of farms into larger units. In the last two years the number of tractors increased approximately 35 per cent."

The number of tractors in use on Texas farms in 1937 was estimated by farm implement news at 93,962.

Increased farm births totaling 59,000 against 29,000 deaths gave farm population a gain of 30,000. However, migration from farm to city and city to farm showed a loss of 46,000 in favor of the city.

Movements from farms in other states to Texas farms and the reverse movement gave Texas a gain of 2,900 for a net increase of 1,000.

RETURNING FROM MAYOS

A card received from Mrs. John Arnett by relatives of Mr. Arnett Wednesday stated Mr. Arnett had been dismissed from the Mayo Brothers hospital in Rochester, Minn., on Saturday and that the doctors were to give him a final report on Monday. None of the doctors contacted had seemed to believe that an operation would help Mr. Arnett's condition. Mrs. Arnett wrote, The Arnetts planned to leave Rochester late Monday or Tuesday, and stop in Kansas City to visit Mr. and Mrs. Dick Arnett enroute home.

SUPERB TECHNICOLOR SEEN IN 'ROBIN HOOD'

COLOR PROCESS HAS COME FAR SINCE 1914 EXPERIMENTS WITH 2-COLOR CAMERAS

By George Shafer
Within a big, blue-coated metal box, which is, roughly, the size of a small dog kennel, occur the processes that record motion picture action scenes in actual color.
The Technicolor camera of 1938 represents the third ripened achievement of a group of original patentees who in 1914 began their labors to make natural color possible on the screen, instead of black and white, which, all in all, unconsciously conceals or only half succeeds in presenting many of the realities of action, background and costume which strike one's attention so vividly when rendered with color fidelity.
The original Technicolor process reached the high spot of its formative development in 1924, when Douglas Fairbanks used it in "The Black Pirate." The Technicolor two-color process, which is now outdated by the highly developed three-color camera, reached the pinnacle of its limited power in 1929 and 1930 when Warner Bros. produced two great hits in the two-color medium, "On With the Show" and "Gold Diggers of Broadway," while Eddie Cantor's "Whoopie" was also being made.

Since 1932 the three-color process has wholly supplanted the out-dated two-color. Three-color movies were ushered in 5 years ago by Walt Disney's cartoon hits "Flowers and Trees" and "Three Little Pigs," followed in 1933 by the two-reel singing short "La Cucaracha." The current climax of three-color success is provided by the lavish Warner film, "The Adventures of Robin Hood," starring Errol Flynn and coming to the Palace theater Saturday preveue and Sunday and Monday, which in a way is movie history repeating itself, for the two smash hits of the preceding Technicolor reign of success, were as mentioned, two other Warner films, "On With the Show" and the original "Gold Diggers" musical comedy.
The three-color Technicolor process is a complicated one, but splendidly effective.
Let us take a look at this process, and discuss, in general language, how it works.
The primary point to start with, is the fact that every single ray of light is really made up of all colors in the rainbow. Together, all these colors make a ray of white light. Absence of any color at all gives blackness. The Technicolor process for reproducing whatever goes on in front of the camera in actual color, involves splitting apart the beam of light which enters the camera through its lens, and making each part of that ray of light take part of the picture. This involves three films inside the camera, simultaneously taking one-third of the picture each. The Technicolor process puts the parts back together again into a completed scene, in the Technicolor laboratory where they know how to recombine the divided fractions of a ray of light.

You might try to do that little trick yourself some time.
It's every bit as simple as collecting a European war debt.

"SALLY, IRENE AND MARY"
Palace—Friday and Saturday
July 29 and 30

Dressed in new clothing, this famous musical is a boxoffice bonfire of madcap merriment and tuneful melodies. It is an old story hyped with a plethora of star ingredients. Karl Tunberg and Don Ettlinger have concocted a potion that has three sisters, manicurists with stage ambitions, making the grade after a series of disillusioning starts. The hero finds his way into the leading lady's heart with a gay repertoire of song. He, too, meets a few setbacks, especially when the villain, none other than Louise Hovick, holds the purse strings. Gregory Ratoff, the baron with a bank-roll, makes a strong play for Alice Faye, once he lays eyes on her, but winds up on the arm of Miss Hovick. Put down a stellar cast as contributing ace support. Headed for top grosses. Wm. Seiter directed.
Players are Alice Faye, Tony Martin, Fred Allen, Joan Davis, Marjorie Weaver, Gregory Ratoff, Jimmy Durante, Louise Hovick.

"MY BILL"
Palace—Tuesday and Wednesday
August 2 and 3

Kay Francis fans will find no beautiful gowns or sophisticated situations in this story of mother-love, discouragement and sacrifice, but—providing the shock of seeing this erstwhile glamour girl as the mother of four screen children is not too great, and if audiences can take sentiment in healthy doses—they will discover that Miss Francis has found herself as an actress in a warm, moving vehicle. Intelligently written, never going overboard into the maudlin, it is a simple tale of a widow with four children. Wild and extravagant, she finds herself penniless. Her three selfish older children desert her to live with their aunt, leaving only "Bill," brilliantly played by Dickie Moore, to stick by her. Bill, with a genius for making friends, inevitably straightens out the situation. Crisply directed by John Farrow.
Players are Kay Francis, Dickie Moore, Anita Louise, John Littel, Bonita Granville, Bobby Jordan, Helena Phillips Evans.

"THE MAIN EVENT"
Ritz—Thursday, July 28

Adequate in all details, this stacks up as satisfactory action drama for the subsequent spots. All the events occur within one evening and there is enough excitement crammed into the film to serve its purpose. The picture is kept moving at a good pace by Director Danny Dare. Things start to happen when the heavyweight champion is kidnapped on the eve of the title fight. Detective Robert Paige and his girl, Jacqueline Wells, are at the ringside when they hear of the news. The kidnapers demand ransom for the return of the champ. There is a merry chase in which Miss Wells manages to get involved, and when the gang is tracked down by Paige, the leader of the coup turns out to be the champ himself. Paige does a good job as the lead with charming assistance from Miss Wells.
Players are Robert Paige, Jacqueline Wells, Arthur Loft, John Gallaudet, Thurston Hall, Gene Morgan, Dick Curtis.

"REFORMATORY"
Ritz—Sunday and Monday
July 31 and August 1

Another typically workmanlike creation from Producer Larry Darmour, this should hit the spot with Jack Holt fans and add another notch to this veteran's run as one of the screen's most competent and virile action stars. As the thriller end for duels its red-meat content should count on the credit side of the ledger. Holt is his usual able self, sharing the acting laurels with Bobby Jordan, of "Dead End" fame, who again portrays the tough, incorrigible youngster. Holt, a prison warden, is assigned the direction of the state reformatory, which has run into trouble because of the brutality with which it is managed. Taking over, Holt puts the kids on an honor system that works out successfully after he has defeated attempts to ruin him. Lewis D. Collins directed.
Players are Jack Holt, Bobby Jordan, Charlotte Wynters, Ward Bond, Frankie Darro, Tommy Bupp, Grant Mitchell.

"ELEPHANT BOY"
Ritz—Tuesday and Wednesday
August 2 and 3

"Toomal of the Elephants," Rudyard Kipling's clarion call to high adventure in the jungle wilds of India, comes to the screen as an excellent boxoffice potential. The boldly authentic photography etches scenes of unforgettable power. Historic highlight in this London Films production is the honest and easy performance of the 13-year-old Sabu as the orphan son of a family of elephant hunters. Subjected to

PICKED UP ALONG THE NEWS PATH.

It was quite a surprise to A. L. (Uncle Abe) Whipkey to learn this week that he has "passed on." It was something of a surprise to the rest of us, too—we thought he had been around all along. . . . The cause of all these surprises was a column in the Hillsboro Evening Mirror last week. . . . In the column there were some reminiscences of olden-day newspapering in West Texas, occasioned by the passing of W. T. Harris at Waxahachie. . . . The columnist, "Uncle Jake," wrote of Harris that he had gone "to meet those others connected in an intimate way throughout the years with West newspapers—Abe Whipkey, H. M. Johnson, H. B. Terrell, etc. . . . The column allowed F. B. (Uncle Fred) Whipkey, The Record's senior publisher, to live on "despite advancing old age."

Maybe a red-head, thus finishing out what is usually thought of as a perfect feminine trio—a blonde, a brunette, and a red-head. . . .

The papers lately have been bringing Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, who has charge of the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., into the headlines again. . . . I never read about him without remembering his sister, Leila Rosendahl, who was a senior at CIA the year I registered as a "fish." . . . He was famous then, to the best of my memory, as a survivor of the Shenandoah tragedy (I may be wrong about that—it's getting to have been a long time ago, you see). . . . Anyway, freshman that I was and unaccustomed as I was to coming in contact with people who were even remotely connected with celebrities, I stared at Leila Rosendahl every chance I got, wondering if ever her famous brother would come to CIA in my year. . . . If he ever did, I didn't know it—and you can bet that if he had I and every other girl on that manless campus would have known about it. . . .

Happy as we are that the rains came, it's rather a shame that the "Lorraine Night" program scheduled for the Ruddleick park amphitheater Friday night had to be postponed. . . . We thought it promised to be one of the best of the whole season—Lorraine is chuck-full of talent, as you've probably noticed. . . . And when Mrs. W. R. Martin gets hold of some talent the results are bound to be entertaining. . . . However, it's nice to have such a promising program still to look forward to—I understand the program has been rescheduled for August 12. . . . It seems that Lorraine had rather a lot of fun getting ready for the program. . . . The summer evenings over there were filled with music, lights, singing, and neighborly runnings in and out as the men's quartet practiced at one home, the string orchestra at another, and so on up one street and down another. . . .

If you don't believe Colorado was a version of Venice during the hard rain of last Wednesday afternoon you ought to see the pictures Harry Ratliff and B. J. Baskin snapped up around the city hall. . . . Portrait of a modern young mother: Mrs. Marvin (DeVada Barber) Majors skating and pushing her young son ahead of her in a go-cart—and was he having fun! . . . Lay Powell, who would be breaking a record of long standing if he confessed to having "plenty" of rain, admits that it's getting "pretty wet" in his ranges. . . . Don't forget to notice that unusual fence—cultivator wheels, plowshares, and every-thing—that has been built on the north of the new Gracey implement house on Hickory street. . . . Roy Farmer is living up to his name these days—he's really "Farmer" Farmer, judging from the amount of time he's been spending on his farm southwest of Westbrook. . . .

In the Winchell way: "Puss," the Safeway store cat, has five little "blessed" events,—quintuplets, in other words. . . .

A lovely trio, those daughters of the Pete Ainsworths from down on the Rendebrook ranch. . . . One's a blonde, one a brunette, and the Ainsworths are watching the fuzzi that's appearing on the head of their youngest in the hope that she'll numerous humiliating experiences, he ultimately persuades a white Sabu to let him go on a hunt for elephants. Stirring scenes of an elephant stampede will thrill any audience. Carefully planned exploitation should put this feature into the money bracket. Zoltan Korda and Robert Flaherty directed.

Players are Sabu, W. E. Holloway, Walter Judd, Allan Jayes, Bruce Gordon.

After seeing the gracious and dignified beauty of the modernized Palace theater at its opening Friday night, I had the feeling that we should have all attended in our formal evening gowns—those who have formal evening gowns, that is. . . . In spite of the dampish weather, the opening was rather a gala occasion, with many of the R. & R. "powers that be" in evidence and with everybody exclaiming and congratulating and examining. . . . Bobby and Ronnie Fee, incidentally, bought the first tickets sold for the opening. . . .

My apologies to the Church of Christ people for "closing" their meeting last Sunday night. . . . All that can be said for my mistake is that it was an "honest" one. . . . Several of those who heard the revival leader Evangelist Roy Cogdill of Dallas, address the Lions club last Friday noon declared him one of the best speakers who has ever been in Colorado. . . .

T. G. BRENNAND EULOGIZED
BY STERLING CITY EDITOR

From the pen of "Uncle Bill" Kellis, editor of the Sterling City News-Record, comes the following eulogy to the life of T. G. Brennand, widely known Sterling City ranchman who died in a Colorado hospital last week and whose funeral was held here Wednesday afternoon: . . .
"T. G. Brennand died in a hospital in Colorado last Tuesday morning and was buried in a cemetery of that city the following afternoon. . . .
"Rev. George M. Sullivan, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Sterling City conducted the funeral services at the Presbyterian church, at Colorado. . . .
"A group of old time friends from Sterling attended the funeral. . . .

EDITORIAL

LONG, LONG AGO

Elmo Scott Watson, editor of the Publishers Auxiliary, in his column reproduces the following:

In the early days of at least weekly newspapers, one found few display advertisements for the newspaper itself save as a last minute filler. Then space from a quarter to a full page might be used in saying in black face woodtype "READ THIS PAPER" or "SEE US FOR JOB WORK." As a rule, the only attempt to boost the newspaper came through the use of short paragraphs used as fillers or scattered among the personals.

Worst of the lot was the "poverty joke" long since banned by all intelligent and self-respecting editors and publishers.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING IN YE OLDEN DAYS

It is reported that one of the fastidious newly married ladies of this town kneads bread with her gloves on. This kind of a housewife may be a little out of the ordinary but there are others who have peculiarities of their own. The editor of this paper needs bread with his shoes on, he needs bread with his pants on, and unless some of the delinquent subscribers to this "Old Rag of Freedom" pony up with coin of the realm before long he will need bread without a damn thing on, and this state is no Garden of Eden in the winter time.

To save an editor from starvation, take his paper and pay for it promptly. To save him from despair, send him every item of news you hear. To save him from profanity, write your items on one side of the paper only and send it as soon as possible. To save him from mistakes, bury him. Dead people are the only ones who never make mistakes.

Miss Jennie Jones and Bob Henry were married at the Jones mansion last night. The bride is a daughter of Constable Jones, who has made a good officer and will undoubtedly be re-elected this spring. He offers a fine horse for sale in another column in this issue. The groom runs a grocery store on Main street and is a steady patron of our advertising columns. He has a good line of bargains in his ad this week. All summer he paid two cents for butter than any other store in town. They were married by Rev. Josiah Butterworth, who last week called at this office and gave us a nice order for handbills. He is also going to give some time to the real estate business and will write fire insurance. So say the business cards we recently printed for him. Jennie and Bob left on the 10 o'clock train for Milwaukee to visit with the bride's uncle who we understand has lots of money and a cancer.

A Brooklyn outfit wants to advertise in this paper and pay us with fit medicine. We will take it with content and blood purifier and conditions powders or anything else we need for man or beast, but we are notifying the world right now that we won't have fits just to fill our advertising columns.

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS

The heavens and the earth declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork. But no star in that firmament is as beautiful as the flowers. He has scattered over the earth for the delight of mankind.

How bleak and heart-breaking is a funeral without flowers, especially the ceremony at the grave. How drab and desolate Colorado would be without the flowers and shrubs that make its yards attractive. We see the beauty everywhere, or if we fail to see it here or there we pity those who are deprived of it.

When words are inadequate to express our emotions, of either pleasure or sorrow, we use flowers, flowers for the sick, flowers for the wedding, flowers for the dinner party and flowers when we would confer honor upon those we admire.

Sitting in air-conditioned offices or attic cooled homes we are apt not to appreciate fully this gift of providence, or, appreciating it, fail to realize the labor, thought and love required to make such beauty available for our convenient use.

Colorado has been made more beautiful by the influence of numerous garden clubs which seek to promote a wider appreciation of flowers and encourage the study of their proper cultivation and care.

Rose is Queen

Flowers have their season as do clothes and recreation. Violets in the spring, lilies at Easter, gladiolas and marigolds in the summer, chrysanthemums in the fall, poinsettias at Christmas and roses the year round.

The rose is the queen of all flowers. Martin Luther once said, "To the man who can make a rose the world would give an empire." No writer has ever described adequately its beauty and no attempt to do so shall be made here.

Whenever the impulse comes to say or do something nice for a friend, say it with flowers.

SHEEP AND GOATS

A new and rather unique industry for Livingston is the raising of sheep. Now that Mrs. Harry Bergman has made a small sheep ranch of her lot east of the Presbyterian Church Livingston can be listed among the sheep raising sections of Texas. Of course, there are only a few sheep to begin with, but the number doesn't matter particularly. "You see, I am not going to make a business of it," Mrs. Bergman explained with a smile. "It's just a hobby." A woven wire fence around the "ranch" will protect the sheep from vicious dogs.—Livingston Enterprise.

Mrs. Bergman does not say where she got her sheep and goats. We presume she got them from the membership of the Presbyterian church, that is the sheep not the goats. The scriptures have lots to say about sheep, but very little about goats except when little David with his negro shooter killed Goliath, it is said, "He got his goat."

Every country home should be surrounded by a couple of sheep, if there isn't room for any more. In the first place the Bible speaks more highly of sheep than of any other animal. It separates sheep from goats with an intimation that the sheep will be saved in heaven and the goats be sent down to the other place. Not that the goats are intentionally wicked, but that they are so much like most of us men, indifferent, crude, self-willed. Sheep on the other hand are responsive to the gentle management of the shepherd and learn to love, honor and obey him. In the second place, the sweetest poem in the English language is about a sheep, a young sheep named Mary's Little Lamb. The lamb loved Mary so he followed her to school one day. This testifies to the sheep's capacity for affection. No goat would go to school under any circumstances. The creature being illiterate and incapable of heart interest. In the third place, a sheep eats weeds and saves the man of the house a lot of hot work, in case his front and side lawns are kept free of noxious growth. But it is necessary to keep dogs away from sheep. Dogs are mean to defenseless animals. And dogs are not spoken of with high favor in the scriptures. The only possible objection to a sheep is that its hair competes with cotton. But the sheep doesn't know that. It is innocent of commercial aggrandisement. It lives to bless mankind but doesn't realize it.

A FISH STORY

Dr. Ratliff, Dale Warren and Kiker have just returned from a fishing trip to Devil's River, however that has nothing to do with this story.

One of our readers in a letter to this column suggested that Texas Baptists were running religion into the ground when they held a convention in Carlsbad Caverns. A bright quip and a merry, but folks should not confuse scenery with religion. The Baptists while in the cavern thought more of the stalactites and stalagmites in the cave than they did of the Gideonites and Hittites of the Bible. From Ardmore, Okla., we have a related suggestion which we perhaps should take up this morning. "Running into the ground wouldn't appeal to a Presbyterian," we are told from Ardmore. "Presbyterians prefer the mountain tops. They go each year to the Wichita Mountains for the annual Easter pageant, taking their overcoats and blankets with them in case of a freezeout. A place more conducive to the humble in spirit is Lake Murray, in Southern Oklahoma and near Texas, a splendid replica of Lake Galilee," we read. Lake Murray is a monument to Ex-Governor Bill Murray of Oklahoma, who wanted more than one place for poor people to fish in. He proposed lakes throughout the State open and accessible to those without work and without meat. If there are any fish in Lake Murray, it should be a popular place for church gatherings of all denominations. Fish are often mentioned in the Bible. Evidently they formed a large part of the support of the poor folk in Apostolic times. And in those times there were relatively more poor folk than available fish. It was then said the poor we have always with us. It looked then like an impossibility to make all the people well housed, well clothed and well fed. The same problem vexes us today. It has vexed every generation. No man, whatever his authority, seems able to abolish poverty. Big fish ponds, alive with fish, would help especially if the fish were eager to bite at worm bait. Those who are able to buy elaborate fishing equipment don't need fish, and should be barred from official fishing holes.

MEDITATIONS AT 78

I am just as dumb and confused as humankind can be, completely ignorant of political and social economy, sociology and all otherologies and isms. The only thing for sure is that I do know when I am hungry and want to live.

I have listened to financiers, and learned economists talk about balancing the budget, inflation, deflation, gold dollar content, fiat dollars, rubber dollars, and 59c dollars, depression and recession.

Writers tell me of overproduction and underconsumption, and technological unemployment; politicians have told me that prosperity was just around the corner, if they were elected, and I believed them.

Preachers have told me about the rewards of heaven for those who live a good Christian life here. The "Sweet Bye and Bye" sounds good to me, but what's worrying me now is the "Bitter Now and Now." It has got me in rags and hungry and my children are undernourished. I want to eat and live now.

Some of these days I am going to refuse to listen to explanations—why I am deprived of my God given right to live, and have liberty, equality and opportunity, and demand action—provided I have enough of the blood and spirit of my forefathers left in me, who settled America, those who took part in the Boston tea party, followed General Washington through Valley Forge, Trenton and Bunker Hill and the battlefields of the Revolutionary War, or the spirit of those who with Travis and Bowie in the Alamo, or with Sam Houston at San Jacinto.

I am not sure whether I have that spirit, it may become broken down; I have submitted so long, that I did not expect much or demand much, and I have reared my children thus. They and I may become as the Hindu in India, the Chinese in China, and the people of other Asiatic countries. I will submit to anything and deem it just a privilege to exist. When I get hungry, I will go to the woods and gather buds from the brush and trees, or catch snails or dig earthworms and make a pot of soup, and consider myself fortunate that I am privileged to do this, just as they do.

Yes, I am dumb, I do not read or think, I form my opinions on prejudice, listen to politicians talk, his promise of everything, and his doing of nothing. I hold my destiny in my individual hand. Have I sense enough and courage enough to perpetuate the system for which my forefathers fought, bled and died to give me, the God given right of liberty, equality and opportunity?

I answer the question by my own life and action, or inaction and indifference.

'LORAIN' NIGHT' AT RUDDICK PARK CALLED OFF DUE TO THE RAIN

Due to continued rain, resulting in uncomfortably low temperatures and very wet grass, the "Lorraine Night" program which was to have been presented at Ruddick park amphitheater last Friday evening was postponed.

Tentative plans are to present this program on Friday evening, August 12. Judging from the program schedule which had been worked out for Friday night, the Lorraine offering promises to afford one of the most entertaining evenings which the park program series has had this summer. Electric Rates Reduced Again

Use the SAVING to Reduce Your SLAVING

HERE IS HOW YOU CAN TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE OF YOUR NEW LOW ELECTRIC RATES!

Now that Reddy Kilowatt's wages have been reduced again, he can do more for you than ever before at no extra cost to you. Even though he has always been the most tireless, efficient and cheapest servant you've had, his new low wages make it possible for him to do away with even more of your household slaving without adding to the cost of your electric service.

Use the SAVING to MAKE SEEING EASIER

Reading, sewing, studying or doing any visual work whatever can be most difficult if the light is not right. You can make seeing considerably easier with only the savings of Reddy's lower wages.

Use the SAVING to KEEP FOOD FRESH

Reduced electric rates mean that electric refrigeration now costs less than ever. The saving in the cost of electricity, plus the saving in food, makes an electric refrigerator a real money-saver.

Use the SAVING to ENJOY ELECTRIC COOKERY

Perfectly cooked meals of any kind or description is an accomplishment of Reddy Kilowatt that can't be overlooked. When you apply the saving of your new electric rate to meal-getting, you are certainly taking full advantage of a marvelous opportunity.

Use the SAVING to SPEED YOUR WORK

There are dozens of other ways that the savings you will get from your new lower electric rates can be applied to your everyday activities. Reddy will do your washing, your ironing, your sweeping—he'll mix, mash and stir, make your toast and coffee, run your radios and your clocks. He'll bring you leisure, comfort, good health, convenience and an all-around higher standard of living—at wages that are now lower than ever before.
