

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

VOLUME FORTY

GOLDTHWAITE, MILLS COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1933.

NUMBER TWO

School Opens Next Monday

Goldthwaite public school will open Monday morning and the outlook is for one of the most successful sessions in the history of the school. A great deal of improvement has been made on the school grounds and about the buildings, sanitary drinking fountains have been installed and walks have been laid about the grounds.

Supt. Smith is new to the work here, but is by no means new to the school work and comes with high recommendations, both as a school man and a citizen. He and his excellent family have only been here a few weeks, but have made such a favorable impression on all who have met them as to inspire confidence in him and an enthusiastic belief among the citizens that he will put the work over here in a big way, building the Goldthwaite school system as he has built other schools he has served. He was at the head of the school system in Winters for ten years and voluntarily changed to Goldthwaite, which is highly complimentary to this city. He goes about his planning for the opening of school in a manner that proves he knows what he is about and that he has certain advantages and developments he intends to bring about. Goldthwaite feels fortunate in having secured him to head the school system and he can be sure of the hearty support and co-operation of all the people.

The faculty is practically the same as that employed in the school for several years and with the added experience the members of the faculty have gained by their connection with the school here and the latest methods in management and instruction secured by them in the universities and various summer schools this year they are all even better qualified than in the past to give to Goldthwaite the best possible in a public school.

THIEVES ARE ACTIVE

A good many acts of thievery have been committed in this county lately. The improvement in business conditions and the increase in employment does not seem to influence the activities of those who seek to convert the property of others to their own use and benefit.

Monday night some one stole Fred McClary's Ford coupe from his residence in Rock Springs community. Cards have been sent out broadcast and the sheriff's department has followed every clue available, but so far the car has not been recovered.

Sunday night thieves removed three casings from T. J. Collier's car, at his garage in the western part of town. Two of the casings were new and the other was good, although somewhat worn. No trace of them has been found.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. C. E. Bayley entertained the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church Monday afternoon at her lovely suburban home. After a short business meeting, Mrs. Wallace Stroud led a World Outlook program, which was of great interest to the women in their work for the church.

Miss Mary Bowles gave a very realistic reading, reminding the mothers of their courting days, so they would not be too hard on the young people of today.

Then Miss Mary Trent favored with a beautiful piano solo, after which Mrs. Bowles talked on how necessary it is for the church to furnish wholesome entertainment for the young people and the need of attractive self sacrificing leaders in this work.

After the program was finished Miss Ina Lois Bayley, the daughter of the home, assisted by a bevy of young ladies, passed a delicious ice course. There were thirty-six in all. Present.

Methodist Notes

With approaching fall, cooler days and nights, the congregations in our church services are picking up a little. With return of those who are on their vacations, we shall expect to be back at normal. There is one thing that always plays havoc with the church congregations, no matter where located in the state. This is the county singing convention. There is no use to reiterate; to tell the people how important the church and Sunday school. When the time comes for the singing convention everything else would just about as well close shop. In addition to the entertainment furnished by the singing on these occasions there is the opportunity for social cultivation of neighbors and friends and, last but not least, there is a dinner served that would challenge the appetite of an epicurean. These dinners are talked of and looked forward to with an ardent longing for the return of the next all-day singing.

The Woman's Missionary Society held a fine meeting in the home of Mrs. C. E. Bayley last Monday. The direct purpose of this meeting was preparatory to an aggressive campaign in church interest for the coming fall and winter. A fine program was rendered and refreshments were served. This was pronounced one of the most interesting meetings of the year. Plans were perfected to attend a zone meeting to be held at Lampasas next Tuesday, September 12.

Goldthwaite Auxiliary was asked to give several numbers on the program. Mrs. R. M. Thompson will give the response to the address of welcome. Mrs. Eli Fairman will hold the afternoon devotional and Miss Mary Bowles will read.

All ladies of the church as well as the society are urged to attend. PRESIDENT.

Everybody will be interested in the announcement already made that our public schools are to open next Monday, September 11. As Mark Twain said upon one occasion, "The trouble will begin." For one, I do not envy the one who is not interested in the success of our school. In a very large degree whatever our children are to be as citizens will depend upon our schools. Moreover the schools will largely depend upon the loyalty of our citizenship for whatever success may be attained.

In these days of stress let us all give unbounded loyalty to our teachers and to the children who are committed to their care.

J. S. BOWLES

REV. LAMBERT TRANSFERRED

Rev. S. D. Lambert, who was a popular pastor in this city a few years ago, serving the Methodist church, is to transfer from the West Texas conference of that church to the Arizona conference next week and will be stationed at Bowles Memorial church in Phoenix, Arizona. He moved from Goldthwaite to Eagle Lake and was later appointed to the pastorate of the church at Bertram, where he is now located. He and his family are decidedly popular in and around Goldthwaite and we are all glad to know of his deserved promotion, while we regret his transfer from this conference. His daughter, Miss Virginia, is in training for a nurse at Kings Daughters hospital in Temple and will remain at that place.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

The Corvallis, Oregon, Daily Gazette of August 12, contains a write up of the thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schweining of that city, together with a picture of the family group. The celebration was planned as a surprise for them by their 10-year-old daughter, Betty, and was a most happy occasion. Mr. Schweining is a son of Mrs. Sophia Schweining of this city and a brother of Mrs. Henry Martin. Several years ago he was employed here in Mr. Martin's hardware store. He is remembered here by many friends, all of whom extend good wishes to him and his family.

Tax Values Are Below Last Year

Tax Assessor W. L. Burks and his office assistant, Jo H. Frizell, are busily engaged in compiling the 1933 tax rolls for the county and find some very interesting facts revealed, one of which is that the total valuation in the county are $4,210,416, against $4,396,755 last year, a decrease of $186,339. The decrease is caused entirely by the lowering of the valuation of livestock and the low rendition of personal property. The county tax rate has been increased 10c on the $100 valuation and the state tax 3 cents, yet the total tax assessed is $4590 below that of last year. If all delinquent tax is paid before next year's tax rate is fixed the rate can be then further reduced. This, however, will depend almost wholly on the payment of taxes. If the delinquent roll grows or even remains in accordance with that of the past several years it is entirely possible that the rate will have to be raised next year. However, with good crops and fair prices, possibly a large amount of the delinquent taxes will be paid this fall and the 1934 rate can be reduced.

ZONE MEETING AT LAMPASAS

A number of ladies of the Missionary Society are planning to attend the Zone meeting of the district to be held with Lampasas Methodist church next Tuesday, September 12.

Goldthwaite Auxiliary was asked to give several numbers on the program. Mrs. R. M. Thompson will give the response to the address of welcome. Mrs. Eli Fairman will hold the afternoon devotional and Miss Mary Bowles will read.

All ladies of the church as well as the society are urged to attend.

WHEAT GROWERS' MEETING

Wheat growers interested in the government allotment are invited to meet in the county agent's office Saturday, September 9, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of forming a county organization. At this time the allotment plan will be fully explained.

W. P. WEAVER, County Agent

Highway Work Will Start Soon

The highway department is preparing to begin work on highway No. 7, as can be seen by the advertisement for bids in this issue. This highway runs from Coryell county on the east through Goldthwaite and Mullin to the Brown county line and is one of the most important roads in the county to be improved. Already the county has provided the right of way and double the fences have been set back where necessary.

Some uneasiness has been felt in the county over the delay of the department in beginning work, but this proposed contract will hearten everybody and cause the hope that all the roads that have been surveyed by authority of the highway department will be improved in the near future, which will mean the expenditure of a good many thousand dollars in the county by the department for labor and material.

There is still some right of way to be secured on some sections of highways to be improved, but the commissioners court has very properly delayed further purchases of right of way and other outlay until assured of the highway commission undertaking the improvements some time in the near future.

A BIG WOOL CROP

Goldthwaite buyers estimate they will ship twelve or fifteen cars of wool and mohair this season. No shipments have been made yet, but several carloads are in storage and growers are bringing in both wool and mohair rapidly. Shearing is about over, according to reports and the price has been highly satisfactory and much better than conditions the early part of the season indicated. Sheep and goats are in good condition and the recent rains have made great improvements in the pastures, which causes the hope that stock of all kinds will winter without heavy feeding.

NEEDED STREET WORK

The city authorities are having some much needed work done on the streets in the way of filling chug-holes and removing surplus dirt from the sides left over from building the curbs.

Cotton Checks Expected Soon

The eternal question is "Have the checks come?" And "When will we get them?" No one knows, but our neighboring counties are receiving a few. Ours will surely come soon.

If checks come in the same order that certificates went to Washington, the following communities will get checks first: Center Point, Live Oak, Duren, Center City, Chappell Hill, Ebony, Mullin, Ridge, South Bennett, Pleasant Grove, Payne Gap, Rock Springs, Trigger Mountain. In these communities a few completions went in the second lot. However, it is not known in what order checks will come.

Checks will come to the county agent with instructions to deliver those made jointly to order of all concerned.

Producers having seed loans cannot get checks until the field agent comes and endorses for the crop loan association. He comes to Goldthwaite on Friday and those having seed loans need not call for checks except Fridays.

Landlords and mortgagees not mentioned in the contracts should advise county agent if they desire checks held until they come to the office.

A GOOD COTTON MARKET

Goldthwaite has sustained the reputation this week of being one of the best cotton markets in the state—or any other state. The price has gone as high as 9.20 this week and a considerable amount has been brought in. Cotton picking is under full headway and the crop will move rapidly now until the end of the season. Up to yesterday afternoon 440 bales had been received at the public yard here, while more than that amount has been ginned in the county.

The Parent-Teacher association will meet Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the school auditorium. A short business session will be held, followed by a program and social. Every patron of the school is invited to attend and meet the new teachers.

PRESIDENT.

Teachers Placed Heavy Loss In Storm Area

Again permit us to remind you of the opening of school Monday, September 11.

At the time of this writing high school registration is in progress and is very satisfactory. Indications point to an enrollment up to previous years with possibly a slight increase.

Tentative assignment of the teachers has been made as follows:

High School
G. E. Cloniger, principal and science; Miss Virginia Kerfoot, mathematics; Miss Love Gatlin, history; Miss Euna V. Brim, Latin and Spanish; Miss Vivian Campbell, English; Mrs. J. S. Bowles, English.

Grammar School
Miss Ellen Archer, Mrs. Sparks Bigham, Miss Greta Little, Miss Myrna Miller, Mrs. J. A. Palmer, Miss Lou Ella Patterson.

Mrs. C. C. Saylor, Mrs. J. T. Heim and Miss Erma Harrison.

If at all possible do your children the favor of having them in school Monday morning and each day thereafter.

Your faculty is anxious to serve you and solicits your support that our service may be the more effective.

A. H. SMITH, Supt.

A CITY AUDITORIUM

Last week the Eagle suggested the building of a city auditorium while the federal funds are available and while other cities and towns are procuring funds for buildings and other improvements. Our neighbor Brady is preparing to build a $20,000 Legion hall, Brownwood plans to do paving and make other public improvements and the state committee at Austin has a large number of applications for projects of various kinds. Mr. E. B. Gilliam, secretary of the RFC here, has taken the matter up with the state committee and while he has not received a reply to the request for information, he has placed the subject before the committee. The Eagle suggests that all civic clubs or other organizations that will be willing to co-operate in securing the funds and having a city auditorium erected confer with Mr. Gilliam and help to get the application favorably considered by the committee at Austin.

The storm that passed thru the Rio Grande Valley section Monday caused heavy loss to the people of that section and up to the present time twenty-two people are reported to have lost their lives. The property loss will run into the millions of dollars. Goldthwaite and other portions of Mills county are vitally interested in the storm havoc, as a great many people from this city and county live in that area or own large property interests there.

So far as the people here have been able to learn, all of the Mills county people in that section survived the storm, but a number of them suffered heavy property loss. A full list of the losses has not been secured, but reports have been made by individuals.

John Schlee and family live at McAllen, where there was very heavy loss.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Sewall also live near McAllen. Mrs. Sewall, nee Mattie Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Johnston of this city, wired her parents Wednesday her family was safe, but property damage heavy.

L. E. Miller, the jeweler, suffered considerable loss in the storm by the roof of his building in Waslaco being blown off and the awning blown down.

B. F. Geeslin and family live at Edinburg, which is in the edge of the storm area.

A great many more could be mentioned as living or owning property in that section.

Aside from personal interests, the people here feel sincere sympathy for the heroic people of the devastated section and will co-operate heartily in extending help to them. All Texas will join in helping that wonderful section of the state to build back. Relief agencies of every sort are at work and help is being hurried to the stricken people. The governor of the state, the federal relief officers, the military authorities and private citizens have united in extending help, but where 4000 people are homeless and millions of dollars in property values destroyed the task of relief and rehabilitation is immense. However, the people of this great state and the entire nation will prove their sympathy by bestowing help liberally.

Red Cross Appeal

S. P. Sullivan, county chairman for the Red Cross, received a telegram yesterday from the headquarters of that organization urging immediate action in securing relief funds to be sent to Red Cross distributing agencies. The message stated that the national headquarters of the society had already made contribution of $25,000 to the relief fund and suggested a quota of $75 for the Mills county chapter.

SINGING CONVENTION

The Mills county singing convention, held at Pleasant Grove last Sunday, was one of the most successful yet held. The attendance was large, the singing was good and the delegates and visitors all had a big time. The people of Pleasant Grove did themselves proud in providing barbecue and other meats for the dinner. It was a basket dinner, but the community furnished the meats. The liberality of the supply can be well understood when it is known that the house was crowded with singers and visitors in the forenoon, then dinner was served on the grounds. When the audience re-assembled after dinner the floor caved in, which shows how much weight had been gained during the noon hour.

The Eagle pledged the public last week that Pleasant Grove folk would discharge their obligations liberally and this proves the point.

The next session of the convention is to be held at Caradan.

A SALES TAX SURE

There seems to be no doubt in anybody's mind that one of the first subjects to be submitted to the special session of the Texas legislature, to assemble this month, will be a sales tax. This tax is commonly understood to be a pet measure with the state administration. Maybe the chief executives do not think so much of the plan as their advocacy indicates, but believe it the only system whereby sufficient revenue can be raised to meet the increased requirement caused by the voters authorizing the twenty million dollar bond issue. The advocates of the bonds declared an ad valorem tax would not be levied to meet the interest and provide a sinking fund for the bonds, so where is the money to come from, if it is the purpose of the administration to carry out the pledge of the bond advocates. It might have been that the voters would have authorized the bonds anyway, without the promise of providing the funds without the ad valorem tax, but the pledge was made just the same and the sales tax is now being freely advocated as the proper means for raising the funds. Business organizations in various cities and communities have voiced their disapproval of the sales tax, but if they had been as vociferous in their opposition to the bonds as they are now to the proposed method of raising the money possibly the bonds would not have been authorized by a large majority of the voters and provision must be made for their payment. If there is any other method feasible its proponents should let the legislature know about it early in the session.

GOVERNMENT ALLOTMENT PLAN

The extension department of the state's Agricultural and Mechanical College, co-operating with the national agricultural department, is sending out bulletins explaining the crop allotment plans and gives some facts that are worthy of careful thought, especially on the subject of curtailing production of the major crops of the nation. Among other things it says that the domestic allotment plan operates to pay producers a premium on that portion of the crop domestically consumed without interfering in the least with foreign trade. It does for the farmer what the protective tariff has done for the manufacturer in the past. The consumer pays a higher price for goods in order to assure the manufacturer or farmer a fair return for his effort. In the case of wheat, the increase in price of flour should not exceed one-half cent per pound. The processing tax on wheat is 30 cents per bushel and a bushel of wheat weighs 60 pounds. The philosophy back of the domestic allotment plan is a recognition that temporarily, at least, we live in a world ruled by narrow nationalism. Every nation seems to be waging economic war against all its neighbors. This combined with the fact that we have changed from a borrowing to a lending nation makes it difficult for us to sell our goods abroad, particularly farm stuffs many of which can be produced in other lands. If unprotected in his own home market the administration believes the farmer would be completely ruined during the years immediately ahead.

JUST RING THE REGISTER

A statement from Washington quotes William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, as saying that the hours of labor being inserted in the codes meeting approval of the federal administration are not short enough and must be reduced. It is doubtless the opinion of Mr. Green and his associates that all industries and employers are prosperous and should be made to share more liberally their profits with their employees, when the fact is that investigation will show that an overwhelming majority of employers of every class go into bankruptcy every year. Green and his helpers appear to be among those who believe the only thing necessary when a business man needs money is to press the "Paid Out" button of the cash register and take as much as he likes. They are evidently thoroughly sold on the thought that an employer is the enemy of his employees. The most successful business is that where employer and employees take a mutual interest in making a success of the enterprise, realizing that they are equally dependent upon it.

A TWO-EDGED SWORD

A proposition is to be made to the coming session of the legislature to abridge or abolish the state anti-trust laws and the exigencies of the times seem to demand it, but such a proceeding is fraught with dangers seen and unseen. If every interest could be trusted to be fair with the public and not take undue advantage of authority to get together and fix prices, both for products purchased from the producer and for their own products and service the state would be on much safer ground to allow a free hand to them all, but experience has taught the contrary, hence the legislature is on dangerous ground in doing away with laws that protect the seller and consumer. It is a time for the best thought of statesmen and patriots to be united in finding a way to protect all interests. It is indeed important to provide employment for the unemployed, but it is equally as important to protect them from trusts and combinations when they have secured employment.

RIDING A FREE HORSE

The newspapers of the country have long served as a "free horse" for every interest and doubtless will continue in the same capacity until the end of time. Politicians have been accused of being guilty of over indulgence in this pastime, but they are not alone, by any means. Every newspaper in the country is bombarded with propaganda from every interest and for every cause from the national capital to the small blind sidings—Podunk to Possum-hollow, and they get most of their articles "for the information of the readers" published free. It would be interesting to many people to read the editor's mail and see the varied causes calling for free service. Of course, the idea sometimes expressed and sometimes implied, is that the editor needs "something to fill up his columns," and they get a lot of it over, when they would hesitate to ask a merchant to give them a pound of sugar or a plug of tobacco and would be incensed to be termed beggars.

BACK TO THE FARM

The preaching of the "back to the farm" doctrine has become a lost art in this country, and well it may be, for the farm conditions have become much more attractive than the city or even small town living. With radios, telephones and flivvers at their disposal the people can enjoy life in the rural districts without the unpleasant surroundings of unemployment and the want for the conveniences and possibly the luxuries the old and young enjoy and need or think they need. The farmer now has every advantage his town-dwelling neighbor has and there is much less of the strenuousness of life on the farm than there is in the city or even in the small town. No use to preach "back to the farm," for the farm dweller knows when he is doing well.

THE REALM OF SCIENCE

MINIMUM WAVE LENGTH RADIOING

For several weeks Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, has been experimenting with "micro-waves." In some of his tests he has taken his yacht Elettra far out to sea and kept in contact by these ultra-short waves with radio-telephone stations in Italy. He has proved their effective range to be as high as 160 miles and he believes it can be extended much farther.

Referring to these experiments one of his assistants says that man may have entered a field leading to communication with other worlds. Of more general interest, however, is the statement that micro-waves are unaffected by atmospheric disturbances.

Solution of the problem of blending these short waves so that they will follow the earth's curvature instead of travelling in a straight line will bring us, in the words of Marconi, "to the eve of an era of wireless communication of hitherto undreamed-of cheapness." Will it also bring us to an era in which static will be eliminated from radio programs? That is the hope raised by his description of these tests before the Royal Academy in Rome. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Winter is coming on and the family of Martin Bodker, 55-year-old dairyman, is hopefully awaiting word that Los Angeles physicians can straighten out the "short circuits" in his nervous system. Bodker, styled the "huff man radio" baffled Washington medical science with his undiagnosed affliction. Whenever a radio is tuned on near him, he suffers excruciating pains. Bodker's is no ordinary distaste for crooners or announcers. Specialists who have examined him declare he actually suffers physical pain. The human radio has temporarily solved his two-year difficulty, however, by carrying his own ground wire. In one of his paroxysms of pain, Bodker touched a water faucet. Immediately his aches disappeared. He had grounded his pains like an electric current.

KEEPING UP WITH TEXAS CONDITIONS IN TEXAS

The Santa Fe railroad bulletin of conditions in Texas says: With favorable weather prevailing generally over practically the entire state of Texas during August, crop conditions have shown improvement, particularly noticeable in cotton, rice, sweet potatoes and late feed. The condition of early feed crops is spotted.

Cotton picking is good except in the extreme eastern areas, where heavy rains occurred. In the extreme south most of the crop has been picked. General rains in the west and northwest late in August helped a great deal. Other sections have sufficient moisture to mature the crop. In the central areas stalks are growing too rank, with few blooms, while much shedding is in evidence. Insects are numerous, but little damage has been done.

Cotton picking is under way in the north half of the state, and is well advanced in the south half. Ginnings are considerably ahead of the normal figure for this period of the year, but many farmers are holding for better markets.

The government cotton acreage reduction program was completed in its entirety. The bulk of the released acreage was planted in late feed crops, which are developing rapidly. The state yield is expected to be 3,500,000 bales, a million bales under last year's crops.

Winter wheat planting in the northwest will be in full swing early in September. Ground preparation generally is better than usual. A normal acreage probably will be planted, less the government reduction.

A smaller number of birds together with a shortage of summer feed will result in a decrease of 25 per cent in the turkey crop as compared with last year.

Range conditions improved in August, but additional rains are needed to insure winter grazing.

Health Hint

CHILD HEALTH

Over 6000 children ready to enter school this month have been given physical examinations since the first of May, according to Dr. H. N. Barnett, director bureau child hygiene, state department of health. These examinations were accomplished under the program sponsored by the Parent Teacher Associations throughout the state.

These summer round ups of pre-school children were initiated by Parent Teacher Associations in 1925 and carried on in co-operation with the bureau of child hygiene; they have been so successful that each year has shown an increased interest in this movement. These examinations and corrections are done by doctors and dentists and this group of apparently healthy children showed at least one physical defect the majority of which could be remedied without much cost or loss of time.

The aim of these round ups is to have the child entering school 100 per cent from remedial physical and mental defects before the child enters school. Sometime these can be corrected by health habits of more rest, better food, exercises for posture, etc. The chief advantage of such health work is not only to discover such defects, but to help the parents to strive for better health for their children and to convince them that physical and dental defects uncorrected will prove to be handicaps in later life.

Dr. Barnett also stated that parents of children over six months of age should have the children immunized against diphtheria as soon as possible.

No one should expose their children to the dangers of this disease when the prevention of it has been so definitely established. After receiving the injections the child can be tested to make sure that he is immune.

THINKING THINGS THROUGH

By Phebe K. Warner

Another new school year is here. Thirty million children in the U. S. A. ought to be in school — where are they? What are they doing? And why are millions of them not in school?

Two years ago there were six million unemployed men in our nation. That same year three million school children filed through the doors of our industrial plants and work shops every morning, instead of marching through our school house doors.

Last year hundreds of thousands of our children were out of school because they did not have decent or sufficient clothes to wear. Other hundreds of thousands were out of school helping their parents make a living on the farm or elsewhere. Many thousands were out of school because of illness. Indifferent parents allowed thousands of children to stay at home and fool away their time. Tens of thousands did not have enough to eat at home to give them any physical or mental vitality when they did go to school.

Few institutions have suffered greater losses from this cruel and foolish depression than our schools and school children. Talk about economy and the misuse of our taxes. One of our worst wastes of taxes is building, equipping and heating our public schools, and furnishing the books and teachers for millions of children who never enter a school room all year. Another great waste is the result of irregular attendance. It is estimated that an average of one-fourth of the children who do go to school are absent every day.

But the winter fires burn on whether your child is there or not. The school books lie unused if your child is absent. But the teachers must be in their places and their salaries must be paid just the same if there is not a child present.

In a trade, if one person loses the other is supposed to gain. Not so in the school room. If your child is not in school today, no one is getting his share of the training or education he should have received. Not even his little brothers or sisters can get it and take it home to him. The part that should go to the absent child is LOST. Nobody gets it.

Mr. Taxpayer: Stop a minute and think of the millions of dollars you are going to pay this year, hard, trying year to educate

MORE RURAL AID

Texas has embarked on another rural experiment. A grant of funds has been authorized to pay for hauling students living in the country from one school district to another, when their own district lacks the proper school grades. For those brought to a high school, up to $2 a month may be granted upon approval by the county board of education. For lower grades the maximum is $1 a month.

Behind this authority is the idea that a definite allotment for students actually attending will spur them on to more schooling. Too many pupils are dropping out in the lower grades.

This transportation payment may be made to whatever person hauls the children. A bus line may be organized. Or one person in a community may provide a car in which a half a dozen pupils will go to school. For $12 a month a small car can be run to and from school month. And for the lower grades $2 or $3 a month will provide the main elements of feed for a horse, and small children may ride several miles to a country school.

Please notice the payment may be made upon a basis of those attending. The same standard should be adopted for the scholastic apportionment. The state would save a million dollars a year by abolishing the annual census taking, which all school men admit is an unsatisfactory method. The actual attendance would be an easily reached figure, and a just one. — Mineral Wells Index.

NEW DISARMAMENT PLAN MAY BE OFFERED SOON

Norman Davis is on his way to Europe with what is reported to be a new disarmament plan, sponsored by President Roosevelt, for the consideration of Ramsay MacDonald and possible presentation at the disarmament conference when it reconvenes at Geneva. There will be much speculation as to what the new plan may be, which can only be quieted by the revelation of it.

Following the final conference between the Ambassador at Large and the president, some of the newspapers intimated that Mr. Davis would carry to Geneva the assurance that the United States is ready to join with other nations in the control and supervision of armament manufacturers. If that be his instructions, the assurance would hardly be the new plan that Europe is expecting.

Yet it is hard to conceive of any new plan that could contribute more effectively to disarmament than the assumption of control over manufacture and sale of armaments by joint international authority. Such joint control as would prevent or regulate the sale of armaments to belligerents would limit the duration of any international conflict, and if exercised with unrelenting determination would in time make it difficult for any nation to wage war.

The European statesmen who recommended a few years ago that all governments take over the private armament plants went a step beyond the proposed control and supervision idea. What he proposed would mean complete control of armaments. Some day, the nations will come to that, and they will be nearer real peace than they ever have been. — Dallas Journal.

empty seats; while little children will work in all kinds of shops where men should be employed instead of children.

There is no meaner thief than the thief of time and opportunity. And everyone of us who sit silently and contentedly by and allow the children of our nation to be robbed of their education is a partner in the crime. The surest way to build up a better nation is to take care of the children of today.

Who is getting your child's share of our public school education? Nobody. If he does not get it, it is lost forever. If it were spot cash the government were offering these school children and some other child could walk up and get it there would soon be another kind of economic war, but it is not cash. It is LIFE, which is many times more valuable.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

VIEW OF THE NATION'S PRESS ON TOPICS OF INTEREST AND IMPORTANCE

THE LITTLE BROWN HEN

The author of a letter to the editor of the New York Times asks why the blue eagle has been selected as an emblem. He suggests that the little brown hen would be a more fitting symbol than the screaming eagle, with its predatory instincts.

"The little brown hen and her sister hen of every size, shape and color are an animated symbol of those traits that have always been held estimable in man; indefatigable industry, modesty and close application to the job at hand." While the eagle spends his days in vigilant readiness to swoop on his prey and with horny talons carry away the baby lamb or the suckling pig, the little brown hen serves man even unto the end, "as, when her egg-producing days are numbered, into the pot she goes, and Sunday is made more welcome by the fricassee she provides."

But the little brown hen would not command respect as a national recovery emblem. Besides, she is impeding national recovery. By close application to the job at hand, she has caused another crisis for the farm adjustment administration. Cold storage supplies of eggs and poultry are 40 to 50 per cent greater than a year ago. And no processing tax or other device has yet been found that will raise the price of eggs, which needs raising even more than some other farm prices.

In short the little brown hen is guilty of the most serious of economic offenses—overproduction. Such a bird should not be considered as the emblem of a national recovery program intended to build up the purchasing power of the consumer, while holding production within reasonable limits. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

COTTON REDUCTION

According to advices from Washington, the experts of the Department of Agriculture have completed the new cotton plan for next year and it calls for about 16 per cent further reduction of acreage, the limit for the entire country being placed at 25,000,000 acres. The limit for Texas will be slightly more than 10,000,000 acres. The plan contemplates reimbursement to the farmers for the acreage retired from production, the revenue for this purpose being raised by a processing tax on cotton domestically consumed. The effect of the plan would be to reduce cotton acreage in the United States to an area corresponding to the acreage of 1900. Acreage in Texas would be reduced to an area corresponding to that of 1910. It would be less than 60 per cent of the average acreage planted in Texas during the five-year period ending with 1930. The Associated Press says: "The present plan is to have federal financial agencies refuse credit to those farmers who balk at acreage reduction. The program will apply probably on the 1934 crop, and the Secretary of Agriculture may, at his discretion, continue it for succeeding years." "This means that so far as it lies in the power of the government to make it so the plan will be compulsory, and that some such plan will be put into effect the following year. Incidentally, the acreage retired from cotton may be used only for feed or food crops to be consumed on the farm. It may not be planted to other "money" crops or for the production of other farm products for sale.—Texas Weekly.

DRESSING UP

A calculating woman, who is handy with her needle and thimble, and has the knee power to make a sewing machine hum, can clothe herself becomingly on little money. And, by watching the advertisements, she can put style into her apparel, as well as save money by making intelligent purchases at the stores. Every woman has a certain artistic sense and she can express it in her personality. "Let thy habit be as costly as thy purse can buy," Shakespeare advised. He might have gone further and suggested that one's clothes should not only fit one's purse but also one's personality. Men used to wear laces and silks and satins. They wore knee breeches, gaudy stockings and shoes with sparkling buckles. Such habili-

PENAL STATISTICS

The old quip that while figures don't lie, liars do figure comes to mind in noting the decrease in penal populations for the last year. The department of commerce compilation shows that fewer men and women prisoners were received at federal and state prisons in 1932 than in 1931. The total was 66,384 last year, against 69,483 in the preceding twelve months, a decrease of 4.5 per cent.

The casual observer has noted no decrease in crime. Instead he believes that felonies are on the increase. If his ex parte opinion is correct, police vigilance and lax prosecution would have to be regarded as to blame for the penal statistics.

That the happier solution of crime decrease may be correct is supported by the report of New York's commissioner of correction which shows that in the first six months of 1933 major crime in his state has decreased 15.8 per cent. Our casual observers are deceived by crime news. Thus there has probably been an increase in spectacular first-grade crime which has served the useful purpose of arousing public indignation and indirectly police effort.

It goes without saying that if every American criminal were arrested, convicted and adequately punished there would be no let-down in prison reception figures. The latter, however, probably reflect approximately the relative number of crimes committed annually. Law enforcement is making some progress, an encouraging sign that both crime prevention and punishment may increase in efficiency.—Dallas News.

TRANSITION PERIOD

The certain prospect of a new system of dealing with the liquor problem in this country brings with it imperative obligations. Not only must there be worked out with repeal the most rigid plans of control in those states that legalize sales, but there must be protection against abuses and against lawlessness in this period of transition to a new system. There is a suggestion of possible abuses in authorization for production of 7 million gallons of medicinal liquor next year, an amount more than three times that of previous years. It is said that further production may be authorized for next year, if medicinal demand makes it necessary. It should not. Again, there has been the drastic reduction of federal funds for enforcement, leaving the amount for this year but little more than one-third that of recent years. Along with this has gone elimination of the prohibition bureau and transfer of its function to the division of investigation of the department of justice. Also, the number of enforcement officers has been reduced by one-third. These changes are accompanied with the assurance that enforcement is not to cease, that it will be continued through the life of the existing statutes. But it inevitably has been crippled. Enforcement by the federal authorities is to be confined largely to the sources of production; but the speakeasies and the bootleggers cannot be left to state and local authorities, which have never been active in enforcement. Vigilance is relaxed in the period of transition, the problem of setting up a new system of control will be greatly aggravated. The authorities should be aware of this danger. Regulation and enforcement will be necessary after the change. Preceding there must be exercise of the greatest possible caution.—Kansas City Times.

ments made them vain, foppish haters of work. Their garment did not express the native sturdiness of the male. Also the legs did not become short pants. Currently, many young men are dispensing with sock supports and allowing their brightly anklets to intrude upon the scenery. It is a sloppy mode, and if it were a passing fad, it might soon induce a slovenly disposition. A mode which implies neatness person and wholesomeness of mind is admirable and constructive. The texture of the materials is less important than the quality of the wearer. — St. Press in Dallas News.

PLEASANT GROVE

The Mills county singing convention met at Pleasant Grove September 3. B. P. Hurdle and W. W. Berry wish to thank all who helped in any way to make the convention a success, especially Ernest Benningfield and Melvin Crawford, for furnishing the good water and a few others who were so faithful in butchering and taking care of the meat and preparing it for cooking.

It was estimated that there were between 600 and 700 present. By 11 o'clock the house was crowded until the floor broke.

The barbecue was certainly fine. There was plenty of meat, pickles, bread and coffee left and we certainly wish to thank all adjoining communities for bringing their lunch baskets along. The next convention will be held at Caradan in December.

LIVE OAK

Howdy everybody. At last we have awakened to the fact that we can have things in our community on Sunday afternoon and night as easy as we can have parties on Saturday night. So everybody be at Bethel at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, September 10, to organize a singing class. Then everybody be at the prayer meeting Sunday night at Live Oak.

The blue ribbon side of the Live Oak young people's prayer meeting entertained the white ribbons Friday night with a social at Virginia Simpson's. Everyone enjoyed the games and refreshments. Their entertainment was complete and we hope it will fall their lot to entertain us again before long.

A large representation of the Bethel and Live Oak people enjoyed the singing convention at Pleasant Grove last Sunday. From the looks of the feast those people spread before us we concluded that if the depression ever did hit in that section the NRA must have stepped in and filled up the holes which it made.

TAXES ON ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

The state of Washington has voted for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment so decisively as to remove virtually all doubt that the required thirty-six states will have taken this step by Nov. 7. Efforts now under way to hasten the holding of repeal conventions may eliminate the amendment from the Constitution before the end of that month, and certainly by the first week in December. Hence, it is high time that serious thought were given to the formulation of sound national policies on the taxation of wines and liquors, as well as the methods of distribution that are to be fostered by the several states once repeal is a fact.

It is widely recognized that the vote against the Eighteenth Amendment reflects as much as anything disquiet with the regime of bootlegging and racketeering that it has encouraged to so large an extent. But bootlegging can be encouraged and stimulated by high taxation almost as much as by a total prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages. The repeal of the amendment must be backed up by a policy of moderation in taxation, if this desired result is to be achieved.

It is reported that sales of beer have latterly fallen off quite materially from the May volume, while sales of malt to others than established breweries, having dropped virtually to nothing with the return of beer, are again on the increase. Here is effective evidence of the tendency of high taxation to drive the alcoholic beverage trade out of its regular commercial channels. Fanciful suggestions have been forth coming from some quarters concerning the rates of taxes and tariffs that should be levied on wines and spirits after repeal is in effect. If exaggerated levies are resorted to, they will merely assure a new lease of life to bootleggers, who will then enjoy a great competitive advantage by avoiding taxation. — New York Journal of Commerce.

SAVED FROM THREE-CENT COTTON

What would have happened to the cotton market had the plow-up campaign failed? In the opinion of many, cotton, this fall, if conditions were maintained, would have sold for less than the cost of seed and picking. Opinions of this character are based on the August 1 cotton report, which gave indication of a crop of 12,314,000 bales after 10,500,000 acres had been eliminated. Based on August 1 conditions, the American cotton crop would have exceeded 16,500,000 bales had not Secretary Wallace and his staff made a success of acreage reduction. Estimating the carry-over of American cotton at 12,000,000 bales, should the 1933 crop equal August 1 estimate, we will have on hand 24,314,000 bales of American cotton, or 10,000,000 bales in excess of a normal year's demand. Had we not destroyed 10,500,000 acres of cotton, the estimated supply of American cotton would have equaled 28,500,000 bales. — Farm

CLEAR DISTANCE

The number of fatal and serious accidents which have occurred in Detroit and on the state highways in the last few weeks make a rereading of the speed restrictions embodied in the state law extremely pertinent. The statute says: "Any person driving a vehicle on a highway shall drive the same at a careful and prudent speed, not greater nor less than is reasonable and proper, having due regard to the traffic, surface and width of the highway and of any other conditions then existing, and no person shall drive any vehicle upon a highway at a speed greater than will permit him to bring it to a stop, within the assured distance ahead." Ask your selves, who are reading this, how many times in a week or in a day do you find yourselves driving at a speed which under the conditions of the highway you are traveling, would not permit you to stop to avoid an accident, if somebody else's car should go wrong, or some child should run suddenly into the street? How many times have you paid no attention to the duty of keeping an assured clear distance ahead? — Detroit Free Press.

FOOT-LOOSE BOYS

Among the thousands of boys and young men riding the freight trains these last two or three years a handful have turned their experiences to account in stories for the magazines and newspapers. A few were the work of young men with experience or training in writing, and the knowledge in such cases that their hard knocks would bring a cash return have colored their attitude. Very little of the real point of view of the wanderers can be learned from such reports. Yet it is of social importance to know how the homeless boys feel and live and what they are looking forward to. Perhaps there are not a quarter of a million of them, but there are too many thousands to overlook. — New York Times.

Peasant Designs Grace The Breakfast Cloth

IT may be because so many bright colorful importations from peasant hand workers in Italy, Spain, and the Balkan states have been shown in the shops, or because a cheery and engaging simplicity is the mark of the present day mode, but, at any rate, peasant designs particularly for table napery, are very much in style now. Like the picture shown above, many of the most popular table covers are being made of lacquered fabrics that are washable, stain proof, pliable, soft, light and have surfaces that look like linen, or silk, or other fabric.

STRICKEN UNTO DEATH

From the scattered information available in spite of disorganized means of communication it is apparent that the storm in the lower Rio Grande Valley ranks as a major disaster, the proportions of which are even yet indistinct. That there was bound to be large property damage was guessed from the beginning. The nature of the warnings indicated as much, but that there would be widespread loss of life was unexpected.

Despite the precautions taken, it is now apparent that we are confronted with a mounting death toll which may never be completed with accuracy. In addition the heavy rains have brought flood conditions to complicate a situation already desperate. The combined forces of the military and rehabilitation personnel of the state will barely meet the emergency. A path 100 miles wide seems to have been largely destroyed and, but for sturdy construction of a number of buildings, the lower part of Texas would have been wiped clear of anything except an occasional dwelling favored by the configuration of the land or the caprice of the storm.

The dwellers in the valley are among the most enterprising of our citizens. They have made a garden out of desert. They have shown courage and resourcefulness and faith heretofore and they can be counted upon to show heroism now. But they need aid and need it badly. Surely, all Texas will rise to the opportunity to show what a Texan has the right to expect in time of dire extremity. These stricken ones are our own, and their necessities are sight drafts upon the resources of us all. — Dallas News.

RUMORS OF INJUSTICE TO SCHOOL TEACHERS

President Stilwell of the Texas State Teachers' Association has made public the fact that committees are investigating reports that trustees in many smaller school districts of Texas are exacting a percentage of the salaries of teachers employed in their schools for another year.

It is greatly to be hoped that the investigations will prove the reports ungrounded or exaggerated, or that the districts in which such practice is discovered will be few in number. Teachers in the smaller school districts earn and should receive all the salary due them. The outlook for the teachers has not been too encouraging for the next year.

Having to share salaries for the privilege of holding jobs is an unjust exaction, unjust alike to the teachers and to the communities which they serve. — Dallas Journal.

COTTON FIELDS DRAW COUNTY UNEMPLOYED

County relief employment was brought to a halt the past week following receipt of instructions from Lawrence Westbrook, state relief administrator, addressed to county supervisors and which advised that all able-bodied unemployed be sent to the cotton fields or aided in securing other employment, and that the only relief funds to be expended were to be used in giving direct relief to those destitute or in need and who were unable to work.

As a matter of fact, the local relief director, had sent 25 men out into the cotton fields the day before the order was issued, and followed this by sending an additional 50 men on the day relief work was discontinued. This action was in keeping with local relief employment plans, which were to provide relief employment necessary to tide the un-

Desperado Escapes Jail

A jail delivery that was thought to be impossible was accomplished Monday, when Harry Bailey, one of the most desperate and dangerous men ever known in the annals of crime, escaped or was released from the Dallas jail and was at liberty our hour, yet was re-captured without bloodshed or even a struggle.

Bailey and others were arrested a week ago in Wise county, charged with kidnaping Chas. Urschel in Oklahoma City several weeks ago and collecting $200,000 ransom for his release. It was reported the day before he escape that $700 of the marked money paid for the release of Urschel had been found in Bailey's person.

When the Dallas jailer reached Bailey's cell on the sixth floor of the jail at 7 o'clock to give the prisoner breakfast, he was confronted by Bailey, who held a gun on him, having released himself from the death cell by means of a hack-saw with which he cut the bars that held him. After taking the jailer's keys he had very little trouble in reaching the street and, menacing the jailer with the revolver, forced him to board his own car and drive toward Oklahoma. When they reached the outskirts of Ardmore they stopped at a filling station for gas and there they were approached by officers and Bailey hurriedly packed the car out of the station, dragging off the service hose, and headed for the business part of town, and ultimately, the eastern portion of Oklahoma, where the Pretty Boy Floyd and other outlaws are known to be in hiding. As Bailey drove down Washington street, one of the busiest streets in Ardmore, he ran his car against the curb and crushed a wheel. He looked up to be confronted by three officers with guns held steadily on him. He made no effort to use his gun that was lying on the car seat beside him, but surrendered peaceably and was placed in the city jail temporarily. He was soon carried to Oklahoma City, under heavy guard and placed in jail to await trial, which had already been set for Sept. 18, and an airplane had been chartered to carry him here from Dallas.

An investigation is being made to ascertain if possible how Bailey procured the hack-saw and the gun. His story is that he carried the saw into the jail with him, having it bound close to his body by means of adhesive tape, while the gun, he says, was found in the bed he occupied in the cell. The sheriff of Dallas county, who was attending the fair in Chicago at the time of the escape, expresses the belief that the "trusties" supplied the saw and pistol. It is more likely some confederate was able to reach him. He accomplished what was believed to be impossible—escaping from the Dallas jail in the day time—and the wonder is that none of his confederates were in evidence at any time. He kept the Dallas jailer a prisoner in his own car until released by the accident that caused his recapture.

Bailey and his gang are charged with a number of crimes, among them the killing of a number of officers and one prisoner at the railroad station in Kansas City a few weeks ago. There are some mysteries about the escape that are hard to fathom. The pistol Bailey used was an old styled affair, when it seems sure that had his confederates supplied the gun it would have been one of the most approved and deadly weapons. Again, Bailey was stripped and thoroughly searched before he was placed in the cell and the cell had been combed for any possible means of escape, according to officers. Even though Bailey could have carried the saw blades into the jail with him, how he disposed of them when he left has never been solved. The saws were not left in the cell and Bailey did not have them on his person when he was captured. The jailer who was with him every moment from the time he left the Dallas county jail until he was rearrested at Ardmore, did not see the gangster throw anything out of the car or dispose of the saws in any way.

Chic Toilet Set in the Modern Manner

HERE is a delightful boudoir corner done in the contemporary manner and having, in addition to its very modern design, its ultra fashionable dressing table accessories carried out in the same spirit. Pyralin has been used for dresser sets for a long time but here is an entirely new development of it. Five articles are included although only three are here shown, and the design is called "Deauville."

The brush has a similar design with the same chromium handle and having, in addition to its very modern design, its ultra fashionable dressing table accessories carried out in the same spirit. The comb is in jet and ivory plastic. Tray and crystal puff box complete the set.

This use of chromium in connection with such plastic toilet sets is new and tends to give the articles, resting on top of the dresser as in the newest mode, a dignity and sophistication which make them immediately a part of the decor. The severe and beautiful forms of such contemporary designs are things to charm those who like a very modern decorative feeling in their rooms.

CONDITIONS IN CUBA

The new administration in Cuba is confronted with a large number of problems which are pressing for solution. One of the most important problems is to diversify the production of the country. Diversification, however, involves a great deal of expenditure and at the moment and for quite some time in the past the credit of Cuba has not been at its best. The public debt problem of the country is urgent and to meet the debt service it is essential to reduce expenditures and to endeavor to live within the means of the country.

The United States is vitally interested in the economic and political status of Cuba. In the first place, American capital to the extent of about $1,500,000,000 has been invested in the Republic. Secondly, the trade relationships between the United States and Cuba are very close, the United States being the best market for exports and the chief source of imports of the Island. Furthermore, the Platt Amendment places political responsibilities on the United States. To judge from the developments during the recent past, the United States is fully aware of its responsibilities. It did not endeavor to interfere or to meddle with the internal policies of the country and from the public statements made by the present administration one could see that the United States was primarily interested in the economic improvement of the country. That the attitude of the United States is of the utmost importance to the future development of Cuba is obvious. Not only is Cuba dependent for additional capital upon the United States but also the latter country is the leading market for Cuban products. What the future attitude of the American public toward Cuba will be depend to a large extent upon the steps taken by the present Cuban government to restore order and to reorganize the economic structure of the country.

So far the new Cuban government has lived up to expectations and it is hoped that Cuba will soon overcome the adverse effects of the Machado regime and return to a more normal economic and political status. — Business Conditions Weekly.

FACTS ABOUT ANIMALS

The flying lemur or galago, a native of the Indian Archipelago, leaps on an inclined plane a distance of over 300 feet!

Some other famous jumpers are the kangaroo, who is able to jump between fifteen and twenty feet on the level—and can easily overleap the ordinary hedges and fences. The springbok clears between thirty and forty feet at a jump—and the flying squirrel travels about fifty feet in the air before landing! — Dumb Animals.

VIEWPOINTS

By Florence Moon

Did you ever observe how different everything appears from a hill top? Just the filling of your lungs with the clear, pure air as you throw your shoulders back with the realization that you are up above the level of crowding, everyday affairs, gives you a sense of power.

Yes, and vision. For from your vantage point you have a horizon so much wider, a field which takes in so much more territory, that the little corner where you have worked, and planned and perhaps worried, suddenly seems most insignificant.

God has not given any greater blessing to man than a hilltop. With the new perspective the tantalizing perplexities, the anomalies, the difficulties, smooth out as do the small inequalities of the valley below you, and you feel in your heart that they are not the things in life which matter. Those troubles which had seemed insurmountable now are not large enough to stumble over, let alone to present a huge wall that could spoil a whole future.

Try it in a mental sense, if you have no actual, physical hill to which you can flee. It takes a great effort sometimes, to resolutely drop the problems that beset you, to ignore them utterly as you mount to heights, where you can think clearly, untrammelled by prejudice or fear, but the effort will surely bring its reward, for no vacuum can exist in a normal mind, and one idea or impression cannot be discarded unless you create another to take its place.

So, as step by step you raise and widen your point of view until you can distinguish the true from the plausible, the honorable from the compromising, your whole manner of life, if you have the courage to cling to your vision — and forever afterward that glorious hill top will be a thousand times more to you than just a memory.

STYLES IN NEW YORK

Fall costume jewelry is varied enough to suit every taste from that of Madame who lives for the latest word from the Paris couturiers, to her country cousin who wants everything pretty fancy. Throughout, synthetic materials and fabrics play a large part.

One main type combines wood and pyroxylin plastic. Some wooden bracelets about an inch and a half wide echo the vogue for striped fabrics by having inserted strips of composition in red, blue or green. Or a little group of alternate wood and composition bracelets might be bound together.

What with the insidious Chinese influence creeping up on us, there is an interesting group of bamboo jewelry, looking like a series of tiny pipe organs. Here, bamboo makes an effective accent on tan or brown bamboo.

The Lady Lou trend in hats and gowns has brought in some rather ornate jewelry. Matching bracelet and necklace sets are found in metal colored pearls, tinted to look like gold, copper, steel, etc. The bracelets have three strands of beads and are fastened with a large grape-cluster design.

The grape cluster motif is to be found also in brooches, clips, necklaces and bracelets. Jade, green or turquoise blue composition beads, or seed pearls, are the grapes, nestling among metal dipped leaves.

Heavy looking jewelry, popular at the beginning of this century, has been copied, and some of it is very good looking. One bracelet with simple, heavy links, has oblong insets of black composition, each inset having a seed pearl in the center. Other bracelets with large regular links have composition cabochons simulating sapphires, emeralds, onyx and rubies.

Another interesting wide black composition bracelet has widely spaced silver nailheads, while a flexible brown bracelet shows in its ornamentation the combination of silver and brown.

For evening wear, ornate pearl and rhinestone jewelry is often combined with composition which introduces the color note. An interesting ornament on a black velvet dinner dress had crescents of bright green composition surrounding a flashing rhinestone buckle.

A dainty blue composition and baguette buckle is the keynote of a charming bracelet and clip set for afternoon wear. The bracelet has three strands of medium sized blue beads. The clip is about an inch long and half an inch square, and might be used on one of these dashing new berets.

Corsets Continue Curving the Contours.

New fall reducing girdles have sleek outer surfaces and soft absorbent inner surfaces. Two most successful models are a front hook, back lace girdle and a "slip-on" with laces part way down the sides. Both these models are made of a new satiny, peach colored rubberized fabric, with little portholes all over for ventilation, and a felt-like under surface which is guaranteed absorbent.

The fashion for slightly drooping instead of squared shoulders, narrower waist and low, rounded neckline, will require girdles or all-in-ones designed to create this silhouette.

The transition from the square, broad-shouldered, pencil-bodied lady to the mermaid like creature presented in early fall openings, need not be too great, however. It will be more suggested than exaggerated, and the cut of frocks and coats will do more to create it than any forced alignment of female contours.

A new one-piece foundation of rayon satin eliminates the usual side-hook device by planting a slide fastener in a plumbline down the center front. Zip, and it's open or closed!

Another girdle has a brand new type of boning—little bones placed horizontally across the tum-tum with two vertical bones standing guard above them.

Smart Single Tie Sports Oxfords

One of the new smart single tie sports oxfords in keeping with the trend for pastel shades in accessories combines yellow suede with rich brown patent leather. The pastel shade of the suede is made possible through special leather dyes. A medium short vamp and discreet perforation trim further distinguish this particular model. They were worn with a yellow aecle crepe spectator sports ensemble, the dress featuring the new high square neckline, hand-fagoting and button trim. The cape, which tied in.

Style Briefs

The bandeau for little sister's hair is featured in New York shops in various new styles and colors, and promises to be important among the back to school accessories. They are often selected in colors to match or contrast the frocks—one for each little costume.

The smartest frocks in New York shops just now stress youthful straight lines in the manner of Worth—who features this silhouette in his fall showing.

A refreshing change from pink and peach underwear are the cool-looking new slips, gowns and panties in gleaming white rayon satin, trimmed with pure white lace or embroidery.

Pansy—a deep velvet blue—promises to be a headliner among new fall colors. In a simple V-neck frock, it is combined with eel grey. Both these colors are good now with white accessories. Later, they will be featured with dark tones. Grape juice, olive and violet are other new colors.

HERE AND THERE

One hundred and seventy-five applications, totaling $40,000,000 have been received from various towns and cities of Texas, asking loans from the Federal Public Works administration of the national recovery act, State Engineer R. A. Thompson announced in Dallas Saturday.

Plans for the building of the first astronomical observatory in Texas were announced Friday night by the president of the Dallas astronomical society. According to present plans of the astronomical society the observatory will be erected in Dallas within the next eight months.

An extra guard was thrown around the Charles F. Urschel mansion, Oklahoma City, Sunday after a large sedan was reported to have circled the block several times. The home has been guarded day and night since Urschel, oil millionaire, was ransomed from kidnapers for $200,000.

Declaring the flame-thatched U. S. Senator from Louisiana by virtue of his "recent pugilistic activities" may claim to be "the most picturesque man in America," the management of Coney Island's Luna Park Sunday sent a telegram to Huey offering him $1000 nightly to appear as a freak attraction at Luna park.

Clyde Kinsey, 33, Springfield, Ill., is a modern Solomon as far as wives are concerned. He and Miss Lois Shook of Omaha, known as Dixie Dare, torch singer, now plan to marry September 13, and she will be his tenth wife in past 16 years. She was his eighth before their divorce.

Chief Justice William S. Fly has observed the fortieth anniversary of being judge with the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals in San Antonio. The venerable chief justice became a member of the court 40 years ago. In November, 1912, he was named chief justice of the court and has held that post continuously ever since.

The Roosevelt administration came to its six-month mark Monday with farm plans pending or in force that contemplate the distribution of from $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 in cash benefits to farmers by the end of its second half year. As a result, prospects have increased that this year's aggregate farm income may be swelled by $2,000,000,000 over last year's low for recent years of $5,000,000,000, and that the trend has swung definitely from falling income to rising returns to agriculture.

Appointment of trustees for the St. Louis-San Francisco railway (Cotton Belt), was sought in an application made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on file in federal court in St. Louis Saturday. The railroad sought refuge under the amended bankruptcy law several months ago, after being placed in the hands of receivers. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation's petition said that "disinterested trustees" were necessary to carry out the proposed readjustment of the railroad.

Walter McGee, convicted kidnaper of Miss Mary McElroy of Kansas City, has been sentenced to hang October 16. McGee, 28-year-old leader of the gang, was captured in Amarillo, Texas, while buying an automobile radio with part of the $30,000 ransom, which McElroy paid for his daughter's release. Miss McElroy was kidnaped from the bathroom of her home May 12. She was held for twenty-nine hours in a little basement cell in a cottage a few miles from Kansas City, Kan.

In Dallas T. E. Barlow admitted Communist and once candidate for lieutenant governor, was taken unconsent from the county jail Saturday night and died half an hour later in the hospital. His death was caused from head injuries, according to physicians. Every prisoner on the fifth floor of the jail, where Barlow was held on charges of unlawful assembly, was questioned. He and two other men were charged with unlawful assembly, after a meeting of unemployed. He was transferred to the county jail when the complaints were filed.

CROSSEYES

THE WORST STATE TAX

While there should be no new types of state taxation instituted to raise revenue for the relief bonds recently approved by the people, we must especially guard against the plea that will go up for a state income tax.

For a federal income tax much may be said, since it can be made to bear on all individuals, industries and businesses alike, and but a state income tax discriminates against the home industries and businesses and favors their out-of-state competitors. Thus a sulphur industry, with a choice of developments its holdings in Louisiana or Texas, will, if Texas imposes an income tax, automatically turn its activities to Louisiana. The same is true of every prospective industry which can reasonably locate elsewhere than in Texas. Why should it come here and assume the higher taxation, thereby putting itself at a disadvantage with all its competitors, when it can avoid this disadvantage by locating in some other state?

Thus a state income tax would forestall developments that would produce much ad valorem revenue, it would deny employment to many thousands of Texas who otherwise would find it in new or expanded industries, it would be harmful to all business in the state. It would cause the state actual loss in tax revenue, while it would cost the people in the state many times that loss.

Our business situation is difficult enough; we must see to it that unsound taxation theorists at Austin shall not make it worse. — Houston Chronicle.

Begin Taking Cardui Today If You Suffer Like This Lady Did

"WHEN I was a girl, I began taking Cardui," writes Mrs. Maggie Stanfield, of Crandall, Ga. "I was very irregular for twelve months. Nothing did me very much good until my mother began to give me this medicine. Then I got all right, stout and well."

"After I was married, I was in bad health. I began taking Cardui again. I was troubled with my back a lot. Was awfully restless. I could not sleep well. I just weighed 90 pounds when I began taking Cardui. I improved rapidly. Before long I weighed 120 pounds. I felt fine. I was able to do a good day's work."

THIS IS THE WAY TO DEAL WITH A BANDIT

Kipling was right about the female of the species. Those two deadly-aiming women who faced a bandit with an automatic pistol in the City Park at Meade, Kan., Tuesday proved it again. The ladies might have matched automatic against automatic, or routed the hijacker with a machine gun, but they lacked such lethal implements, and had to employ such weapons as they had in hand. These happened to be croquet mallets. And they laid on macduffily, closing in on the bandit, eventually putting him hors de combat.

It was such a game assault as the dust of Carrie Nation would have applauded. And its effectiveness warrants a suggestion for the good of all citizens who may chance unaware upon a hijacker. When walking in the park, those who would be prepared should use a croquet mallet in lieu of a light walking stick. There may be a valuable tip in this for peace officers also. —Dallas Journal.
