The program for B. Y. P. U. Sunday night, January 20. Subject: The meaning of my church membership. What is a church? —Charley Stark. Church membership means I am identified with the and Christians — Ed- and Soules. church membership dedicated me to the program for Christ —Eva Fallon. My church membership prepares me for service—Mr. Robbins. My church membership means church attendance—Miss Bes- sie Huthings. Three vital reasons for church attendance—Mr. Horton.

Methodist Notes

The Methodist young people rallied royally to the call of the pastor last Sunday and set in motion the machinery to carry on their much needed work. It is to be hoped that they may not only go to work with an energy commensurate with the task, but may have, at all times the co-operation of the entire church. It is certainly time that our people become enthusiastically interested in the welfare of the young people.

The congregation Sunday morning was fine and the attention that was given betokened great interest in the sermon—a sermon worthy of even a better hearing. The night audience was not so good. We ought to drive home to our minds the fact that the success of the services are as much dependent upon the congregation as upon the preacher. It is as much the duty of the entire membership to be present at all the services, unless hindered by insurmountable circumstances, as for the preacher to be there. We are not doing our entire duty, nor need we expect to get as good results, if we are not each in our place at every service. Bro. Duke has not preached a common-place sermon since he came among us and, therefore, for one, I am not at all embarrassed to see strangers, and all others, present. You will always be rewarded for your effort so long as our pastor preaches as he has been doing. Let us see to it that we are all present at every service. Strangers and visitors are always welcome.

There are scores of readers who will join the Eagle in its expression of regret at the going from our county of the Rev. Mr. Mansour, who has been so long a faithful pastor of the Lutheran church at Priddy. It is a personal loss to this writer who has learned much to appreciate this excellent Christian gentleman. The loss to Mills county, however, will be a gain to Washington county, where he goes to make his home. We wish him all the blessing of life in his new home.

I fear sometimes that over the lapse of passing years we lose sight of the heritage we have in others. I wonder if we have not, as Methodists, lost sight of the fact that many blessings have come to us as Methodists from the life and labors, in a very large degree, from Martin Luther? Had it not been for Martin Luther we would in all probability, have had no Methodist church. As a matter of fact, there would have been but little worth having in any Protestant church but for Luther and his works.

It may not be known to the younger generation, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that the rich personal experience of John Wesley came to us through Luther almost 200 years after the death of Luther. Wesley was the victim of a cold formalism. He had sought a fellowship with the Divine Spirit in many ways, but in May, 1738, he attended a prayer service in a private room held by some Moravians in Aldersgate street in London. Here a man read Luther's introduction to the book of Roman's. As this man of God read, Wesley says that he felt his heart "strangely warmed and felt that God saves even me." From this he went out to preach a new gospel, and from that day to this the world has never been the same. As a matter of fact, the world needs just such an experience as this today, if the church is ever to accomplish its true mission in the world.

Yes, the church of God, by whatever name, owes much to Martin Luther. J. S. BOWLES

INCOME REPORTS

Making of reports for income tax payments is more complicated this year because in addition to the regular report a second report must be made for public inspection, it was announced Wednesday by the internal revenue office in Austin. A single man is still entitled to $1000 exemption per year and a married man $2500. Community renditions must be signed by both husband and wife, with the one making the report required to sign the affidavit.

PAY POLL TAX

The law regarding the payment of taxes and the collection of delinquent taxes has been changed, modified and re-arranged until few people are familiar with all of the requirements and conditions, but there has been no change in the law requiring the payment of poll tax as a prerequisite to voting, so it is necessary to pay poll tax before February 1.

Oil Well Nearing Finish

The Rock Springs oil well is said to be down about 1600 feet and the work is going on day and night. The drillers and other interested parties are well pleased with the showing and expect to have some good news to tell in the very near future.

The geologists expected it to be necessary to drill the well to a depth of 1700 feet and that depth has been so nearly reached that those in charge and familiar with the log of the well are feeling confident of ultimate success in bringing in an oil field and all the people in this section are watching the progress of the well with great interest.

MANY CHECKS HAVE ARRIVED

The county agent's office received 200 cattle checks yesterday, which amounted to something like $2500. These checks are being delivered as rapidly as possible. There are about 100 more cattle checks to come, while all of the goat checks except two have already been received.

The county agent is instructed to divide the county into districts, each containing 500 cotton farmers. Each district will be asked to elect three community committeemen to have charge of matters pertaining to the cotton reduction program. District will be determined and these committees elected some time during this month.

We have been indeed fortunate in the kind of weather we have had for the concrete work on our building. The foundation and floor are about complete and it will only be a short while until the walls are up. If you haven't made a contribution we will be glad to receive any amount that you can give. We will take three or four hundred dollars more to finish up the building and equip it.

All our services are increasing in interest. Our people seem to be overcoming our building handicap. We had a choir rehearsal Wednesday, which was well attended. We will have special music at both our services on Sunday. I will preach Sunday morning on the subject, "Let Him Deliver Him Now." Sunday night I will discuss "I Saw Thee Under the Fig Tree."

The pastor and wife enjoyed the oyster feed of the Athens class at Bill's Cafe Monday evening. In fact, the pastor enjoyed very much of it. Two dozen oysters make a fine dinner. CURB ON COTTON

Commissioners Hold Session

Commissioners court was in session Monday and Tuesday, transacting routine business, inspecting highways and adjusting claims on the rights of way.

Official reports were inspected and approved and accounts against the county were allowed and ordered paid. R. F. Swindle, justice of the peace at Priddy and T. R. Priddy, constable for the same precinct, which is No. 6, were officially declared elected. These gentlemen were elected in November, but did not qualify until this week.

A contract was made with D. Albert Trent and R. L. Cockrum to re-build J. J. Cockrell's tank, on highway 81, that was destroyed in building the highway some months ago. Dr. J. M. Campbell was re-appointed county health officer for another two years.

The court has held conferences with the land owners on the 74a route from Goldthwaite to Lampasas county line and has reached agreements with most of them as to claims. Another meeting is to be held today, at which time it is expected to meet and agree with those with whom no agreement has yet been reached.

THE TEXAS WILD FLOWER CONTEST

Participants in this contest are schools, not individual pupils. The specimens submitted by the school should be the best fifty of the total collected, regardless of the number of students involved and of their grade range. Any kind of wild plant (except grasses and trees) that produces seed is eligible for entry. The number of kinds of specimens submitted shall be fifty for each year. All schools having heretofore entered must carefully check their current collections against previous collections, so as to avoid sending in the same plant more than once. The specimens are to be collected in triplicate, two of which will be sent to the contest director at the University of Texas, Austin, and the third retained by the school. Each such set must be numbered in consecutive order, the first three specimens alike (all alike) being numbered one, the second three specimens two, etc. Each plant will be labeled. It is particularly desirable to have the local common name, if the plant has such a name.

In case more than the fifty numbers allowable for one year are collected, the surplus may be retained and submitted the following year without change of collection date or other data. Any school that is a member of the League may enter this contest. By beginning any school may easily have the fifty necessary specimens ready for entry in its county meet in the spring. Small rural school have an equal chance if not need an advantage, as compared with town schools of greater enrollment. GRETA LITTLE

Our hearts were broken Friday night at 7:10, when the Lord called our friend and neighbor, Mr. J. M. Traylor, away from us. He leaves a wife and five daughters and two sons, besides other relatives and friends to mourn his going. Mr. Traylor has been in bad health for several years. He has been missed in the church work since his health failed. He was a charter member of this church and was superintendent for twenty-five years of the Sunday school. He was a fine neighbor, ready to help in any way he could. We wish to express our deepest sympathy to Mrs. Traylor and children. May God's richest blessings rest upon each of you. HERE AND THERE

An increase of 11 per cent in the value of department store sales during December, as compared with the same month in 1933, was reported by the federal reserve board. It also said sales for the entire year 1934 were 13 per cent higher than the year before. All districts reported gains for the year.

The New Deal's alphabet has extended into the plains country to spell ruin to prairie dogs. One of the most extensive prairie dog eradication campaigns ever undertaken in Potter county was launched January 4, when farmers and ranchers, county, federal biological survey and FERA workmen joined in a wide-spread raid. Cost of the drive will be divided between the county and farmers and ranchers on whose land the work is done. Poison grain baits the rodents into eating their last feast. Farmers and ranchers pay for part of the grain and the poison is being spread by a crew of approximately 30 FERA workmen. The campaign extends to Jan. 31.

"Now I'm the Picture of Health," Says Lady After Taking CARDUI

Here is how Cardui helped an Alabama lady. . . . "I suffered from pains in my back and sides," writes Mrs. A. G. Gray, of Cusseta, Ala. "I was so thin and weak, I read of Cardui and decided to take it. I noticed at once it was helping me. I kept taking Cardui until I had finished five bottles. I gained. My health was much better. Now I am the picture of health. My color is good and my weight increased. . . . Thousands of women do not benefit YOU, because they do not know of Cardui."

Did You Know

That only 53 bank failures were reported in 1934. In 1934 over 36,000 people were killed in automobile accidents in the United States. There were approximately 10,000 deaths in the world war. That there are more CCC camps than colleges and universities in the United States. That today marks one-half of school term of 1934-35.

Modern School Girl and the School Girl of 30 Years Ago

By Vergil Howard
 Peeping lightly along the littersed road comes a typical school girl of 1935. By her side is a typical youth of the decade. He carries the young lady's books in one hand, and her lunch pail in the other. Every few minutes the young man steals a sidelong glance at his companion and then turns his head so that he may not be blushed guiltily. Hardly a half-dozen words have passed between the pair during the four blocks between her home and the school house.

The young lady is dressed in a light gingham, a wide brimmed hat, high-topped shoes that come almost to her knees, and red cotton stockings adorn her legs. A bright red piece of ribbon is tied around her hair, which is very long and hangs down her back.

The pair reach the little log school building and as she reaches for her books and lunch pail she bows low and gives him a smile that light up her whole features.

Does the modern school girl do that? Not on your life, she does not!

Down the sidewalk comes the typical school girl of 1935. On her feet is a pair of real high heeled shoes. Are her legs adorned with a pair of red cotton stockings? I should say not. She has on a pair of $2 silk hose. She has on an expensive dress of tailored material. As she steps jauntily down the sidewalk, a car of expensive make whizzes up to the curb and the young lady, clasping her hands in delight, hops in beside the young driver. She keeps up a constant chatter all the way to school and all she can talk about is what "Harry and I did last night."

They reach the school building and the young lady, without so much as a backward glance, much less a smile, hops out of the car and away she goes. That's the typical 1935 girl for you.

Would Goldthwaite high school like to have an orchestra? The answer when such a question is propounded to one after another is almost a universal YES. Had you thought about it that it takes more than just wanting an orchestra to get one. It takes pupils who are willing to take lessons and spend hours in practice. Yet, let every one remember this—the skill acquired from the lessons and practice is an investment, not just something you are doing for the good of your school. Ability to take a part in a band or an orchestra often opens the way to college. Also apart from the material side of the question, knowledge of music is much to be desired. Music has been defined as the language of the soul. A knowledge of music better enables a person to commune with the beautiful.

At present Mr. King from Daniel Baker college is offering lessons on instruments suitable for band and orchestra work, also conducting orchestra rehearsals twice weekly. Too few pupils are availing themselves of the opportunity that is before them.

Why not develop an orchestra of which you, your school and your town will be proud?

Education of Women

The Pilgrim Fathers came to America, believing that it was not necessary for women to have an education in order for them to get along successfully in the world. This made women wholly dependent on someone else. They either had to marry or live with their fathers and mothers. When girls lived with their parents they were called 'old maids' and were looked down upon.

As time went by and the men of the country became better educated, they began to be dissatisfied with their wives, because they were not able to carry on an intelligent conversation with them at home. It was then that they began to provide for the education of their women. It was soon seen that a woman could learn as well if not better than a man. She was more diligent and interested than the men and, therefore, made better grades in most cases.

People now look upon the education of women as a common and necessary asset. Women have become as well educated as men and have become school teachers, legislators, executives, sheriffs, farmers and leaders of business.

In a great many cases men depend upon the judgment of a

We are glad to have these new members in the club and feel sure that they will do their best to make it a greater success.

The Observer

By Vergil Howard
 Oh, boy! That's a million dollar smile, if I ever saw one. He's got black hair that has a wave or two in it, brown eyes, tall and handsome. He is five feet eleven inches, weighs 130 pounds. This is his first year in the Goldthwaite high school. He is a member of the senior class and seems to be rather popular among the students. His girl, I believe, happens to be a junior. He is interested in radio, but is not a crooner. He has a pleasing attitude in class, and a very nice personality. He is one of those "big game hunters," but never gets any game. Oh my! Oh, my! Now, who is he?
 The boy described last week was Soda Jerker Lawrence Bledsoe.

Freshmen Elect President

The freshman class met and elected a new president, because their former president, Bill Jones, has moved. Clark Davis presided over this meeting and George Ballard was elected by a large majority.

The freshmen are planning a social this week. We have appointed a committee to set the time and place, but they have not decided where they will try and have it yet.

A BIG ADVERTISER

Newspaper advertising will again form the backbone of Continental Oil Company's 1935 sales promotion program, the largest in the history of the company, it was announced here Monday by W.C. Frazier, Conoco's local manager, who stated that the Eagle has been selected to carry Conoco advertising.

"Proof of the value of newspaper advertising, backed by quality products and outstanding service," said Mr. Frazier, "is the fact that our company during 1934 showed a gain of 65 per cent in the sale of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil as compared to the previous year."

"As a matter of fact, Conoco's gross sales in 1934 were better than for any year since 1929—a fact that leads us to believe that general business conditions are definitely on the upgrade. Of course, Continental Oil company hasn't just marked time, but has gone out after business, backed by a larger advertising program year after year."

"This year marks the sixtieth anniversary of Continental Oil company, and we expect 1935 to be the best in our history."

OWEN- RENFRO WEDDING HELD IN SAN SABA

Miss Mattie Owen of Locker, San Saba county, and Forest Renfro of Willis Mill, Mills county, were happily married Friday night, December 21, at the home of Rev. E. E. Thomson at San Saba. The couple were accompanied by Miss Mabel Lillian Graves, Locker home economics teacher, and Clarence Duey, Willis Mill teacher.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Owen of Locker. She is very amiable and her personality holds for her many friends. Miss Owen graduated from San Saba high school in 1932. She has made special recognition in her home economics at John Tarleton during the years of 1932 to 1934.

The groom is the son of Rev. Bedford Renfro of Willis Mill. He has taken an extended business course in St. Louis, Mo. He is very ambitious, industrious and a very deserving young man with a multitude of friends.

They will make their home in St. Louis, where Mr. Renfro is employed with the Standard Oil company.

This young couple have the best wishes of their many relatives and friends.—San Saba Star.

A LIBERAL POLICY

The Eagle has been more liberal than judicious in the matter of subscriptions for the past three years, owing to the depression, but the time has come when all newspapers are being required to cull their lists to those who really want and pay for the paper. One requirement recently brought to the attention of the Eagle management is that the paper can only be sent through the postoffice at the second class rate to bona fide subscribers and business men who carry advertisements and are entitled to a copy of the paper to check such advertisements, but the old "free and easy" policy must be abandoned.

All of the sophomores who attended the party, invited a partner for themselves. The members of the class that were present were Viola Limmer, Wilma Nauert, Heiga Tischler, Nelda Jeske, Mutt Ivy, Ira Townsend. The writer from Rock Springs gives a report of the death and burial of Mr. Traylor, but the Eagle desires to add its own testimonial to the memory of the excellent gentleman and personal friend.

PENSION AGITATION

The old age pension proposition is being widely discussed and has elicited much interest throughout the country, among people of all ages and conditions. Most people believe that there will be some pension system evolved from the agitation and this is doubtless true, but the danger is in causing undue hope among the aged. It also gives an opportunity for the unscrupulous to prey upon the credulity of those who expect to be included in the list of pensioners. Already there are those offering service and influence to secure the pensions and there is no doubt that some will be induced to meet their demands and give money or other things of value to secure such assistance. If and when an old age pension is provided, either by the state or federal government, there will be no such amount as $200 per month allowed to any pensioner. This will be found to be a correct analysis of the situation.

However, the sentiment is so strong throughout the country favorable to some form of old age pension that the measure is pretty sure of being adopted, although in a modified form from that advanced by the Townsend adherents. The amount may not be beyond $30 per month — $1.00 a day, if you please. It is reasonably sure of passage by this session of congress and if it is within the bounds of reason, Mr. Roosevelt will very likely approve it. There is likely to be some requirements as to the need and financial condition of the pensioner and that would not meet with serious objection throughout the country. It would be mighty pleasant for every person to know that upon attaining the age of sixty years a pension would be provided, no matter what their financial status might be, but this would, in turn, largely remove stimulus to energy, enterprise and economy. All of these matters must be ironed out by congress, but there is every indication that the country is soon to provide an old age pension.

A GREAT PROGRAM

A digest of President Roosevelt's message to congress reveals that he has a great and wonderful program—one that reaches out into an untried realm, like many of his New Deal undertakings. Most, if not all, of the announced plans are feasible and, if put into operation, will undoubtedly be of vast benefit to the whole country. Some have characterized the president's pronouncement as a Second New Deal. There are a number of definite factors in the program congress is desired and expected to enact into the law. The first purpose is to provide every active worker with employment, at the same time entirely abolishing the dole or direct relief system. In this connection he desires the relief of the unemployables transferred to the local authorities, which undoubtedly will reduce the number on the rolls to a modicum of dependents. Other subjects, such as old age pensions and emergency programs are dealt with in the message. While the president gives few details at this time, he promised a more extended outline at a future time.

While the president is declared to have a less hold on congress than was developed in the last session, it must be admitted that the country has far more confidence in the president's good judgment and sound statesmanship than it had in the beginning of his administration and the congressmen all realize that "the folks back home" are in full support of the administration. While nobody wants them to act contrary to their individual judgment, they are expected to co-operate with the president as far as they can conscientiously do so.

It is believed almost certain that the adjusted compensation bill or so-called soldiers' bonus bill, will be enacted in some form and it is also believed that the president will veto it, as he did last year and as his three predecessors did, but it is believed there is now a sufficient majority in congress to pass the measure anyway.

PREPARING A PROGRAM

The thought that there is yet plenty of time to plan and arrange a centennial program and display, will undoubtedly cause much disappointment, to those who in reality would like to see their community and section of the state properly represented to the thousands of visitors who are sure to visit Texas during the centennial year. Procrastination, we are told, is the thief of time and the truth of the statement is mighty sure to be verified in the results of the delay in making preparation for the display next year. Every county committee should give careful thought to the duties devolving on its members by reason of their appointment and their recognized patriotism and reliability. Each county committee will be expected to make its own plans and outline its own work. Mills county committee is expected to be in the forefront in the endeavor.

Several of the ladies' clubs of this city have in mind or have already inaugurated programs for the beautifying of the city streets and the highways in this section by planting flowers and shrubbery along the borders. They have also begun a campaign among householders and other property owners to put and keep all premises in a high state of repair and improvement. This is one of the many ways the citizens can co-operate in preparing for the attraction of centennial visitors.

A CHANGE NEEDED

For many years the subject of allowing the chief executive of the state to exercise clemency without question or hindrance has been discussed, but so far there has not been a move toward withdrawing the authority. This, then, seems to be an ideal time for such a plan to be submitted to the electorate of this state—just at the end of an administration that has been extremely liberal with pardons and paroles and the subject has been brought directly home to almost every county in the state. During his campaign last summer Mr. Allred proposed a plan that would take away the power or authority to set aside the work of officers and the judgments of courts and juries simply by the stroke of a pen. Under our Texas constitution the governor has that right and power, but it would be relieving him of much responsibility to place the duty of investigating applications for pardons with a board, either composed of state officials or of independent selection. Such a change would also remove the danger of clemency being secured through political prestige or other influences.

Health Hint

CARE IN COOKING

Now that the winter season is here and pork and pork products are more freely used, warning against insufficient cooking of these is given by Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer. Trichinosis is caused by a parasite in the muscles of pigs. This parasite may occur in large numbers in infested meat. The disease is rather extensively distributed among hogs and all pork should be regarded with suspicion unless treated to kill the larvae. Freshly killed pork is more dangerous than meat that has been kept in cold storage for some time, because parasites tend to die out during prolonged storage at low temperatures. Other processes of preserving meat also tend to kill the trichinella larvae. No method of meat inspection will invariably discover the presence of this parasite. Thus safeguard against the disease must necessarily be taken by consumers of the infested pork. Thorough cooking may be counted on to kill the parasite.

Trichinosis results from eating uncooked pork, usually in the form of sausage, that contains the larvae. There is often danger of not maintaining sufficient temperature to thoroughly cook the meat. Outer portions of the meat may appear well cooked while the inner part is quite rare and will retain the living parasites. Especially is this true if the piece of pork is quite thick. Cases of trichinosis have occurred from eating just such inner portions of undercooked pork. Pork with the slightest red tinge may contain the living parasites. Pork should be cooked until all color disappears thru the piece of meat, this is the only safeguard against trichinosis.

Overturning several times as their light roadster left the highway and crashed through a barbed wire fence into a plowed field, two young Kerrville men were instantly killed early Friday as they returned home from San Antonio. Blood stains on the highway at the point where the machine careened off, led to the supposition.

Claiming to be the "designer of the world's first practical airplane," George A. Hughes of Lincoln, Neb., is plaintiff in federal court in a suit against a cross country air line, charging the company with patent infringements. In brief, Hughes explains, it is the idea of tilting the wings upward in relation to the fuselage—an idea he asserts he copied from gliding birds in 1893. He applied for his first patent in 1899, but the patent office seemed a bit skeptical about all flying machines at that time. He said when the suit comes up for trial he will offer the application and a photograph of himself and the plane taken in 1893.

UNLOADING THE ROLLS

The question of how serious removal of unemployable persons from federal relief rolls will be, was being answered as county administrators completed an analysis of caseloads over the state.

Regulations adopted for the guidance of administrators in determining classifications under the new federal order were given out:

Women eligible for mothers' aid under act of the 42nd legislature are not eligible for FERA relief.

Persons more than 65 years old are not eligible for federal relief excepting at the request of the client and then only after physical certification by a physician recommended by the county administrator and approved by the Texas relief commission.

Persons, regardless of age, who, as a result of an examination by a physician recommended by the administrator and approved by the Texas relief commission, are found incapable of performing a full day's work at their normal occupation or any other worthwhile work are not eligible.

Persons receiving allowances under the pauper fund are not eligible to FERA relief and FERA funds can not be used to supplement relief given by the city, county or state.

Persons suffering from chronic illnesses who, as a result of examination by a physician recommended by the administrator and approved by the Texas relief commission, are declared able to perform a full day's work, are eligible for federal relief.

A temporarily disabled person who is otherwise normally employable shall be considered the responsibility of the FERA and shall receive direct relief from federal funds pending his recovery.

If within the household of an unemployed person eligible for federal relief there is an aged, infirm or otherwise unemployable person or any dependent who normally was supported by the wage earner, work certification should be sufficient to provide for such person's care.

Physical examinations were contemplated for only two groups as follows: Persons more than 65 years old who have had continuous gainful employment record and who appear to be able to work.

Persons suffering from chronic illness, but who appear to be able to work.

Administrators were cautioned that examinations should be sufficiently thorough to insure soundness of constitution so that FERA will not put persons more than 65 years old or those suffering from chronic illnesses to work if work would jeopardize life or health.

Results of the analysis will show the number of women eligible for mothers' aid, the number of persons more than 65 years old who have not been regularly employed and who can not receive a physician's certificate, number of persons less than 65 years physically or mentally incapable of working and all others not eligible to FERA funds.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

VIEW OF THE NATION'S PRESS ON TOPICS OF INTEREST AND IMPORTANCE

JAPAN'S MANDATED ISLANDS

The mandates commission of the League of Nations has done its plain duty in asking more ample information from Japan as to the expense undertaken in developing the harbors of the former German islands in the Pacific held by the Japanese under a mandate from the league. The sums spent, according to the commission, are out of proportion to the volume of commercial activity of the islands.

It is unfortunate that Japan has permitted her mandate over these islands to give rise to world-wide suspicions. She is forbidden, under the terms of the mandate, to fortify the islands or to create naval bases in them. She has been charged with violating this prohibition. She has denied the charge, replying that such expenditures as have been made have been solely for the development of commercial harbors. But at the same time she has refused to forego the right of access to the islands.

This denial, has naturally, intensified suspicion. As the league's commission has pointed out, one of the best ways of stilling suspicion would be for Japan to give free and unrestricted access to the islands for foreign travelers and vessels. If Japan has nothing to hide she has no reason to restrict travelers. When, therefore, she refuses admission the inescapable conclusion is that she is doing things which she wishes to hide.

Although not a signatory to the mandate, the United States is directly interested in what Japan is doing in these islands, because they lie in the neighborhood of Guam and are dotted over that part of the Pacific stretching between Hawaii and the Philippines. The German government used one member of the archipelago—Pagan Island by name—as the rendezvous for German merchantmen and ships of war at the outbreak of the world war, in 1914. Many of the islands contain harbors well suited to be made into bases for submarines, hydroplanes and commerce raiders. They are fundamental in Japan's naval strategy in the Pacific. If Japan is not developing them she can best prove this to the world by encouraging, not restraining tourist travel.—New York Herald-Tribune.

EUROPE'S FEARS PASS

All has not been happiness and prosperity in Europe during the past few weeks, but in one respect there has been a vast change over a year ago.

There has been a notable psychological improvement because the fear of Germany seems to have been dissipated, for the time being, at least. The Nazis continue to arm with the knowledge of all, and their martial spirit is said to be as high as ever, but the feeling prevails that they no longer are an irresponsible mob, but something nearer to an ordered and rational group.

This new state of mind is due both to apparent change in the German attitude and that of her neighbors. Up to the time of the bloody "purge" there was doubt whether Der Fuehrer could control the wild men who formed his successful political organization. Not only was this view entertained abroad, but it seems to have weighed heavily on the mind of the leader. The coup which removed the once-beloved leaders brought the issue to a crisis, and marked the first step in improvement. Since then we have heard less of the Brown Shirts and more of the regular army, which makes no pretense of wanting trouble at a time when it is fully aware of its unpreparedness.

With every lessening of German mob spirit, there has been an appreciable easing of tension throughout Europe. France, in particular, has emerged, quieting her nerves, until now the old rivals can agree on such matters as the Saar, and begin to think about things other than troop mobilization.

How long this feeling of assurance will last is problematical, but the fact that a breathing spell has come is a matter of

HOT OIL

The oil decision handed down by the United States supreme court last Monday is not as sweeping as some of the comments on it would seem to imply. The only question passed on by the court was that of the power of congress to delegate to the president or to anyone else the power of legislating and prescribing penalties for violation of such executive legislation. It held that in attempting to delegate to the president the power to prohibit the transportation of "hot oil" in interstate commerce congress itself does not have power to prohibit the shipment of illegally produced oil in interstate commerce. Indeed, the decision points out that congress failed so to prohibit this, or even to provide that the interstate shipment of such oil is undesirable. The sole question passed on was that of the power of congress under the constitution to delegate such unrestricted legislative power to the president or to anybody else. In view of this it is not true, as some of the comment plainly infers, that the court held that the federal government is without power to prohibit the interstate shipment of hot oil. It did not pass on that question one way or the other. Under the decision, congress may still make provision for the prohibition of the interstate shipment of hot oil, and undoubtedly a measure of this kind will be promptly enacted. Senator Connally has introduced a measure covering the situation and it is understood that it will be passed by both houses of congress promptly. Meantime, it is gratifying to note that there was no debacle in the East Texas oil fields as a result of the decision, which so many commentators seemed to think imminent upon receipt of news of the decision. It is gratifying also to note that all the state authorities concerned promptly made declarations that the state laws would continue to be vigorously enforced and that there would be no practical difference in conditions as a result of the decision. The decision has made no practical difference to date and there is no fear that it will.—Texas Weekly.

GREAT TRADE POSSIBILITIES

If Japan can not safely much further depreciate the yen without the yen becoming overvalued, then it would seem logical that the price of gold in the western world at which the western nations can safely return to the gold basis may be also coming into view. If, without raising tariffs above the present figures, the whole world should go back on gold at some where near the price which now obtains both in Japan and also those other countries which are leading in world recovery, namely, Australia, New Zealand and the Argentine and Mexico, who early followed in Japan's lead in currency depreciation, then it would seem that the world could at such time not escape the return of the greatest trade activity of all time.

With a feeling of confidence in all countries that currency depreciation was at last intelligently and properly ended at a safe figure, neither over nor under priced, and with actual tariffs in most cases automatically and greatly lowered through such currency depreciation, which had already taken place, and with the load of world debts lightened to the point where they could be borne, little would then seem to stand in the way of great trade activity. At some time, whether sooner or later, we must enter into such an era. But the price of gold in the prosperous countries suggests that we will not experience this condition with gold as low as $35 per ounce.—Industrial News Review.

World gratification. The nations continue to arm, but when it is possible for them to discuss their troubles in an atmosphere partially removed from mutual fear and hatred, the prospects of peace are immeasurably improved. And it is because advances have been made in this direction that Europe's Christmas has had its happy aspects, even though economic recovery is yet to be attained.—N. P. A. Weekly.

LONG AND TOWNSEND

Politics make strange bedfellows. Into Huey Long's driver for the Empire Adullam are rallying the followers of California's radical reformer, minded Dr. Townsend. Long promises to make an expenditure of $200,000,000 (two hundred million) a year of pensions, the Utopian county has pledged happiness and prosperity to all, when the what vague platform is drouth relief by the nation.

Politicians assure us that the third party has much success against the Democrats and Republicans. In this they are, in general, correct. But Huey Long argues that present depression is a result of Roosevelt's policies and plans to offer an alternative. If the depression is to be ended, then there is a real need for such leadership. Long's can enter the arena against President Roosevelt. Many alarmists are loudly of the dangers of the present situation. The public heart but there is more real work to be done. FOREIGN TRADE

We can afford to keep right in remembering this: Until our foreign trade problem is solved we will have no full return of prosperity.

Conceivably we might reach solution by building a self-sustained nation, by deliberate planning to get along without exports or imports, or any quantity of them. If that is our course, however, it calls for revolutionary readjustments in our domestic programs, including agricultural production drastically, the increasing of industrial production to the point where employment can be given not only the industrial workers now unemployed but the millions of agricultural workers who would be forced from their normal occupation.

If we are not to undertake such a program, and, thank heaven, we do not seem to be committed to any such, then we must look to a re-establishment of a normal flow of trade with other countries. But we can't hope for that as long as these other countries have insufficient gold and American currency with which to pay their debts to us and buy goods from us. Even if we cancel the war debts—there still remains a shortage in other countries of funds with which to buy American products.

In all the history of America up to the time of the world war we owed money abroad. Instead of sending back the capital and interest in gold or currency we sent goods, thus always having an export balance, an entirely natural one. After the war the tables were turned. Other nations thus the normal flow of goods should have been from abroad into this country. But we forestalled the change by lending vast sums abroad. In this manner we put the currency of gold into these other countries with which they could pay their previously incurred debts and continue to buy large quantities of our goods.—House Chronicle.

DIVERSIFICATION

The Texas secretary of agriculture has some mighty practical ideas about farming. He believes that our imperial soil should be used to produce wealth for us, but that there should be a greater diversification of crops. That sounds better than taking land out of production because that means less chance for agricultural labor, less demand for agricultural machinery and less use for farm stock.

The horses and mules must be fed. The tractors must be employed in order to pay for themselves.

It won't do to have an over-production of cotton. If there is to be a full production there must be some plan by which the price can be kept up. Low cotton means starvation for the south. But what a lot can be done even in the way of stimulating gardening on the farm.

That farmer who has a garden and a pressure cooker and puts up his supply of vegetables for the winter is always going to fare a lot better than the one who must run to market for every meal that is served on the table.

Farmers must be prosperous for any of us to be prosperous. If he can live at home and raise a cash crop to sell, he will make a good buyer at the store. But if he goes all cotton, and cotton is a low price, it isn't worth anything to the merchant that he is in need of provisions out of his store. He won't have the money to pay for them.

The farmer who raises his food, including eggs, butter and meat, is going to be an independent man. He won't have to worry so much about the low price of any cash product. He will have his living to begin with and what he can sell will be that much profit.—Waco Record.

AGRICULTURE CONTROL

Reconsideration of the federal agricultural adjustment program, implying mild but constructive criticism of some of its provisions, and hope that long time permanent planning be substituted for it in the near future featured the closing session of the Texas Agricultural Workers' association convention in San Antonio Saturday.

Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Texas Technological college of Lubbock, while admitting the need of some kind of emergency control of crop surpluses and production at this time, strongly advocated the setting up an agricultural planning board to deal with the problems for Texas agriculture, co-ordinated with similar efforts for the south as a whole, taking into consideration a national policy towards foreign trade, effective land utilization, cotton production and control, and the welfare of the cotton belt. As a whole he thought control measures had produced benefits even if all the objectives had not been reached.

Dr. Knapp regarded as significant the Washington announcement that the administration regarded existing measures as temporary expedients. He suggested the possibility of a domestic allotment plan with export cotton to be raised on a world competitive basis.

Miss Blackwell was trying to explain to the second grade what slowly meant. She walked across the room and asked, "How did I walk?" Charles replied, "Bowlegged."

The other day some one sent some (supposed to be clean) sheets of paper into Mr. Smith's room. Among these there was one sheet with two words on it. They were "Dear Hud."

A LIBERAL POLICY

The Eagle has been more liberal than judicious in the matter of subscriptions for the past three years, owing to the depression, but the time has come when all newspapers are being required to cull their lists to those who really want and pay for the paper. One requirement recently brought to the attention of the Eagle management is that the paper can only be sent through the postoffice at the second class rate to bona fide subscribers and business men who carry advertisements and are entitled to a copy of the back such advertisement old "free and must be abandoned.
