

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

GOLDTHWAITE, MILLS COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1934.

NUMBER THIRTY

FORTY-ONE

On Highway

Obstacle in the way of the new right of way by 74a from Goldthwaite to Lampasas county has been removed. In a meeting held in Austin last week highway department engineer H. G. Bodkin, and F. P. Bowman and J. F. Gerald effected an agreement whereby the city will give up the right of way south of town. The one side of the tract will be fenced in with a fence. The city will use the water well the same as previously.

Gerald had previously completed deeds to other tracts required for the highway. With the right of way open, there is no longer any obstacle in the way for the contract for the new road.

Superintendent Priddy School

Swindle, superintendent of Newburg school of Comanche county for the past year and former county superintendent of Brown county, has been elected superintendent of Priddy school. He will begin his duties immediately.

Several of our flock leave for school next week. Among the number are Misses Lou Ella Patterson, Grace Patterson and Mary Bowles. They will go to San Marcos State Teachers college. Several others from the surrounding neighborhood will also attend this school, while others will go other places. We shall miss them all, and wish for their successful work and a safe return.

Several of our younger set are to attend the summer school and encampment at Kerrville the first of next month. This will be an outing worthwhile. It will be education mixed with pleasure, all of which will be of untold benefit. We trust that many may attend this encampment.

Don't forget that our meeting begins June 16. Bro. Duke will preach at the morning hour and the Rev. L. B. Nance will have charge of the evening service. Dr. Wells of Dallas will be on hand Monday night, and will do the preaching for the remainder of the meeting. The success of the meeting will depend largely upon the preparation made by our young people before the meeting begins, and their activity during the meeting. We should look forward to a great meeting.

It is said that some one asked an Englishman who was visiting America what impressed him most in American home life. He answered without hesitation: "The very strict discipline which American children exercise over their parents." This is verified in a recent news item coming from Fort Worth, and might well be duplicated anywhere in our country. A nine-year-old young American resented the slothfulness of his mother in obeying his demands, and proceeded to enforce his authority with a pistol. His work was very effective; the son was in jail at last report and the mother was in a hospital. Don't America stand in need of some old fashioned daddies and mammas? Uncle Remus said that the way to "edicate" a nigger was at the "eand" of a barrel stave. That might work well in modern America.

There will be the usual services at the Methodist church next Sunday morning. There will be no service at the evening, because of the meeting at the Church of Christ. Suppose you come and see how you like it. If you should be pleased, come again. It might do you good to attend these services. If it should kill you, we shall try to see that you are given all the rites, lights and benefits of Christian burial, whether you are entitled to it or not. Several have been attending who have not yet received any noticeable injurious effects, physically, morally or spiritually. Try it once, anyway.

Methodist Notes

In the service Sunday morning the pastor observed Memorial day. He preached a splendid sermon for the occasion, just such as is befitting the occasion. At three o'clock the third quarterly conference was held, and the usual services were held at night. All the services were well attended.

Bro. Nixon gave the quarterly conference a very fine exegesis on the choosing of the first officials of the Christian church. He had preached the commencement sermon for the Marble Falls public school at the morning hour and drove from that place to Goldthwaite and held the quarterly conference, as announced above, and then proceeded to Llano, where he held the quarterly conference, after preaching at night. All this is said by way of suggesting that this presiding elder needs someone to suggest that there may possibly be presiding elders and to spare, after he has retired, and that it would be well for his wife, or someone else, to take supervisory charge of him. Flesh and blood can not stand such work as that and get by with it for long.

Repairing Bridge Across Bayou

The commissioners court met Monday and went in a body to the Slack crossing bridge across the bayou, which bridge was damaged by the recent floods, although it has been in ill repair for some time and the court has had in mind some repairs and improvements on it.

A contract was awarded the Monarch Engineering Co. of San Antonio for another 100 foot steel span on the east side of the bridge and for re-flooring and repainting the old part of the bridge. The contractors expect to complete the work in forty-five working days.

Art and Civic Club

Mrs. L. R. Conro and Mrs. J. D. Brim were hostesses to the Art and Civic club, May 18. As this was the last meeting of the season the club members enjoyed a regular get together meeting, discussing the happenings of the past year and the plans for the coming year.

The new officers were installed, the club having elected Mrs. W. P. McCullough, president; Mrs. M. Y. Stokes, Jr., first vice president; Mrs. J. D. Brim, treasurer; Mrs. L. J. Gartman, recording secretary; Mrs. A. H. Smith, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Claud Eacott, reporter; Mrs. C. K. Mills, assistant reporter.

Mrs. Scholer, on behalf of the club, presented Mrs. Hodges, our out-going president, with a beautiful vase, trying in this way to show their appreciation of her work and their love for her. The program for the day was "Women of the Bible," led by Mrs. L. J. Gartman. Papers on these greatest of all women, were read by Mrs. Conro, Mrs. Jake Saylor, Mrs. Scholer and Mrs. W. P. McCullough.

Mrs. Eacott read a beautiful poem and Mrs. Martin, accompanied at the piano by her daughter, Aileen, sang the lovely old song, "The Lord Is My Shepherd." Mrs. Saylor, who had recently returned from Alpine, where she was a delegate to the Sixth district convention, gave an inspiring talk on the convention. Mrs. Saylor asked for and was granted a year's leave of absence. We regret to have to give her up for that length of time.

Mrs. Haynes Harrison, Mrs. Robert Steen and Mrs. Paul McCullough were guests of the evening. Mrs. McCullough will be in the club next year. We are glad to welcome her into the club. Club members and guests were served delicious ice cream and cake.

Singing Convention

The Mills county singing convention is to be held in the Goldthwaite school auditorium Saturday night and Sunday, June 1 and 2.

It is announced that many visiting singers are expected from Dallas and east Texas, as well as from nearby counties and communities and they will all have a hearty welcome. All Mills county people who attend are requested to bring basket lunches and Goldthwaite people are asked to help take care of the visitors Saturday night.

Garden Club

The Garden Club of Goldthwaite is preparing to have the annual flower show and an elaborate lawn party on Friday, June 7. It will be held on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Trent, between the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock. Lists of different kinds of flowers, pot plants, specimens and displays to be used in the show have been sent out to the members and also awards of ribbons will be presented to those having best plants or groups, judged by a competent committee.

NRA Killed

The supreme court of the United States handed down a unanimous opinion Monday declaring the NRA unconstitutional. The announcement was not unexpected by the country at large, yet it was received with satisfaction, especially by business and the smaller industries. While it is conceded that the act was intended to assist the business of the country in building back to normal after the depression, there can be no denying the fact that it did more than any other influence in retarding recovery. The act gave the president more power than any dictator on earth and much of this power was delegated to subordinates, all of whom are distressed over the high court's decision. Much could be said in criticism of the act and its far-reaching depressing and injurious effects on business, but suffice it to say the country should give thanks for the supreme court.

Bridal Shower

On Saturday afternoon, May 25, Mrs. Mark Fairman and her daughter, Mary Louise, entertained with a miscellaneous shower, honoring Mrs. Fairman Marshall, a recent bride. As the guests entered they were ushered into an adjoining room, and were asked to register and to write their favorite recipe in a bride's book. Then tables were arranged in the living room for a progressive game of "Hearts." The prize went to the hostess, Mary Louise, who immediately presented it to the bride. A heart guessing game followed and Ima Lols Bayley was the lucky girl.

During the guessing contest a little messenger appeared at the door with a huge package for Mrs. Marshall. Her investigation disclosed a big box, beautifully decorated with red and white crepe paper; on the top of the box was a large rosette with a miniature bride in the center. Upon removing the lid, she found many delightful gifts. After the excitement of examining all the packages, delicious refreshments were served, consisting of heart shaped angel food cake, covered with red icing, pineapple ice cream garnished with cherries and iced fruit punch. Nazarene Remarks

We were delighted last Sunday morning to have the largest attendance in Sunday school that we have had since we took the pastorate here last October. This was accomplished by a concerted effort that was put forth last week for an increase in our Sunday school. Let us keep working. The ten or twelve hundred people in Goldthwaite that are out of Sunday school gives us plenty of material to work on to increase the attendance in all of the Sunday schools of the town.

According to the attendance in the Sunday schools of the town and the town's population, the majority of the people are out of Sunday schools on Sunday mornings. May our Sunday schools not work in competition, but in cooperation with each other to put their work before those that are not in Sunday school.

Beginning tonight (Friday) our young people are beginning a series of weekly prayer meetings, praying especially for a successful revival, which is to be sponsored by themselves June 30 to July 14. Rev. Leo Baldwin, age 20, of Bethany, Okla., will do the preaching.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public to worship with us in our regular services.

CHARLIE HARRISON, Pastor.

Birthday Celebration

Last Sunday, May 26, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Manual entertained a number of their relatives and friends with a birthday dinner, celebrating the twenty-fourth birthday of Mr. Manual.

By 11 o'clock Sunday morning all of the guests had arrived and we enjoyed an hour of friendly conversation and various games, while the last minute dinner preparations were being made.

At noon Mr. Manual led the procession into the dining room where a long, beautifully decorated and sumptuously laden table was laid. A delicious roast and vegetable course was followed by ice cream and a beautiful white birthday cake, which tasted as good as it looked.

Many toasts, several arrangements of the "Happy Birthday Song," and much laughter and lively conversation punctuated the long dinner hour. After all of the ice cream and cake was consumed, we repaired to the front porch and yard, where we made some pictures, jumped rope and whiled the time pleasantly away.

At 4 o'clock, we dressed for the occasion and went to Flatt's tank and enjoyed a two-hour swim in the cool, clear water. About 6 o'clock each guest repaired to his home, wishing Mr. Manual many more happy birthdays.

Those who enjoyed the pleasant day together were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Thompson and daughters, Beulah and Faye, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Randles and small son, Travis, Virginia Simpson, Margie Ollie Mae and Izetta Featherston, Lora, Floyd and Arlo Manual, Charles Randles, O. D. Wilkey, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Manual.

A Bad Wreck

Last Friday afternoon Pat Murphy, a clerk in the postoffice, and Vernard Tyson were badly injured in an automobile wreck near the cheese factory, in the southern portion of the city, when their car struck a post and they were thrown violently to the ground. Tyson suffered a broken collar bone, several ribs and other serious injuries, while Murphy was badly bruised and his ankle was mashed and there are several severe bruises on his body.

Tyson was hurried to a hospital in Brownwood, where heroic methods were applied and for several days his condition was reported to be critical. However, later reports say he is steadily improving and it is hoped he will soon be fully recovered. Murphy was confined to his bed for several days after the accident, but is improving and is able to be up.

S. E. Q. Club

The S. E. Q. Club, has up to now, been organized six months, and has done lots of work. Quilts pieced on the second quarter are nine in number and have quilted five quilts, making a total of 13 quilts up to date.

Our membership has grown to sixteen, but at the last meeting our good friend and loyal worker, Mrs. Otis Allen, asked that her name be dropped from the roll, for the present. We surely hope that she can soon feel that she can renew her membership and become one of us again. We are going to miss Mrs. Allen, as she was always present and always knew how to handle the needle.

The club met Tuesday afternoon, May 28, with Mrs. W. D. Leverett and quilted a "string" quilt for her. Nine members were present with Mrs. Claud Eacott as a visitor. This meeting was birthday day again. Mrs. V. D. Tyson, who is in Brownwood with her son, was sent nine beautiful handkerchiefs, also a little love gift, a handkerchief, was sent to Vernard. We missed Mrs. Tyson so much and hope that she may soon be with us again and that Vernard may soon recover.

No definite meeting place was set for next Tuesday.

Our Trip To Washington

To our many friends and neighbors who bestowed the honor upon us as delegate, to Washington in interest of our farm program.

We wish to report we left Fort Worth at 2:30 o'clock p. m., Sunday, May 12, going by way of Longview, where we were joined by two more special trains, one from San Antonio and the other from Houston, making three trains from Texas, carrying about 700 delegates, the largest delegation from any one state, which we were very proud of. Williamson county sent 37, the largest number from any one county.

Going by way of Texarkana, Little Rock, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Charleston, Charlottesville, where we viewed the home of Thomas Jefferson from the train, arriving in Washington, D. C. at 12:30 p. m., four hours behind schedule.

To our surprise we were met by the Paramount newsreel people. We were carried by taxicabs to Constitutional Hall, where the first reception had just closed. We were invited back at 2 o'clock when Secretary Wallace, Mr. Davis and others made welcome addresses. There were delegates from 30 states, numbering 4500 people.

It was resolved by the delegates that we ask for no favors nor offer any amendments, but merely came to thank and show our appreciation to the administration for their efforts and support of the AAA farm program, which was received with much applause. At 5 o'clock we were invited to the White House lawn, where Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt gave us a warm reception and a 40-minute talk, in which he strongly advocated the continuance and his support to the AAA program until agriculture is on an equal footing with other industries and invited us back.

At 7 o'clock the Texas delegates were invited to the Mayflower hotel for a banquet where we had the pleasure of meeting all of the Texas congressmen and senators, Secretary Wallace, Chief Cobb and others. After supper was served, speaking lasted until 1:30 o'clock.

Wool marketing views

A proposal to license dealers in wool and mohair, under which certain trade practices which act to reduce returns to growers would be prohibited, is being considered by the agricultural adjustment administration.

Hearings on the proposed license will begin July 2.

Texas ranks first among the states in the number of sheep and goats and also in the production of wool and mohair. Sheep on Texas farms numbered 7,644,000 on January 1, 1933, according to an estimate of the United States department of agriculture.

This was approximately 14.7 per cent of the sheep in the United States and produces a like percentage of mohair. Figures from the United States department of agriculture for 1934 show that 7,608,000 sheep were born in Texas in 1934 and that 60,425,000 pounds of wool were shorn.

Dr. Truett, who rose from a North Carolina rural school and church to the rank of an internationally known religious leader, believes success of decentralization of population and rural rehabilitation moves will depend upon the type of institutions in the country. He sees the school and church, even the smallest ones, as the possible fountain of rural stability and progress.

RURAL SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES

An account of a speech by Dr. Geo. Truett in Dallas says: "Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the Dallas First Baptist church and president of the World Baptist Alliance, sees a possible great future for the little red school house and the rural church."

"The humble institutions," he said in an interview, "nurtured American civilization. Our present complicated and changing social order can not well do without them. The masses of rural people—still the backbone of the nation—need them."

Dr. Truett, who rose from a North Carolina rural school and church to the rank of an internationally known religious leader, believes success of decentralization of population and rural rehabilitation moves will depend upon the type of institutions in the country. He sees the school and church, even the smallest ones, as the possible fountain of rural stability and progress.

"All roads lead to the city," he said in an interview, "nurtured American civilization. Our present complicated and changing social order can not well do without them. The masses of rural people—still the backbone of the nation—need them."

ONE OUT OF THREE

Who are your three best friends? Fix their names in your mind. Tell yourself that, at the present appalling rate of motor accidents, one of these friends is likely, sometime in future, to be killed or seriously injured in an automobile crash.

Your own chance of being killed or dangerously hurt in an auto accident has mounted so rapidly that it's now one to three. One to three! Think of it! Are there 30 boys and girls in your geometry class?

If so, current statistics tell us no less than ten of them are headed for the hospital or a morgue. And we're sorry to report, the very boys who are reading this editorial—boys of 18 and under—cause far more driving accidents than older people.

Let's do something about it. 1934 was the worst year in history, with 36,000 deaths. But 1935 will be what we make it. When you drive a car, remember that most accidents come from too much speed. Remember, too, that driving after dark is twice as dangerous as driving in daylight.

When you're on foot, obey traffic signals. If you cross against the light, your chance of injury is twice as great as if you'd waited. If you cross in the middle of the street, your chance of injury is twice as great as if you'd gone to the street intersection. Remember—the safe way is the quickest way.—American Boy.

"Paved highways, the automobile, airplane, radio, newspaper have revolutionized the social order, replaced the spelling bee and the once-a-month sermon in the country church."

"This influx to the city has brought a problem, a great need for rural development. If we do not have adequate institutions in the country, the people will continue to flock to the cities. It is better to build good churches and schools in the country than it is to move the people to the city for education and religious needs."

CENTENNIAL BUILDINGS

Construction of the Texas Centennial Central Exposition in Dallas will require 8,000,000 man-hours of labor, George Dahl, supervising architect, estimated Friday, after an exhaustive survey of plans.

This means 1,000,000 eight-hour man-days of labor will be required or that 500 men will be employed for a period of 200 working days or a calendar period of eight months, he explained.

The estimate was made upon the entire exposition's construction, including all buildings to be built by the state, federal and city governments, all structures to be raised by the central exposition and all independent buildings, as well as landscaping.

NEW ICE MACHINE

A report from Concord, Cal., says that Otto H. Mohr, a rancher, whose hobby is invention, has built an ice-making machine, operated by the sun's rays—and he has the ice to prove it. The machine, as displayed by Mohr, is a box-like device in which is set a nine-inch spherical lens. Below the lens is a pipe containing oil to serve as a heat conductor. There are two other pipes filled with ammonia. The operation begins with the heat vaporizing the ammonia, sending it through tubes into Mohr's home, where it is condensed as the ice-making process develops. "If the sun's rays are hot enough," said Mohr, "I can make enough ice in one day to serve me for a year."

HELPING TEXAS SCHOOLS

A group of Texas representatives, according to a Washington report, have demanded that Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, make allocations to aid Texas' rural schools. Representatives South, Mahon and Patton, especially, says the report, have been making surveys. They heard from Dickens county that the schools there "will be ruined" if federal aid is not forthcoming. Many county districts were reported to have kept their schools open and paid teachers on promises that the government would help. A survey by states shows, South said, that of all relief expenditures in Texas the government contributed 60.8 per cent, while

TAMING THE COLORADO

At the very time that the papers were filled with dispatches telling of the rampage of the flooded Colorado river of Texas, the news was received from Washington that Texas had been allotted $20,000,000 from the four billion dollar public works program. This money is for the Lower Colorado River Authority project which includes the half-finished Buchanan Dam near Burnet.

This project contemplates the completion of this huge structure and the erection of another dam lower down the river. It includes four massive power plants, two at the dam sites and two elsewhere using water piped from the dams. The water then will be used five times—four times to produce electric power and the fifth time for the irrigation of the rice fields of South Texas—whereas now it rushes wastefully to the Gulf leaving havoc in its wake.

Lake Brownwood, which is an important part of the Colorado water shed, is again full, holding more water than it did last year when it was unintentionally emptied. As its water is gradually used, the lake will provide storage for other excess rain water. If there had been more such reservoirs in the water shed of the Colorado there is no doubt but that far less damage would have been done by the Colorado as a result of the recent rains. The dams that are to be built further south also provide the safety of a reservoir but in addition they will harness the current of the river to provide electricity at low cost to all communities within reach of the CVA transmission lines.

What technical difficulties may be met with in the completion of the vast projects soon to be inaugurated, we cannot say, but there can be no doubt that immense benefit will accrue to the people from them.

Not only are jobless men—an estimated 4500 of them—about to be put to work, but the restless river is about to be tamed and also put to work to the immense advantage of thousands of citizens of this state.

WASTED MONEY

Strange as it may seem, the race track gamblers themselves have sponsored the movement to prevent the adoption of pari-mutuel betting in the state of New York. Their reason is simple. The take-off that goes to the state and the track in the pari-mutuel system is so great, the gamblers fear it will eventually put an end to betting and, therefore, racing. In New York where the bookmaking system is still in force, the public bets against the professional gamblers. In the pari-mutuel system, the public bets against itself and pays a fixed percentage of its winnings to the state and track.

This deduction, known as the take, amounted to more than half a million dollars in Texas last year. That means that approximately ten times that amount, or more than five million dollars, changed hands at the race tracks in this state last year. When it is considered how much of the winnings went to the "wise guys" from out of the state who knew which races were fixed, which horses were doped, and which jockeys were paid to lose, the total amount of money wasted is appalling.

Texas with the pari-mutuel system is a partner in the gambling business and gives it a mantle of respectability and honesty which it does not deserve. It is no wonder that the business houses of the cities where the race tracks are located have protested so volubly against this legalized racket which makes dead beats of customers and defaulters of trusted employees.

DO WE LOVE OUR CHILDREN?

Throughout America the motorist sees signs similar to the illustration on this page. Fully half of the drivers have children of their own, either in the cars with them or at home. Yet the fact that last year 5300 children were killed in automobile accidents and the enormous total of 152,219 non-fatally injured makes us wonder if we really do love our children and our neighbors' children.

School is out. More than ever the children are on the streets and in the roads. More drivers are on the go—many of them only children themselves—and surely and not so slowly the grim tide of automobile accidents moves on taking its toll of helpless victims and leaving in its wake the horribly injured and the dead.

It is hoped that Texas' new automobile drivers' license law will help in curbing this reckless disregard of human life. If it is strictly and impartially enforced, there is no doubt but that it will. But when all is said and done unless we love our children enough to respect their rights as pedestrians and passengers, the slaughter will continue.

SOUTH KEEPS FAITH

In voting last week to override the President's veto of the so-called soldier bonus bill, Congressman Charles L. South of this district kept faith with the veterans who supported him at the polls last summer. Judge South time and again announced during his campaign that he would support the bill for the immediate payment of the bonus. He accordingly voted for it at every opportunity.

No doubt he felt regret in having to vote against the wishes of the President and the leader of the Democratic party, but he did not allow such feelings to influence him. If the President in his able and eloquent message had developed any new arguments against payment of the bonus now, there is no doubt but that Judge South would have given them careful consideration. But the President did not present a single new thought, and there was no reason why our Representative should have changed his vote after the veto. Instead he stood steadfast, just as his friends have known he would, and once more justified their confidence in him.

A GOOD RULE

Effective September 1, the Interscholastic League of Texas will adopt and enforce the 18-year-old age-rule in all interscholastic contests, athletic, literary, artistic and commercial. The action of the executive committee in taking this forward step is highly to be commended.

Although this will place something of a penalty on the high school students over 18 who are still in high school, that disadvantage is more than counterbalanced by the encouragement it will give those of average age. In athletics in particular it will prohibit the assembling of teams of quasi-professional players, averaging inches taller and pounds heavier than the average high school student. It will do more to put competition on an equitable basis than anything that might be adopted.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Julian Capers, Jr.

The old adage "it never rains but it pours," has proved itself again, in connection with the discovery of new Texas oil fields.

Jimmie Jr., 7-year-old son of Governor Allred, has demonstrated that a good many Texans need to review their Texas history in preparation for the centennial next year. Jimmie observed the knowing comments which visitors to the executive mansion made on viewing two beautiful oil portraits of two of Texas' greatest heroes — Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin — that hang in the mansion. So he switched the two brass plates, with the names of the two men that were attached to the bases of the frames. When he giggled delightedly to himself for a couple of hours as dozens of visitors admired, "General Houston" while gazing at the portrait of Austin and vice versa. Not one of them noticed the difference and young Jimmie had so much fun he couldn't keep the secret, so he told his dad. The governor sternly bade him put the proper name back on each portrait, but Jimmie Jr. still thinks it was a good joke.

Now comes the prospect of dog racing as another "amusement" device on which Texas citizens can wager their earnings. If the slot machines, marble boards and horse race mutuel machines leave them any.

A syndicate in Dallas has announced that it will build a $10,000 dog racing track and District Attorney Bob Hurt of Dallas county countered with an announcement that he will seek an injunction if the track attempts to open. Attorneys for the promoters claim the San Antonio court of civil appeals has rendered a decision that dog track betting is as legal as horse track betting. The dog tracks aim at the pocketbook of the little fellow who can't afford to go to a horse track. They charge 25 to 50c admission, and take bets from a quarter up. Bill Cunningham, once a Texas newspaperman, recently wrote a graphic account of how dogs are trained to chase the mechanical rabbit by attaching a real live Easter rabbit to the machine, and letting the dogs chase it, after they have starved for several days. The dogs catch the helpless Easter bunny and devour it. Nobody's Business recommends to any reader who isn't sure how he feels about dog racing that he read Cunningham's article.

Charles H. (Chuck) Newell, once vice president and general manager of the Dallas Dispatch and later publisher of the Texarkana Press, has recently been elected manager of the Texas highway branch of the Associated General Contractors of America, with headquarters at the Austin hotel. Newell, known to most Texas newspapermen as an able member of their clan, plans to make the association of further benefit to the people of the state as well as the road builders. Shortly the A. G. C. will inaugurate an information bureau, prepared to furnish any information on any road project in Texas to newspaper editors—daily or weekly—who will take the trouble to write and ask for it. With millions of dollars of state and federal funds available for highway construction in Texas this year, local newspapers and citizens' committees interested in highway development in their sections should find Newell a capable and accommodating ally.

Health Hint

UNDULANT FEVER

This is the season when an increase in undulant fever cases may be expected, according to the state health officer. An undulant fever patient complains of warmth and has fever. There may also be chilly sensations or severe shaking chills and sweats. The patient loses weight and feels weak. If illness is of mild type, the patient finds it hard to remain in bed. He tries to keep on with his work but has "no pep."

Symptoms often continue for a number of weeks before recovery occurs. Fortunately undulant fever has a low death rate. Body temperature may reach a higher mark each day than the day before, and then gradually return to normal over a period of several days. Fever may be absent for some days and come back again to act the same way as before, registering higher each day and then gradually going lower. The patient's temperature chart as kept by the nurse in home or hospital, may resemble smooth waves or undulations. The appearance of the temperature curve in typical cases has given this disease the name undulant fever. The term "Malta" fever has been in common use in recent years, but the name undulant fever is more accurate.

Undulant fever is one of the infectious diseases known to be transmitted from animals to human beings. In cows and hogs the germ causes a disease of great economic importance known as contagious abortion. When this germ invades the human body, the resulting disease is undulant fever. Prevention is dependent upon (1) eradication of the disease in farm animals, (2) careful pasteurization of dairy products and (3) avoidance, insofar as possible, of direct contact with infected animals.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

SCHOOL FUND DEPRECIATION

The state auditor has been trying for several years to convince the people of Texas that the permanent school fund of the state was being endangered by the policy of the board of education in purchasing refunding bonds of school districts. Members of the board have poured forth a volume of argument in defense of their program and, at times, visited their wrath on the auditor, but now it seems that the auditor knew what he was talking about. At least, the special legislative investigating committee thinks so.

Members of the board have pointed to the legal requirement that they must give the bonds of school districts first consideration in making purchases for the fund. They call attention also to the situation that has dried up the supply of original issues and left refunding bonds of the districts the bulk of offerings of the last few years. As against this argument, the auditor has contended that no reasonable interpretation of the law could impose on the board the necessity of buying bad bonds, or even of paying for bonds substantially more than they were worth in the open market. The board has protested that it has not been paying a substantially greater price than the bonds would bring in the open market. The current report states that some of the bonds could have been bought for 50c on the dollar.

No one accuses the members of the board of dishonesty. It is a little unkind to say that they have not pursued an efficient policy; they are citizens busy with their own private affairs, serving the state from a sense of duty. But, if the report of the legislative committee is to be accepted, the board has been woefully inefficient. Any policy that costs the state more than 30 per cent of the value of the bonds in a public fund is inefficient. The next legislature should act upon the recommendations of the investigating committee, forbidding the purchase of refunding bonds, providing the board with legal and financial advisers, and setting in motion an effort to recoup losses from both depreciation of securities and mishandling of mineral rights. —Dallas News.

CHANGING EUROPE

There is some slight indication in Europe that the meeting set for June 3 at Rome may have to be postponed. There seems to be so little chance for the making of harmonious agreements that the conference may not be called, so as to save the face of the prospective delegates from the valley of the Danube, invited by Italy and France. The states of central and southeast Europe are far from being like-minded.

To whatever one wishes, the others offer objections.

Turkey has become a disturbing factor for the reason that its recently announced desire to fortify the Dardanelles apparently is already in part accomplished. The example of Japan in Manchuria and Germany's rearmament policy, in spite of treaties, have made an impression on international politics. Turkey and Russia seem to be working together. If the straits are fortified, the Black Sea can not be invaded without Turkey's consent; hence, Russia may heavily fortify it as a base, in anticipation of trouble in the Mediterranean. Thus both countries would be largely freed from the danger of attack and also might control the situation in the near East. Great Britain, of course, as the leading naval power on the Mediterranean, is deeply interested in Turkey's intentions.

The British government, when it announced in parliament that it proposed at once to double its air forces and especially to strengthen its home defense air force, made a deep stir in the European world. England intends to attain air parity with France and Germany. This is a recognition of a change in its theory of sea power. Great Britain must not only have a superior navy on the sea, it must also have a powerful navy in the air, recognizing the fact that invasion may

COTTON RATE

Interior compresses and a wide area that has a greater economic stake in their prosperity than it always realizes, benefit materially from the "any quantity" cotton shipment rate ruling of the Texas Railroad Commission, which is described as coinciding with the whims of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The effect is to keep in force a rate structure which makes it more profitable to compress cotton in the interior and ship to the ports than to forward it uncompressed, thus surrendering all of the interior business to the port compresses. Warehouse storage in this area is also benefited by the decision.

As a matter of fairness there can be no sound contention against the continuance of the practice. Commissioner Terrell has summed up the economic result of a response to a demand to substitute straight carload and less than carload lot rates. Except that an advantage would be given certain cotton interests, what argument as to fairness attaches to the latter?

The co-decision to continue to regard Houston, Galveston and Texas City as a single terminal on points 1000 miles from Houston favors the long battle of the more remote ports for equalization. It is not entirely logical, but, in view of the short distance between the three ports, both the state commissioned and the I. C. C. prefer to favor existing machinery by an expedient ruling than to stand on the plain fact of mileage. Failure to equalize might eventually destroy the cotton shipping trade of Texas City and Galveston. There is a good deal of merit to the contention of those cities that Houston is an artificial port, largely built and maintained by federal subsidy in which Galveston and Texas City taxpayers share, and that it should not, through geographical position, be permitted to block the natural ports out of existence. Under the one-terminal ruling cotton will continue to move from all three.

WEALTHY SLACKERS

A great many farm hands and plumbers and taxi drivers who suffered from trench vermin and German explosives in 1918, will have little sympathy with the efforts of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, son of a wealthy Philadelphia family, to gain immunity for his evasion of war service. The present temper in this country is to require the rich to take the same risks as the poor in the next war.

That is not to say that Bergdoll ever thought he should be excused from war service because of his wealth. Yet, whatever his motives may have been, his wealth probably helped to escape to Germany, where he still lives in exile; and it will handicap the efforts of his wife who has come to this country to seek executive clemency for him.

It may prove impossible to fully curb war profiteering or impracticable to send to the trenches every congressman who votes for war. The wealthy slacker, though, is likely to find his path much thornier than it was in 1918. If a few more obstacles could be placed in the way of this potential stay-at-home patriot, the danger of our becoming embroiled in another war might become less ominous. —Dallas News.

KNOTTY PROBLEMS

Much of the testimony submitted to the President's committee investigating the cotton textile industry has been appointing. Representative northern mills have government subsidies to compensate for their high production, and for efforts to protect them against Japanese competition.

It was not on the special government aid that New England cotton industry achieved its early in the century. It is unlikely that it will resist by relying more on the government.

There is much to be said for the New England cotton industry is suffering from the difficulties strikingly like that appeared in the British three years ago. Both industry and production are reported to be obsolescent, course, a wage difference between northern and southern mills imposes a burden on the New England branch of the industry.

The demand of cotton manufacturers in both the north and south for sharp reduction of the processing raw cotton puts the committee on the spot. For it forces the committee to pass judgment on the of the AAA that is the broadest criticism, but carefully in the balance interests of cotton growers one hand and manufacturer cotton cloth on the other.

The troubles of the goods manufacturers are fully to public attention, weakness of the underlying of AAA and NRA higher costs of production which it is responsible for. The manufacturers find it possible to raise prices to cover their high of operation are asking government what to do. The answer of the special committee to the tion, expected in the days, will be interesting probably significant. —Plain Dealer.

PRESIDENT ON INFLATION

The implications of Roosevelt's message to go far beyond the issues raised by the bill. In this address the president puts himself very clearly in the class of "sound economists. He is a "sound money man," "sound money man," less. This stand was to be expected. More than a in an address to the president reiterated that the dollar devaluation, ment, expressed the silver might be used to assist in stabilizing the money and credit conditions said definitely that were outside consideration of those who have been that the president would the Patman bonus-green overlooked the fact that in his hands great power flate through printing money ever since the amendment to the act of 1933 was adopted.

For this reason, the president's message was full port for the future.

KNOW ANY BIGGER?

For 30 years J. W. P. Meltzer of Indiana has been on a hunt and because he has had no luck at all at finding what he was looking for he is sending out an appeal.

Every spare minute during the past three decades I have been looking diligently in every brook, branch, river, beach and bay—even have caught myself looking into a bucket of water—for a certain aquatic vertebrate in order to realize a life's ambition. Now I must give away a 30-year secret for help!

When I was a boy, there lived in our neighborhood an old Kennuckian who rightfully spent his declining years fishing in Mud creek, three-quarters of a mile away. About twice a week, the weather permitting, we would see him trudging along with an old cane pole and a prized, guarded minnow bucket, but never with a minnow net. Within a short time he return carrying from five to seven nice bass.

He was the mystery and envy of the whole neighborhood, and try as they may, they never learned his secret. He always fished in open places, but only after he was thoroughly convinced no one was near. Before he died, however, I solved the mystery.

In the early morning darkness I sprinted to the creek and hid myself in a small bunch of fluffy willows near his favorite fishing hole. I had only been there a short time when I saw him hobbling in the distance. Reaching the bank, he stopped to puff for a few minutes, then cautiously looked around in all directions. Apparently he was satisfied no one was near, for he sat down with his back to me. He took something from his pocket, worked with it a little, then tenderly took a minnow from the bucket, fastened it to whatever he was working with, and then in turn tied them to a line on his pole which he had securely weighted down with two large-sized boulders.

He slipped the minnow by hand into the water. Almost instantly there was a terrific jerk. I stopped breathing. Another jerk followed, then another. And all this time he just sat gazing at the spot where he had slipped the minnow in.

After the seventh jerk I saw him bend over and reach for something small which wiggled on the surface of the water. He grabbed a line firmly, carefully loosened the minnow, patted it, returned it to the bucket and dropped in a morsel of food. After that he took the pole end of the line with the one to which the minnow was attached and began pulling toward shore.

Believe it or not he pulled out seven bass, each of them neatly strung on the line. I judged they weighed from three to five lbs apiece.

I noticed the minnow was deformed, being curved in a crescent shape, and that it wore a delicate harness. Thus every time a bass tried to swallow it, it slipped out through the fish's gills, instead of going down his throat (as the bass expected it to do). Of course, when the minnow swam out through the gills he carried the line with him, and repeated the process until the requisite five or seven fish had been strung. Then he was trained to return to the spot where he had begun operations.

Now I hope everyone of you who reads this, while on your water jaunts this summer, will look for such a minnow of this description. If you find it, express it to me at once in an approved container. C. O. D.—price no object, provided inflation comes.—Pathfinder.

ODD ACCIDENTS

Explosions often occur from unusual causes, but the latest reported is blamed on spring rains. Water seeped under a huge "gob pile" (a smouldering heap of salte and low grade coal) created steam and set off a series of explosions, startling nearby West Virginia residents.

When a fire broke out in her Philadelphia apartment, Sarah Nelson, 67, jumped out of a third story window—right into the arms of a pedestrian. She was unhurt, but her benefactor received a strained back.

Ernest Lund thought it was a trifle early for fireflies, even in the Tarheel state, but he set his foot on what appeared to be one anyway. He was greatly "shocked" to find the supposed firefly was really a live wire concealed in the grass and giving off a flickering light in contact with the ground.

American tornadoes have nothing on the winds of France. While plotting his glider near Mar-seilles Paul Mechenet was blown from his seat by a gust of wind and fell to death 300 feet below.

A Tennessee auto thief set himself on fire when he attempted to start a purloined vehicle. He had previously stepped in a small pool of gasoline and a spark from a short-circuited starter to his gas-soaked shoe did the rest.

Painting experiments by two-year-old Robert Gray, nearly resulted disastrously when he applied a coat of auto lacquer to the body of his baby brother. It dried quickly in the California sun, closing the pores of the skin. But two hours of hard work applying solvents saved the tot's life.—Pathfinder.

Garden Insects that DESTROY

Cucumber Beetle—Early Killer
By DR. HARRY F. DIETZ, Grasselli Chemical Co.
Research Department, parts of the country east of the Rockies. They are easily identified. The larvae are slender, white, worm-like creatures about 1/3 inch in length. The head and posterior ends are brown. The adults are small, black-striped on yellow.
With the arrival of the warm days of spring they begin to emerge from winter quarters. At first they feed on the flowers of cucurbits and such fruits as apples, haws and mock orange until the cucumbers and melons are ready to push through the ground, when they seem to congregate and wait for them. The ideal time to gain control of them is when they have gathered waiting for the cucumbers and melons to push through the ground.
The best material to control them that has been devised is a dust composed of one part barium fluosulfate and four parts of cheap flour, and applied at the rate of thirty pounds per acre. Dusting should begin before the plants come above the ground in order to forestall the beetles going into the ground after them, and should be continued at weekly intervals until the pickles or melons form. After heavy rains extra applications should be made.

Each was rather a late hour for us farmers, as it is day light in Washington at 4:30 by our time. L. C. Lucas of Brownwood was master of ceremonies at the banquet, which was an honor to us and to our neighborhood.

Wednesday, 15, was spent in sight-seeing, which started at the Lincoln memorial, Arlington Cemetery, where the unknown soldier's grave is guarded day and night and to Gen. Lee's old home Mount Vernon to Washington's old home. Then to Washington monument, which is 560 feet tall and at the top you get a fair view of the city.

Other places were the National Zoo and Smithsonian institute, which is great. It is said, looking at each exhibit 5 minutes would take 67 years to go through, so you must remember we did not stay in Washington 67 years. We went through the capitol, congress and senate halls and many other buildings too numerous to mention, returning to our train to depart at 7 p. m. Wednesday, May 15.

Much praise was given C. H. Day of Plainview, Texas, who went ahead and made arrangements for our visit, having trouble in securing a building large enough to accommodate the crowd. He finally rented Constitutional hall, which is the largest building in Washington. It is privately owned and costs $800 a day rent, which was promptly raised by an old time hat collection. It was the largest crowd to ever visit the city and the only one ever made, not asking for any special favors, and brought much praise from our congressmen and senators and even from the lips of the Hon. President.

We arrived in our dear old state in which we were born and reared and still think is the most beautiful and best of all, Friday, May 17, at 2:30 p. m.

We hope we have carried your message and fulfilled our mission that was so honorably bestowed upon us and that we enjoyed the trip very much. We believe much good has been accomplished and we sincerely hope our trip has not been in vain and that agricultural interests may be placed on equality with other industries and all may prosper alike.

We want to thank all those who contributed to the trip and bestowed the honor upon us to make the trip.

MRS. JOE W. MORGAN PASSED AWAY

The relatives of Mrs. Joe W. Morgan received the sad news of her expected death Thursday afternoon.

Since the latter part of December she had been very ill in her home and in a Temple hospital, where she submitted to an operation about four weeks ago, in an effort to relieve her great suffering. This was believed to have been successful until a few days ago, when a blood transfusion was necessary. This seemed to have helped until her sudden collapse on Wednesday, at 3:30 p. m., from which time she sank rapidly and death came at 1:40 a. m., May 23, 1935.

Mrs. Morgan is remembered as Addie Gertrude Wittenburg, oldest daughter of the late Wm. Wittenburg, one of the early settlers of this part of the country. She was born near Moffatt, Bell county, June 22, 1871, and came with the family to Lampasas county in 1879, where her girlhood was spent, attending the local schools of Senterfitt and Lometa and later on, Sacred Heart Academy in Waco.

December 28, 1898, she was married to Joe W. Morgan, who then had charge of Chadwick Mill, where they lived until buying a home near Antelope Gap, Mills county, where they continued to reside. Mr. Morgan preceded Mrs. Morgan in death on December 18, 1934. The remains were brought home Thursday afternoon and funeral services were from the home at 3 o'clock with burial beside her husband in Senterfitt cemetery Friday afternoon, Rev. Father T. T. Cronin, who offered mass for her in the morning, conducted the services at the home and cemetery.

Pallbearers were Joe Pvorman, Morgan Davis, Earl Blake, Joe, James and Wm. H. Wittenburg. Surviving relatives are two brothers, W. E. Wittenburg of Lometa and T. J. Wittenburg of Rock Springs; two sisters, Mrs. H. S. Davis of Rock Springs and Mrs. J. L. Buttrill of Lometa. Besides a number of nephews, nieces and other relatives.

The many friends of Mrs. Morgan grieve and remember her as a dear friend, a good neighbor and a Christian character above reproach and pray, "According to the fore-knowledge of God the Father, unto the sanctification of the spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace unto you and peace be multiplied. Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to His great mercy, hath regenerated into a lively hope, by the resurrection of Christ from the dead. Unto an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and that can not fade, reserved in heaven for you." A FRIEND
