

THE GOLDTHWAITE EAGLE

FORTY-ONE

GOLDTHWAITE, MILLS COUNTY, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JUNE 7, 1935.

NUMBER THIRTY-ONE

Progressing Around Square

of preparing for the three sides of the public square is going at a rapid rate. In fact, the work has progressed to that makes travel very difficult. The square on the three sides are have been plowed under is leveling them. It is very inconvenient for us, but we all realize it is necessary to paving and when the muddiness will be remedied.

Carriers for Mail Routes

On July 1, the mail on route from Moline to Goldthwaite and return will be carried by A. W. Carswell of Moline. He has been awarded the contract for the next four years. The present carrier is Clem Howard.

Checks Distributed

Distribution of cotton rental checks by the county clerk last Saturday caused a rush in business. The week the county clerk issued checks for $16,000 and the greater part of the checks were distributed while a few were called for to that date and the clerk has possibly 100 checks that have not been called for to whom they belong. This money helps business as well as the farmers.

Singers End Convention

County singing convention held in the public auditorium here last Saturday and Sunday, was a success and thoroughly enjoyed by the audience as well as the singers. There was a lot of singing as well as a delectable occasion. The next convention is to be held at Pleasant Grove.

Police Broadcast

W. H. Thompson of Goldthwaite and A. W. Stewart of this city were in Goldthwaite in the interest of having counties in Mills county co-operate in a plan to have a broadcasting station at Goldthwaite. The station would be a source of information regarding burglaries, robberies, car accidents and all other crimes. The station would be maintained on a fee basis and when a crime is committed it would be necessary to telephone the station and it will be immediately announced with a description as will be necessary to assist the officers in finding criminals and returning stolen property. The station would cost $12.50 per month for the maintenance of the station. It is estimated that cities and towns in Mills county will co-operate with the station in paying the maintenance cost. The matter was discussed by the commissioners and city officials at this time and those who have disagreed will agree in the endorsement of the plan.

Methodist Notes

For some reason the people of this immediate section of our country have been unusually blessed and preserved the past few weeks. The season, so unpromising for crops has changed. The refreshing rains have come and the fields which, for a time, looked so unpromising, have begun to indicate abundant fruitage. Texas is one of the most peculiar places I have ever seen. It can promise less and do more, than almost any place in the known universe. Who would have thought six weeks ago, when the very heavens seemed as if made of brass, that there would be such great promise as at this time!

How thankful we should be. Almost all sections of the country have had visited upon them storms, floods, earthquakes and sudden deaths in many ways, yet we have been spared all these calamities. Our hearts should be filled with thanksgiving and praise. From the depth of our hearts we should sing: "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Let us all remember that our meeting begins one week from next Sunday morning. Bro. Duke will preach on the morning of that day, and Rev. B. L. Nance will have charge of the service in the evening, Monday evening, and from that to the close of the meeting, the Rev. Alfred Wells, Dallas, Texas, will have charge of the services. Bro. Wells has the reputation of being a very successful preacher - revivalist and friend to the pastor and people. This is a rare combination and worthy of all approval. Whatever success he is to have in a meeting here, or any place else, for that matter, will depend very materially upon the support and co-operation of the people. Let us see to it that so far as each of us is individually concerned, he has this, yea even more.

It is a great personal joy to see the Eagle editor back at his old post. While the office force got out a mighty good paper while he was indisposed, yet it really takes the experienced and more competent hand to get it done just right. We hope that he may now be able to remain at the post he has so competently filled during all these years.

I do not know why, unless it may be attributed to old age, that I should have forgotten in the first paragraph to speak of the fine fruit we were all enjoying. I have seen berries, plums and other such fruit in many places in this big country, but if anyone ever saw finer fruit in any place than has been placed on our market by our local fruit growers, I do not know where it could be. Somehow, Saylor, Cockrell, Weems Weathers and a dozen others are mighty good rivals of Burbank.

This all reminds me of another thing really worth mentioning: Why don't all our people make up their minds that it is really worthwhile to raise plenty of fruit and vegetables for family use? I have almost decided that the family that does not raise a garden, fruit and everything of that kind—well, I believe I will say it anyway—ought to go hungry. If people would do this, and use the modern method of canning vegetables and fruit, they could live on the fat of the land, and grow fat.

Personally, this writer has never been accused of having any more sense or energy than a man should have, yet from a large farm, thirty feet square, he raised vegetables enough for summer use last season and still has some of the vintage that he put in cans last year on hand for a rainy day. If one lacking in almost all the essentials of activity could do this, what ought to be expected of those who measure up to the stature of a full grown man! Try it once and see what the results might be.

If you have no other church home, we will be glad to have you at the Methodist church.

Nazarene Remarks

Last week the young people of the Nazarene church attended the zone rally of this zone, which was held with the Coleman church, of which Rev. Lee P. Phillips is pastor. All but one church in this zone was represented by a delegation from their church. One feature of the rally that was especially enjoyed was the inspiring message which was brought by the zone president, Rev. Henry B. Hughes, pastor of our church in San Angelo. Bro. Hughes is a successful young pastor, having pastored the church at San Angelo for three years, and serving two years of that time as zone president of the N. Y. P. S. on the northwest zone, of which the Goldthwaite church is a member. The Goldthwaite delegation bid for the next rally, and it was unanimously voted by all members of the rally to come to Goldthwaite. The next rally will be entertained here July 4. This will be during the young people's revival meeting, which is to be conducted by Rev. Leo Baldwin.

While the vacation months have already begun to create a stir in our congregation, it is no time to let up. Let everyone be in their places next Sunday.

School Matters

State Superintendent L. A. Woods spoke to a good-sized crowd in the district court room here Wednesday morning. Many people commented favorably on Mr. Woods' talk, in which he explained the workings of the new state aid law. A good many Mills county teachers and trustees from Mills county were present and some teachers and superintendents from surrounding counties. Judge E. B. Anderson also made a talk to the crowd.

The Mills county school board met Wednesday afternoon and transacted a considerable amount of business. Bus routes were established over the county for the coming year. Goldthwaite asked for four routes which were granted. Mullin was granted one route, but expect to bring in petitions for one or two more next time. Priddy is also in the bus business and will have petitions before the board at its next meeting.

Baptist Reminder

"Two communities were carefully studied. In one, with six families, no Sabbath was observed. In the other, with five families, the Sunday was carefully kept. From the first family the descendants furnished in one generation, five persons in penitentiaries, a number in poor houses, several drunkards and not one who was a real blessing to the world. The Sabbath-keeping community furnished in one generation, one minister, one missionary, many good Christian people and not one criminal, and not one in the poor house. Sunday should be, above all else, a day of worship, when one's thoughts should be principally about spiritual matters."

How do you expect to spend this next Sabbath? Try attending the church services in some church Sunday. Come in time for Sunday school and stay for the church service.

My subject Sunday morning will be, "The voice of the blood of Christ." Sunday evening, "The new heart." If you have no church home come and be with us. Our evening services will be: B. T. S., 7 p. m., preaching at 8.

Highway Meeting In Waco

A large delegation of good roads advocates of Mills county attended a meeting in Waco yesterday, in the interest of highway improvement in this section. It is believed the Waco meeting will be productive of much benefit to the highways and will result in road improvement thru-out this section.

The Waco Record said of the proposed meeting: A good roads meeting to be held at the Orpheum theatre here Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, is slated to be one of the most significant assemblies of its kind in some time. The meeting was called by the manager of the Central Texas Highway association, for the purpose of initiating a move to complete all Central Texas highways, and representatives from thirty-one counties are expected to be present. All county judges, chamber of commerce committeemen and commissioners of the thirty-one counties have been invited.

Numerous gaps in the highways of Central Texas retard transportation, particularly westward and the purpose of the present move is to remedy this undesirable situation. Closing of all gaps is to be the main objective and every effort will be put forth to facilitate the program, it is stated.

CONDITIONS IN TEXAS

Cotton in Texas generally is up to a good stand in southern, eastern and western districts, but rains and cool weather have delayed growth, while fields that are too wet to work are becoming grassy. Dry weather should quickly relieve this condition. Some replanting will be necessary. In central and northern areas much seed failed to germinate.

Feed crops in many areas are progressing favorably and additional planting will be made. Feed crop acreage will show a heavy increase as compared with last year.

Rice in coastal areas continues to show satisfactory development acreage the same as that of last year, and a general improved outlook indicates an increase in production.

Potato movement is under way from the Eagle Lake-Wharton section; production about the same as last year.

Movement of tomatoes from East Texas points has started, and will become heavy during early June. Production equal to that of last year is expected. Continued rains may reduce this estimate.

Onion progress in North Texas has been checked by heavy rains, but this delay is not expected to affect the final production which will be substantially greater than ever obtained in this area.

Melons and cantaloupes are showing ill effects of excessive wet weather, but rapidly will improve with advent of hot and dry weather.

There has been a marked improvement in crops in Northwest Texas, due to rain, but in many places the precipitation was slight. Wheat, barley and oats will be light. A large acreage of feed crops will be planted.

Ranges and pastures show additional improvement as rains continue. Soil moisture in all sections is ample for present needs and summer grazing is assured.

ODD ACCIDENTS

Sleepwalking was a sad experience for 7-year-old Francis Bulac, who lives in the nation's capital. He walked right through an open window and fell to the concrete sidewalk, 25 feet below, but received only minor cuts and bruises. His windows are now nailed down.

A Californian electrocuted his neighbor's cow with a 22 caliber rifle when he shot at a bird. The bullet struck and cut a power wire which dropped across a wire fence through which the bovine was reaching for a particularly tempting tuft of grass.

A neighbor woman was killed and a boy and his mother severely shocked and burned when a kite flown by a Tennessee lad, Johnson Robinette, became entangled in a power line. Evidently forgetting Ben Franklin's experiments the tragedy occurred when they attempted to pull the kite loose from the wires.

Love is a peculiar thing and sometimes has strange consequences such as causing an Illinois couple, William and Marie O'Connor, to fall three stories and escape unhurt. They later explained they had been embracing near an open window.—Pathfinder.

Sir Malcolm Campbell and the "Bluebird" in which he set the world's record March 7.

THE world's record automobile speed of 276.816 miles an hour, made by Sir Malcolm Campbell at Daytona Beach on March 7th, had never been reached. Powering the monster in its record run was gasoline containing benzol, pronounced by Sir Malcolm as an excellent ingredient for motor fuels.

Since the speeds set by Sir Malcolm this year and in 1933 stand so close together, it is indicated that an entirely new type of car will have to be designed before an appreciable gain in speed is made.

BLUE JAY

A SECOND FIDDLER LIKES HIS JOB

Apparently this business of being vice president is not such a bad job, after all. John N. Garner, after having sat as presiding officer over the United States senate through a not too quiet term, wishes the job again. And James A. Farley, political major dome of the administration, says he may have the Democratic nomination for it.

On the surface, the announcement may be taken as an example of the wisdom that in politics great are the rewards of sagacity. Whatever his inward feelings about the new deal, Mr. Garner has been extremely loyal to his "chief," the president. The only apparent exception was his reported belief that it would be good politics to have the anti-sterile Mr. Roosevelt's vote of the bonus. Otherwise, Mr. Garner's dependability, plus his astuteness, as a political and legislative strategist, has been of so much value to the White House to be ignored. Too long has the vice-pres-

Garden Insects that DESTROY

Rose Chafer — Raider of Flowers and Foliage

By DR. HARRY F. DIETZ
Research Department, Grasselli Chemical Co.

GROWERS of flowers, fruits and berries, whether commercially or just in the home garden for family use, will soon be confronted by a beetle known as rose chafer. Its visits last only about five or six weeks, from the latter part of May to the first of July, but during that time the damage it does is often very great unless it is controlled.

The rose chafer is a member of the scarab family of beetles and, although a native insect, it is distantly related to such injurious pests as the Japanese and Asiatic beetles. It is about one-half an inch in length, and the adults are gangly, long, spiny-legged, and of a greyish brown. Usually they are found in clusters when feeding.

The favorite diet of the rose chafer is the flowers of the grape, but it also feeds on the flowers and foliage of the rose family, both wild and cultivated, and on the developing fruits and foliage of apples, pears, plums, peaches, blackberries, raspberries and strawberries.

It will be well to remember that the above mixture cannot be used on peaches or certain varieties of plums. But barium fluosulfate can be used in place of lead arsenate in a liquid spray. However, barium fluosulfate dust mixed with cheap flour has been found to be more effective. Use twenty parts by weight of barium fluosulfate with eighty parts of cheap flour, or in like proportion for any amount. The addition of a small quantity of powdered sugar, one part to five hundred parts of the above mixture, seems to make it more attractive to the beetles.

A Disappointment That Rancors

President Roosevelt and his co-administrators of the National Recovery Act, recently abolished by the decision of the United States supreme court, appear to be disappointed and petulant over the court's decision. Their attitude seems to be almost resentful and a threat was made in early discussions of the decision that even the farm relief policies of the government would be affected by the decision. The leaders seem to have thought better of the situation now, however, and realize that the fact must be faced that this government is still a republic and the congress, no matter how strong may be its admiration for the administration or its desire to be loyal to it, can not delegate dictatorial powers. As time goes on and the wisdom and justice of the court's decision is better understood, the realization will come that the nation's supreme court stands as a bulwark between politicians and the people of the nation and the court's decisions on constitutional questions have always been found to be logical and right. The court has handed down several momentous decisions in the past few months, a most dramatic recent decision was that of the gold cases, in which the administration's unprecedented action of seizing all the country's gold was held to be compatible with the basic law of the land—the much talked about, little understood constitution.

Only a few weeks ago this same supreme court passed another case which received fewer headlines, was less dramatic, but which may prove to be of even greater importance than the gold imbroglio—the railroad pension act. This act was passed by the last session of congress. Under it, by government fiat, the railroads of the country were forced to make provision for pensioning their old employes, whether they wanted to or not, and whether or not they had the money. The bill provided that the railroads' payments be pooled, so that the stronger lines would help to provide for the employes of lines which were financially weak. The case went to court, dragged through a series of lower tribunals, arrived at last at the court of last resort, where the nine-judges listened to long arguments by able counsel for both sides. The court declared that the act was beyond the powers granted to congress by the constitution, was thus null and void. The decision is very important in that it establishes a precedent which, in the opinion of most commentators learned in the intricacies of constitutional law, makes it almost inevitable that the court will likewise throw out any social security legislation that congress may pass, no matter what the people or their leaders may think of it. All of which means to say that the supreme court is free from influence or bias on all questions and can pass on all constitutional subjects submitted without social or political influence. It is the highest judicial tribunal on earth and is entitled to the respect and high regard of every citizen of the nation, whether an official or in private walks of life.

A Solution Necessary

The nation must have a solution of its traffic control and mounting death and injury list. During 1934 24.7 persons out of every 100,000 population met death in some highway or traffic accident. It is idle to continue to appeal to drivers and pedestrians on the highway. Some more effectual remedy must be found than argument and the citing of examples and statistics. This is no abstract proposition or one in which people must draw on their imaginations. It is only necessary to watch the recklessness on any highway or street to realize the growing hazard to life and limb. See the hurry through congested traffic and watch the abandon with which pedestrians and drivers alike plunge along, regardless of the danger. Just why the death and injury list should continue to grow is hard to explain, yet the record for the past year is clear. During 1934 each 100,000 cars in use killed 130.4 people. Every time 10,000,000 gallons of gasoline were consumed, 211 persons died. In 1931, automobile registrations were 3 per cent greater—but 1931 automobile deaths were 8 per cent under 1934. This year, with automobile registrations and gas consumption again on the up-grade, it isn't pleasant to speculate on what the death toll will be—unless that proportion of the motoring public which is reckless, incompetent and plain discourteous is forced to change its ways and pedestrians are forced to obey the rules of traffic and regard the rights of others on the highway and at traffic intersections. The solution of the whole problem is more drastic laws and more certain enforcement of their penalties.

Confidence A Great Asset

The movement on the part of the railroads of the west, and doubtless of all parts of the nation, to regain lost prestige, is an apt illustration of the need of private business and corporate enterprise for the public confidence and co-operation. In the old days there was a feeling that the expression attributed to Jay Gould, one of the greatest railroad magnates this country ever produced, was really the railroad spirit that "the people be damned" if they do not like my policies. This spirit perhaps dominated many lesser dignitaries in the business at that time and in later years, but all have come to understand that public confidence and public sympathy are the greatest assets any business man have and the wise thing to do, when this spirit of co-operation is waning is to make every effort to regain it speedily. To be sure, motor vehicles have taken much of the patronage from the railroads, yet some of it can be regained by the methods being put forth by the railroads and their employes. The railroads have a mighty influence in building and developing the country, they give employment to a large per cent of the population and they pay a full share of the taxes for the support of the schools and every form of government. If this co-operation of the public is regained much of the lost patronage will be restored.

A Poor Showing For Thrift

It is a wonderfully poor showing for thrift in this country with the greatest opportunities for thrift of any country on earth that a tremendously large percent of people who reach the age of 65 years are dependent, either on relatives or on some division of government. Even in normal times, 98 per cent of the American people are poor managers. A survey made of 20,000 persons, before the current depression, shows that only one out of one hundred accumulated as much as $100,000. Only one out of eleven left an estate which, if invested at the rate of 6 per cent, would produce an income of $50 a month or over, and nearly two-thirds of the men studied—64 out of each 100—left nothing. It is queer indeed that this condition should be true, but statistics say it is true.

Health Hint

TYPHOID FEVER

Now is the time, according to the bureau of communicable diseases, to be vaccinated against typhoid fever, a disease that has cost the lives of more than 2000 Texans in the past four years.

Typhoid fever has been eliminated in our army and navy through vaccination. The typhoid vaccine is not a serum. This preventive treatment of typhoid fever consists of three small hypodermic "shots" given every 5 to 7 days until three injections are given. Such a treatment protects you from taking the typhoid fever for two to three years.

Consult your family physician in regards to typhoid prevention. Invest in typhoid protection against this often fatal disease. This form of protection insures you and your family against possible long confinement, great economic loss and perhaps death.

You may be so unfortunate as to drink contaminated milk, water or other food containing the typhoid bacilli and contract the disease this year. In selecting a place for a vacation, choose one where you know that the water and milk supply is pure. Be sure that the kitchen and the dining room are screened to protect food from flies. When camping it is best to boil water used for drinking, unless you know that it is pure. Clear, sparkling spring water may be polluted by drainage.

PAN-AMERICAN HIGHWAY

Road-building machinery to the value of $1,000,000, loaned to the Republic of Central America to enable them to construct their links in the great Pan-American highway, will be but a dribble of the stream of American money that will flow into those countries when that artery of travel and commerce shall have been completed. A few days ago Paul de Casarua, former Mexican ambassador to the United States, said he expected $400,000,000 a year to be spent in his country by tourists from the United States. Of such a huge sum as that the cost of the highway from Mexico City to El Paso, soon to be entirely completed, is but a dribble.

Likewise would be the cost of its extension through Central America. Lending $1,000,000 worth of machinery as cash capital which, of course, will never come back, would be an investment for this country from a trade point of view. Japan has recently complained that we are trying to shut her out of Central American markets. This is untrue, insofar as any government action is concerned, but it will no longer be true if we lend this road machinery for the construction of a highway that will give us better access to those markets and those nations to our markets. American gold will follow American tourists clear to Panama.

How much of the assumed tourist travel of $400,000,000 will be diverted from Florida and California nobody knows. The Golden State has never claimed a tourist travel expenditure in excess of $300,000,000. Florida's strictly tourist travel is by no means so large. Her visitors are more of the temporary recreational and winter-living type, who would not be diverted to Mexico in large numbers. Yet Californians do not appear to fear a net loss, as they are the strongest boosters for the 12,000 mile Pan-American highway, believing that their own trade from new travel created will more than offset any diversion of tourists.

With the adoption of a policy of minding our own business and not meddling in the affairs of our sister American republics, except in such a helpful way as this loan of machinery and as such an artery of commerce and bond of friendship as this great highway would be, relations between the countries of North, Central and South America may be expected to become so cordial and of such mutual economic value as to acquire for us preferred standing in their markets and give the word "Pan-American" a new meaning.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE INCREASING OPIUM TRAFFIC

The world's concern with conditions which may prevail in one of its nations is illustrated by the fact that weak governments in China have permitted, or fostered, the spread of the opium industry. Statistics presented the League of Nations advisory committee on opium by the American representative, Stuart J. Fuller, show that China is now producing nearly ten times as much opium as all the rest of the world, and that it is busily engaged in producing heroin and other opium derivatives.

The world drive on the opium traffic began many years ago, before the Manchu dynasty in China was overthrown. For all the evils charged to that autocratic regime, it did fulfill its promise to co-operate with the other nations in gradual suppression of poppy growing.

With the coming of the Chinese republic fine promises were made, but first one excuse and then another was offered why success could not be had in the suppression program. First was the charge that Great Britain must be more effective in its suppression of the traffic in India, then that the Chinese could not be expected to forego their opium profits unless the country were granted tariff autonomy, and foreign countries gave up their extra territorial rights. Thus, while the anti-opium program was a dead letter so far as domestic results were concerned, it continued a valuable pawn in international politics.

At present there can be no doubt, unless all unbiased American observers are wrong, that opium production is the pet revenue-raising device of hundreds and thousands of provincial officials, over whom Nanking has little if any control, and it appears quite probable that Nanking itself is profiting from the traffic in opium.

In the meantime, the consumption of opium is increasing over the world, particularly in the United States.

The Chinese nationalists still have excuses, of course. They can point out, with entire justification, that the League of Nations failed China in her controversy with Japan; that the signers of the nine-power treaty failed to enforce the provisions of that treaty which bound Japan, as well as other nations, to respect Chinese territorial integrity; and that all, save Japan, have refrained from giving China any aid in her deadly struggle with communists elements at home.

Thus there is ample room for counter charges and criticisms, but the fact remains that the long fight against the world opium traffic is being lost because China does not and perhaps can not live up to her treaty agreements concerning suppression of the traffic.—Houston Chronicle.

Views of the Nation's Press on Topics of Interest and Importance

CENTENNIAL ADVANCES

Another preliminary victory for the Texas Centennial was won in congress this week when committees of both the senate and the house approved a joint resolution authorizing a $3,000,000 federal appropriation for the Texas event.

Thus the three million figure written into the resolution by the Texans still remains intact, even though the final appropriation made available to Texas may be reduced when the measure comes up for final action by the membership of congress. This possibility is predicated upon precedents previously established by congress to appropriate sums of a few hundred thousand dollars for localized celebrations.

However, there is considerably force to the argument advanced by Judge Cullen F. Thomas that the Texas centennial is of such unique character that it compels national attention. "Texas history is your history," he said, "and we're planning this celebration not only for the state but for all America." This is true, of course, and the funds already made available by the state and the central exposition city assure a celebration of considerable scope; but even if neither Texas nor Dallas had contributed a dime, the Texas centennial would be an event in which the United States could logically participate.

In the first place, the Texas which won its independence in 1836 was not the Texas of today. The Texas of that period included not only Texas, but parts of the states of New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado and Wyoming. The independence of all was won with the independence of Texas. And in the second place, the winning of Texas independence and the annexation of the Lone Star state led to the expansion of the United States westward to the Pacific.

The destiny of the entire nation was greatly altered by the epochal events of the Texas independence period. It is not too presumptuous for this great state, on the fruition of its first momentous century of progress to ask from the government of which it voluntarily became a part the sort of recognition that its history merits. It is probably true that no precedent exists for a federal appropriation of as much as three million dollars, but it is in order to suggest that history perhaps bears no precedent by which the importance of the Texas independence period may be measured. With substantial federal participation, the Texas centennial can be produced on a scale commensurate with its historical significance.—Texas Weekly.

THE FUTURE OF COTTON

Central Texas farmers are doubtless mostly glad that the Bankhead act will be continued, and that the price of cotton will be pegged at 12c per pound. This policy of the government has put the industry in much better shape than it was and farmers are far more hopeful than they were before the legislation was enacted.

Like everything else there are certain drawbacks to fixing a price on this staple above the world level. It must mean that we will not hold the potential foreign market at a price higher than cotton can be secured in India, Brazil and other countries. Much of the prosperity of the south has been the result of selling this commodity abroad and if we are permanently shut out we face a serious problem.

As a remedy to prevent the loss of the world market it has been advocated that the price for American consumption be held up as at present but that the farmers be permitted to raise a sufficient amount to supply the foreign demand at the world price. We do not know just how that can be worked out but there should be some plan whereby the southern farmer could continue producing the staple both for home use and export at a price that would afford him a decent profit in the industry. Agriculture must be sustained at a living structure which will

JAPAN'S LATIN-AMERICAN TRADE

Increased resistance to expansion of Japanese exports to Latin America causes concern in Japan, particularly because her trade balance with South America is favorable, and she has come to look upon that continent as a valuable outlet for additional exports with which to pay for her surplus of imports from the United States and other countries. Japan sold 105,000,000 yen of goods to Latin America during 1934, and purchased 25,000,000 yen of products there. For the first two months of this year, Japan's favorable trade balance with Latin America amounted to 15,433,000 yen during the corresponding period of 1934.

As Japan pushes her industrialization, she increases her needs for many of the commodities produced in Latin America. Japan can use cotton from Brazil and Peru; wool from Chile, Argentina and Uruguay; copper from Chile and Peru; sugar and tobacco from Cuba. A Japanese mission went to Brazil to study the question of increasing Japan's imports of Brazilian cotton. While the report was favorable, it will be necessary for Brazil to expand her production considerably to replace the United States as a major cotton grower, and this, in turn, will require an increased labor supply.

It is probable that Japan will intensify her attempts to expand her trade with Latin-American countries through special agreements and treaties within the near future. Resistance to her exports to that continent force a resort to such remedial measures. However, if it is true that South America is embarking upon another era of economic expansion following the readjustments of the last few years, as many informed observers believe, Japan should be able to trade more freely with Latin America without curtailing the markets of other countries in that area.—New York Journal of Commerce.

A YOUNG MAN'S THOUGHTS

What does a man about to go to the electric chair think of in his final moments? The other night Robert Edwards, neatly dressed in a black suit, lay down on a prison cot after several hours of praying and rose, quietly said goodbye to his father, chatted a moment with his home town minister and walked into the cell where he was to be electrocuted for having carried out in real life the frightful "American Tragedy" drama written by Theodore Dreiser. In the death chamber he found another minister, who was softly repeating the twenty-third Psalm—"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want..." He sat down wordlessly, but as the black cap was adjusted, his lips moved, as if in prayer. A few minutes later a physician pronounced Robert Allen Edwards quite dead, and the headline hunters turned away to give thought to other strange monstrosities of human impersonation.

To clear the way for romance with another girl, Edwards killed his childhood sweetheart, who trusted his promise that he would marry her, and sought to make it appear that she died by drowning. What did he try to think of in his final moments? Did he try to think of what he would say to his betrayed sweetheart when he would meet her in that "other" world? What did he think when he said goodbye to his father, the man who had hoped in and believed in him from infancy?

The last 30 minutes that a man lives probably brings in more interesting thought than the first 30 years of the ordinary man's life. What a pity such earnest thinking couldn't be done earlier in life!—Tyler Courier Times

LITTLE BY LITTLE

Japan is now at peace with the world and feels kind posed even toward Russia. It is well assured that some must elapse before that will develop hostile intentions left alone. That Japan is to do. Why should it about East Siberia when China is so near at hand like a ripe plum, to be an open mouth corner near?

North China, which of the great cities of Peking, Tientsin, unfortunately, to have some "bandit" course, had to be suppressed Japanese troops, several being killed in the suppression. Strange to say, there are some anti-Japanese sentiment in North China. This is hard to understand, seeing that it has taken the trouble to take a large part of China as a whole. Believe the Chinese government worry in respect to the territory. At any rate, Japan, led at China's ingratitude now proposes to take Manchuria itself under its control, saving the Nanking question the necessity of trying to exercise jurisdiction in the area. It is barely possible the Chinese will not appreciate Japan's kindness and magnanimity. If so, they become "bandit" doubtless will be suppressed. Japan, having attained supremacy in the Far East, is going to complete its conquest of North China, possibly south as the Kiangtse River all at once, but little by little.

It may be assumed that the United States may propose there is supposedly a "back door" treaty in process of negotiation, but that long since a mere scrap of paper. The United States and Great Britain should mind their own business and not try to interfere in the domestic affairs of China and suppressing bandit bands that roam territory. China must be penalized for misgovernment, chronic rebellions. The powers have abdicated in East and will be warned to their own side of the Dallas News.

FAMILIAR SIGHT

The boom in residential construction that has developed Great Britain during the eighteen months has not a little wonder and erable envy on this side of the Atlantic. At a time when rental contracts have been rising at 10 to 20 per cent in 1928 level here, announced from Britain that the figures were being exceeded substantially margin was more notable by contrast. The question presented as to whether a home boom at this time is more than a flash in the pan.

Latest reports from London describe several developments quite familiar to the have watched recurring booms and depressions in this country. The National Housing and Town Planning in an extensive report that the housing boom in Britain is likely soon to peak. It points to the prices of building materials one factor that will check activity. On the other hand, it reports a definite tendency to fall, as the supply is to exceed the available demand. "So far as private enterprise is concerned," the report says, "There seems good reason to anticipate a considerable increase in house building by the end of 1935."

Meanwhile, however, building plans being prepared are at a record level. Moreover, the slum clearance program and a new measure to relieve overcrowding pending in the House of Commons before Parliament are expected to take up a large part of the program and maintain building activity at a high level for the time to come, provided the local authorities continue to operate in this program actively.—New York Journal of Commerce.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

Masculine supremacy at the table is unchallenged even in this era of equality of the sexes, a survey by scientists in twenty states last year revealed. Men consume an average of 1460 lbs. of solid food annually, while women eat an average of 1100 lbs. It was found. Men usually eat about 12 ounces of food for breakfast, 16 ounces for lunch and 36 ounces for dinner, where as women eat 6 ounces for breakfast, 12 ounces for lunch and 30 ounces for dinner, the firm estimated.

A 36-year-old filling station operator at High Point, N. C., was found nailed to a cross Saturday and officers, terming him a religious fanatic, quoted him as saying he had his young son crucify him in hope of regaining his estranged wife's affections. He was found nailed thru the flesh between the thumbs and index fingers of each hand and through the flesh of his heels to a crude wooden cross, which lay by the roadside near his filling station. He was taken to a hospital, where it was said his injuries were painful but not serious.

A positive statement that the AAA is contemplating no abandonment of marketing agreements was made by Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator. A telegram he prepared to reply to all inquiries concerning the administration's plan said: "The agriculture adjustment administration has no thought of abandoning either its present program of marketing agreement for fruits and vegetables or its milk marketing plans. On the contrary, we are now working with congressional leaders on amendments designed to strengthen these marketing agreements and milk plans. Efforts are being made to revise these proposed amendments in the light of the NRA decision so as to retain the substance of the marketing agreements programs, while modifying enforcement procedure to conform to customary government regulatory practice readily sustainable in court."

FARM OWNERSHIP

Farm ownership is much more to be desired than farm tenancy. This is not to say that farm tenancy is undesirable in any form, but simply that some kinds of farm tenancy are undesirable. Indeed, there are many tenants in the south who, under benevolent and expert supervision, are producing more, and are better off than if they were blundering along on their own small tracts. These cases are uncommon, however, and consequently farm ownership, as a system, is much more to be desired than farm tenancy. But it should be reiterated that farm ownership is no open sesame to profitable farming. Agriculture, whether under a system of tenancy or farm ownership, can prosper only when there is an adequate market for the commodities it produces. There is no such adequate market today, and it is to the eternal discredit of those who guide our economic destiny that the ogre of special privilege, enshrined on the throne of a tariff plutocracy, still blocks the way to true agricultural reform.

Of course, the vision of those who support the farm tenant bill is not of a South devoted heavily to cotton production, but of a south of small, diversified farms. It is an appealing picture. But practicability is its own reminder of the remoteness of this new South today. Most of the tenants who would be magically transformed into home owners have never owned a cow, have probably never milked one; many of them have never owned a hen, and many have never cultivated the smallest garden. Years of experience and experiment, years of patient educational work among the submerged masses of the southern people must yet be undergone before diversified farming becomes a reality in the south. The farm tenant bill provides the framework for the new south and perhaps should be passed. But the vitality to pulsate the economic organism of the south has not yet been supplied. What is needed—what is distressingly needed—is to open the channels of world commerce to the life blood of the cotton kingdom. There will be plenty of time to operate on the patient after he has been restored to sufficient health to withstand the operation. — Dale Miller in Texas Weekly.

SEVERE SLASH MADE IN JUNE RELIEF GRANT

Radically reduced allotments for the relief population of Texas are in prospect for the month of June, it has been announced by Adam R. Johnson, state relief administrator.

Federal authorities notified Johnson that the state will receive only $2,500,000 for general relief, although application was made for more than $4,000,000. Johnson is quoted as saying, "Although at first sight this may appear to be dreadfully severe, we expect thousands of cases to quit the relief rolls in June for employment on farms, where they can make more than the amount we are able to give them. Farmers everywhere are calling for labor to help them cultivate their crops and we feel that in the case of the employable families there should not be any suffering because of this reduced grant."

The heavy grant slash will result in families of five persons being cut to $7.50 per month in Mills county. This is 24 per cent of the amount that has been set by the local office as an adequate budget for a family of five. This same proportion means that a single person will receive less than $2 for the month of June.

The drastic reductions in this month's budget will necessitate a reduction in the number of men assigned to work projects throughout the county, and several work projects will have to be closed temporarily as relief roll workers will not have sufficient budget to work out to properly man all projects.

The local relief office has received official approval of the cannery for Mills county and the state office is buying the equipment and as soon as it is received here the plant will be installed. The local office has on file some fifteen applications for the position of canning supervisor and as soon as the formal application blanks have been executed by all the applicants the selection will be made on the recommendation of the home demonstration department of A. & M. It is hoped that actual operation can be started in the plant by the twelfth of June.

As pictured above is Governor Allred signing the new Texas Securities Bill which replaces the antiquated Blue Sky Law. This bill was one of the administration's foremost pieces of legislation and attempts to drive out the swindling stock and bond salesman. Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann revealed to the Legislature the extent to which Texans have been swindled out of millions in securing support for the bill. In the above picture standing are, (left to right) Senators E. M.
