Garden Club

The Goldthwaite Garden Club met Wednesday, April 19, 1939, at 3 o'clock in the home of Miss Adeline Little.

During the business meeting the club agreed to accept flowers for transplanting and seed for planting to be used along the walks and the band stand on the court house lawn. The entertainment committee was asked to make plans for the May meeting.

Mrs. John Berry, state chairman of the Junior Garden club work reported 38 new Junior organizations. In this report Mrs. Berry said that this work had been included in the curriculum of a number of public schools throughout the state. Mrs. Claud Saylor and Miss Lily May Ely are carrying this work here. Mrs. Saylor is featuring bird life—conservation, identification, and construction of bird houses. Miss Ely is featuring identification of wild flowers and flower arrangement.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the following program was rendered: Planning a cutting bed—Mrs. W. E. Fairman.

"The Gardener," poem by Grace Noel Crowell, Mrs. Joe Palmer.

List of Perennial plants and methods of division—Mrs. J. N. Keese.

Contests featured at this meeting were arrangements of Roses and Iris. Mrs. W. E. Fairman won first place on an arrangement of Iris and Roses in the mixed division.

At the conclusion of the program a delicious dessert course consisting of iced cup cakes, brick ice cream and nuts were served from an attractive tea table.

Guests at this meeting were Mrs. Bert Patterson, Mullin and Mrs. J. B. Cockrum, Goldthwaite. Hostesses for this occasion were: Miss Adeline Little, Mrs. Paul McCullough, Mrs. Robert Edgar, Mrs. J. A. Randolph, and Mrs. Floyd Blair.

The Garden Club will complete the court house lawn work this fall with a final planting of appropriate shrubs. Meanwhile an electric pump has been installed and the lawn can be easily irrigated throughout the summer.

To Speak Here

James M. (Jim) Cook, oldest living Texas Ranger and cowboy, and first sheriff of Deaf Smith county, Texas, will talk on the court house lawn here Saturday. When 12 years old he was captured by savage Comanche Indians and was a member of the tribe for three years. When 16 years of age he married the Indian chief's beautiful daughter, Princess White Swan, and escaped to the white man's country.

Legislature Report

The House of Representatives continued its consideration of the methods of administering old age assistance. They finally passed a measure which would set up a state welfare board consisting of three members to have supervision instead of the Controller's Department and enacts the old law with these exceptions. They cannot take into consideration the ability of the children or kinfolk to provide, neither can they take into consideration the fact that a man owns a homestead. All that is exempted under the homestead law is exempted under this provision.

House Bill 19, which seeks to legalize and levy a tax on gambling machines and slot machines failed to pass the House. The bill known as the Barbers Bill was vetoed by the Governor.

The Legislature has been doing some consolidating of departments and economizing in appropriations. The land office and reclamation office were consolidated, to show a saving of $25,000. Theeomosenary institutions appropriation was reduced $875,978 and at the same time increased the capacity of the patients 1694, feeble-minded children capacity was increased 200. The saving was brought about by a reduction of salaries in some instances.

All the institutions throughout the state are placed on the same basis. Another saving came about in the building program. Two years ago the appropriation for building and improvements was $4,000,000. This year the building program is approximately $2,000,000, which makes a saving in those two bills of $900,978. And another saving, two years ago the state officials were allowed $350,000 for traveling expenses and spent approximately $2,000,000. That particular bill has not been completed however when completed we are going to place a safeguard on the bill that will prevent them from spending any more than the appropriation calls for which will make a saving of more than one and one-half million dollars.

The appropriation bill for the higher courts has also passed, placing all courts of appeal on the same salary. A saving of $189,000. We are trying to practice economy and we hope to make further consolidations in state departments and in so doing save quite a sum of money for the state and not affect efficiency.

I will visit you later.
FRANK HOWINGTON,
Representative.

Local Drivers Get Driving Tests

Assured that the results of the tests would not be held against them, a number of local automobile drivers pitted their skill against an ingenious machine brought here Thursday morning Carroll Monroe of Camp Mabry.

Each person received a grade card showing just how good he was at steering and stopping quickly. The demonstration was staged as part of the safety campaign of the state traffic police.

The best record made by the 196 persons tested in Goldthwaite was 91 for the steering test and 1/2 second for the braking test. The best record so far was made by a Dallas high school student who made 95 and 94 on the steering and 3-8 second on the braking test three times in a row.

Ex-Soldiers Respond To Call to Colors

In response to a recent call from Washington for civilians with previous service in the Regular Army Reserve, fifteen ex-soldiers from Waco and vicinity have been accepted for enlistment at the Waco Recruiting office on the second floor of the Federal Building, according to W. C. Lattimore, U. S. Army, Waco.

Any man under 36 years of age with not less than one year of continuous active service in the Regular Army is eligible to join the Regular Army Reserve.

Members of the Regular Army Reserve are paid two dollars per month while on an inactive status, and in case of call to active duty will be paid an additional lump sum of three dollars per month for each month they have been in the Regular Army Reserve prior to call to active duty. Inquiries addressed to the Army Recruiting Office, 215 Federal Building, Waco, or to any other Army Recruiting Office, will receive prompt reply.

Adolph Hitler flatly disclaimed any warlike intentions in a two-hour, 17 minute address before the German Reichstag today. His address began at noon in Berlin which was 5 a. m. here.

He demanded the return of all territory taken from Germany after the World War and that President Wilson's promises be made good.

He expressed sarcastic surprise that President Roosevelt should think Germany wants war now. He claimed that America entered the World War for capitalistic reasons and suggested that President Roosevelt declare that America would not again make war except for self-defense.

Referring to President Roosevelt's plea for a conference, Hitler asserted that America had set the example of withdrawing from conferences and he would follow it. He denied that anything had ever been settled at the conference table, but recalled that Germany had gone to a conference before, relying on President Wilson's assurances, and had been betrayed.

He claimed that he had avoided war so far and refused to give guarantees unless he was sure he was on the right road. He had not questioned America's policies in America and so would not declare his.

America need have no fear of German aggression in North or South America, the German Chancellor declared.

The German leader spoke in a more moderate tone than had been expected. For the first hour and a half he recounted the history of his leadership and reported Germany's demand for the restoration of her colonies.

Hitler's bitterest attack was against the press of the democracies for what he called their lies and propaganda against Germany.

All of the nations bordering on Germany have denied being afraid of her, he declared. Germany was willing to enter into agreements with any of them if they would assure her they would not attack Germany.

Germany had repeatedly asked for international disarmament, he said, but when other nations continued to arm, Germany decided to make herself invincible.

While the German Fuehrer's speech does not remove all fear of war, it does allay to a large extent the fear of an immediate outbreak.

Splendid Rains Break Drouth

Farmers and stockmen are wearing broad grins this week as a result of the fine rains that have fallen. Tuesday night the gauge at Fairman Co. registered 8 inch in Goldthwaite. About 1/2 inch was the average throughout the county with still less at Ratler. Wednesday evening several hard showers brought the total up another 1/2 inch.

Ben Cox, who has been confined to his bed for so long, is piecing quilts for pastime. Isn't it strange that we all must work at something. When Jesus was 12 He was anxious to be about His Father's business. Even the great God cannot rest, but must find unending work to do.

Broom Corn Most Profitable Crop

Since our ad appeared in different papers for our high grade broom corn seed, we have received numerous inquiries from interested farmers asking for information regarding this profitable crop, there in reply to all I have decided to write a short article for publication in local newspapers.

So far, there has only been a very small acreage in Central Texas devoted to this most profitable crop but it is gradually increasing as farmers learn more of its value as a money crop and as soon as we grow enough to induce the large eastern buyers to come here we will receive a duct as these buyers prefer to go where they can buy several carloads and in turn ship to the water fronts where they can load on boats and get cheap transportation to the East where no broom corn is grown.

This seems to be an ideal year to plant some broom corn as reports show that the acreage in the main broom corn growing sections will be drastically reduced due to the low price last season.

This is very noticeable in the main broom corn growing centers as this condition always follows low prices due to large acreage, as many get discouraged and drop out for a year or two.

But the farmer that makes money in broom corn is the one who stays in every year, as the other fellow is usually in when it is low and out when it is high. Broom corn prices can be compared to mohair prices. It can go low one year and extremely high the next.

My advice is for a farmer to plant what he can handle every year and be prepared to hold it if the prices does not suit him at harvest time as you can always depend on a profitable price before another crop is grown.

However, to the farmer not able to hold, I would advise to sell as soon as the crop is harvested as the price is generally better then than a short time later. As a rule we have a fair price in Central Texas.

We have the advantage of the growers in the main broom corn growing district because we are far ahead of them in harvesting.

Broom corn is practically a sure crop. It requires very little rain and produces within 60 to 75 days if not planted too early. It is a warm weather plant and nothing is gained in planting too early. On the other hand the grade and yield is often reduced by planting too early. Proper dates for planting here is April 20 to May 5, and as a rule can be planted for fair yields as late as July 15. For best yields the land should be prepared early to insure a good seed bed and kept clean until time to plant. Drill in rows 34 to 40 inches apart, using the ordinary maize plates in your planter. Seeding at the rate of 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of seed per acre. Cultivate like you would maize or any of the well known grain sorghums.

If planted at the right time another advantage is that the crop will be ready to harvest when all other work is finished. Broom corn is a plant that adapts itself to most any type of soil but of course the tonnage is greater when grown on the better grade of land.

In closing I want to say that any farmer can increase his cash crop returns considerably by planting a part of his acreage in broom corn, especially a part of his cotton acreage.

Another article will follow in due time on simplified methods of harvesting for best results wherein lies the secret of profitable broom corn growing and why broom corn will not injure but rather improve the soil.

Your, for better money crops and farm land use.

Copperas Cove, Texas.

Texas stands first among all the states in the production of cattle, sheep and goats, but cattle remain dominant. There were in the state on January 1, last year, 7,547,000 cattle, approximately 1-9 of all those in the United States; 1,170,000 hogs; 8-920,000 sheep; and 3,000,000 goats.

Children's Tantrums

COLLEGE STA.—Most children understand their parents better than their parents understand them, says Dosca Hale specialist in child development and parent education with the Texas A&M College Extension Service.

They soon learn the way to break down parental firmness, often by "throwing tantrums," and their methods vary with the parent. For instance, a child who knows that mother is worried about his health may, when balked, refuse food or sleep, hold his breath or knock his head against the floor. Another, who knows that noise is father's weakness, may yell, scream, kick, pound or slam doors to get results.

Prevention is better than cure for tantrums of children. "Remove the causes before tempers and tantrums become a habit and a hindrance both to children and grown-ups," Miss Hale points out.

In early childhood, hunger and fatigue are the two main causes, and parents should establish regular times for eating, for naps and for bedtimes, so that youngsters do not have come too tired to Tight clothing, dampers small call forth temper clothes that are to manage. Play allow free movement ty.

The best way outbursts is for understand what to help their child culty, Miss Hale help him to let make sure that do not succeed.

PASTURES GO FARTHER

By T. C. RICHARDSON, Secretary
Breeder-Feeder Association

Hogs can run safely with cattle, but should not be run in the same pasture with sheep, especially when there are young lambs as an accident may lead to the hogs learning meat-eating habits. And everyone knows that playful mules are a constant threat to small animals, and should be kept in a separate pasture. We not only need more and better pastures in the Southwest, but we need to fence them so that we can get the most out of them. Along with permanent pasture improvement, temporary summer pastures of sudan grass, and ample water facilities, fencing for rotation grazing is a part of an all-round grazing program.

Pastures are the foundation for successful livestock husbandry, and livestock are the key to a balanced and well distributed labor-load and farm income. The fellow who has more livestock than grass and feed is soon in trouble, but the fellow who has more grass than cattle is on the safe side. The ideal, of course, is to have enough livestock to utilize otherwise unsalable forage, and to get the most out of it calls for good management of the grazing.

A Matter of Duty

In an able editorial, the Bucyrus, Ohio, Telegraph-Forum says: "Congress will not have recognized one of its current obligations if the present session adjourns before the railroad problem is settled. Through the mad rush of the last few years to appropriate great sums of money for federal handouts, past Congresses have failed to give this problem the consideration it deserves. Buy this failure the Congresses have contributed heavily to the present-day reason for handouts by failing to recognize that there can be no lasting national prosperity until the basic industries which make prosperity by employment can operate at a profit sufficient to employ labor, maintain property and pay tax impositions."

The Telegraph-Forum then goes on to point out that Congress can no longer use the alibi that it has no definite program on which to work as a reason for dodging a vital issue. The Association of American Railroads, says the paper, has offered an exact and comprehensive program, which is in practically complete accord with that other excellent program prepared by the special committee of six appointed by the President. The Association's program advocates such fair and simple things as requiring all commercial transportation, highway and water as well as rail, to pay its own way;

Younger New Friend Of Pinkerton

DENTON.—A bloody feud that wrote its crimson pages in western outlaw history in the dark days following the Civil War reached its final happy chapter at the North Texas State Teachers College here this spring as two Teacher College students clasped hands and bridged a gap of hatred that dates back to the days when Pinkerton Detectives hunted the James Boys and the Younger Brothers back in old Missouri.

The students are Jim Nat Younger, senior from Whitesboro and Woodrow Wilson Pinkerton, sophomore from Blue Ridge. Younger is a descendant of the famous Younger brothers who rode with the Jameses in the years after the close of the Civil War when the Missouri outlaws were robbing banks and terrorizing railroad companies. Pinkerton is a third cousin of Allen Pinkerton, founder of the Pinkerton detective agency, whose operatives went on the trail of the bandits during the period.

Back in the '70s, two of the Youngers, Jim and John fought it out with two Pinkerton agents, Captain Allen and Edwin B.

revision of the obsolete rate-making rule, which often prevents the railroads from establishing rates which would enable them to compete with other carriers; discontinuance of the federal barge lines, which have caused the taxpayers millions in deficits over a 14-year period; a consolidation law which will permit the rails to work out practical consolidation plans, subject to the approval or disapproval of public regulatory authorities such as the Interstate Commerce Commission. And on March 8 Representative Lea introduced a bill in Congress proposing sweeping reform in our transportation policy.

Daniels, and when the shooting was over, John Younger and Daniels lay dead and Allen had received a mortal wound. The original Jim Younger escaped, later participated in the famous raid of the James Gang on the First National Bank of Northfield, Minn., survived terrible wounds to serve a penitentiary sentence, was paroled on good behavior, and finally committed suicide because of a tragic love affair in St. Paul.

Jesse James has been accused of the murder of Will Wallace, a Pinkerton detective. In retaliation Pinkerton agents were said to have bombed the James home and blown off the right arm of Jesse's mother. Newspapers of the day referred to this as the "crime of the century," and the Youngers rode with the Jameses to the fatal Northfield raid.

But Cole Younger, big 200 pounds outlaw, survived his wounds and prison sentence, and like Frank James, the former bandit, settled down to become a respectable citizen. The Pinkertons stopped hunting Jameses and Youngers, who were pretty decent fellows and had their apologists even then.

Yet not until this year did a Younger and a Pinkerton ever fraternize. Up at the Teachers College where they are students, Jim Nat Younger and Allen Pinkerton are good friends.

Pinkerton admits that he doesn't know a clue from a lady's hat, but like old Allan and all the other Pinkertons, he is resigned to a rapidly approaching baldness. As a student member of the Denton fire department, Younger rides no bucking bronco but the hurricane deck of a fire truck. Neither boy takes much stock in the old sagas of the Missouri outlaws.

"Whatever Younger blood I have isn't in my trigger finger," says Jim Nat Younger. And clasping hands with him, Goldthwaite's entry, "Who Gets the Car Tonight?" won first place in the District 8 Interscholastic League one-act play contests held in the HPC auditorium Friday night. The winning cast was directed by Mrs. Delton Barnett.

Members of the HPC sophomore class during the past week have been making goodwill trip to Brady, Menard, Mason, San Saba, Llano, Goldthwaite, Burnet, Lampasas and other towns in interest of inviting high school seniors to attend Howard Payne Day activities on the college campus here April 29.

Rev. H. B. Ramsour Jr., former resident of this city and now pastor of the Baptist Church in Comanche, Okla., notified his brother, Roy Ramsour, today that his appointment to Japan has been approved by the Foreign Mission board and that he and Mrs. Ramsour would sail August 25 from San Francisco to Japan. They will visit here before that time.

A fourth trial for Tol G. Beckham, 68-year-old Zephyr man, charged with murder in the fatal shooting in June, 1936, of Raymond Thompson, is scheduled to be docketed during the forthcoming term of district court at Brady which opens May 1.—Banner.

Woodrow Wilson Pinkerton agrees.

Electric Eye Counts Cars

An electric eye for counting traffic on the roads has been developed by the State Highway Department, according to Julian Montgomery, state highway engineer. While this is not the first device for counting traffic to be developed, it has many advantages over earlier models.

The machine is operated by batteries and can be set up at any point on the road within a few minutes time. A passing car breaks a beam of light and causes a dial to register the count. A camera built into the machine automatically takes a picture of the dial every hour. The photographic film supplies a permanent record of the number of cars that passed during each hour the machine was in operation. The machine runs continuously without attention for a week.

The traffic counter was developed by the Highway Planning Survey for making counts of traffic on highways and county roads. This method is reported to be much cheaper than having a man count the vehicles, as was formerly done.

Next May 18 has been designated as "Peace Day" for the promotion of international good will at the 1939 California World Fair.

High School Spirit Carries On

Freshmen at Texas State College for Women are well able to discuss the comparative merits of various high schools over the state, since over 134 different Texas schools are represented in the class this year. School spirit usually carries over into the first year of college, and loyal daughters of several high schools often compete with others, during freshman class meetings, in the sing of school songs.

Bro. Dyches preached for us Sunday so will not be here the first Sunday as was previously announced. But Bro. Green sends word that he has his car fixed now and will be with us again on the first Sunday.

Rufus Strickland of Howard Payne College left an appointment for the third Sunday in May.

Mr. Bob Egger, who has been very seriously sick with the flu, seems to be decidedly better this week. But her daughter, Mrs. Dewey Smith, who was acting as chief nurse and housekeeper, came down with the flu last week, and is still in bed. Gladys Griffin has come to their rescue, and is helping out in a fine way.

Baby Gene McNurden has been sick with sore throat and rashes in his head, and has had to make several trips to the doctor.

The last news from Ole Dwyer was that he was better, and was going out riding.

The entire time will be spent helping one another with our foundation patterns.

A surprise birthday dinner was given Grandmother Ivy on her 80th birthday Sunday by her daughters-in-law. Though Mr. Ivy was sick in bed, her son Ed, who lives with them, by much urging and by promising to look well after Mr. Ivy and to get dinner while she was gone, managed to get her off to church. This made the coast clear for them to bring in the food and arrange the dinner. A host of friends went home with Grandmother Ivy from church, but a still larger crowd greeted them at the house. But anyone who feared there might not be enough food for such a multitude, need only take a peep in the kitchen. Those three daughters-in-law had brought in everything that heart could wish, and plenty of it.

A beautiful birthday cake, baked by Mrs. Frank Crowder, graced the table. It was two-tiered, with eighty candles, and a birthday greeting heart in the center. There was a center piece of deep pink roses. The house was full of flowers sent by friends. It was present.

All of Grandmother Ivy's children were present and five of her grandchildren. Also present were two of her friends past eighty, Grandmother Reeves and Grandmother Wilmethe.

The Crowders came to this community in 1880, and bought and improved a home. Mr. Crowder died in 1901. Then it was that Mrs. Crowder and her boys knew hard times. Trying to pay out a home in these lean years. But they made it.

About twelve years ago, Mr. Crowder married Mr. Ivy. He is now bedfast, but still carries on in his usual way. He was deeply moved at the presence of so many friends Sunday. More than once tears filled his eyes, though most of the time he kept them about him smiling at his funny sayings.

Grandmother Ivy is a born nurse. No other in this community has rendered more service than she in the ministrations of birth and death and all manner of sickness. In the younger days when she was able for duty, no one was more welcome than she at the bedside of the sick. Memories of this service live as a monument to her in the hearts of those who knew her.

How Tall Will Your Child

At any age after six years, it is possible to determine the height of your child, according to Dr. Josephine E. Knapton, in an article in the Good Housekeeping Magazine. The height of a child accurately measured and recorded at each birthday will indicate whether or not he has made the average growth for his age.

Johnny is Measured Annually to Record His Growth

The present median height of the average adult in the United States is 5 feet, 7 1/2 inches and the figures in this chart are based on this median height. If your child is two inches taller at each birthday than the figure on the chart, he is likely to reach an adult height of 5 feet, 9 1/2 inches. Boys who grow to be six inches high at the age of 10 and 60 inches at the age of 12 your son is an inch shorter at the age of 14 than the figure in the chart he will probably reach only 5 1/2 inches at the age of 16.

A letter from Mrs. Jim McCann of Lampasas, who is chairman of the Third Zone of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, states that the Zone meeting will be held at Star the second Tuesday in May and the subject will be, "Women of the Bible."

She urges all women interested in the work to be present and get an inspiration, as well as give one.

The program will appear in next week's Eagle.

Our Cemetery

Now that the rains have started, it will not be long until our cemetery will be over grown with weeds, so in respect to our loved ones whose last resting place should be kept in order and beautified we have formed a committee to hire a man to keep the grounds in good and attractive condition through the summer months, and will ask for donations from all who are interested.

It is hoped that we can have some of the work finished by Mother's Day, May 14, which day will be observed as Decoration Day as has been the usual custom.

Mrs. L. E. Miller will take donations for this purpose.

New Uses for Cotton

Speaking of new uses for cotton, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has disclosed that Texas agencies cooperating in surplus diversion programs of the AAA in the last three years have used almost a million pounds of cotton in housing, highway construction, irrigation, reforestation and in packaging cotton, wool and potatoes.

Art and Civic Club

The Art and Civic Club met with Mrs. J. H. Saylor as hostess. Members drove to Lake Merritt where our meeting was held in the club house.

Mrs. L. J. Gartman was leader for our program on, "Women in World Affairs," and introduced Mrs. J. H. Saylor whose review of the lives of "Our President's Wife and Mother," was very much enjoyed. She also presented a personal letter from Mrs. Roosevelt to our club.

Mrs. John Schooler spoke informally on Madame Yat-Sen Chiang and Mrs. Marvin Hodges told of the life of the Duchess of Windsor.

After the roundtable discussion refreshments were served at Mrs. Saylor's cabin to club members and Mrs. J. L. Schooler of O'Donnell, Texas.

We completed a very successful school year here today. Everyone seems to have enjoyed this year very much, but we welcome the vacation. School closes earlier here this year than usual, due to the early beginning of school last fall.

Today, the close of school, is a day which every school child usually looks forward to, however, it seems sad to those finishing their work here, never again to return to enter school where they have spent most of their school days.

Center Point H. D. Club

The H. D. Club met with Mrs. Curtis Taylor, April 20, with five members and two visitors present.

The house was called to order by the president. The club motto was read by Besse Hutchings and the roll called and minutes read. Mrs. Charles Stark sent in her resignation as reporter and Mrs. Anderson Shelton was appointed reporter.

A report of last council meeting was given by the president. Miss Scott gave an explanatory talk on canned fruit and vegetable contest.

We then turned the program over to Miss Scott. She cut a waist pattern for one member.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. V. D. Tyson. BESSE HUTCHINGS, Secretary

The club met on April 3 with Mrs. Willis Hill. There were ten members, two new members, and three visitors. Also Miss Scott. We were very glad to have the new members join our club and visitors are always welcome.

We had a very interesting demonstration on blending colors, with different ones hair, eyes, and complexion. After that we worked on some waist patterns.

The president put a motion before the house for the club to meet only once each month, while everyone is so busy. It was voted on, and all decided that would be best, just to meet when Miss Scott meets with us.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. Faulkner on May 2.—Reporter.

Pleasant Grove H. D. Club

"The waist line is most important in fitting a correct foundation pattern and another important problem is shoulder seams," said Miss Emma Scott at the Pleasant Grove H. D. Club which met in the home of Mrs. Sam Porter on Tuesday, April 18.

Other important things in cutting a foundation pattern were discussed and the foundation patterns were checked by Miss Scott.

There were nine members and Miss Scott present.

Our next meeting will be held with Mrs. Ray Berry on Tuesday, May 2.

SOMETHING VERY WRONG

Recent publication of the nation's largest salaries paid in 1937 reveals the startling fact that of 63 persons in the United States receiving $200,000.00 or more a year, 40 of them (practically two-thirds) were in the movies and only 23 in all other occupations combined.

We know that the economic structure of the nation is weaker than it should be. We know that unemployment is still rife. We know that opportunities for business success are rarer. But what else can we expect when through our mad search for entertainment we pile up more than eight million dollars in the hands of 40 movie makers and stars?

When it is considered how many more millions of dollars are required to support the hundreds of thousands of other employees of the motion picture companies and related industries, and when we realize that not one single constructive result flows from this vast expenditure, we may well ponder the question whether we are fitted to enjoy real prosperity as we think of it.

More money is being spent on movies than on education. Far more is spent for shows than for all the churches in America combined. The vast sums spent on our Army and Navy pale into insignificance in comparison with the steady trickle of dollars and dimes to movie land.

A million dollars is now a moderate price for a modern feature. What else costs so much and returns so little in lasting benefit? If the movies were making better citizens, if they were inspiring men and women to lead more useful, more unselfish lives, if they were making this a better land in which to live, the cost, great as it is, would not be excessive. Instead they serve chiefly to titillate the jaded senses of a world jaundiced from over-indulgence in entertainment, to bring forgetfulness to weary and disillusioned men and women, and to paint false pictures of romance in the giddy heads of boys and girls.

When later generations seek to piece out the illogical actions of the people of 1937, no doubt they will note with perplexity that the biggest paying business of our time did not deal in tangible values, nor in manufactured articles of genuine utility, but was concerned only in perpetuating on celluloid the dream-life of an infantile people.

WHICH ADVERTISING PAYS?

Dr. George Gallup's noted research organization has discovered that newspaper advertisements are actually of more interest to many readers than the news columns of the papers.

This shows why, despite the rise of many competing forms of advertising, the printed word and illustration still lead all the rest.

Perhaps the greatest reason for this is the unobtrusive nature of newspaper advertising. It is easy to read, but it does not seize the reader's lapel and pour a torrent of impassioned sales talk in his ear. It is instantly available, but it does not arouse resentment by monopolizing the reader's attention. Nor does it overtax his perception and his memory. Thus it appeals to the average reader in a peculiarly effective way, because it allows him free choice and is available for ready reference at any time.

For these very reasons it is essential that newspaper advertising be accurate, interesting, and, above all, sincere.

THE POCKETBOOK of KNOWLEDGE BY TOPPS

Terrible Hardships Marked Beginning Of Santa Fe Trail

The unobstructed Santa Fe trade may be said to have begun in 1821, when Mexico declared her independence from Spain. There were no dangers after that time except those to be encountered in the long journey across the plains. The main hindrance to legitimate and open trade lay in the rigid regulations imposed by the customs authorities at the border.

Because Captain Becknell happened to make the trip in the epochal year of 1821, he is considered to be the father of the Santa Fe trade, though the virtual commencement of the trade is dated in 1822. In company with four trusted companions, Becknell left Franklin, Missouri, with the intention of engaging in trade with the Comanche Indians. Near the Rocky Mountains they met by accident a group of Mexican rangers who persuaded the Becknell party to accompany them to Santa Fe. There the Americans made a handsome profit from the sale of a very small amount of merchandise. The following winter Captain Becknell returned to the States, leaving the other members of his party at the new Mexican metropolis.

Before Captain Becknell's first successful American trading expedition to Santa Fe, all supplies for New Mexico were procured from the interior provinces, by way of Vera Cruz, by means of caravans of pack animals. The rates were so exorbitant by this route that ordinary calicoes as well as the more common bleach and brown domestic goods brought as much as two or three dollars a "vara"—the Spanish yard of thirty-three inches. These prices, however, made prohibitive by length of haul and the primitive methods, were soon to be reduced. The territory of Missouri had been advanced to statehood in the year 1821 because of the rapid influx of settlers to the American side of the border. Conditions were becoming ripe for improvement of the trade between the United States and Mexico.

In June 1822 Captain Becknell, perhaps emboldened by his previous successes, assembled a trading expedition which is said to have provided us with the most thrilling story of hardship in the history of the Santa Fe Trail. The tragic journey was begun with a company of nearly thirty men and goods and various descriptions aggregating $5,000 perhaps in value. Desiring to avoid the circuitous route westward along the Arkansas river, Captain Becknell, who was an expert woodsman, decided, after reaching the "Caches," to strike directly overland, following what we today know as the Cimarron cutoff. Experienced in pioneering work in the woods, the party gave little heed to the terrible privations that might fall to their lot upon the trackless desert. Confident in spirit, they began the march across the dry plains stretching before as far as the Cimarron river. A pocket compass, the sun and the stars were their only guides.

After two days marching, the supply of water in their canteens was exhausted and there was no water of any description to be had along the route. The suffering caused by the lack of liquid nourishment almost maddened both men and beasts. Then came the time when the thirsty men killed their dogs and cut off the ears of the mules that they might suck the blood and thus assuage their thirst. These substitutes only irritated their parched throats and made them lose their sense of judgment. Frantic at the prospect of the slow death awaiting them and eager to take advantage of any possible avenue of escape, they separated and scattered in all directions in search of water.

Frequently the lost men were led astray by the deceptive shimmer of a mirage which made false ponds and oases appear in the desert a short distance ahead. They did not realize how close the Cimarron river was and, in despair, were about to seek to retrace their steps to Arkansas. About to perish on the plains because of weakness brought on by thirst and hardship, one of their number caught sight of a buffalo. They killed it and drank the water from its stomach. This gave some of the men sufficient strength to struggle to the river, fill their canteens and return to aid their comrades. Gradually they all regained sufficient strength to resume the journey and, following the course of the Arkansas river to avoid other arid regions, they reached Taos, 60 or 70 miles away without further mishap. One of the survivors later said that the filthy water from the buffalo's stomach at the time seemed to him to be the most delicious beverage that had ever passed his lips. The danger of dying on the desert from thirst was reduced considerably after wheeled vehicles, with their added capacity for supplies and stores of water, were introduced.

In 1824, the introduction of wagons in place of pack horses marked the beginning of a new era in the Santa Fe trade. The early trade with New Mexico, both from Old Mexico and the States, was carried on by means of caravans of horses, mules or burros. This was a very tedious and slow method of transport and the amount of the trade was limited to the carrying capacity of the caravans. Thus when wagons came in vogue the Santa Fe trade, now that governmental restrictions had been removed, took a sudden spurt in volume that was not to be noticed again for seventy-five years when the steam railroads took over the business.

The "atajo" or drove of pack mules was driven and handled with remarkable dexterity by the muleteers, called "arrieros." The "carga," if in a single package, was laid across the mule's back or, if in two packages, balanced on either side of the mule. The pack saddle or "aparejo" consisted of a large leathern pad stuffed with hay, covering the

Health Notes

AUSTIN.—Typhoid immunization and improved sanitation have resulted in a typhoid death rate decrease of 3.7 per 100,000 population in Texas during the past five years, according to a statement by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

The typhoid death rate for Texas was 9.9 in 1933 as contrasted with 6.2 in 1938, while the National decrease of 1.4 over the same period. Statistically, Texas typhoid deaths were reduced twice that of the nation over that period, though the National death rate from typhoid continued to be materially lower than that of Texas.

Unabated efforts to have a population immunized against typhoid will reduce the rate even lower. Typhoid fever has been eliminated in our Army and Navy through vaccination. The typhoid vaccine is not a serum. Preventive treatment of typhoid fever consists of three small hypodermic shots given every five to seven days until three injections have been given. Vaccination protects you from taking typhoid from two to three years.

Consult your family physician today in regard to typhoid prevention. Invest in typhoid protection against this often fatal disease. This form of protection insures you and your family against possible long confinement, economic loss and even death.

Vacation months you may drink contaminated milk, water, or food containing the typhoid bacilli and contract the disease unknowingly. In selecting a place for your vacation, choose one where you know the water and milk supply are pure. Be sure that the kitchen and dining room are screened to protect food from flies. When camping, it is best to boil water to use for drinking unless you know that it is pure. Clear sparkling spring water may be polluted by drainage.

Song on the Black List

Most unpopular song on the campus at Texas State College for Women this year is "Sweet Adeline," for the simple reason that TSCW has a dearth of Adelines this season. With every other name from Alpha to Zilla represented, not a single Adeline can be found among the 2700 given names.

Tears are said to be perfect examples of streamlined bodies.

back and extending halfway down both sides of the mule. This saddle was secured by a wide sea-grass bandage so tightly laced that the body of the animal was reduced to much less than its natural size. The "carga" was bound upon the "aparejo" by a long rope of sea-grass or rawhide, which was intertwined about the bandages and drawn taut in such a skillful fashion that the cargo was held securely in position. The day's journey of a pack drove was usually 12 to 15 miles because the "atajo" travelled without any stop at noon, in order to avoid unloading and reloading, and a heavily packed "atajo" could not continue on the road for more than five or six hours, day after day. The "atajos" were guided along the route by the muleteers, mounted upon swift and well-trained horses. The caravan of pack mules generally numbered from fifty to 200, each loaded with merchandise weighing about 300 pounds. The "arrieros" were paid very low wages, ranging from two to five dollars a month, and the cost of their board and feed was extremely low. Freight could be carried in this manner over rough roads and precipitous mountain passes where wagon transportation would have been out of the question.

The credit for the innovation of wagons into the Santa Fe trade, in 1824, belongs to Colonel Marmaduke, who later became governor of Missouri. In company with about eighty traders he transported $25,000 to $30,000 worth of merchandise to Santa Fe, some on the back of mules but mainly in twenty-five wheeled vehicles, including one or two stout road wagons, two carts and the remainder made up of Dearborn carriages. The desert route was surprisingly free of obstacles to wagon transportation and they reached their destination with little difficulty, considering that this was the first experiment with wagons.—American Road Builders Association, Feature Service.

More Than Half Of Highway Deaths Occur at Night

While four-fifths of all traffic is in the daytime, more than one half of all fatal accidents occur after sunset: D. M. Diggs brings this startling fact home in an article on "Lighting the Traveler's Way" in the April issue of Texas Parade.

"Speeding through the darkness at 50 miles an hour, 73 feet a second, the night driver already has two strikes chalked against him on Fate's scoreboard," writes Mr. Diggs.

"A dark object suddenly looms 150 feet ahead. The driver has just two seconds to see, to comprehend the danger, to make a decision, to take his foot from the accelerator and slam it on the brake, to judge the size and direction of the object, to blow the horn and turn the steering wheel. The scream of brakes, a crushing impact is the inevitable answer. For the driver—if he is the lucky sight out of each 100 night accident victims—there may be only a wrecked car, shocked nerves and minor injuries. But his chances of landing in a morgue are 92 OUT OF 100!

"The warning is too brief. The present average automobile headlights enable the average driver to see the average 'dark object' about 150 feet ahead. A car traveling at 50 miles an hour travels from 186 to 243 feet between the time the warning is transmitted to the brain by the eyes and the car can be brought to a standstill. By then it is too late, the damage is done.

"Night driving is at least four times more dangerous than day driving. There are several thousand more accidents during the daylight hours, but they actually result in fewer fatalities. Death truly favors nocturnal prowling."

Questions and Answers

Q Is there any preparation I can use to abate the nuisance caused by neighborhood dogs in brightening the shrubs, bushes, flower garden, and other plant and flower life around our home?
A. Yes. Spray the shrubs, trees, and plants with a mixture of nicotine sulphate and dogs will not come near them. This can be obtained from any seed and fertilizer dealer or nursery.

Q Without going to the expense of extensive insulation, how can I make the upper part of my one-and-one-half-story home cool in summer?
A. Provide large louvers in each gable end of the roof to circulate the air in the space between ceiling and roof. On hip roofs provide louver dormers. The louvers should be built as high as possible.

Q At what points does most heat escape from house in winter, and where does most heat enter in summer? What are corrective measures?
A. Through windows and roof in each case. Storm windows for winter and awning on windows exposed to the sun will each reduce this window heat loss and heat gain. The roof can be insulated by various methods.

Q How can I keep my windows from rattling?
A. This can be done either by removing the stop or molding which holds the ash in place and resetting it closer to the sash or by installing metal weatherstripping would be the better way, as it accomplishes a saving in fuel as well as stopping the rattling.

Visitors are always welcome at our work outs, so long as they stay in the bleachers out of the way. Our football schedule is almost completed. We will play a nine-game schedule next year.

LIVESTOCK JUDGING TEAM GOES TO A&M CONTESTS

The livestock judging team from the Goldthwaite FFA Chapter went to A&M College last Sunday afternoon to participate in the State contests there.

The contestants had very close competition there. The boys who went reported a good time, as well as learning something.

Two weeks before the A&M contests, these two teams and the dairy judging team went to the area contests at Stephenville.

The livestock judging and terracing teams won places high enough to go to the A&M College contests.

At the Stephenville contests, Woody Harper, who is on the live stock judging team, tied for first place in individual judging.

We think the boys on the teams did very good at the contests.

SOPHOMORE REPORT

We are sorry to report that a popular member of the Sophomore Class, John Renfro, has withdrawn from school.

The Sophomore Class is planning a picnic for sometime next week. The date has not yet been set, but it is thought it will be the latter part of the first week of May.

JUNIOR REPORT

Magdalene Long has been up for some time over a week, but we regret to report that she will not be able to return to school this year.

For several years it has been customary for a part of the Junior Class to have a picnic on the afternoon of senior day while school is in session.

The annual Junior-Senior banquet held last night was a howling success. More about it will be reported next week.

DIDJA KNOW? DIDJA?

It seems to us that there is enough news (or dirt) to fill a newspaper this week, but we have reduced it down to fit the Herald.

Why did the red light on the bus worry John Henry? Could it have been that it gave off too much light?

It seems funny to us that Wallace Long walked the chalk line while in San Antonio. Was it because Veseva is a "tattle-tale"?

How did doctors Dyas and Bowman cure patient Laughlin's headache?

Who did Floyd and Shultz take out while in San Antonio? We heard that a certain senior boy "jarred loose" on a certain senior girl on the senior trip.

Why did Sumter blush when a cute little blond passed the car in Abilene? Did "Orb" get turned down Saturday?

Why did Crook's eyes "bug out" when the Abilene high girls passed? But it also seems that after Lee Ola's "uniform complex" was cured at Ft Sam Houston, she found that Dave didn't have to wear a uniform.

We didn't know until Friday night that some of our senior girls are regular acrobats. You know, turning cartwheels in the hall and all that.

Why was Louise seeing little black and red spots in the street in San Antonio? We can make a pretty good guess.

Just why did Laura Helen want to see Sumter before anyone else last Saturday night? John seems to have been mixed up with more light trouble according to the last reports, for he and Lee Ola want to warn Veseva about light switches, they're dangerous, so they say.

We wonder if Eugene kept his toothbrush after sticking it in his hat band? Some of these hat designers got it, we're afraid.

It also seems that the most popular song with the seniors was "Little Sir Echo," with the echo from several boys in the street below, so we hear. But it seems that "Hold Tight," and not just the song alone, gave it a close race on the return trip.
