WAR IN EUROPE SENDS PRICES SOARING

TAKES STEPS TO SECURE RECREATION PARK SITE HERE

The City Council, meeting last night, took steps to secure a site for a recreation park here. Ed Gilliam, city engineer, was appointed to select a site. John Burnett, Walter Fairman, and Jeff Davis were also present. The council discussed the conversion of city grounds into a city park.

The following order regarding bus routes was passed by the Board and is of interest to a great many people: "In considering bus transportation and bus routes for the school children of Mills county, the Board recognizes the high efficiency which has characterized the system in Mills county since its beginning, both as to time schedules and as to safety, and we wish hereby to commend all bus owners and operators for their excellent record in furnishing safe transportation to several hundred school children during the last several years without any serious accident and with an excellent record for getting children to school on time.

In order to promote and continue the efficient bus service, the following orders and rules are set forth by this Board as a minimum of service and performance by all bus drivers in Mills county:

1. All buses shall follow the routes as established by the Board and shall follow a regular schedule of travel.
2. Only licensed and bonded drivers under regular contract shall be allowed to drive buses.
3. Owners shall maintain buses in a safe state of repairs.

Schools opened this week at Goldthwaite, Mullin, Lake Merritt, Midway, Big Valley, Prairie, Rock Springs, and possibly one or two others. All bus drivers should file contracts and bonds immediately. Drivers of buses are required by law to have a chauffeur's license and the bus must have a new license plate. Drivers operating buses without any one of these requirements are liable to suspension and fines by the Department of Public Safety.

Cotton Loans Extended

The Commodity Credit Corporation has extended the maturity of its loans on 1938 crop cotton one year to July 31, 1940. It has taken title to the remainder of the 1934 crop cotton under government loans, and in order to acquire the necessary additional cotton for delivery under the cotton-rubber exchange agreement with Great Britain, it was to take title on September 1 to the 1937 crop cotton under loan.

One Variety Cotton Grows Popular

College Station, September 7.—There are 415 one-variety cotton community associations in operation in Texas during the current season, almost double the 1938 total. There were 82 such organizations in 1937 and 213 in 1938. In Mills County the following communities are listed: Goldthwaite, 75 farms totaling 1200 acres. Priddy, 70 farms totaling 2800 acres. Star, 58 farms totaling 1400 acres.

SANTA FE CARLOADINGS

Galveston, Texas, Sept. 5.—Santa Fe system carloadings for the week ending Sept. 2, were 20,116 compared with 19,522 for the same week in 1938. Cars received from connections were 5,712 compared with 5,174 for the same week in 1938. Total cars moved were 25,828 compared with 24,696 for the same week last year.

CERTAINLY WE CAN STAY OUT

What may be known as the Second World War began last Sunday when England and France came to grips with Germany over Hitler's invasion of Poland.

Twenty-five years ago England went to war with Germany over the Kaiser's invasion of Belgium.

Three years later America went to war, chiefly because of Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare in which American lives were lost.

Now, with the barbaric torpedoing of the Athenia, Germany has opened another submarine campaign, and it is possible American lives have again been lost. Certainly Americans have been endangered and forced to endure unwonted hardship and disaster.

The question in every mind seems to be not so much "Will America go to war?" as it is "When will America go to war?"

Even several months ago a large majority of average American citizens expressed the belief that the war was coming and that America would eventually be drawn into it.

It is as though the American people were staring dazedly into a whirlpool and felt that sooner or later it would engulf them, perhaps to sweep them to oblivion.

BUT AMERICA CAN STAY OUT OF THIS WAR.

President Roosevelt has stated his position clearly and unequivocally. Congressman Charles L. South, who represents this section of Texas in Congress at Washington, has expressed his conviction that there is no danger of America's being embroiled in the horrors of another World War, and he, no doubt, speaks the mind of most members of Congress.

If our leaders are opposed to our entering the war, who is there to drag us in?

Army and Navy leaders do not want it. They know far better than the man on the street that America is now unprepared to meet such a test.

Veterans of the last war are against another, practically to a man.

Financial leaders do not want it. The last war cost America twenty five billion dollars almost at once. This was easily raised because our national debt was negligible. Now it amounts to forty billion dollars and twenty five billion dollars more would prove a staggering burden.

The man in the street, even when he expresses the conviction that war for us is inevitable, says he is against it.

Who then is for it? Are you? Furthermore there are many encouraging signs that America is prepared to resist the temptation to fight again.

The President has proclaimed neutrality regulations with teeth in them. He has asked for still more authority to discourage our citizens from entangling alliances that might lead to war.

A new President will be elected in November, 1940, more than a year away. Certainly no candidate is going to run on a platform of taking us to war. If we stay out until 1941, perhaps the emergency will have passed.

Another encouraging factor is the failure so far of Italy joining hands with Hitler. With England supreme on the high seas and France's mighty army battering away on land, Germany must eventually fall. Even her boasted air fleet, while it may rain death and destruction over allied lands, will not be able to win a war.

There are possibilities which might develop to make us feel that our independence and our integrity would be lost if we did not fight. But why cross those bridges now?

Viewed from a sane, realistic standpoint, we must admit that America does not want war, America is not endangered by war, and America is taking ample precautions to prevent our being dragged in.

Under these conditions, it is not only idle, it is unpatriotic to talk of America being engaged.

We can stay out, and we will stay out as long—and just as long—as we, the people, want to stay out.

Instead of talking of getting IN to war, let us think and talk and work towards staying OUT.

CATTLE AND COTTON LEAD IN GENERAL PRICE ADVANCE

Telegram Received From C. L. South

Following is a telegram received by Congressman C. L. South, from Secretary of State Cordell Hull:

The Honorable Chas. L. South, Coleman, Texas

"Thank you for your telegram of August 26. Livestock producers in the United States need have no fear that protection against foot and mouth disease will be relaxed in the proposed trade agreement with Argentina, since the agreement will not affect section 306 of the Tariff Act of 1930 under which imports of livestock and fresh meats from countries where foot and mouth disease exists are prohibited. The list of products on which the United States will consider granting concessions to Argentina in the proposed agreement does not include woolen products nor wools finer than 44's but only the coarser types of which there is a very small production in the United States, nor does it include fresh, chilled or frozen meat. A copy of the announcement of intention to negotiate with Argentina including list of products has been sent to you by air mail.

CORDELL HULL, Secretary of State.

(This is further evidence of Congressman South's watchfulness in the interests of his constituents.—Ed.)

Flour and Feed Are Also Higher

While it is not our war that is raging in Europe, the effects are already being felt here in Mills county. Contrary to the experience of 1914, commodity prices have practically all shown marked gains since England declared war last Sunday.

Wheat, as usual, has led the price parade, and in consequence the wholesale price of flour has jumped to $6.35 per barrel and deliveries are said to be hard to secure at that.

Of immediate benefit to this section is the gain in cattle prices. Bulk beef steers in Fort Worth, which were selling at $6.50 to $7.75 last week had risen to $8.50 yesterday. On the other hand condensed milk has jumped 15 to 20c during the week.

Middling, 15-16 inch staple cotton at leading spot markets last week was quoted at 8.12c a pound and by Wednesday had reached 9.06c.

Fort Worth wheat has jumped from 80c to $1.00 for No. 1 soft red winter wheat.

Wool, pork, sugar and practically everything else is rising.

While President Roosevelt has assured the country that steps will be taken to prevent profiteering, it is felt that moderate price increases will benefit the country as the producers are generally admitted to be receiving too little for their crops and live stock.

Goldthwaite stores report the best business of the year as purchasers rushed to supply their needs before retail prices here are raised in agreement with wholesale prices.

1939 COTTON PAYMENTS WILL REACH $24,000,000

Mills County Cotton Farmers to Receive $27,000 For Their Cooperation

College Station, September 7.—First batches of a scheduled $24,000,000 in 1939 cotton price adjustment payments were on their way to approximately 30,000 cotton producers in 31 counties last week.

Designed to bolster the income of cotton farmers who have reduced their acreage this year in view of a towering cotton surplus, this series of grants will add to the purchasing power of Texas cotton producers the earning equivalent of around 600,000 bales at current prices.

B. B. Ingle, Grandview farmer and member of the State Agricultural Conservation Committee, pointed out that the price adjustment payment of 1.6 cents a pound on the normal yield of the 1939 cotton acreage allotment is made to the 1939 producer.

Delta County, receiving $39,102.37 was first in the state to get 1939 cotton price adjustment checks. Other counties slated for payments within the next ten days are Red River, Titus, Morris, Marion, Rains, Van Zandt, Wilberson, Colorado, San Patricio, Brooks, Henderson, Hunt, Garza, Kent, Mitchell, Nolan, San Saba, Travis, Calhoun, Jim Wells, Rockwall, Motley, Fisher, Jackson, Victoria, Bee, Nueces, Willacy and LaSalle.

This is the first year that AAA payments have been current with the program to which they apply. Payments in connection with the 1937 program were made in 1938, and 1938 payments are being distributed this year.

Ingle reported that practically all of a projected $3,000,000 in 1939 wheat price adjustment payments has been made in Texas, and that Texas farmers and ranchmen have received approximately $60,000,000 in 1939 conservation payments this year.

Mills County checks will amount to approximately $27,000 according to G. R. Goosby, local AAA secretary.

So far 207 checks totalling $4,406 have been received here and put in circulation, leaving a balance of $22,600 still to come.

A reduction of 10 per cent in AAA payments on cotton, rice and general crop acreage allotments for 1939 has been announced this week, as participation in this year's program was found to have reached the point where available funds would not go around at the rates announced last November.

"It's like having to spread the same amount of butter over more pieces of bread," George Slaughter, chairman of the State Agricultural Conservation Committee, explained.

The 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program Bulletin stated that rates of pay would be subject to either a decrease or increase of not more than 10 per cent, depending upon actual participation. On the basis of similar provisions, 1937 rates of pay were increased 10 per cent, while for 1938 no adjustments were found necessary.

The revised conservation payment rates for the crop affected are, cotton, 1.8 cents a pound; general soil-depleting crops, 9.9 cents an acre, adjusted for productivity of county and farm involved; and rice, 9 cents a hundredweight, or about 14.58 cents a barrel.

Electric Motor Reduces Cost Of Operating Ensilage Cutter

Three to five cents per ton is the power cost with such a set-up.

By IRA MILLER

Rural Electrification Bureau

FARMERS having high-line electric service can cut their silage costs from 15 to 25 cents per ton by using a portable five-horsepower motor instead of a 15 to 30-horsepower tractor to operate the cutter. Part of that worthwhile saving comes from greatly decreased power costs—the electric motor requiring but approximately one kw.-hr. per ton of ensilage cut and elevated—and part from the smaller crews needed (two to eight instead of 12 to 20 men).

Practically all of the modern silage cutters can be successfully operated by a five-horsepower electric motor. However, some of the older cutters do not have the proper clearance between the ends of the fan wings and the fan housing to give satisfactory elevation at slow speeds and, as a result, cannot be driven by a motor of such low power. In such cases, and especially if the quantity of silage is large, it generally will pay to replace the old cutter with one of modern design.

Although the power required is influenced by the quality of the fodder, the size of the bundles and method of feeding, the size of the cut and the height of the silo, there are several factors controllable by the operator which are of equal or greater importance. The knives on the cutter should be sharpened twice each day so that each set is used for only half a day's run. They should be set closely but without striking the shear bar which must have a sharp, true edge and which should be reversed or replaced if rounded by wear.

The speed of operation is extremely important—the higher it is, the greater the power required per ton of ensilage. Therefore, the cutter should be run at the lowest effective speed that will insure against clogging. The blower pipe should be kept free of dents and must be set so as to form a vertical line from the cutter to the elbow. Sharp angles at the cutter or bends in the pipe greatly reduce the capacity of the pipe.

The motor and cutter frame should be set level and firmly secured. The belt preferably should be of three-ply rubber, endless or spliced, should not be crossed if possible to avoid it and should not be allowed to rub on the cutter frame. The motor should pull from the under side, leaving the belt slack on top and an idler, if used, always should be against the slack side of the belt.

Observation of the foregoing precautions will do much to insure low power costs as well as trouble-free operation.

How to Choose Your Fall Clothes

College Station, Sept. 7.—A seasonal epidemic, new clothes fever, is spreading in Texas as college girls become fall clothes conscious and smaller children get the back-to-school urge, according to a diagnosis announced by Mrs. Dora R. Barnes, clothing specialist for the A&M College Extension Service.

"Mother and Dad feel they can't be left out, so all in it means that clothes for the entire family have to be in readiness for fall and winter needs."

In answer to the perennial questions about what well-dressed women will be wearing this fall, black, as per usual, is the leading color but it is brightened by gold jewelry. "Don't be disturbed if you can't wear black because there are plenty of other colors which you can wear—comet blue, tunis blue, harvest wine, deep amethyst, tourmaline, shades of plum, navy, green, and the new mossy green which is a gorgeous bronzy green," Mrs. Barnes says.

The most radical change is evident in coats. There is the new fitted coat with the modified shoulder which is still broad but not exaggerated; however, the greatest difference is in the skirts. Fullness is used in a variety of ways, at the sides, in front, at the back, or all around in a rippling wouthful flare.

Speaking of hats, Mrs. Barnes adds: "Style means wearing something becoming, something that does something for you, and this season you can purchase hats that are becoming whether it is a high or low crown, wide or narrow brim."

the same shall be a lien on the property so taxed, a penalty, which shall be the same as that provided by the Statutes of the State of Texas, for Delinquent State and County Taxes, and to conform in all respects to said statutes, this ordinance hereby assessing such penalty and interest as the Civil Statutes provide for delinquent State and County, taxes.

All taxes not paid on or before the 31st day of January A. D. 1940, shall be deemed delinquent, and the same, when collected, shall be apportioned among the several different funds, and the penalty and interest thereon shall be placed in the General Fund.

After said taxes have become delinquent, the City Tax Collector, shall by virtue of his office, levy upon, seize and sell said property, real and personal, for the payment of delinquent taxes, as provided by the laws of the State of Texas.

That fact that no ordinance has been passed levying taxes for the year 1939, and that assessments have been made and that the tax roll should be made, creates an emergency and a public necessity exists and renders it imperative and necessary that the rule requiring ordinances to be read at three several meetings be suspended, and the same is by unanimous consent, suspended, and this ordinance is passed to its third and last reading, and passed and adopted by unanimous vote of the City Council of the City of Goldthwaite, Texas on this the 4th day of September A. The SNAPSHOT GUILD

TRICK PICTURES—II

Trick snaps of a man talking to himself are easy. Double exposure does the job.

ACCIDENTAL double exposures, two pictures on one film, spoil many snapshots, though once in a while the result is amusing. But double exposure can also be used to produce trick pictures that astonish and baffle your friends.

All you need is a firm support for your camera, and a black background. Such a background is easy to obtain indoors at night if you have a broad doorway between two rooms. Simply pose your subject before the open doorway, with the room back of him dark. See diagram.

Two amateur "food" bulbs in cardboard reflectors will provide enough light for box camera snapshots, if high speed film is used. Place them as shown in the diagram, keeping light out of the far room.

The trick picture shown above—a man arguing with himself—was made by double exposure. First, he sat down on one side of the card table, and one picture was snapped. Then he walked around to the other side of the table and posed for a second snapshot. Naturally, the film was not wound until after the second exposure, and the camera had moved, the card table would have shown blurred or as a double image. That is why a firm camera support—such as a tripod or table—is necessary.

"Ghost" pictures are produced by underexposure (for the ghost), and about the simplest way to achieve this is to reduce the light by moving it farther from the subject. Thus, if we had wanted the man standing to appear transparent and "ghostly," we could have moved our photo lights two to three feet farther away from him before making the second snapshot.

Try double-exposure tricks... they're easy, and fun. I'll have some more tricks of a different type for you later on.

TEXAS OUT-O'-DOORS

L. C. Cole, state game warden, and Earl Watley thought they were seeing double the other day when they killed what appeared to be, while on the limb of a tree over their heads, two snakes, but what turned out to be a two-headed reptile which had one head in the usual place and the other at the root of its tail.

Snakes with two bodies or with two heads side by side are sometimes found, but this is the first time discovery of a snake with a head at each extremity has been reported in Texas. The reptile, about three feet long, had a normal-sized head and a smaller one at the root of the tail. The normal head had a round, black tongue with two prongs extending from the end of it. It had no fangs. The smaller head had only one eye and its mouth was so small one could not put a pen in it. The tongue was pink and about half an inch long.

The snake was shot in the middle of its body, but the smaller head struck out at the two men and that portion of the body even moved several feet before it died.

At least 12 big Opelousas catfish did their very best to hatch a nest of eggs under a bank in the Trinity River near Paradise, Texas, it is reported by Loyd Preskitt of Bridgeport and State Game Warden Harley Berg. An Opelousas cat weighing sixty-one pounds was taken from the nest by means of a seine on June 15. On eleven successive days thereafter a large Opelousas cat was taken off the same nest of eggs. They weighed from 17 to 35 pounds.

Harold Barrow and Ernest Porter of Oak Grove community in northeast Texas, are warning fishermen to wear sneakers, boots or some other form of footwear when wading while fishing. Barrow, while walking in Sulphur River recently, was grabbed by a large turtle. The turtle's lower beak cut a large gash in the bottom of Barrow's foot. The top of his beak went completely over the foot and mashed it. An X-ray examination later revealed a broken bone.

Porter, seeing Barrow being dragged under water, went to his rescue. The turtle turned loose of Barrow's foot and grabbed Porter's foot in exactly the same way, cutting a large gash in the bottom of it, it is reported by State Game Warden H. R. Morell of Mount Pleasant, where the men were brought for treatment.

How fast can mourning doves fly? Their greatest speed has probably not been clocked, but you hunters will know why those delectable little birds are so hard to hit when you learn that a pair of mourning doves were clocked at exactly seventy miles an hour for more than 300 yards recently by Charles E. Friley, Jr., regional game manager for the game department.

Not all predators of wildlife are blood-hungry creatures of the wild, and with a new crop of game birds in the field, Will J. Tucker, Executive Secretary of the Game Department, this week requested every Texan to look after his so-called domesticated animals which are allowed to run loose.

That you cannot blame a good rabbit or bird dog for hunting when he gets a chance and that the damage done to wildlife might well be charged to owners of the animals is the opinion of game experts. Hunting dogs can do almost as much damage as semi-wild cats. They can hardly be expected to know when the legal hunting season ends and they naturally will continue the pursuit for which their masters praised and trained them at other times.

The number of loose running dogs can, however, in no way compare with a large number of semi-wild house cats which range the woods and fields, especially near the urban centers, and unless citizens stop dumping unwanted cats and kittens along highways, return of wildlife to Texas fields and woodlands will be appreciably hindered.

Fry Chickens to A Golden Brown

College Station.—Since fried chicken is now probably "America's No. 1 dish", some tips for making the favorite drumsticks and wishbones more palatable have been offered by Nora Ellen Elliot, specialist in food preparation for the A&M College Extension Service.

For improvement of technique in chicken frying, checking the temperature is suggested, for the meat will cook tender and juicy doneness if the heat is moderate throughout the frying period. The fat should be hot, but not to the smoking point, before the pieces of chicken are placed in the skillet, the specialist adds. A half-inch or more of well-flavored fat in the skillet is preferable.

"Of course, the thickest pieces should be placed in the vessel first," she says, "and enough space should be allowed to let the fat rise around the edges of each cut. Party should be kept to keep the fat from burning. When brown, the pieces should be turned."

At least 20 or 25 minutes should be cooked for three-pound chickens. The number of chickens to fry at a time she says she might prefer to finishing in a moderate temperature.

The well-browned should be removed from the skillet and placed in a covered pan for a few minutes until the next to the bones. For 15 minutes of cooking should be removed to a brown crust, she says. The chicken is done when drained on paper to absorb excess fat.

Learning to do well and cream in your own a lot of bother.

Priddy V. A. Notes

During the month of August, nine of the vocational agriculture boys with their advisor, O. L. Burk, attended the summer encampment at Lampasas. Among the boys who attended were Ewell Priddy, Glynn Dunlap, Enoch Masters, Raymon Tieman, Alvin Harris, Adolph Lippe, Julian Carr, Carl Jeske, and Elton Bufo. Various athletic contests were held, and the Priddy boys won two second place pennants in volleyball and basketball, with a first place pennant in softball.

The Priddy vocational agriculture boys plan to begin regular chapter meetings every second and fourth Thursday nights of each month. The part-time class, composed of boys who have graduated from high school, will also meet twice each month. During the month of September, they will meet and outline the program of work for the year.

The agriculture boys have several calves on feed, and several have lamb, crop, and pig projects.

Night School

Thursday night Mrs. Weatherby's Sunday School Class enjoyed an old-time school party. There were about 30 pupils present with Mrs. Sparks Bigham as the teacher.

School opened with the pupils singing old songs during which many beans and paperwads were thrown by naughty boys—and girls. After the singing lesson came that dreaded subject, arithmetic. Reading, spelling and geography followed. All subjects were in the form of games.

At recess refreshments were served in the form of school lunches.

Sam Saylor, much to everyone's surprise, made the most "A's".

Everyone present said they sincerely wished that school at GHS could be held in the same manner.—Reporter.

Ice Cream Supper

From observation we find in order to get a large crowd of people together is to announce there is to be an ice cream supper at a certain place in your community and we will guarantee the crowd.

On Friday night of last week, we were invited to attend one of these festivals at the lovely country home of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Laughlin's.

On arriving, we noted the display of several Coleman lanterns swinging from the branches of the beautiful Salt Cedars growing on the spacious grassy lawn with a table of several feet in length loaded with cakes of all description from the feathery Angel food down to the ever popular cookie.

By ten o'clock, the twenty freezers were in full swing and in no time at all Dutch Smith, our champion cream eater, announced, "all out" it was then Mrs. Laughlin with the assistance of several ladies, started serving the 132 guests, who passed through the gate and were counted by Lamar McLean.

Tables were provided for those who cared to play 42.

Others participated in playing games while others discussed the problems of war.

At a late hour the host and hostess were bidden good night, declaring it to be the best party ever.—A Guest.

Local H. D. Council Met Last Saturday

Grownups as well as children absorb knowledge more painlessly if presented as a game, so at the Home Demonstration Council meeting last Saturday afternoon in her office, Miss Scott passed jig saw puzzles which when assembled were leaflets listing kinds and amounts of food essential for a well balanced diet for an adult for one year. Very clever!

Next, the Misses Wilda and Wanda Bledsoe and Aggie Forehand gave pleasure to the assembly by singing, "The Old Mill Stream" and "The Old Woman in the Shoe."

Mrs. Oran Carothers, our genial vice-president, presided and our efficient secretary, Mrs. Fred Reynolds read the minutes. We now sign a register instead of having roll call. Reports of summer social meetings were given by Mrs. Ora Black for Scalorn, Mrs. Perkins for Star, and Mrs. Jon Schooler for Goldthwaite. Miss Scott gave a resume of the report on Land Use Planning compiled on individual reports from 1100 farms out of a total of 1500 in the county. The report reveals that more milk cows, hogs, gardens, orchards, chickens and pantries are needed. Miss Scott was enthusiastic about the cooperation she and Mr. Weaver received in getting these reports.

A spirited round table discussion followed in which much information was exchanged.

Pleasant Grove held the place of honor in attendance. Its representatives were Meses. Oran Carothers, Arthur Robbins, L. O. Kelly, W. T. Moreland, L. B. Covington, and M. D. Crawford.

From Scalorn were Mrs. Ora Black. From North Bennett, Mrs. Joe Anderson. From Goldthwaite, Mrs. Fred Reynolds and Mrs. Jon Schooler. From Mt. Olive, Mrs. Tom McArthur and Mrs. Orville Harris. From Center Point, Mrs. John Edlin, Ira Hutchings and Miss Bess Hutchings. From Lake Merritt, Mrs. Jake Brown and Mrs. Jess Massey. From Mullin, Mrs. W. O. Kemp. From Midway, Mrs. Coley Sevier and from Star, Mrs. Dora Goode and Mrs. Vernon Perkins.

Ben Davis Geeslin, 1939 graduate of the law school of the University of Texas, left Thursday for Mason where he will be associated with Roscoe Runge law office.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Skaggs and Miss Nell were week end guests in the home of Mrs. Skaggs' sister, Mrs. J. K. Campbell in Temple.—Brady Standard.

Most of you may have green pastures and plenty of rain, but not so with us. We even missed our weekly shower this time. The pastures look pitiful, and the heat and hot winds are almost unbearable.

A TEXAS EMERGENCY

Texans watch nervously the fate of European people.

Within Texas, a crisis of direct bearing upon their own fate is rapidly shaping up.

Unless this country is involved in war, the present emergency is of greater consequence to the lives and security of Texans than the European situation.

This emergency is the rising traffic toll.

A lot of us perhaps have had the smug idea lately that we had the traffic problem whipped. Last year Texas cut its death toll 21 per cent. For the first five months of this year we continued the reduction.

Then something happened. We started stepping on the gas and jaywalking again. Accidents shot up. June, July, and August traffic fatalities snapped a record of 14 months of reductions. In the face of this increase, the disarmament of the State Highway Patrol takes place September 1. Then one out of five men must be fired as a result of legislative and executive economy.

And the end, the Texas Safety Association predicts, may be the greatest death toll and property damage for Texas since the peak year of slaughter, 1937.

Unless, that is, Texans stigmatize careless driving and demand swift and certain punishment for drunken driving.

The emergency can be met—with your help! Just how serious it is, the following statistics portray:

Economic loss to Texas from traffic accidents:

1938—$50,000,000 (millions)
1937—$65,000,000 (millions)

Number of persons killed in traffic accidents:

In Texas:
1937—2,043 persons
1938—1,610 persons (Reduction of 21 per cent from 1937)
1939—858 persons (January-July only)

In United States:
1937—39,643 killed
1938—31,400 killed (Reduction of 18 per cent from 1937)

War vs. Traffic Accidents (1917-'18 vs. 1937-'38):

American soldiers killed in action—died of wounds ..... 50,510
American citizens killed in traffic accidents ..... 72,043
Texas soldiers killed in action—died of wounds ..... 2,023
Texas citizens killed in traffic accidents ..... 3,653

COTTON INSULATION

What may prove the long-awaited new use for cotton was demonstrated in Taylor last week by D. F. Forwood who has invented a way to make cotton fire-proof and vermin-proof so that it may be used as insulation.

According to the State Observer of Austin:

"Cotton as an insulation fabric has many advantages. First, it is lighter than other materials such as mineral wool or ground cork. Second it is approximately 50 per cent cheaper. Third, tests have shown that it is superior in its resistance to temperature changes.

To the crowd which gathered last week for the formal demonstration, including Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, Agriculture Commissioner J. E. McDonald, and repre-

Cancer Facts

AUSTIN.—"In spite of increased popular education on the cancer problem during the last decade, many false ideas regarding this disease still persist. Too often such conceptions are the basis of delay in diagnosis and treatment. Obviously, figures cannot be compiled, but it can be stated safely that a fair proportion of the thirty thousand preventable cancer deaths now occurring annually in the United States could be avoided if these mistaken notions were corrected," the State Health Department believes.

"The following facts are pertinent: (1) Cancer is not contagious; the victim cannot give it to any other person. (2) Cancer is not a blood disease. (3) Diet is not a cause or preventive of cancer; vegetarians and meat-eaters are equally susceptible. (4) Aluminum cooking utensils do not cause cancer. (5) Constipation does not cause cancer. (6) Mental worry will not influence the development of cancer. (7) No age is free from cancer; babies are born with it and the oldest persons can be its victims. However, it is largely a disease of adult life, occurring chiefly between the ages of 40 and 70. (8) Self-medication is a waste of time and frequently fatal because of the delay involved. (9) Serums, vaccines, colored lights, patent medicines, pastes, salves, and diets are valueless. (10) Quacks and their super-claims, through false hopes and delayed diagnosis, cause many avoidable cancer deaths but do not effect cures. (11) No warning comes from pain. In the early stages and in the pre-cancerous condition, there is no pain or conscious health impairment. The one exception is bone cancer.

"With a full appreciation of the above facts and the prompt seeking of medical advice when there are signs of cancer, it is conceivable that many thousands of deaths from this cause could be prevented.

"The danger signals are any lump in the breast or other part of the body; any persistent sore, particularly on the face or mouth; any unusual discharge or bleeding from any part of the body, such as vomiting blood, passage of blood from the bowels, or unusual bleeding of any bodily passage, especially after middle age; and chronic indigestion. Procrastination in the face of any of these signs is dangerous and may even be fatal.

"It is true that any one of these symptoms may be caused by a condition other than cancer; however, this fact is no excuse for delay in diagnosis, so that prompt treatment procedures may be instituted, for if cancer is diagnosed sufficiently early, the results of treatment are usually good.

representatives of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Forwood showed a variety of tests.

"In one he poured kerosene on the treated cotton, striking a match to it. The kerosene flared up, the edge of the cotton charred, and the flame died out.

"Many believe that Forwood's discovery will stand an excellent chance of winning the $10,000 prize set aside by the Texas Legislature for development of a new use for cotton which will consume at least 300,000 bales of cotton a year.

"To those witnessing the demonstration, a side-test was particularly interesting. Iced bottles of soda-water were taken from the ice, wrapped in treated cotton, and left for three and one-half hours in a wooden shack in the sun. When opened, they were almost as cold as when they came off the ice."

After all, it seems that there is something new under the sun.

Potatoes Are Not Fattening

College Station.—An Irish potato, bugaboo of persons trying to lose weight, is no more fattening than a large apple, yet it provides the diet with valuable vitamins and minerals at low cost.

Nora Ellen Elliott, specialist in food preparation for the Texas A&M College Extension Service, the authority for this statement, also says many persons throw away dollars in health value because they peel potatoes instead of using the whole potato. Potatoes baked or boiled in their skins save money and health, since the part of greatest health value is nearest the skin, she explains.

Moisture absorbed during cooking is the primary cause of soggy potatoes. Steamed potatoes, the specialist says, absorb less moisture than boiled ones and therefore are mealier, though not as meally as baked potatoes. Mature potatoes are recommended for baking purposes.

Food specialists consider potatoes the first vegetable to buy when a low cost health food is to be bought, and they advise serving this economical food at least once a day.

LESSON TEXT.—II Chronicles 30:13-22. GOLDEN TEXT.—Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.—Psalm 80:3.

The way out—that seems to be the chief object of the search of men. The world is in what seems like hopeless confusion with the imminent danger of a devastating explosion which may in the judgment of some destroy civilization. Politics, economics, education, yes, even religion, have tried their hands at solving the problem and we seem to be worse off than ever. Conditions are much as they were when Hezekiah came to the throne after the death of his wicked father Ahab, who had brought Judah into moral, spiritual, and national declension and disgrace.

The young king brought the nation back within a few years to peace and prosperity. How did he do it? He did not do it. God did it, and He did it because Hezekiah remembered Him and led His people in a return to God, in a recognition of His Word, and to restored worship. God therefore prospered them.

It is significant that while our lesson is about King Hezekiah, his person quickly recedes into the background of our thinking and God is given our attention and our praise. Truly great men do not magnify themselves or their own names, but point by their very greatness to the eternal God to whom they give the glory. Let us consider how God worked through Hezekiah.

I. A Cleansed Temple.

Our lesson calls for attention to the context. Read chapter 29 and learn how the priests and Levites first were directed by the king to cleanse the temple which had suffered degradation and disgrace under King Ahab. Sixteen days were devoted to a thorough clean-up.

That's a good place to start. America, how about cleaning up our churches? Some of them need attention to their physical property, cleaning and rehabilitation. Others are beautifully kept up as far as the building is concerned, but the rubbish is in the teaching and in the manner of worship. Let's clean that up too.

II. A Prepared Priesthood.

Hezekiah gathered the scattered priests and Levites, but he did not permit them to serve in the temple until they had been sanctified and prepared for their work. The men who stand in the sanctuary to direct the worship of God must not only be men of God's own choosing, but they must be cleansed by the blood. As the sacrifices were offered in Hezekiah's day, so for us has One been given in holy sacrifice, and unless those who profess to be His ministers have been cleansed by His blood they have no proper place in His service or in the sanctuary.

III. A Purified People.

The people of the nation were not ready for God's blessing. Some of those in the northern kingdom, to whom the royal invitation had gradually been extended to come to the Passover, scorned the invitation (30:10). There was nothing that could be done for them. But others humbled themselves and came (v. 11), and those in Judah came out in a great assembly (vv. 12, 13).

Observe carefully that this was more than a great homecoming or jubilee event. The people were here to worship God and they needed to be prepared by being "healed" of their sins (vv. 18, 20). They too needed the cleansing blood. It is the only way even now, for "without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin" (Heb. 9:22). Sin is what we must be cleansed from and healed of if God is to bless our land.

IV. A Feast of Joy and Blessing.

The nation and its leaders kept the feast not only for seven days, for they were not satisfied with this, but they kept it for seven more days. Think of many of us who can hardly sit through an hour of service on Sunday morning, and if we also go to Sunday school we are quite worn out. It is just "impossible" for us to get to the Sunday evening service or to the midweek prayer meeting. Evidently we do not have the spirit of the people of Hezekiah's day or the joy that they found in their hearts as they worshiped God. If we did, we would seek His house and give ourselves gladly to His worship. The result would be that we would receive some of the great blessings which came to the people of Judah.

The reading of II Chronicles 31 and 32 will reveal how God responded to the cry of His people and how He blessed and prospered them. He is the same God today and He can and will do wondrous things for those who trust and honor Him.

Some of the commonest faults of thought and work are those which come from thinking too poorly of our own lives and of that which must rightly be demanded of us.—Bishop Paget.

Space has been allotted in the agricultural building of the State Fair of Texas, Dallas, October 7 to 22 to Hamilton county. This is one of 64 Texas counties to be represented in this display of farm life, which because of the geographical distribution of counties will show every form and variety of Texas farm product.

Harry Boynton received his commission as postmaster at Hamilton Thursday and will be installed today, Friday. He replaces Miss Winifred Williams, who has been acting postmaster since February 11, 1938.

More than 8,000 fish were added to the two Hamilton lakes last week, reports C. M. Rush, local chairman of wild life conservation organizations.

J. C. Kellam, State Administrator, this week advised Bert C. Patterson, County School Superintendent, that Hamilton county's quota of NYA school aid jobs for the 1939-40 school year had been set at 35. The State Administrator said this quota was based on the county's relative youth population and its particular need for NYA school aid jobs.—County News.

Should Married Women Be Allowed To Work?

The controversy about married women working has bobbed into the news again with the suggestion by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt that the best way to combat the legislative trend to bar married women from state and local government is to bring out the "facts."

"Efforts are now being made to find out what the facts are," the President's wife says in the August issue of the Democratic Digest, publication of the Women's Division, "Democratic National Committee," and once they are verified I think women will have a basis for realistic presentation of the situation of married women as regards employment in general."

The First Lady declares that so far as she knows the number of married women in industry now is "comparatively small," has "little effect on unemployment" and in most cases the women are engaged in work "unsuitable" for men.

On the other hand, Mrs. Roosevelt thinks that "a good case" can be made against employing more than one member of a family in local, state or federal government when the salary of one of them provides an adequate standard of living.

"It is important not to create a family bureaucracy in government," she holds. "When you find all of the members of a family working in the government service and bringing home to the same house an income the post-box to get the mail. The Barnes' mail was rarely voluminous, rarely interesting. A bill or two, a letter from Judy—some futile advertising stuff.

This morning, however, there was a long envelope. In one corner was the name of the magazine to which, nearly six months before, Baldy had sent his prize cover design. The thing had almost gone out of his thoughts. He had long ceased to hope. Money did not miraculously fall into one's lap.

He tore open the envelope. Within was a closely typed letter and a pale pink check.

The check was for two thousand dollars. He had won the prize! Breathless with the thought of it, deprived of strength, he sat down on the terrace steps. Merrymaid and the kitten came down and angled for attention, but Baldy overlooked them utterly. The letter was astounding. The magazine had not only given him the prize but they wanted more of his work. They would pay well for it—and if he would come to New York at their expense, the art editor would like to talk it over!

Baldy, looking up from the pregnant phrases and catching Merrymaid's eye upon him, demanded, "Now, what do you think of that? Shall I resign from the office? I'll tell the world, I will."

Oh, the thing might even make it possible for him to marry Edith. He could at least pay for the honeymoon—preserve some sense of personal independence while he worked towards fame. If she would only see it. That he must ask her to live for a time—in the little house. He'd make things easy for her—oh, well, the thing could be done—it could be done.

He flew up the steps on the wings of his delight. He would ride like the wind to Virginia—find Edith in a rose-garden, fling himself at her feet. Declare his good fortune! And he would see her eyes!

Packing his bag, he decided to stop in Washington, and perpetrate a few extravagances. Something for Edith. Something for Jane. Something for himself. There would be no harm in looking his best. . . . He arrived at Grass Hills in time for lunch. His little flivver came up the drive as proudly as a limousine. And Baldy descending was a gay and gallant figure. There was no one in sight but the servants who took his bag, and drove his car around to the garage. A maid in rose linen said that Mr. and Mrs. Simms were at the stables. Miss Towne was on the links with the other guests, and would return from the Country Club in time for lunch at two o'clock. Miss Barnes was up-stairs. Her head had ached, and are Lucy's roses, but she says I am to do the work."

"But why not have a gardener?" Edith demanded.

"Oh, we have. But I should hate to have our garden a mere matter of mechanics. Del has some splendid ideas. We are going to work for the flower shows. Prizes and all that."

Delafied purred like a pussy-cat. "I shall name my first rose the 'Little Lucy Logan.'"

Edith, locking arms with Jane, a little later, as they strolled under a wisteria-hung trellis towards the fountain, said, "Lucy's making a man of him because she loves him. And I would have laughed at him. We would have bored each other to death."

"They will never be bored," Jane decided, "with their roses and their little pigs."

They had reached the fountain. It was an old-fashioned one, with thin streams of water spouting up from the bill of a bronzed crane. There were goldfish in the pool, and a big green frog leaped from a lily pad. Beyond the fountain the wisteria roofed a path of pale light. A peacock walked slowly towards them, its long tail sweeping the ground in burnished beauty.

"Think of this," said Jane, "and Lucy's days at the office."

"And yet," Edith pondered, "she told me if he had not had a penny she would have been happy with him."

"I believe it. With a cottage, one pig, and a rose-bush, they would find bliss. It is like that with them."

The two women sat down on the marble coping of the fountain. The peacock trailed by them, its jewels all ablaze under the sun.

Adelaide, in her burnished tulle, tall, slender, graceful as a willow, was swinging along beneath the trellis. The peacock had turned and walked beside her. "What a picture Baldy could make of that," Edith said. "The Proud Lady."

"Do you know," Jane's voice was also lowered, "when I look at her, I feel that it is she who should marry your uncle."

Edith was frank. "I should hate her. And so would he in a month. She's artificial, and you are so adorably natural, Jane."

Adelaide had reached the circle of light that surrounded the fountain. "The men have come and have gone up to dress," she said. "All except your uncle, Edith. He telephoned that he can't get here until after dinner. He has an important conference."

"He said he might be late. Benny came, of course?"

"Yes, and Eloise is happy. He had brought her all the town gossip. That's why I left. I hate gossip."

Edith knew that pose. No one could talk more devastatingly than Adelaide of her neighbor's affairs. But she did it, subtly, with an effect of charity. "I am very fond of her the women who had been loved by Frederick Towne!

The dinner was delicious. "Our farm products," Delafied boasted. Even the fish, it seemed, he had caught that morning, motoring over to the river and bringing them back to be split and broiled and served with little new potatoes. There was chicken and asparagus, small cream cheeses with the salad, heaped-up berries in a Royal Worcester bowl, roses from the garden. "All home-grown," said the proud new husband.

Jane ate with little appetite. She had refused to discuss with Adelaide the former heart affairs of her betrothed, but the words rang in her ears. "The women that Ricky has loved."

Jane was young. And to youth, love is for the eternities. The thought of herself as one of a succession of Dulcineas was degrading. She was restless and unhappy. It was useless to assure herself that Towne had chosen her above all the rest. She was not sophisticated enough to assume that it is, perhaps, better to be a man's last love than his first. That Towne had made it possible for any woman to speak of him as Adelaide spoke, seemed to Jane to drag her own relation to him in the dust.

The strength of the wind increased. The table was sheltered by the house, but at last Delafied decided, "We'd better go in. The rain is coming. We can have our coffee in the hall."

Their leaving had the effect of a stampede. Big drops splashed into the plates. The men servants and maids scurried to the rescue of china and linen.

The draperies of the women streamed in the wind. Adelaide's tulle was a banner of green and blue. The peacock came swiftly up the walk, crying raucously, and found a sheltered spot beneath the steps.

From the wide hall, they saw the rain in silver sheets. Then the doors were shut against the beating wind. They drank their coffee, and bridge tables were brought in. There were enough without Jane to form two tables. And she was glad. She wandered into the living-room and curled herself up in a window-seat. The window opened on the porch. Beyond the white pillars she could see the road, and the rain-drenched garden.

After a time the rain stopped, and the world showed clear as crystal against the opal brightness of the western sky. The peacock came out of his hiding-place, and dragged a heavy tail over the sodden lawn. It was cool and the air was sweet. Jane lay with her head against a poised on the rim of the fountain, like a blue butterfly,—"but he wasn't with the rest."

"Baldy can't be here until tomorrow noon. He had to be in the office."

"What are you going to do with yourself in the meantime, Edith?" Adelaide was in a mood to make people uncomfortable. She was uncomfortable herself. Jane, in billowing heavenly blue with rose ribbons floating at her girdle, was youth incarnate. And it was her youth that had attracted Towne.

The three women walked towards the house together. As they came out from under the arbor, they were aware of black clouds stretched across the horizon. "I hope it won't rain," Edith said. "Lucy is planning to serve dinner on the terrace."

Adelaide was irritable. "I wish she wouldn't. There'll be bugs and things."

Jane liked the idea of an out-of-door dinner. She thought that the maids in their pink linen were like rose-leaves blown across the lawn. There was a great umbrella over the table, rose-striped. "How gay it is," she said. "I hope the rain won't spoil it."

When they reached the wide-pillared piazza, no one was there. The wind was blowing steadily from the bank of clouds. Edith went in to get a scarf.

And so Jane and Adelaide were left alone.

Adelaide sat in a big chair with a back like a spreading fan; she was statuesque, and knew it, but she would have exchanged at the moment every classic line for the effect that Jane gave of unpremeditated grace and beauty. The child had flung a cushion on the marble step, and had dropped down upon it. The wind caught up her ruffles, so that she seemed to float in a cloud.

She laughed, and tucked her whirling draperies about her. "I love the wind, don't you?"

Adelaide did not love the wind. It ruffled her hair. She felt spitefully ready to hurt Jane.

"It is a pity," she said, after a pause, "that Ricky can't dine with us."

Jane agreed. "Mr. Towne always seems to be a very busy person."

Adelaide carried a little gauze fan with gold-lacquered sticks. When she spoke she kept her eyes upon the fan. "Do you always call him 'Mr. Towne'?"

"Of course."

"But not when you're alone."

Jane flushed. "Yes, I do. Why not?"

"But, my dear, it is so very formal. And you are going to marry him."

"He said that he had told you."

"Ricky tells me everything. We are very old friends, you know."

Jane said nothing. There was, indeed, nothing to say. She was not in the least jealous of Adelaide. She wondered, of course, why Towne should have overlooked this lovely lady to choose a shabby child. But he had chosen the child, and that settled it as far as Mrs. Laramore was concerned.

But it did not settle it for Adelaide. "I think it is distinctly amusing for you to call him 'Mr. Towne.' Poor Ricky! You mustn't hold him at arms' length."

"Why not?"

"Well, none of the rest of us have," said Adelaide, deliberately. Jane looked up at her. "The rest of you? What do you mean, Mrs. Laramore?"

"Oh, the women that Ricky has loved."

Living Can Begin At Seventy

"That child of your is exceptional," said an admiring visitor. "His mind is so well-trained. These young progressive teachers in our modern schools certainly know their stuff."

The boy's father smiled. "Junior," he said, "has been taught at home by his grandmother. She's seventy-eight and right up to the minute on modern methods of education. She has taught all her life. She loves it."

That grandmother exemplified a popular misconception about old age. It is supposed to begin at a certain physical time of life. Or else it is reckoned from the year when the human body begins to slow up. If this rule were true, old age would begin with many people in their early thirties, with others in their forties and with no normal human later than the age of fifty. The actual truth is that old age begins only when a person gives up his active interest in living and sits down passively to wait for the end.

Mrs. Charles B. Knox, at 81, is active head of the Knox Gelatine Company. Besides holding down her responsible job Mrs. Knox grows huge quantities of rare orchids, a recreation she began just a few years ago, and personally supervises a long list of philanthropies. When her husband died Mrs. Knox might have retired. But instead she began to live, in the fullest sense of the word.

Mrs. Knox is no exception. Women who have passed their biblically allotted three score and ten are pouring out their living power into almost every channel of modern activity. Do you remember Ida Tarbell's spectacular articles in McClure's Magazine at the beginning of the century, and her biographies of Bonaparte, Madame Roland and Lincoln? Miss Tarbell, at the age of 81, is completing her ambitious History of Business. Gertrude Atherton, at the age of 77, added "The Foghorn" to her long list of novels. Edith Wharton, at 72, was awarded the gold medal of the National Institute of Arts and Sciences. Mrs. Alice Ames Winter, at 71, took her place on the National Board of Motion Picture Review. I have in my files dozens of cases of women in their sixties and seventies who applied their ability to live in new fields. One even became a photographic model.

The contributions to science, industry and commerce which would have been missed had great men decided to stop living at the age of 70, are beyond all reckoning. We have had many years of constructive psychoanalytical work from Dr. Sigmund Freud since he passed the once accepted death line. Henry Ford, now 75, built a seven million dollar hospital and published three books after turning over his business to his son, and is still an active force in American life.

There are Bernard E. Sunny, of General Electric, still active at 82; Bartlett Arkell, president of the Beechnut Packing Co., at 76, and General James G. Harbord, who retired from a distinguished army career and launched himself upon a new one as Chairman of the Board of the Radio Corporation of America. At 72 he still carries on. In the field of musical art, consider the great Paderewski, who gave his first popular concert in a London cinema palace in 1937, at the age of 77.

You are never too old to learn. Learning is living. And remember this: if you learn how to live, truly live, in the field of your present interest, you can easily transfer that living ability to other fields when it comes time to assert the leadership in living to which mature age entitles you. Dr. Irving Lorge of Columbia remarks: "The mind does not deteriorate with age. Lack of ability to learn is militant ignorance, laziness or refusal to compete with a younger person." Lorge is right. — This Week Magazine.

Steinmans Have A Well Filled Pantry

By Miss Emma Scott Home Demonstration Agent

A comparatively new and effective set up in the Extension Service is the Whole Farm Demonstration. Mr. and Mrs. Oran W. Carothers, Pleasant Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sikes, Big Valley, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Steinman, Priddy, are conducting Whole Farm Demonstrations in Mills County. A most worth while factor one observes upon visiting any one of these farms is well land use planning, of which a great deal is being said and done at present in Extension Service programs.

In the set up of these farms enough soil is devoted to the growing of gardens and orchards to provide vegetables and fruit for the family table. Enough feed is produced to provide food for cows, chickens and hogs. All of this in turn means that there is a well filled pantry in each home, a flock of laying hens, a pen of hogs to be fattened for home consumption. Then when a cash crop is harvested it will not have to go for living expenditures.

This is a list of the home grown and conserved foods that have been added to the home food supply on the W. L. Steinman farm:

English peas, 50 containers; black eyed peas, 24 containers; snap beans, 56 containers; kraut, 24 containers; beets, 24 containers; berries, 100 containers; plums, 34 containers; peaches, 144 containers; pickles, 64 containers; tomatoes 59 containers; peach preserves, 43 containers; corn, 48 containers; tomato sauce, 6 containers; total 679 containers.

These 679 containers are half gallons, quart jars and No. 3 cans. In addition to the canned foods there is an ample supply of dried beans and peas all ready for use in the Steinman pantry. One hundred and thirty white Leghorn pullets that began laying when they were five months old is one means of a cash income on the Steinman Farm at present, besides supplying necessary poultry products for the family table.

Reports from the other Whole Farm Demonstrations will follow later.

Work Started On High Marshall Ford Structure

INCREASED DAM TO GIVE GREATER CONTROL OF FLOODS ON COLORADO

Austin, Sept. 7.—Intended to greatly increase the Lower Colorado River Authority's potential flood control capacities, work has been started on the high Marshall Ford dam 17 miles above Austin.

The dam, already completed through its first construction stage, will be raised from its present 190 feet to 270 feet in height.

Brown and Root and McKenzie Construction Company, contractors for the low Marshall Ford dam, will carry the project on to completion in its ultimate phase. Construction of the dam to its ultimate 270 foot height was made possible by the $5,000,000 appropriation secured at the last session of Congress by Representative Johnson of the Tenth Texas District.

When completed, Marshall Ford, being built under direction of the Bureau of Reclamation, will be the key flood control unit of the L. C. R. A.'s series of flood control, water conservation and power generation dams on the Colorado River above Austin.

Construction of the dam to its ultimate height will make it the fourth largest masonry structure in the world.

Contractors started the first crew of men to work on the high dam structure this week and planned to have the project going full-blast by December 1st.

It will be completed in approximately two years and will provide more than 800,000 acre feet of storage space devoted exclusively to flood control plus super storage and the normal storage for operations.

The Authority's engineers estimate that with the high Marshall Ford dam, the project can control any flood equivalent to any of past record occurring above Austin.

Advice To Turkey Raisers

With Thanksgiving set up one week, it means that turkey producers should be giving serious thought toward getting their birds ready for market. Most of the turkeys are thin and if they continue in this condition until market time it will be very hard to dispose of them on the eastern markets. Now is a very good time to start conditioning your turkeys so that they will be in excellent condition for the market.

Turkey producers should start feeding their turkeys on a complete ration by September 15th and have them on full feed not later than October 1st. A complete ration consists of a developing mash or a fattening mash as well as grain. Many turkey producers will prefer to feed a commercial ration which is complete while others may prefer to mix their own fattening feed.

Provide plenty of tender green feed if possible.

It is a good practice before starting on full feeding to worm your turkeys. At the same time it may be advisable to vaccinate against pox, particularly if this has been a hazard around marketing time. The pigeon strain vaccine gives temporary immunity and would be very satisfactory on market turkeys. By vaccinating before October 1, the birds will be completely over the vaccination before marketing time.

It is very important that the breeding turkeys should be selected around the middle of October before they are too fat and before any birds are ready for the market. This will give the producer an opportunity to top out the best birds in the flock and keep these birds on a developing feed instead of fattening feed until marketing time.

Kind of breeders to select:

1. Early hatched poults.
2. Select young toms.
3. Select turkeys with a large frame.
4. Select purebred turkeys.
5. Select stock with legs set wide apart.

Some people prefer to give a wet mash feeding to the turkeys for a period of three weeks before they go to market. If this is done they should be fed two wet mash feedings a day, all they will clean up in about 30 minutes for the first week; three wet mash feedings a day for the second week, all they will clean up in about 20 minutes, and four wet mash feedings a day the last week, all they will clean up in about 20 minutes. In addition to this, grain should be kept before them at all times and at no time should the wet mash be left before the birds to sour as this will throw them off feed.

Remember, feed a complete ration. Begin feeding by September 15, and have them on full feed by October 1.
