Poll Tax Payments Are Lagging Here

Up to yesterday only 830 poll taxes had been issued in Mills county by Sheriff and Tax Collector J. H. Harris. Although 1941 is an off year politically, it is certain that some elections will be held, and it is even possible there may be a vote relating to America's war effort. Those who are holding back because of Governor O'Daniel's opposition to poll taxes are reminded that he was just as opposed two years ago, but the poll tax law was not changed.

INAUGURATION OF GOV. W. LEE O'DANIEL AND LIEUT. GOV. COKE STEVENSON

Ushering in the ceremonial at which Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel and Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson took the oath of office for a second term of two years as the heads of the ship of state, the 200-piece band of Texas A. & M. College and the white-clad Ross volunteers marched up Congress avenue promptly at 10:30 a. m., with hundreds of visitors and Austin residents looking on.

The two military organizations from College Station lent color and dignity to the inaugural ceremonies with the 40 Ross Volunteers, attired in white uniforms and caps, marched up the main thoroughfare behind the khaki-clad cadet band, their sabers across the right shoulder glinting in the bright sunlight. The weather was cool and many in the official party wore overcoats. A stiff breeze blew and although heavy gray clouds splashed the sky, the sun speared through them frequently.

City of Goldthwaite Asks for Bids On Electrical Distribution System

"Homemaking" Told to Club by Mrs. Steinhauser

An enthusiastic audience heard Mrs. Ruth Phillips Steinhauser of Fort Worth talk on the subject, "The Evolution of Modern Homemaking Methods in the South," when she was presented as guest speaker by the Art and Civic Club, at the School Auditorium on Thursday afternoon, January 16.

Mrs. Steinhauser first discussed the three elements of homemaking—food, clothing and shelter—in the South before the Civil War. In contrast to the Southern home of former years, she described the modern home with its electrical appliances made possible by science. She ended by giving some interesting facts to show that although the American people are able to afford more luxuries and comforts than any other people in the world, they are a thrifty people, as figures on their savings and investments prove.

Special guests for the occasion were the High School Homemaking Club. A group of Future Homemakers from Mullin and representatives from several home demonstration clubs were also present.

Upon entering the auditorium, guests were greeted by members of the Art and Civic Club and served punch and cookies. Pupils of Mrs. A. H. Smith played the piano while guests were being seated.

Mrs. L. J. Gartman welcomed the guests and introduced Mrs. McDuffy Kessler, program leader. The Homemaking Club, joined by the Mullin girls, sang their area song, "Bendemeers Stream," with Miss Syble Miller at the piano. Miss Juanita Stinnett, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, sang "I Dream of Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair." Then followed the talk by Mrs. Steinhauser.

Elsewhere in this issue appears the City of Goldthwaite's formal notice to bidders asking proposals for constructing a distribution system for a municipal electric plant. Bids will be opened on February 12 at 10 a. m.

Plans and specifications for the system are on file in the office of City Secretary F. P. Bowman and in the office of the engineer in Houston.

The specifications are said to provide for modern equipment to be installed in the newest approved manner. The money for constructing the system will be secured from an issue of revenue bonds which was approved by the citizens on November 26 by a vote of 222 for to 154 against.

The bonds have already been sold to Underwood and Co. of Houston at a small premium above par but have not yet been issued.

A supply of Infantile Paralysis buttons has been distributed to Mills county postmasters who are cooperating in raising funds for this worthy cause.

Every post office in Mills county except Star and Ebony has a supply of these buttons which sell for 10c each. Every cent received for the buttons will be forwarded to national headquarters, but a portion of all collections is available for use by the counties raising the funds.

Postmaster W. J. Marwitz of Priddy is heading a list of Mills county postmasters so far by taking double his quota of buttons.

See your postmaster today and do your part towards making life brighter for the unfortunate little cripples who are being aided from the funds raised each January in honor of President Roosevelt.

New Officers Elected for Local Home Dem. Club.

If the first meeting is a barometer of the year, 1941, will be very interesting and successful for the Goldthwaite Home Demonstration Club.

New officers were in charge with Mrs. Ben Davis presiding. The yearbooks look like they are filled with fine programs. Miss Scott assigned dates for all meetings which are now on a three week schedule instead of two.

Mr. Lee Dyas was elected reporter, Mrs. Fred Reynolds, bedroom demonstrator and Mrs. Mack Horton grain demonstrator.

TO MR. WILLKIE, AGAIN—

Dear Mr. Willkie: We had a right smart to write to you about last fall while you was a runnin' for President. Some things we liked about you and said so, and some we didn't, and said so, too, just as loud and pointed as we knew how.

We always did think you was the smartest fellow the Republicans have run for President since Teddy Roosevelt, even if they did have to go clear outside their own party to find you.

But right now we want to let you know we shore admire the stand you are taking on this Aid-to-Britain Arsenal of Democracy bill. The easiest thing you could have done would have been to just keep quiet. The next easiest would have been to sound off like Mr. Hoover and Mr. Landon and say you was all for helping Britain provided President Roosevelt didn't have a hand in it and provided we didn't do anything that would make Germany mad.

Instead of that you come right out and say you are FOR President Roosevelt's plans with modifications and that you know he's got to have plenty of authority if he gets the job done. What a lot of squawking that has

NEW AND BETTER HOMES FOR MILLS COUNTY

Good Plan, Adequate Space Should Govern Closet Design

Closets and storage nooks are simply "places to put things," as housekeepers often remark. Federal Housing Administration officials say that storage space not only is an absolute necessity in the home but it also must be well planned and adequate in size.

Family possessions and family housekeeping habits vary, and it is therefore difficult to establish fixed standards for closets. The FHA, however, requires that in the construction of a new home there should be a minimum of one closet for each bedroom, a coat closet, a linen closet, and a closet for cleaning and other equipment.

Basement or Attic
In houses of traditional design, storage space is generally provided either in a basement or an attic. In many modern houses, even those which are not of so-called modern design, both attic and basement have been eliminated. This is justifiable if adequate space for storage is provided in other parts of the house.

As a rule, the shallow closet is considered to be the most economical and can be most conveniently arranged, provided the opening is nearly as long as the closet itself. When the closet is long, two doors usually prove more convenient than one wide door.

An ordinary bedroom closet need not be more than about 24 inches deep, since coat hangers are only 18 inches across. About six inches should be allowed below garments for cleaning purposes after the rods have been installed. A shelf placed above the rod adds to closet convenience.

Hooks in a closet should not be placed within five inches of the door, should not be placed on doors less than 30 inches wide, and when used by small children should be placed within their easy reach.

Proper closet planning requires, first, an inventory of the family's possessions which will need storage space. The average family must usually store, in addition to clothing and linens, such things as trunks, luggage, toys, possibly a variety of sports equipment, odd pieces of furni-

Better Homes Better Living

A full-length door mirror adds utility and beauty all in one. A door-length mirror will do much to make a new home more livable and enjoyable for the ladies of the house.

Decorative yet inexpensive door-length mirrors will enlarge and brighten even the smallest homes.

Mirror doors are available in stock at almost all material dealers and may be easily installed to replace an ordinary door. Funds for the purchase and installation of full-length mirror doors may be obtained from private lending institutions approved by the FHA under its Modernization Credit Plan.

Funds may also be obtained under the FHA plan for the purchase and installation of a kitchen ventilating fan which will draw out cooking odors and grease-laden air and prevent their settling on fabrics and curtains.

With a kitchen-ventilating fan the atmosphere all through the house remains clear and inviting. Care must be taken in the installation of the fan to prevent its interference with curtains or with the operation of windows.

ture and seasonal decorations, extra china, seasonal clothing, utensils, and tools, and many other small and large items.
If closet space is not intelligently planned, there will one day be a sad realization that alteration must be made. Such afterthought may prove expensive.

Modern Homes Like This Can Be Had With Monthly Payments Lower Than Rent

This two-bedroom home is located in the South or Southeast, but its functional plan and sound construction make it adaptable to any section of the country. Builders and architects are now teaching the desirability of having a bathroom so located that it is accessible without passing through other rooms, and a plan of that kind is worked out here. A mortgage of $2,500 was insured on this property by the Federal Housing Administration. Monthly payments on a 25-year mortgage of this amount, exclusive of taxes and hazard insurance.

TREND IS SEEN TOWARD NEW LOW-COST HOMES

Better Design Sought by FHA

The Federal Housing Administration's drive for sound construction methods and better designs for homes throughout the country is prompted by three motives.

These motives are: protection from unsound methods and design; consequent increase in a property's marketability, thus protecting the interest of lending institution; and reduction of the possibility that the structure will become quickly undesirable and prove a loss to FHA's mortgage insurance fund. A house to be marketable, FHA officials point out, must be durable in construction, planned for convenience in living, and adequately arranged and equipped for safety, light, and sanitation. It must be pleasing and well proportioned in design and have an attractiveness that promises permanence in appeal—a factor that the Federal Housing Administration is stressing increasingly in its mortgage-insuring operations.

SPOTLIGHT

Catherine Epperson
 Catherine, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Epperson, is one of our most popular senior girls. She is well liked by everyone. She is a blonde and is of medium height.

Catherine was in the first grade at Hico and the rest of the time she has attended in Goldthwaite.

She and Floyd Sansom shared highest honors during their seventh grade year. She is now associate editor of our High School Herald and vice president of the Spanish Club. She was the senior candidate for Band Sweetheart and Hallows' Queen. She is one of the five in our class making a straight E.

She plans to attend John Tarleton College at Stephenville and major in music.

Ellabeth Early

Ellabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Early, is one of our newer students. She became a member of our class in October of our Sophomore year.

Ellabeth is a regular "rover girl." She has attended school in the following schools: Coleman, South Ward; San Angelo, grammar and Junior high; Brownwood, Junior and senior high and Goldthwaite High.

Ellabeth is a member of the Dramatics Club and the Band. She was one of the four from Goldthwaite who played in a mass band at Stephenville last Saturday. It is a great honor to be chosen to play in this band and we know Ellabeth deserved it.

She plans to major in music and will attend probably either Howard Payne or Tarleton.

Wanda Faulkner

Wanda, one of the friendliest and most liked girls in our class, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Faulkner.

Goldthwaite is the only school Wanda has ever attended. Although she isn't one of the excellent students, she is a good one and also a very cooperative one.

Wanda has been an active member of the pep squad during her four years in High School. She is a member of the Texas History club and H. E. Club. She was the reporter for the Texas History club.

She plans to take a course in Business Administration and will probably attend Abilene Christian College.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NEWS

We have several new pupils. They are: Laura Manuel of the seventh grade; Leota Kauhs and Ralph Ball of the sixth grade; Dorothy Nell Kauhs of the fourth grade; Robert Louis Manuel of the third grade and Irene Ball of the second grade.

Sixty four writing awards have been won by pupils in grades 5, 6 and 7, according to a letter recently received by W. S. Benson and Company by Mrs. Stephens. This number represents one-third of the number of students enrolled in these three grades. These awards will be formally presented at a later date.

In Miss Blackwell's 4I English class, we found a number of future poets. The following poems were written in class and are completely original. We think they are good, don't you?

Bro. Marshall will speak Sunday morning on the above subject. Hear him at the eleven o'clock hour.

Arguing About Facts
You don't argue over a fact as plain as the sight of food when you are hungry. You can eat it. Some people argue about God and religion. To hear them talk you would think they were really interested. They remind me of the dog that caught the train—he didn't know what to do with the train after he caught it. A lot of people like to argue about God, but they don't know what to do with God after they get through arguing about him. But it is always easier to argue about life than it is to live it.

started among those fine-feathered die-hard Republican friends of yours! Those fellows actually hate President Roosevelt so bad that if he said the sun was goin' to set tonight, they'd stay up till sunrise and claim it had only been in eclipse.

SHELZBELZ! The way they talk sounds like that old rhyme:

"Mother, may I go out to swim?"
"Yes, my darling daughter,
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb,
And don't go near the water."

They want us to help England win this war provided we get spot cash on the barrel head for all the help we give and provided we let on to Germany like we're still good friends with her.

These "Yes, but" fellows shore do get in our hair. The ones what comes flat out and says "Germany is bound to win, so let's don't waste any more money on England, but let's get on the winning side like Mussolini thought he did," are dead wrong, but at least they're honest.

But these other fellows who pretend to want England to win and who say it would be better for the U. S. if England does win, and then object to our putting any punch in what we're doing are either just plain dumb or they're on the side of the Fifth Column. They remind me of those high-falutin' mammas who're allus sayin', "Now, Johnny, don't," and then grieve because their young un grows up disrespectful and mean like. A few taps from a long, keen peach tree switch will teach Johnny a whole lot faster and will last a sight longer than all the finger waggin' and "Please, Johnny, don't" in the world.

It looks to me like a dirty shame for Congress to doodle and dawdle for weeks before they pass the President's bill. Why don't they go ahead and vote and pass it now as they're sure to do anyhow after arguing for a while?

You've made a good start, Mr. Willkie. I hope you'll follow it up with a little prod- ding where it will do some good. Take that old campaign buddy of yours, Joe Martin, and behind the wood shed and point out the facts of life and death to him, and urge him to corral that bunch of Republicans before they do some harm.

They's just one language ole Hitt and Muss can savvy and that's the same one our grandpappies used when the wild Indians got on the warpath—it's powder and lead served hot.

England and France tried being sweet and reasonable, and just look at 'em now. If they'd acted hard while they still had the upper hand, the whole world would be better off today. If Uncle Sam will start being tough while Germany's got her hands full and keep on getting ready to let her have it full force if she don't let go, and all the time keep the shootin' irons moving towards England, this war's likely to end so sudden-like we won't have to fire a shot.

But if we've got to have six weeks Congressional debate before we can cock a trigger, you might as well stay in England after you get there, cause it's goin' to be worse over here.

Take care of yourself over there, Mr. Willkie. Truth is I don't see much sense in your going over. It's kinda like a small boy wanting to get close to a fire. But don't get hurt and don't get in the firemen's way.

Yours till Hitt and Muss get what's com- ing to 'em,

CHRIST'S CONCERN FOR THE LOST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—Luke 19:10.

Lost! What fear and disquietude grips our hearts when we hear that word! A little boy strays away into the forest, and the whole countryside gives up its work to go and seek him. An airship fails to reach its destination, and hundreds of ships go to sea after it, while an entire nation waits in suspense. A ship is lost at sea, and the whole world grieves.

But listen! It is only when applied to the spiritual life that the word "lost" finds its real depth of meaning. To be "without God in the world" (Eph. 2:12) and without hope—that is to really be lost. Yet parents who would not rest a moment while their child was physically lost go on without concern over his spiritual condition.

Our Lord had no such unconcern. He was deeply moved over the lost condition of men; He came "to seek and to save that which was lost." The two parables of our lesson teach us three truths.

I. Lost and Lamented (vv. 1-4, 8).
The publicans and sinners recognized their need of a Saviour and He, knowing their lost condition, received them, much to the disgust of the Pharisees and scribes who felt no need to be saved. They have their descendants in our churches today.

The good shepherd cannot rest while one of the sheep is lost. Though "there were ninety and nine that safely lay in the shelter of the fold," he sought the lost one. His grief-stricken heart compelled him to go out into the night to find him.

One wonders how we who profess to follow Christ, the Good Shepherd, can be so complacent about the lost. What if we do have the ninety and nine in church—where is the lost one? Even if we do have a large Sunday School class—where are the boys and girls who are lost? Do our hearts grieve over them? If so, we will go and seek them. We who would quickly join the woman in seeking for her coin—will we join the Saviour in seeking the lost?

II. Sought by Sacrifice (vv. 4, 8).
The woman laid aside her usual duties and the pleasures of life to seek her coin. The shepherd left the warmth, the comfort, and the rest which he had earned to go out into the wilderness to seek his sheep.

"But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed;
Nor how dark was the night that
The Lord passed through Ere He found His sheep that was lost."

Soul-winning calls for sacrifice. If the love of Christ constrains us, we will do it gladly, but if the self-seeking, comfort-loving spirit of this age controls our lives, we will always find some excuse (not a reason, but an excuse).

III. Restored With Rejoicing (vv. 5-7, 9, 10).
The lost coin back in the owner's hand brought joy to her and her neighbors. The shepherd calls in friends and neighbors to rejoice over the restored sheep. How intensely human that is, and how altogether appropriate.

The great truth, however, is found in verses 7 and 10, where we learn that the repentance of one sinner sets even the bells of heaven ringing as the angels of God rejoice.

How long is it, my Christian friend, since you caused such joy by permitting yourself to be used of God in winning a soul? Yes, I know that it is God who seeks, but He uses human beings as His messengers, as His seekers. That is our first business after we ourselves have been saved.

Our lesson will not be complete unless we consider the rest of the chapter—the parable of the prodigal son. In its main points it is like the other two parables, but there is this vital difference—the shepherd sought his sheep, the woman searched for her coin—the father did not seek the son; the son sought the father.

Some prodigal, far from the house of his heavenly Father, may read these lines and say, "I wish someone would seek me out and bring me to God." But, my friend, you need not wait for anyone. Do as the prodigal did—"arise and go" to God. He is waiting for you; His love has never faltered; He wants you to come now. Make His heart rejoice, and set the choirs of heaven singing, by coming to Him by faith—just now.

As Ye Go, Preach
And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give.—Matthew X, 7-8.

Whooping Cough Dangerous, Says State Health Officer

Careful isolation of a child ill with whooping cough is a measure that pays health dividends, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

There is no other communicable disease so dangerous as whooping cough to the very young, and there is no other infection to which there is a more universal susceptibility in infancy and childhood. Over 90 per cent of all deaths from whooping cough occur in children under five years of age. Whooping cough is dangerous, moreover, because there is no natural immunity against it during the first six months of life as there is in measles.

Whooping cough is usually transmitted by direct contact with the secretion of the mouth or nose, or with articles freshly soiled with the secretion. Only a short exposure is required to contract with the infection. The communicable stage extends from seven days to three weeks after exposure until development of the characteristic whoop.

1. A child with what appears to be an ordinary cold should be kept away from others and a physician consulted to determine the true nature of illness.

2. Whooping cough vaccine of the approved type is of value in preventing or lessening the severity of the disease. The vaccine is usually administered during the first year of infancy.

3. If whooping cough develops in a community, young children should be kept at home to escape exposure.

Isolation plays a hardship on a child in that it keeps him from seeing relatives and playmates.

On the other hand, isolation exerts a two way, salutary influence on public and individual health. First, isolation of the patient helps to prevent the spread of whooping cough to others who are susceptible. Second, and this is of immediate importance to parents, isolation protects the sick child against possible exposure to severe infection which may be carried by otherwise healthy persons.

ATTACK ON AMERICA

GENERAL ABED WHITE

INSTALLMENT TWO

and congressional opinion which failed to realize the significance of the troops. In an effort to obtain more definite proof, Colonel Flag will send Captain Benning, daring American intelligence officer, to the U. S. ambassador in Paris. Here he was told to impersonate Lieutenant Bromlitz, a former American officer who

"Sir, Major Bromlitz, reporting from Luxembourg for duty with General Van Hassek," Benning said briskly.

"Sit down, Bromlitz," the other said without lowering his eyes. "I'm Van Hassek."

The Van Hassek uniform was the simple brownish-tinted cotton khaki of this new Mexican army. At the collar was a silver crescent, insignia of a lieutenant general. The only other ornaments on his severely plain uniform were a glittering order of merit at his left breast and, under it, the iron cross.

Some moments passed in which the only sound was the heavy ticking of an immense German clock and the vague hum of traffic in the street below.

"Perhaps you can tell me, Bromlitz," Van Hassek mused without change of voice or posture. "Yes, perhaps you can tell me."

A faint smile passed his thick lips as he went on: "I've just come up from the Salon de Espera on a lower floor of the palace where I've installed a hospital. Perhaps I should refer to it as my laboratory. In any event, no one ever leaves it alive, but they are only spies and traitors who must die by one means or another. For some months I've been watching them at the moment they leave the world, yet I'm more mystified now than ever. So you tell me, Bromlitz, if you can, is death the end of us?"

"Sit down, Bromlitz."

"Your pardon, Excellency," Benning answered. "I'm not a chaplain."

The other chuckled, and with a vitality in his mirth that was not that of an ailing man.

"The profession of arms is so vast and intricate, Bromlitz, I've given up all hopes of mastering it in detail," Van Hassek rejoined. "Besides, I find occasional diversion in other lines of thoughts. So many, many people must die of violence within the next year or two that I've been trying to satisfy myself whether that will be the end of them."

"You mean that many will die in war, I take it, sir," Benning suggested.

"Millions," Van Hassek answered, stifling a yawn.

His pudgy arms thrust into the air over his head, his heels stretched forward, and he squirmed erect in his huge chair.

"You were, I'm advised, an American army officer," Van Hassek said, now speaking briskly in German. "I'm told there are serious charges standing against you in the United States."

Benning said: "I hope you'll not judge me by that, General Van Hassek. Despite my past misfortunes I'm a soldier, sir, and hold the view that there is no other profession worthy of a man. That being so, when circumstances beyond my control placed a price on my head in one country, haven't I the right to find service in another?"

"Ja, a soldier is always a soldier, Bromlitz," Van Hassek answered with an approving nod. "I enjoyed my three years in China as much as my station in Vienna; and Mexico is even more to my liking because there are big events shaping up. Tell me in your own way, Bromlitz, what you think of the American army's fighting capacity."

Benning pondered briefly and decided upon the full and unequivocal truth which, after all, could only confirm what Van Hassek must already know.

"If you mean the American readiness for a sudden war, that is nothing short of pitiable, sir. The United States land forces are scattered in small garrisons, are not properly had planned to work with the foreign agents in Mexico. Expelled from the U. S. army, he had desired to get revenge for the "insult." Fortunately, Bromlitz had been captured, so Benning prepared to visit him in his cell to study his mannerisms.

Now continue with the story.

equipped, and have very little training in the team-play of the larger combat elements."

"What do you know of its strength?"

"There are four army infantry divisions and eighteen National Guard infantry divisions together with some four cavalry divisions. All are at peace strength and it would take months to put them on a war footing, fully equipped. In total manpower count on 300,000 men within the territorial limits."

"Ja, very good. What about their fighting equipment?"

"Pitiable, when you consider the whole picture. Their artillery is largely World War vintage stuff. They're short on ammunition, anti-aircraft, instruments of precision, modern rifles. Their anti-tank weapons aren't out of the factories yet. It would take them a year to make the weapons they'd need, if they couldn't purchase them in foreign markets as they did for the World War. But they have a high-class officer personnel, thoroughly trained and—"

"Ja, I know of that," Van Hassek interrupted with a dash of impatience. "But it takes modern equipment and plenty of training to fight a battle these days. Now, tell me another thing, Bromlitz, would the mass of Americans stick together in event of invasion?"

Benning pondered briefly and answered, "I'm sure you can count on it that they will, sir."

"But what if they were overrun suddenly? How long would they stand up under terrific military punishment when they had their chance offered them—to buy their way back to peace?"

"Excellency, is it probable that anyone would be audacious enough to attack the United States from her own soil?" Benning asked. "I mean when her potential resources in wealth and manpower are taken into consideration?"

Van Hassek snapped out, "That's precisely why she must be attacked on her own soil, because of her latent strength."

Benning pretended perplexity and countered, "I'm not sure I understand just what Excellency means."

"I mean it was America's stupid intervention that wrecked the world in the Great War."

"But didn't her strength turn the balance in the last war, Excellency?"

"Strength, bah!" Van Hassek scoffed. "Not for more than a year after the United States jumped into the war did her soldiers fire a shot in battle. Then only after the French supplied her with cannon, the British with rifles, helmets, and gas masks, and both sides conducted a military kindergarten to instruct her divisions in the art of war. Ja, that was her latent strength!"

Van Hassek got up abruptly and with an amazing agility. He went to his desk and touched a call button. The captain from the anteroom responded promptly.

"Captain Schroff," Van Hassek instructed, "I'm very well satisfied with Bromlitz. You may have him report for the time being to Colonel Bravot. Later I may have more important use for him."

JAPANESE BUY LESS COTTON
College Station. — Japanese taking of American cotton to date and the general state of the Japanese textile trade suggest that imports of American cotton, which for several years have been largely from Texas, may not exceed 350,000 bales in 1940-41. The office of the Foreign Agricultural Relations says, in announcing this, that Japanese imports in 1938-39 were 898,000 bales.

Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile Institute says it is futile to hope that this country can solve its cotton problem through export trade. The only hope is to utilize surplus cotton at home.

What in the world is THAT?

BACK in the dark ages, before electric cleaners were invented, people used to hang their rugs on a line and belabor them with instruments like this—imagine!

In those days, cleaning a rug was a morning's work for a reasonably husky man, but today the daintiest woman can clean a rug in 10 minutes without exertion at a cost of less than one cent.

And so it is with other household tasks that formerly took so much of a woman's time and strength. Today, they are done electrically in less time with less effort at a cost that is measured in pennies and fractions of pennies per day.

And as more and more electricity has been used in the home, the cost has come steadily downward. Today, the average customer of this company receives 53% more electricity for his money than in 1930.

Your electric switch is your "open sesame" to comfort, convenience and more leisure time. And electricity is so cheap you can afford to use it freely.

MANY ATTEND 4-H POULTRY SHOW

A moving picture show entitled "4-H Club Boys at Work and Play" was presented by County Agent Sam Rosenberg in eight meetings during the past week. The show presented the activities of 4-H club boys, what they are doing and what their 4-H club work is, in the 19 counties in this extension district No. 7. Lamb feeding work, beef-calf work, other livestock demonstrations and outstanding 4-H club crop demonstrations were portrayed in the film. A trip made by twenty-one outstanding 4-H club boys of the 19 counties and five of their county agents through the corn belt states, to Chicago, and back home was one of the highlights of the film.

Four hundred forty-two persons, boys, girls and grown-ups attended the showing of the picture in Mills county. The largest group saw the film in Mullin where more than 200 attended the presentation of the show.

The Mullin community has a long supporter of the 4-H Club and all other community work and all other benefit of our youth. The community had the largest crowd with the best tending the show.
