

STAR—

By MRS. DORA GOODE

The south wind is whisking along nicely and very pleasantly this morning. The past weeks of still hot weather surely gets a body's goat. We've had a nice shower of late, but the hot atmosphere licks it up so soon and it's gone like the vapors of an early dawn.

It seems that folks are always busy round about here, but some can, and do, get off on a little vacation. The rest of us just sight-see with geographic magazines in the shade of our own back yards. And, I rather think it's nice to do that, thus eliminating the glare and eye-strain of long stretches of highway, and the nervous anticipation of what would happen if you didn't keep a hand on the wheel and your eye on the trail. Tho, I do love to skim along the highways in the early morning before the world and Old King Sol begin to stretch their limbs. It's wonderful how you feel when your car begins to take the ranches of old Wyoming—going up—up—up—until the wheels seem to merely skim the road up into rare altitudes, and then to slowly tarry on some high plateau and gaze out and over and down on the rest of the world. Well, I could write on and on, but maybe you're like me, and I'm like they say, "I am from old Missouri, you'll have to show me." Take a trip up that way some time in March or early April.

Amazed At Progress

Recently I went with a senior class on a 1,500-mile tour of our state. I was amazed at the rural growth and progress that have taken place during the last decade.

In sections where cotton once held down a poverty-stricken people, the hillsides have been turned back to grass. Cattle and other livestock grow fat and lazy on pasture that had almost been ruined as farming land. Gardens are larger and better. Terrace and crop rotation are saving thousands of acres that would soon have been depleted and washed away. Practically every farmer I talked to said he was making a better living now than back during the King Cotton era.

The Southern farmer has been dubbed one of our major economic problems, but at the rate he is going he is likely to solve his own problem. And through wise farming and diversification the answer will be economic independence.—Jess F. Blair, Gaines County, Tex., in The Progressive Farmer.

CATS ARE FUNNY

A 10-year-old boy turned in the following essay on "Cats": "Cats and people are funny animals. Cats have four paws but only one mother. People have forefathers but only one mother. When a cat smells a rat, he gets excited; so do people. Cats carry tails and a lot of people carry tales, also. All cats have fur coats. Some people have fur coats, and the ones that don't have fur coats say catty things about the ones who do have them." (Found in the Lometa Reporter).

13,398 MILES ON 5-QUART FILL OF CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL in the Certified DEATH VALLEY DESTRUCTION TEST. Revolutionary New Oil tested against 5 other big brands. 6 new cars Destroyed to prove Economy and Protection. The oil that reeled off an amazing 13,398 miles on one regular fill, in blazing Death Valley, was proved to be an oil of the Nth degree—an oil of new high character. Here is what happened: New Conoco Nth oil went 13,398.8 miles. Not another oil came within 5,683 miles of this. One outstanding oil failed 8,268.6 miles sooner than new Conoco Nth motor oil. So it outdistanced the five competing oils by 74% to 161%. Why this Astounding result was possible: New Conoco Nth motor oil contains a Conoco-originated synthetic (U.S. Patent 2,218,132) called Thiakene inhibitor. An inhibitor in motor oil acts pretty much as an inhibitor you. Inhibitions hold you back from many actions. And so Conoco Thiakene inhibitor polices Conoco... arrests pollution that comes from normal operation that's your aid against a disaster with inferior lubrication. Are you an OIL-PLATING? If you are, more power to you for a minute feel let down. Conoco Nth also contains the famous Thiakene inhibitor. Thiakene comes from the magnet-like Thiakene that keeps it bonded to the parts, so that it can't all get down to the crankcase—where you're using Conoco Nth same famed OIL-PLATING inhibitor to guard against wear. Because of OIL-PLATING Thiakene inhibitor, one 5-quart Conoco Nth oil went an amazing 13,398.8 miles. Of course, the Death-Test your Conoco Nth oil. Test your Conoco Nth oil in other proving-ground tests still drain and refill at the recommended by qualified mechanics. But how you'll expect to outdistance before you ever judge by this big fact: 5 heavily advertised oils that failed Death Valley Test went only 74% to 161% by Conoco Nth oil. Economy like that costs dollars! Change to Nth oil. Your Mileage Merchant's Choice. Continental Oil Co.—Betting America's oil.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 31

JOHN URGES CHRISTIAN LOVE

LESSON TEXT—1 John 3:13-18; 4:7-21. GOLDEN TEXT—Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.—1 John 3:18.

Love is a word so abused in modern speech that one almost hesitates to use it, and yet it stands for the very finest in all human relationships, and presents to us the very essence of the nature of God. We do well to redefine the meaning of love in our Sunday school classes this next Sunday. Love is not that sentimental, "wishy-washy" feeling which prompts the writing of emotional ballads, which are (like the supposed love of which they speak) "here today and gone tomorrow." Nor is it that lustful thing which now parades itself shamelessly as love, when it is nothing but animal passion. Nor is it that weak thing which totalitarian dictators make it out to be when they declare that to attain, a people must hate, not love.

"Love is a desire for and delight in the welfare of another." It reaches out to all mankind, coming from God and being manifested in the gift of His Son as our Saviour. It is stronger than any earthly bonds. It is able to bear unbelievable burdens; yes, because He loved us Christ bore the sins of the whole world on Calvary. It expresses itself in courtesy, in high standards of life, and in sacrifice. Love is, as Henry Drummond put it, "the greatest thing in the world." Read I Corinthians 13 for Paul's exalted description of love.

Our lesson reveals two important facts about love—

I. Love is an Evidence of Regeneration (1 John 3:13-18).

There are two groups of people, the saved and the unsaved. The unsaved in Scripture are designated as "the world," meaning, not the physical world, but the world of unregenerate men who are against our God and His Christ. The saved are those who have come to God in Christ, who love Him and are in the center of His love. That love is, according to John, an evidence that we know God. There is an interesting contrast here.

1. The World Hates and Kills (vv. 13-15).

Today the wicked heart of man apart from Christ is revealed in the tragic events which have embroiled the whole world in conflict. The point is that we as Christians should not be surprised if that kind of a world hates us. In fact, we should be troubled if it does not hate us, for if our Christianity means anything, it must be utterly distasteful to a world driven by hatred and the lust for blood.

2. The Christian Loves and Gives (vv. 14, 16-18).

The mark of a Christian is love for God and love for the brethren. That love demonstrates its genuineness by giving freely to meet the need of a brother, just as God freely gave His Son for our redemption. (cf. James 2:14-17).

The background of such an attitude is a proper understanding of our relationship to God, and an appreciation of His nature.

II. The Very Nature of God is Love (1 John 4:7-21).

God not only loves, but He is love.

1. God is Love (vv. 7, 8).

"Love is the very essence of His moral nature. He is the source of all love" (R. A. Torrey). Only the one who knows God as love knows Him at all. There is much thoughtless and meaningless talk about the love of God, as though it meant that He is careless about enforcing His divine law, that somehow He will overlook and excuse careless and wicked living. The fact is that the love of God has no real meaning unless it is understood in the light of the cross, for

2. God's Love is Manifested in Christ (vv. 9-10).

He was sent as the giver of eternal life, the propitiation for our sins, our Saviour, and thus as the highest and deepest expression of God's love. Faith in Christ (v. 15) puts the believer in the very center of the love of God. Precious hiding place!

3. Love Casts Out Fear (vv. 17-19).

Fellowship is impossible in an atmosphere of fear, but love rules fear out. In Christ we realize that God first loved us, and then our hearts go out to Him in a warmth of devotion which brings us so close to Him that all fear is gone. The result of such fellowship with God follows, for

4. He Who Loves God Loves His Brother (vv. 20, 21).

If a man loves God, he will obey Him, and His command, which to the Christian is, "Love your brother." That is "the first and great commandment" (Matt. 22:36-40; Deut. 6:5; Luke 10:25-28). There is no use in our talking about loving God if we have no love for the brethren, for in doing so we make God testify against us that we are liars (v. 20).

Beware Of Accidents On Labor Day Trip

"Help Defense—Stop Accidents" is the rallying cry issued by the Texas Safety Association in its role as state co-ordinator in the nationwide campaign against accidents launched by President Roosevelt.

By proclamation the President called on every American citizen to devote maximum effort to a "concerted campaign against accidents which are wasting the manpower and resources so sorely needed for national defense."

The statewide campaign against accidents on the highways, on the farms, in industry, and at home will be waged by more than 30 organizations co-operating with the Texas Safety Association.

"The importance of helping defense by stopping accidents cannot be overemphasized," said George Clarke, managing director.

"For example, the traffic toll for the Labor Day week-end holiday is expected to cost lives of 27 to 30, and to disable 71 to 80,000 other people. The loss for the nation will amount to one million dollars.

"The prediction is that the accident and the accident same holiday defense program could be built into the fabric of the nation's life."

"Help Defense" is a slogan which every citizen should heed.

TO KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT

It is evident from the questions asked me recently that there is some confusion in the minds of some people about the Baptists of Texas. That the record may be kept straight, I submit the following explanation.

This explanation does not take into account Primitive Baptists and Freewill Baptists and such small groups as them. Of the generally recognized Baptists of the state there are three groups. 1. The Baptist Missionary Association. It began at the turn of the century and was organized because a group of Baptists were not satisfied with methods pursued in general denominational work. They called themselves "Anti-Board Baptists." As a matter of fact, they pursued the same system of work later that they had rebelled against. Only a small number of churches of this group remains, the great majority of them returning to the Baptist General Convention.

2. The Fundamentalists. These are the followers of J. Frank Norris, and are self-styled "Fundamentalists," though they have the same articles of faith that the other groups have. All together there are two or three dozen churches of this group in Texas. 3. The Baptist General Convention. This group numbers now almost a million members and with several thousand churches, and carries on mission, educational and benevolent activities of a tremendous proportion.

The local First Baptist Church and the Mills County Association are parts of this great body of Baptists who are known the world over as "The Missionary Baptists." They believe in and practice missions.

Weedy Barb a Despoiler of Sheep Pelts and Meat

"Weedy Barb," to give it a name, is an affliction grazing animals contract on ranges and pastures infested with awn-seeded grasses. Mechanical injury around the eyes and mouths of grazing livestock is frequently noticed, but in sheep the pelts and carcasses, pierced by thousands of barbs of weed seeds, take a market loss of fifty per cent or more. The sharp awns, or sheathes encasing the seeds of wild oats, little and wild barleys, foxtail, brome grasses, needle grass, poverty grass, and others, break off in the fleeces of sheep, work their way through the hide, and lodge in the flesh. Increase of the trouble in recent years has given rise to buyers' reports of "wild oat lambs" from western states, particularly California, Oregon, Arizona, Montana, and Idaho. In the green stage these forage plants are succulent but in late spring and summer the seeds ripen and the rough awns catch in the wool of sheep. Then, as one packing house buyer relates, "every movement of the animal seems to propel these needles deeper until they reach the flesh itself, where they fester and cause bloodshot circles an inch or two in diameter." Some of the animals die, literally stuck to death. The pelts of others, looking like pincushions, have no market, and may be carried a year before bringing $2.50 a dozen as No. 2 seedlings. "When lambs are killed within a month of the time the seed barbs lodge in the wool, the carcasses are severely trimmed by government inspectors," the buyer states further, "which usually leaves a badly mutilated cutter worth about one-third as much as the ones free of grass." Good management of herds, range, and pastures are the only effective preventive measures, buyers and experiment station specialists alike declare. Lambs may be sheared before the seed is ripe. Sheep may follow cattle which have been allowed to graze the weeds down early in spring before the spear points can develop. Ranges and pastures loaded with weeds at maturity should be avoided, especially in late summer and fall. Single night bedground on the range should prevail and permanent bedground avoided. Open herding should be followed, close herding avoided, and logs used as little as possible. To prevent close contact of the entire flock with weedy pastures. In pastures, control of the weeds, most of which are annuals, is simply done by cultivation, and on open lands grubbing out is often resorted to, or soon after the plants have blossomed they are cut or burned.

Revising Our Buying Habits

By George C. Hester

Living costs have finally started their long predicted rise. In the past twelve months wholesale prices of food have jumped 20 per cent. This means, of course, that the retail prices which the family pays are due for further rise in the near future. During the third year of the World War (1917) food prices rose 19 per cent in this country. The year 1941 will be the third year of this struggle, and unless price controls are devised that are far more effective than those in existence, next year may see an extraordinary rise in living costs.

But price rises will not be the only factor affecting the average family budget. If the war continues, there are many luxuries and semi-luxuries that will be off the market by next year, which means that they cannot be bought at any price, except perhaps in very limited quantities. Shortages in defense materials and the priorities program by which the government will have first choice, may go so far as to alter the living habits of many American people in the next year or so.

Such articles, for example, refrigerators, radios, stoves and heaters, aluminum ware, linens, silks, many electrical goods, imported fibers and drugs, and many other items are due for either complete elimination from the general market or for severe curtailment. Autos and accessories will face unusual shortages. Even the credit by which many people have, as a rule purchased such comforts and conveniences, will also be restricted.

To date, the average housewife has encountered no particular difficulty in purchasing such articles, chiefly because the stores were fairly well stocked when the emergency began.

All of which means that we might as well prepare ourselves to face some very plain and simple facts. The defense program is going to mean that many of our ordinary luxuries are not going to be available in 1942 and thereafter if the war continues. Even designs and styles will be simplified.

At present most families actually have more money to spend than in the past few years, but the new tax program, plus the higher price levels and rising living costs on the other, will probably wipe out all such advantages the average consumer now enjoys. For those with more or less fixed incomes, it may mean that pinched budgets and downright hardships are in store.

For many of us, it will necessitate a return to a simpler way of living such as we knew several decades ago.

Many unnecessary hardships might be avoided if families would plan their budgets and buying habits in such a way as to "make ends meet" under the changed conditions. Family bread-earners should sit down and make some simple calculations which will consider such problems as the following: How many of the ordinary comforts will we have to forego in order to free sufficient funds for the new taxes? Remember your income taxes will be some four or five times as high as those last year. Moreover millions of new families will be added to the list of income tax payers. Other taxes too will be much higher.

In addition, the rising prices will take another severe dig into your income.

The housewife should also study common food values so as to be able to make suitable substitutes in order to maintain healthy diets. The governments of Europe have conducted extensive educational campaigns to instruct the people in how to choose wisely in cheaper foods. We shall probably witness a similar campaign in this country in the near future, although we, of course, face no such food shortages as Europe is experiencing. Yet for the millions of families in the fixed and low-income group, the higher prices will compel a readjustment in diet habits, for which most of them are unprepared to make wise and practical choices.

In all these matters it will be the family with foresight, the family that can develop an intelligent program for living under the new and changed conditions, that will be better prepared to make the sacrifices that the war will demand of us.

Americans Are Lucky!

SUPPOSE the mythical man from Mars came up to you some day and asked you if you were an American. You'd say "Yes," of course. Then suppose he asked you another question:

"What is an American?"

Perhaps your answer would be something like this—or maybe you can improve on it:

"I'm an American," you'd say. "When I hear an airplane, I don't look for the nearest bombproof shelter. I know that it's carrying people and goods for the purposes of peacetime progress."

"I'm an American. I know that my newspaper and my radio will give me a fair picture of what's happening in the world, to the best of their ability."

"I send my children to a school where the teachers aren't merely vassals of the State—where the facts that are taught my children help to make them better, more intelligent citizens."

"I'm an American. I can talk freely with my friends, expressing my own opinions on both political and non-political subjects, without the fear that there are spies who listen to my every word and then report it to some high and secret tribunal."

You'd probably say these things and many more besides. And saying them would, in these troubled times, make you realize something else, so that you'd come to say just one thing more:

"I'm a lucky individual. I'm an American!"

My Week
by Eleanor Roosevelt

DISQUIETING LETTER
I have just received a letter which, in itself, would not be so significant, but taken together with various other reports reaching me, is very disquieting. I am quoting it here approximately as it is written, changing only such things as might identify the writer.

"Several years ago, like many others, my family suffered financial reverses and we accepted FERA work, but not relief. I have supported my mother, who is a chronic invalid, and assisted my father through wages received through WPA work. From December, 1938, to May, 1941, I was fortunate to be on the administrative staff, first as a stenographer and later as an occupational interviewer, receiving when I left, $1,440 a year.

"My record for this period had been excellent. I was dropped from payrolls through no fault of my own, and was thankful that I had been permitted to hold the job as long as I had. I desired to try my luck in private industry.

WPA WORK HISTORY
"I started June 1, making a tour of every agency handling stenographic, clerical and typing positions. The interviewers show their interest in my appearance, my ability to operate a typewriter, stenography and my ambition to continue college, even if it meant working at night; yet they are sorry they can do nothing for me because I have worked for the Works Progress Administration, and I will not lie about my work history. . . . I am 26 years of age, of good parentage, have good training, good educational background, am attending Columbia with money saved over a period of five years in order to learn stenography, and yet I can not get a job in New York city unless I lie, because I worked on WPA."

A similar picture is fairly true in other parts of the country. While this is not a universal experience, there are still enough employers who have this attitude to make it a very serious situation. Some eight and a half million Americans temporarily found work on WPA during the last six years. Their abilities and talents represent a pretty good cross-section of the American public and it seems to me very sad that any employer anywhere should not recognize that misfortune has come to people regardless of their own wishes or abilities.

FOREIGN POLICY
We all listened breathlessly when the radio from England gave us a statement of the peace aims, drawn up by the President and Mr. Winston Churchill. There was nothing new, nothing which I had not heard many times before in conversation about our foreign policy. Yet, stated this way to the people of the world, one felt it was an important moment in the history of world progress. Chairman May of the military affairs committee in the house of representatives expressed very well in his short speech which followed Senator Connally's, the feeling which many of us shared.

The radio this morning brought me the news that our two sons, Elliott and Franklin Jr., were with their father during these last days "somewhere at sea." I knew that Franklin Jr. had gone off for an undisclosed length of time to these waters, but the last I heard of Elliott was several weeks ago, when he was starting to fly over undisclosed and barren areas, and no word from that time on.

It is foolish to worry, for all of us know that whatever comes we have to meet it. Everybody has to do his job in the world, but just the same that statement on the radio that morning started me off for the rest of the day with a lighter heart.

MARSHALL FIELD
One day Mr. Marshall Field came to lunch with us, after which we went over to look at the library before he went to visit the Greenwich House camp at Lagrangeville, N. Y., which is in this county. There are not many people who take their positions on boards and various organizations as seriously as Mr. Field.

I have grown to know him better through our association on the United States Committee for Refugee Children, and constantly am impressed with the fact that he gives so much of himself. He never seems to consider that the money he has donated absolves him from a personal responsibility.

There are few young men I know, who would start out for a day in the country and remember that an organization with which they had been long connected, had a boys' camp nearby.

RURAL YOUTH GUIDANCE
Last February, there was held in Washington an Institute of Rural Youth Guidance.

I have just received a report of the proceedings and a "suggested plan of action." These pamphlets are going to be distributed by the agencies interested to those concerned with this problem in various parts of the country. I hope that many newspapers in rural areas, particularly the country weekly papers, will quote many of the recommendations.

Ira Neighbors of the Caradan Community were happily united in the holy bond of matrimony. Rev. Joe H. Frizzell of Goldthwaite officiated.

Residence Sold

Married At Mullin
Marvin Weatherby and Miss Annie Burnett drove over to Mullin Wednesday evening and were united in marriage by Rev. G. W. Templin. The many friends of the young couple were expecting the announcement of the happy event, but so secret had the date been kept, that few, if any, of their most intimate friends knew of the exact day and hour, but all join in extending wishes for the best fortune for them. Mr. and Mrs. Weatherby will make their home in North Brown Community, where they have a new residence just completed for them.

State Department Health Notes

Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer, calls attention to the fact that fair grounds that have been lying idle during the greater part of the year are now taking on activity as they are being made ready for fall festivities.

Community and county fairs may present many health hazards when the standards of good sanitation are not properly maintained. Civic authorities and community leaders should give careful consideration to the following suggestions which are designed to protect the health of those who visit the fair.

- 1. Any water supply available for drinking or culinary purposes on the fair grounds should be of a safe sanitary quality.
- 2. Any water found unsafe for human consumption on the grounds should be either eliminated or purified by a process recommended by the State Department of Health or should be kept posted with placards definitely warning persons against its use.
- 3. Inspect proof pit privies or water flush toilets with a system of sewage disposal approved by the State Department of Health should be provided and should be maintained in a clean and sanitary condition. Separate installations for men and for women should be provided to adequately accommodate all persons attending or using the fair grounds.
- 4. Supervision and equipment sufficient to prevent littering of the grounds with rubbish, garbage, or other refuse should be provided and maintained. Insect and rodent tight depositories for such materials should be provided and conspicuously located. These depositories and any final places of disposition should not be permitted to become foul smelling, unsightly or breeding places for vermin and rodents.
- 5. All food stuffs stored or offered for sale should be protected from contamination by suitable covers.
- 6. Single service cups, dishes, spoons and drinking straws should be protected from contamination.
- 7. All drinking beverages not bottled should be kept in sanitary containers from which the liquid may be removed only by sanitary faucets.

"Wise indeed are those communities that will give these minimum sanitary standards careful consideration in order to protect the health of those participating in community affairs or those who come to visit in their town," concludes Dr. Cox.

Further Cut In Cotton
Secretary Wickard's recent address at Waco indicates that the Department of Agriculture has in mind a further adjustment in the cotton acreage. He stated that even if the United States is able to export 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 bales annually after the war, a further reduction in production would be required.

We agree with Secretary Wickard that "this is the time of all times for the South to make further adjustments in cotton." At present there is a market for all the dairy products, the meat, vegetables, chickens, and eggs the South can grow, not only for Great Britain but our own people too. The time would seem to be made to order of the South to get its carry-over of cotton down so that when and if world markets open up after the war, we shall have our cotton business on a sound basis. Right now the world needs no more cotton. It needs food. Later we may have no such markets for food, and it will be fine if meanwhile our cotton supplies have been brought to normal so that we may go ahead and produce a fair-sized crop.—The Progressive Farmer.

TWAS A TOUGH WAR

Mr. Ickeks' threat of "gasless Sundays" has caused the Donna News-Advocate to dig up this poem of World War No. 1 days: My Tuesdays are meatless, My Wednesdays are wheatless, I am getting more eatless each day.

My home, it is heatless, My bed, it is sheetless— They're all sent to the Y.M.C.A. The bar-rooms are treatless. My coffee is sweetless, Each day I get poorer and wiser. My stockings are feetless, My trousers are seatless— Gosh, how I hate the Kaiser!

Quality LUMBER Is The ONE Unfailing GUIDE TO REAL BUILDING VALUE

The wise buyer is never fooled—The market today is flooded with countless lumber "bargains." To get business the appeal of tempting prices has been substituted for quality. You can see and feel a cut in lumber quality. The one way to be sure that you have invested your dollars wisely is to buy seasoned, dry and lumber cut from big timber—the lumber that you know has never tampered with quality.

Jimmie Head of Lometa visited relatives here the first of the week.

Supt. J. T. Owens wishes to announce that Rev. Tom Mitchell and family are expected to be here Sunday to attend the Clit Head family reunion, and asks that all his friends be present Sunday morning as we expect to hear Bro. Mitchell preach again for us at 11 o'clock.

Misses Hoting and Gilmer of Goldthwaite school were in our midst Monday checking the students summer prospects.

Again we wish to refresh the people concerning our September picnic to be held Sept. 6 at J. T. Owens' fine pasture tank celebrating Mr. Owens' 80th birthday. Everybody is invited to come and help make it a memorable day. Especially all whose birthdays come in that month are expected to let Mr. Owens know so that all their birthdays can be celebrated together.

Mrs. Carey Owens went to Lometa and took her sister, Mrs. Katie Blodgett, to Austin where they visited another sister.

Highlights Of Texas History

SMITHWICK'S NOTES ON COMANCHE LIFE

"Taking them all around they were the most peaceable community I ever lived in."

Regular readers of this column, remembering the stories recently retold here of the Council House Fight at San Antonio and the great Indian invasion of 1840, may be surprised to learn it, but the testimonial quoted above—the testimonial of a respected white man—refers to the same Comanche tribes of old Texas who played so prominent a part in those bloody events.

The witness was old Noah Smithwick, author of a book of memories called "The Evolution of a State," which is one of the most human and most popular in the Texas Collection of the University of Texas Library. And Smithwick ought to know whereof he spoke, for in 1837—"putting my life into hands red with the blood of my race," as he said—he visited the Comanches of Central Texas for three months as a Texas peace commissioner.

The Other Point Of View

During his stay Smithwick naturally learned much of the ways of Comanche life, and the more he learned the nearer he came to a true understanding of the nature of the inevitable struggle between his people and the Indians. He saw clearly that it was a struggle for subsistence by the Indians against white men whom they thought of as poachers on their inherited property and ruthless destroyers of their God-given herds. He gave that point of view perfectly in the words of an old chieftain:

"We have set up our lodges in these groves and swung our children from these boughs from time immemorial," the old chief said. "When game beats away from us we pull down our lodges and move away, leaving no trace to frighten it, and in a little while it comes back. But the white man comes and cuts down the trees, building houses and fences, and the buffaloes get frightened and leave and never come back, and the Indians are left to starve, or, if we follow the game, we trespass on their hunting grounds of other tribes and war ensues."

The Comanche At Home
 Against these white men, therefore, the Indians fought with every weapon and with every bit of cunning he could command so that he and his people might survive. But in his own tribe, he was as good a citizen that you could find, according to Smithwick. For the Comanches lived together at peace among themselves—lived according to a religion, a rigid set of common laws, and a tradition of communal co-operation that are seldom understood and appreciated by moderns.

Besides, Smithwick found, the terrifying Comanches had many little human habits to which his own people were—and are—devoted. For instance, he wrote, whenever neighboring tribes got together for a friendly visit a tremendous "bull session" soon developed at which all of the braves swapped lies most seriously. Quantily enough, too, the warriors of different tribes often insisted on carrying on these sessions in the sign language, "not seeming to understand each other's language at all, though it all sounded the same to me."

"That the Comanches were brave," Smithwick summed up, "no one who had occasion to test their courage will deny. I never knew a warrior to submit to capture; they fought to the death. On two different occasions... I saw a wounded buck lie flat on his back and fight till dead. And in spite of all that has been told of their treacherous nature, I have good reason for asserting their claim to some noble traits of fidelity."

100 YEARS AGO IN TEXAS

"We perceive—with the exception of the Gazette of this city—that all of Gen. Houston's newspapers have dropped Anson Jones, as a candidate for Vice-President, his chance having been looked upon as worse than hopeless. We further learn from letters from the lower country, that Gen. Burleson's election is considered certain, even by all parties."

Postscript.—Next week we will pay our respects to the Gazette's attack of yesterday, upon the military order authorizing the people of Victoria to defend themselves, against the kidnapers, abductors and murderers of our western citizens. The editor of the Gazette is in good company with his Matagorda co-laborer in abusing his government for repelling such outrages. Juerre: Is Col. H. Millard, the letter writer of the Gazette, the same who ran for Congress in Jefferson County, and received two votes, and one of them his own? If so, he is a sagacious observer of public sentiment!—The Texas Centinel (Austin), Aug. 5, 1841.

FIESTA COMMEMORATES RECONQUEST

SANTA FE, N. M.—The Santa Fe Fiesta, the oldest community celebration in the United States, observed this year August 30 to September 1, commemorates the reconquest of ancient Santa Fe, the historic capital of New Mexico, by General Don Diego de Vargas Zapata Lujan, in 1692, following the bloody Pueblo Indian rebellion of 1680 and twelve years of Indian occupation. The above scenes typical of last year's celebration are: Conquistadores enter the city; de Vargas kneels in the Plaza in front of the Governor's palace giving thanks for the reconquest of New Mexico; Children's colorful costume and pet show winds thru the Plaza; strolling minstrels participate in the Fiesta season. In circle: Zozobra (Dull Care) is burned in effigy as a climax of fireworks display as night falls on the first day. The Fiesta ends the third day with the gay and beautiful El Baile de los Conquistadores (Ball of the Conquerors.)
