Gov. Jester Dies At Houston Early Monday Morning; Buried Wednesday

BEAUFORD H. JESTER

Gov. Beauford H. Jester, 56, first Texas Governor to die while in office, was found dead at 7:30 Monday morning in a Pullman car, as the porter was attempting to awaken him.

Gov. Jester was on the way from Austin to Galveston to recuperate from overwork during the session of the Legislature, which had adjourned the Wednesday before. The body lay in state in the Senate Chamber in Austin Tuesday and was taken to his home town, Corsicana, for burial Wednesday.

Gov. Jester was well known in Mills County. He made the principal address here at the Buffalo Barbecue and Free Rodeo celebration held on May 8, 1946 to honor returning World War II veterans of Mills County.

Gov. Jester left Austin before midnight Sunday night, accompanied by a bodyguard of state highway patrolmen. He was to spend several days in Houston and Galveston on a vacation, and to complete what he called a "secret mission."

Jester a week ago had suffered an attack of food poisoning and was confined to the mansion for most of the day.

Saturday he worked during the day on legislation piled up on his desk as a result of the 51st legislature's final adjournment.

Jester was named to the executive board of the National Governor's Conference at its recent meeting at Colorado Springs, Colo. The board is comprised of nine governors. He acted as chairman in 1948 of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

The flag of Texas was lowered to half-staff at the capitol following notification of Jester's death.

ALLAN SHIVERS

Jester was a leader in the fight to retain states' title to the tidelands, and although espousing President Truman's civil rights program, insisted that the social changes should be worked out by the states.

Allan Shivers will succeed Gov. Beauford Jester as the 38th chief executive of the state and will give Texas one of its youngest governors in history.

He will be succeeded in the number two spot of the state's official family by Sen. G. C. Morris of Greenville.

Morris, elected present pro tempore of the Senate last week will become acting lieutenant governor.

Shivers, tall, lean and impeccably dressed, is 41.

Politically, he became known when at 28 he was first elected to the State Senate.

Four years earlier, in 1931, he had been admitted to the bar. By the time he was 39, he was dean of the Senate from the standpoint of service.

In 1946, campaigning with Jester, he was elected lieutenant governor.

He was re-elected last year to the same office.

His bid for election as governor in the next campaign was considered a virtual certainty.

As presiding officer of the Senate, Shivers ran the upper chamber with a calm, business-like hand on the gravel.

He was born on an East Texas farm near Woodville in Tyler county Oct. 5, 1907, where members of his family had lived for some 100 years.

REGULAR MEETING OF JAYCEES AT THE HANGAR TUESDAY

Regular second Tuesday night meeting of the Goldthwaite Junior Chamber of Commerce was held at The Hangar Tuesday night, with newly-installed officers: Jesse Saegert, president; Jesse Saegert, president; and Glen Collier secretary—presiding.

After the chicken dinner, President Saegert asked the same co-operation of the members with present officers as the old officers had received, and mentioned achievements of the Jaycees since their organization here a year ago.

The meeting adjourned early so those present could attend the baseball game at Municipal Park.

Mrs. Callie Shaw Honored On Her 92nd Birthday

MRS. CALLIE SHAW

On July Fourth, the children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and great-great-grandchildren and friends assembled in the large pecan grove on the south side of Bulls Creek on the John Parker place for an all day celebration of Grandmother Shaw's 92nd birthday.

It has been the custom for several years of the Shaw children and their friends to set aside the 4th of July to celebrate Grandmother Shaw's birthday.

It is fitting that the celebration is always held on the John Parker place, as it was on this place that Mrs. Shaw reared her family and here she shared some of life's greatest joys and sorrows. It was here that she lost her husband, Mr. Taylor Shaw, who died on Jan. 13, 1909, and was laid to rest in the Mohler Cemetery which is located on a knoll overlooking the old homestead. In this peaceful old cemetery is also buried a daughter, son, and several grandchildren of Mrs. Shaw's.

Guests began to arrive early for the celebration and the morning was spent in exchanging greetings. At noon a feast fit for a queen was spread on the long table under the trees. After lunch Bro. Simpson, pastor of the Goldthwaite Church of Christ, paid a tribute to Grandmother Shaw as a good Christian mother. This was a very fitting tribute, as Mrs. Shaw has been a Christian Mother for more than 75 years. She obeyed the gospel and was baptized in the Colorado River at Shaw Bend in 1874 by a Bro. Beard. Others who paid tribute to Mrs. Shaw were Carter Mohler, Brian Smith, Mrs. Mohler Oglesby, and Mrs. Claude Eacott.

Callie Brown was born July 6, 1857, in the Shaw Bend community in San Saba County, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mat Brown. She was the eighth child in a family of nine children, and in all of her 92 years, she has never lived more than 20 miles from San Saba Peak, which is a well-known landmark.

Aunt Callie, as she is affectionally known here and in San Saba County, has all of the fine qualities that we so much admire in the Frontier Woman.

Aunt Callie was born in the unprotected frontier, with no shelter but the crude log cabin where the winds whistled, Indians yelled, wolves howled, and mobs roamed.

Soon Aunt Callie adapted herself to the rugged environments of pioneer life and before she was 7 years old her hands were familiar with toil, and she grew up with the country, exposed to all the dangers and hardships incident to the frontier period. But, be it said to her honor, that in her humble home and with few advantages she did her part well. Through all the tragic scenes of her life there was burning like a lamp her pure and stainless Christian faith which has molded her personality into the grand person as we know her today.

And it is fitting that her children, 40 grandchildren, 55 great-grandchildren, five great-great-grandchildren and friends salute her on her 92nd birthday.

EARLY AREA HISTORY—Following are some stories of early area history as told by Mrs. Shaw to Brian Smith. Mrs. Shaw is the oldest woman still living who was born in San Saba County and has been so honored at the Old Settlers Reunion at San Saba for a number of years; and she will be so recognized at the coming San Saba County Pioneers Reunion at San Saba in August.

About Forty Per Cent Anthrax Quarantine To Be Released Sunday Night

By order of Dr. J. S. King of the Texas Livestock Sanitary Commission, about 40 per cent of the area put under livestock anthrax quarantine three weeks ago in the western and southern part of Mills County will be released from the quarantine at 12 o'clock next Sunday night, unless further outbreak of the disease occurs.

Guards who have been patrolling all the area for three weeks, were taken off at noon, Tuesday.

Vaccination of livestock has been completed in all the area, Bruce Burnett, who lost eight head of livestock, estimated a total loss to anthrax in the area of about 75 head, valued at around $150 per head. The cost of vaccination where it is done yearly is 15 cents per head. However, during an epidemic, serum and vaccine both are used at a cost of about $2.50 per head. Where cattle were sick with the disease, in some cases $20 to $30 worth of serum was used on a cow to try to save her.

Stockmen in the area expect to vaccinate every year for several years to kill out the anthrax germ.

The following area will still be under quarantine:

Beginning at the old Burdette place at edge of town on San Saba Highway, following highway to The Hangar; thence west on old Goehner road to crossroad, thence south to old Big Valley school house; thence east to Page's Milling Station, following highway to Colorado River bridge; down Colorado River to Mills-Lampasas County line; following Mills-Lampasas County line to Highway No. 284; following highway northwest direction to the old Henry Cryer place; thence west to a point of beginning.

All rest of quarantined area will be released from Anthrax quarantine for movement of livestock at 12 o'clock Sunday night, unless new outbreak occurs. Area above left under quarantine will be patrolled, with no movement of livestock in or out of the area permitted by the Texas Livestock Sanitary Commission, who ordered the quarantine established three weeks ago.

Final Consolidation Of Mills County Schools At County Board Meeting

At its regular meeting the County Board of School Trustees on June 6th, among other business:

Consolidated Center Point School District No. 1 with Mullin Independent and Goldthwaite Independent.

The District was granted by an order of the Commissioners' Court as the District No. 1 of Mills County in 1887 and was named Hunt School. Shortly after its organization the name was changed to Miller Grove, later on it was consolidated with Picken Springs and Old Williams' Ranch, which was also organized at the time that the District No. 1, and was numbered No. 2 and has the distinction of being the only District in the County that had two schools in its district, No. 1 White and No. 2 Colored.

At the time this district was consolidated and named Center Point, it was required to have 7 trustees, and continued to elect 7 trustees up to the present, 6 of which were present, to see that the district was consolidated. This group of men are some of the finest public spirited citizens of Mills County, and will prove to be valuable supporters to the school to which their part of the District was consolidated. Emanuel Shelton had been chosen by the board as their spokesman, not that he is older than the rest, only that he has probably been there longer than they. There has been some other splendid personnel that served long periods on their board and worked to make Center Point a choice place in which to live. A few that have passed on might be mentioned: J. D. Fallon, J. M. Spinks, Uncle Joe Jones, Uncle Dave Morris and others. R. A. Martin is still in the Community and active.

As this brings the Schools of Mills County, to Four which has been predicted, by far seeing School people for several years. It is believed that the Foundation Program is the beginning of a great advancement in the Texas School System, whereby Texas will be ranked as one of the leading states in education, which should be.

be used as a community center, and place for Public worship for the community, and will have three custodians to care for the buildings.

On Thursday of last week, County Supt. L. B. Porter and the four School Superintendents, namely H. E. Patton, Goldthwaite Superintendent; Wray B. Williams, Mullin's Superintendent, T. M. Cash, Superintendent of Priddy School, Le Roy Beard, Supt. of Star Independent School, attended a Zone meeting of the Foundation Program for Texas Schools at Eastland, Texas, and report the program well attended by Superintendents and teachers from several Counties, and that all gained more knowledge with reference to the Administration of school under the new program, as a result of the New School Laws known as the Gilmer-Aiken Law.

County Judge L. B. Porter was in Austin the early part of this week on business pertaining to the New School laws.

It met with committees from the Lone Star Gas Company who had their engineer here making estimates with the Court on the matter of furnishing Natural Gas, also presented easements for the Courts consideration relative to the lines to be laid across the County.

Most Texans Want More Industries In Their Home Communities Now

By JOE BELDEN
Director, The Texas Poll
Austin, Texas, July 12—Most Texans would put their stamp of approval on a tax-financed advertising program to attract new industries into the state.

A statewide survey by The Texas Poll shows that nearly everybody is sold on the benefits that come from industry. And about six out of every ten adults would be willing to empower the Legislature to spend tax money in order to bring new industries into Texas.

Thirty nine states now spend varying amounts of tax money on advertising and publicity to attract industries, tourists, and permanent residents. Some of them publish their own magazines. Others buy advertisements in national magazines and newspapers, sponsor radio programs and movies, and engage in a wide range of publicity.

In Texas, the spending of state money for such purposes is forbidden by the constitution. Some cities, however, have started advertising programs of their own. Most of these are financed by donations from business men who want to see their cities grow.

The question of amending the constitution to authorize a state-coordinated advertising program has often been discussed, but no serious efforts have been made in that direction during recent years.

The public, nevertheless, favors a state-financed advertising campaign. This is indicated by the answers of a cross section of the adult population to the following questions:

"In the long run, do you think people around here would be better off, or worse off, if more industries and factories were better off . . . 92%
Better off . . . 91%
Worse off . . . 3
No difference . . . 1
No opinion . . . 4

100%
"Some people want the Legislature to be able to spend tax money on an advertising campaign to bring new industries into Texas. Do you think this is a good idea, or not?"

Good idea . . . 59%
Not such a good idea . . . 28%
No opinion . . . 13%

The benefits to be derived from new industries are widely recognized. People in all parts of Texas, in big cities and in small towns, welcome new industries primarily because of the increased employment and payrolls they would bring. Some people point out, too, that new industries would help to bear the tax burden and might make certain products available at lower prices.

Persons who don't welcome new industries to their communities think they would bring congested living, slums, union leaders and strikes. A lawyer in Matador summed up his views as follows: "Financially, we might be better off, yes; but socially and morally, no." A Houston teacher expressed the same fear, but in different words: "More industry would create more congestion, disease, pestilence, and violence."

Two of the most highly industrialized states—New York and Pennsylvania—provide their tax-financed publicity divisions with the most amount of money to spend. Each spends $400,000 or more per year.

Sylvester Says:

"You, too, may get back nothing but buttons— if you put your faith in government bureaus instead of looking out for your own future needs."

More than half (51.4%) of the families in the U. S. haven't waited for a Federal housing agency to build them a home. They own their own. In fact, since the war began there has been an increase of 25% in home ownership.

A year ago, in 1947 for example, two million two hundred thousand people bought homes at an average price of $7500-$8500. 880,000 of these homes were purchased by veterans. Over 4/5 of a million of these new home owners earned less than $3000. per year.

Better Control of Farm Dogs Sought

The answer to sheep and poultry killings by roaming dogs lies largely with the farmers themselves, in the opinion of Harry Miller, director of the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City.

reduced as long as farmers themselves allow their dogs to run a large night and get into bad company and habits. No farmer would think of allowing such liberties to his son or daughter, and he should not permit it to his dog or dogs.

SCALLORN

By ORA BLACK

Rev. Cloud and family came over from Brownwood Sunday in their brand new Ford where he preached to a large audience. For the past few months Rev. Cloud has had to ride the bus down to the Scallorn intersection and walk a mile or so to the church house unless some one came along and gave him a lift. So we're all rejoicing with the Clouds in their happy possession of a new car.

The revival meeting at Scallorn is scheduled to begin Friday evening, August 5th and will run through the following week. On the first Sunday which will be August 7th a home coming day is planned and we're looking forward to a great day. If you have ever lived in our community or have relatives there, plan to meet them on that day and enjoy the social and Christian fellowship.

Mrs. Webb Laughlin spent last week in Kermit visiting with a son, Baz Laughlin and family. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Laughlin and Baz Laughlin and family accompanied her home for a few days visit.

A PIONEER HOME—

The first home that Callie Brown remembers was a log house, built in 3 separate units, with one door and one window to each unit, and in the summer time they would remove the chinking from between the logs to make the house cooler and the cracks were large enough so that one could peep out through the cracks and see what was going on outside. All the furnishings were made by her father, such as bedsteads, chairs and benches, water buckets and other pails, all made from wood.

They had three large bins made from the trunks of large trees hollowed out; one was for meal, one for lard, and one for the homemade soap. Their father also made all the shoes for the family out of home-tanned leather; all their clothing was made of either homespun wool or cotton and was dyed with a homemade dye made from elm bark, walnut leaves or a red rock that was found plentifully in creek bottoms. All cooking was done on the fireplace. Fresh meat was mostly wild game, but when they killed a beef they used only the hindquarters and left the rest.

They made all their soap and washing was done on a homemade rubboard made of cottonwood timber and the grooves chiseled out. They had no sugar—all the sweetening was done with wild honey. They milked about ten cows, but they did not give much milk in those days, as the cows were the long-horn breed. They kept a few sheep to furnish wool for clothing and in the winter time the menfolks would go west and kill buffalo meat. The first coffee Callie ever saw was "Abe Lincoln" brand.

They hauled their corn by ox-wagon to San Saba to have it ground into meal and raised their own tobacco, and when Callie was a small child she would watch the menfolks take a handful of the tobacco leaves and chew them; so one day she decided to chew some and her grandmother told her to go and get some chips to cook with and when Callie got out in the yard she was so sick she fell down and could not get up. In that day and time when a lady smoked she would smoke a clay pipe.

Whiskey was a standard household item and it was used as a medicine.

There was a Dr. Mauldin living on Elliot's Creek. Jim Mauldin lived in Shaw Bend. Berli Nabors lived on Nabors Creek and a Mr. Prescott lived on Prescott Creek. Settlers always located near water and all the creeks had lots of springs. In those days most families carried water by hand and it was a big job to get in night water.

Callie Brown's mother died when she was small and her Grandmother Brown lived with the family and helped raise the children. Grandmother Brown lived to be 104 years old and fell off the porch in San Saba and broke her arm and died.

The Brown family moved several times, living first on one side of the Colorado River, then on the other. When Callie was about 15 years old, the family was living on the east side of the river near Elliott's Creek and Callie was to be married. On the appointed day a large crowd gathered at the Brown home and rode horse-back to Shaw Bend Community for the wedding. The riders forded the river on horse back and the wedding took place under a large pecan tree on the banks of the river in Shaw Bend Community. The tree is still standing. Callie Brown was married to Taylor Shaw on Sunday, July 6, 1873. This was the bride's 16th birthday and the groom was 24 years old. All of the clothing was home-made.

The first mill woven cloth that Callie ever saw was brought to the Brown home by a ped-ler named Murray, who was later a banker at San Saba. He was traveling in a two-ox cart and his stock of goods consisted of two bolts of calico, and all the women had a dress off the same pattern of calico—after he had offered the calico for sale.

INDIAN RAIDS—

When Callie Brown was about six years old the family was living in a log house that their father had built in three units. The menfolks knew that the Indians were near and they had gone to try and drive the Indians away, and left the women and three small children by themselves. That afternoon a mare came up a-snoiting, which was a signal that the Indians were near. That night just after dark, while they were eating their supper by the light of a grease lamp, the dogs began to bark. Callie looked out of a crack between the logs and saw an Indian dart behind a tree. They put out the light and slipped in to another unit of the house which they thought would be safer. Callie's older sister, Pet Brown, barred the door and window and got her rifle and pistol and intended to hold the fort if the Indians attacked. She pulled up a board in the floor and told her grandmother to take the small children and get under the floor when the Indians attacked and she would try and keep them out of the house. The moon was shining bright and Callie kept watch and could see the Indians as they moved from tree to tree, and she would report to Pet, who stood guard with the rifle and pistol. All this time the dogs kept charging the Indians and after a long time the moon went down and the Indians left. But Callie and her sister Pet kept watch all night.

Another time the Indians made a raid and got most of the family's horses. In the bunch of horses was a mare with a small colt and in the excitement of rushing the horses out of the lot the colt was left in the lot; the mare kept neighing for her colt, so the Indians killed the mare and feasted on horsemeat.

The Browns had an old horse named "Honest John." He got the name because the Indians stole him three times and he always came back.

The Browns had a dun horse that was a good saddle horse, that is if you were a good enough rider to ride him. He would always try to buck his rider off when he was first mounted. One bright moonlight night there was a lot of racket out at the horse lot; the Indians had this dun horse hemmed up in a corner of the lot and were trying to catch him. The menfolks drove the Indians away. Callie said she was sorry the Indians didn't catch the horse, as she would like to have seen the Indian try to ride him bare-back.

Callie recalled one time Sanford Hufstutler and old Nigger Dick were in a wagon near San Saba Peak when Sanford discovered Indians parading in a circle. He was sure that they had killed some white person, so he stopped the wagon and unhitched the team and told the nigger that he was going to ride one of the horses and try to get close enough to the Indians and find out what had happened, and that when the nigger saw the Indians take out after him to take the other horse and head for home. Sanford said he would try and out-run the Indians. Sanford got close enough to see that the Indians had killed Charles Teague before they attacked him. Sanford's horse was able to out-run the Indians' horses and he got away. Later on Sanford Hufstutler married Pet Brown, Callie's sister.

Another time Sanford Hufstutler and other settlers were driving cattle and their horses were all wore out, so Sanford was sent home to get a bunch of fresh horses.

He went by home and rode out on the range to get the fresh horses; when he was about 300 yards from the house the Indians attacked him. He led them a merry chase and the Indians followed him to within sight of the house. When he reached the house he had been hit five times with arrows; the worst wound was in his shoulder, an other ugly wound in the leg, and three arrows in his wide leather belt.

The massacre of the Mose Jackson family happened when Callie Brown was very small, but she has heard her brother Jack Brown and Andrew Jackson—one of the captured Jackson children—rehearse the tragedy so often in the Brown home that she has a very vivid picture of what happened. That December morning in 1858, Mose Jackson and wife and four children left their home in the Jackson Springs Community to go to the Kirkpatrick home near the Pecan Bayou to gather pecans. Jackson Springs is located in the Ridge Community on the place known as the Roberts place and now owned by Albert Tully. The Jacksons are buried where they were killed. The place is now owned by Johnny Wright.

When they were about two miles from their home the Indians attacked them. This murder was the most savage and gruesome of any that occurred in this part of the country. Mose Jackson was killed first. Then Jackson's 16-year-old daughter was killed and her body mutilated. Then the Indians took the infant from Mrs. Jackson's arms and played with it for a while; pitching it up and catching it; then one Indian caught it by the feet and struck the baby's head twice on a big log in front of the mother and two children. Andrew Jackson, the 9-year-old boy, yelled at them and his mother said "Be quiet and maybe they won't kill us." Just then an Indian came up from behind Mrs. Jackson and caught her under the chin, pulling her head back and cut her throat from ear to ear. That left only Andrew Jackson and his little sister, Annie Jackson, age 5, and the Indians took the two children with them. As soon as the news of the massacre got around the settlers took up the chase. Jack Brown, Callie's brother, and Aaron Burleson were riding together searching for the Indians. After they had ridden for several days, they wanted to find some water to drink and decided to ride upon a hill and look for water. While they were searching the country-side for sign of water, Jack Brown saw something bob up and down in the sage brush about a half mile away; at first he thought it was sheep, but as he watched it he decided it could be the Jackson children, so he rode down to investigate. When he arrived at the spot where he had last seen the two objects, there was no sign of any moving object, so he called the Jackson children by name and sure enough Andrew Jackson and little Annie came from their hiding in the sage brush. The children were nearly starved. Andrew Jackson told Jack Brown that he observed every landmark they passed and that two nights before he was found he told his little sister that he would wake her after the Indians had settled down for the night and he would wake her when he would slip away from the Indians. He also told her not to cry if she got a sticker in her foot. When the Indians were asleep Andrew woke his little sister and they slipped away. The first night after walking some distance the children went in a large thicket and covered up with leaves, and when they were found Andrew was following the landmarks that he had observed while captive and was making his way back to Jackson Springs Community. The children were found in or near Comanche County, as a fight with the Indians occurred near Salt Mountain, which is located in Brown County, not far from the town of Blanket.

Later Aunt Callie knew Andrew Jackson real well, as he often visited her brother, Jack Brown. Andrew afterwards said that Jack Brown seemed like a father to him. The last time Aunt Callie met Andrew Jackson was at an Old Settlers Reunion at San Saba in the late 90's. Jackson Springs are on the old Roberts place which is now owned by Albert Tully and the Jackson family are buried on the place where the massacre occurred. The place is now owned by Johnny Wright.

Aunt Callie recalls when the Indians raided Hanna Valley on March 9, 1862. The band of Indians drove off the settlers' horses. The settlers followed the Indians and overtook them near the Pecan Bayou, where a hand-to-hand encounter took place. The Indians were put to rout, but O. F. Lindsay was killed and A. J. Jones and George Robbins were wounded in the encounter.

Aunt Callie said during the mob days the settlers lived in constant fear. She also recalls the assassination of three presidents of the United States—Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. Under Main Write-Up Shaw—4

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Legislative Log-Jam Breaks as Congress Passes Reorganization Act of 1949 and General Services ("Housekeeping") Measure ... CITIZENS COMMITTEE Continues Drive for Tydings Act for Unification and $1-billion-a year Economies in Army, Navy, and Air Force ... Post Office, Personnel, and Budgeting Proposals Move Into Foreground.

In today's fast-moving legislative situation one fact stands out: Hoover Report Bills have made more real progress in this session of Congress than any observer would have dared to dream six months ago.

Last month, Reorganization News, reviewing the first 10 Bills to be sent to Congress, said: "One has passed, four are showing signs of life, and five await introduction." As of today, four Bills have been enacted into law, a fifth is nearing passage, three more are showing signs of life, and 13 others have been introduced.

This simple statement highlights the results which informed public opinion can achieve. At the same time it shows the magnitude of the job ahead.

In a special message to all members of the CITIZENS COMMITTEE, Chairman Robert L. Johnson urged redoubled attention to the Tydings Bill for strengthened unification and economy in the armed services. "We know that the Tydings Bill can pass," Dr. Johnson said. "The odds were heavily against it just four weeks ago. Today it is nearing a vote in the House. You, as citizens, have shown what can be done when public opinion is expressed on nonpartisan lines. Let us redouble our support of this vital measure."

The four Bills now enacted include: (1) The key Reorganization Act of 1949 (2) the State Department reorganization measure reported in the June issue of "Reorganization News" (3) a measure creating an Under Secretary of Defense and (4) the law creating an Office of General Service to consolidate purchasing, supply, records, building, and other "housekeeping" functions of government.

Nearing passage is the vital Tydings Bill (S. 1843) for strengthening unification of the armed services with probable economies of at least $1 billion a year. Based largely on Hoover Commission recommendations, endorsed by President Truman, the late Defense Secretary Forrestal, the present Secretary Louis Johnson, Air Secretary Symington, and many others, this Bill passed the Senate without a dissenting vote.

Then it bogged down in the House. At one point Chairman Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee stated that the Bill would remain in Committee throughout the current session.

N. B. If the Tydings Bill Passes, it can safely be said that a substantial proportion of the Hoover Commission recommendations—in terms of dollar savings, at least—will have been enacted at this session of Congress.

As the Citizens Committee pointed out, this measure "has wider implications than the average citizen realizes." It "opens the door to an efficient, business-like system of Federal property management." In the field of purchasing alone, it offers potential economies of $250,000,000 a year. Untold millions can be saved by reducing and consolidating federal inventories of approximately $27 billions (an estimate since no one agency or bureau has any comprehensive information on them).

Under the Act, the government need no longer spend over $10 to execute a purchase order when half its purchases are for less than $10. It need no longer cherish the equivalent of six Pentagon Buildings full of records and documents, most of them worthless. It can cut down the $200,000,000-a-year cost of rents and utility services.

DON'T WALK YOURSELF TO DEATH

A total of 10,300 pedestrians literally walked themselves to death in America in 1947.

This is shown in the 1948 edition of "Accident Facts," statistical yearbook of the National Safety Council.

Pedestrians killed in traffic accidents last year accounted for almost one-third of the 32,300 total traffic deaths. And the Council estimates that approximately 220,000 more pedestrians suffered non-fatal injuries.

Why Church Music?

Lesson for July 17, 1949

WHY church music? Hymn books are expensive, learning new hymns is a bother, choirs are a lot of trouble. Most preachers need more time for their sermons; why not cut out the music and let them have fifteen minutes extra? No sir; it won't do. Say what you please, the average church-goer knows better than that. He may never have thought it out and he might not have heard of the word "hymnology," but Mr. Average Churchman likes music in the church, even if he never opens his mouth himself.

Our familiar "Holy, Holy, Holy," was written for use in an early morning service; "Bread of the world" was written as a Communion hymn; "Break Thou the Bread of Life" while often used at Communion was no so intended, as you can tell by reading it carefully; it was meant for use just before the reading of the Scripture.

"Day is Dying in the West" is best used in an out-door service. "Ivory Palaces" was written one Sunday afternoon in North Carolina for use in an evangelistic meeting that night. It might interest you to leaf through your own hymnal and see how many hymns were written purposely for church use.

THREE liturgical Psalms are our lesson selection. Use your imagination when you read them. As you read Psalm 24, think of a great procession marching through the streets of Jerusalem on a holy day and approaching the tall temple shining on the city's highest hill. Singing as they climb, perhaps one part of the congregation sings the question: "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? Who shall stand in his holy place?" Perhaps another group of voices takes up the answer: "He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart..." As the great gates swing open, the chant rises: "Lift up your heads, O ye gates!" for the King of Kings, the Lord of Lords, is marching.

The little kings (in Israel and over the world) have come and gone; only the Lord of Hosts is the King of Glory. Singing the glory of God brings it before the mind far better than reading about it in a book!

Then the 84th Psalm is taken from what they called the "Chief Musician's Collection," evidently a part of what we now would call the choir library. It is the song of a man who loves the church and loves the people whom he finds there. Psalm 93:1-7b is also obviously a song for public worship, and still is sung every morning in churches around the world.

IF in ancient times when God's people were learning to sing, the noblest poems of inspired men were set to the best music available and used for the honor of God and the help of man, then surely Christians ought to do no less.

If you had a friend coming to see you, one whom you respect and wish to honor, you certainly would not set the table with all the chipped-up old kitchen china and you wouldn't put wilted flowers on the table and you certainly wouldn't keep the radio tuned to the tin-pianest trash you could find on the dial.

No, if you have anything for him you want it to be of the very best. Why not so with God? The house of God is no place for cheap, bad music, jingly meaningless rhymes instead of noble hymns and psalms, tiresome grind-organ tunes or jazzy swing stuff instead of music that has real power and beauty. If nonsense is bad in a sermon, it is worse in a prayer and worst of all in a hymn. If mere noise is bad in a sermon, it is worse in a prayer and unbearably bad in a hymn.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 17.

The Golden Text is: "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent" (John 17:3).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ" (I John 1:3).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is without beginning and without end. Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of Life, and time is no part of eternity" (page 468).

Our worth is determined by the good deeds we do, rather than by the fine emotions we feel.—E. L. Morgan.

I have always thought the actions of men the best preterers of their thoughts.

The talent of success is doing more than doing what can do well; and doing whatever you do, without thought of fame.—Longfellow

Weekly Swing of SOUTHWEST FARM MARKETS

Steady to higher southwest livestock prices were offset by declines on cotton, some grains and many fruits and vegetables during the past week, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration reports.
 Wheat advanced 10 cents a bushel since last Thursday, as barley gained 7 to 8 cents, and white corn 1-2 to 5 1-2 cents. Milo declined 5 cents a hundred pounds. No. 1 hard wheat closed Monday at $2.20 to $2.30, and No. 2 milo $2.05 to $2.20.
 Cotton declined 25 cents to $1.50 a bale for the week. Spot middling 15/16 inch closed Monday at 31.50 cents a pound at Dallas and Galveston.
 Sheep and lambs sold unchanged to a little higher than a week ago. Greatest gain was at San Antonio, where goats also sold steady to strong for the week. Wool and mohair trading was slow in the southwest.

Hogs found active demand at southwest markets Monday. Prices averaged 50 cents to $1 higher than a week before at Denver and San Antonio, and unchanged to slightly higher at Fort Worth and Oklahoma City. Top hogs reached $21.50 at Texas markets.

Cattle trade was slow at Fort Worth Monday, slow to moderately active at Denver and San Antonio, and active at Houston. Prices were unchanged to slightly higher than a week earlier. Good fed yearlings brought $23 to $25 at Fort Worth.

Livestock receipts last week fell moderately below those of the week before at southwest and midwest markets on all classes of livestock. Twelve-market total of cattle receipts showed the only important increase over the same week last year.

Dressed pork advanced $3 to $5 a hundred at New York for the week. Veal, calf and lamb sold unchanged to $4 higher, and beef and mutton changed little.

Hot weather slowed egg and poultry trading the past week but prices showed little change. Best quality eggs sold firm, but current receipts eased as heat affected quality. Best white eggs sold at 45 to 50 a dozen, but yard eggs ranged from 37 to 40 in Texas. Fryers sold from 28 cents a pound.

BRUSH ERADICATION WORK GOING ON

Demonstration plots for eradication are located on Carothers place and Dr. Graves ranch. By applying chemical used on these brush may be eradicated one application. The chemical has been applied by air from an airplane with amount used depending on density of the brush. The poison has been very successfully used on the Flat Top at Walnut Springs, with complete kill on mesquite, Live Oak, Live Oak, and all pasture weeds.

To be successful, application must be made between the first heavy frost, the poison to be taken to the root system by the movement of the plant sap in the plant.

Wrinkling of the leaves takes place in from five (5) days, then the leaves completely die and are off within 30 days, which pasture to be seeded with grass immediately if desired.

"Please send another bottle of Liquid Garlic, also send a bottle to my sister-in-law, Mrs. Hulda C. Dutton, 45 Atwater Terrace, Springfield, Mo.

"I have some good reports to make on the effectiveness of garlic used. Mr. Turner, Texaco dealer here has taken two bottles and is much better, his blood pressure down about 60 points. Mrs. W. F. Nelson, San Benito, who was in bad shape, is also very much better and her blood pressure down considerable. This garlic works, and you are doing a fine job of producing it for the benefit of those suffering from high blood pressure or heart trouble."

A WEEK-END IN TEXAS

A respite from the legislative grind came last week with the House recessing from Thursday, June 30, over to Tuesday, July 5. That gave some of us a chance to get away from Washington for the week-end. For myself, I headed for Texas and was able to visit briefly in the district for the first time this year.

At Kerrville a massive holiday rodeo was in progress. With the stands packed to overflowing on Saturday night, I enjoyed about as good a rodeo as you will see anywhere in the country. There was never a dull moment and the weather was ideal. It was that afternoon that scores of visiting doctors had come to Kerrville to inspect the new Sid Peterson Memorial Hospital—one of the finest in the whole country. My hosts at the rodeo that evening were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Meredith. Mrs. Estelle M. Gregg, the new Superintendent of Nurses, went along to see her very first rodeo performance. She had just arrived in Texas to take over her new duties. After viewing the daredevil performances and watching an ambulance take the only cowboy casualty of the evening, with a broken arm, away she remarked: "Now I understand why you have such need for hospitals in this part of the country."

Then, on the following afternoon, the 53-bed ultra-modern hospital was formally dedicated with 2,000 Hill Country citizens in attendance. It was indeed a memorable occasion. The ceremony was presided over by Hon. W. A. Fawcett. Mr. Ed Martin, the Administrator of the hospital, introduced the medical staff and Mr. Fawcett presented Mrs. Sid Peterson, widow of the late Sid Peterson, Hal and Charlie Peterson, Joe Sid Peterson, and their families, and also the Board of Trustees and the Advisory Board of the new Memorial Hospital.

The principal address was given by Dr. Sam E. Thompson who, in his usual inimitable manner, paid high tribute to the late Sid Peterson and to the sons who chose a million-dollar memorial hospital as a means of perpetuating the name and memory of their distinguished father.

At the invitation of Bill Petmucky and the Chamber of Commerce then, on Sunday evening, I was in Fredericksburg for the race meet and the Peach Festival, and had the very pleasant honor of crowning the Peach Queen—the beautiful and charming Miss Anna Marie Lindig. The peach industry has come a long way in Gillespie and surrounding counties and promises to be a vital factor in the economy of that area in the future.

The problem of marketing a perishable crop such as peaches has always been a tough one for individual producers. An individual grower is at the mercy of the vagaries of seasonal markets. But that problem is to a considerable extent solved by the facilities of the Hill Country Cooperative, a non-profit sharing corporation to which practically all growers belong. Without that cooperative arrangement, the industry would be in constant difficulties.

Texas would do well to insist upon Texas-grown peaches and should exert themselves to support and encourage the growing of this type of fruit. In that area can be found a variety of types—the Elberta, Hale, Frank, Mayflower, Red Bird, Mamie Ross, Early Wheeler, Comal Cling; the Golden Jubilee, New Elberta, Hale Haven, and others. They are tree-ripened and through the Coop can be put on the tables of most Texas homes within 24 hours after they are picked. Let's all insist upon Texas-grown peaches when we buy!

After spending Sunday night with the Walter McKays at Fredericksburg, the morning of July 4, we drove up to Brady for the annual Brady Jubilee and race meet. I had the privilege of addressing a very fine audience at Richards Park that morning and, along with my wife and daughter enjoyed the race meet that afternoon at Brady's fine race track. There were guests of Mayor and Mrs. Earl Rudder and the Aubrey Davees. After spending the day in Brady, I returned to Washington that night.

It was certainly fine to be home for the week-end and to see and visit with so many of my friends there. The country looks wonderful after all the million dollar rains with which that area has been blessed this Spring. My regret was that time would not permit me to spend more time in the district. Because of the pressure of legislative business in the Congress, and at the suggestion of the leadership of the House, I was forced to cancel engagements at the annual REA meeting at Junction, the Soil Conservation Field Day Event at Ballinger, and the Pecan Growers Convention at San Saba. The last few weeks of a session are always filled with important votes.

To get the most from your peaches, handle them as you would eggs. Don't break them into a skillet, but pick them up and put them down as if you were afraid of breaking a shell. Also, to enjoy peaches best, don't fall off a ladder while picking them.

Up at Coalgate, Oklahoma, they think they're learning how to produce pasture good enough to fatten steers for market on grass alone, like the ranchmen do in Argentina. They are developing their native grasses (mostly bluestems) and adding some new varieties. In a test, some of the steers were accepted by Oklahoma City packer buyers.

The way to water a lawn is to give it a good soaking about once every week or ten days, and leave it alone the rest of the time. A little sprinkling every night will merely wet the top of the ground and the roots will grow shallow, making the grass susceptible to heat, drouth and cold. Deeper roots mean harder grass.

Don't cut your grass too close. About an inch and a quarter will make for good turf, if you let the cuttings fall onto the ground for humus. To help keep it green, cut it often and add some 16-20-0 fertilizer.

George Benard Shaw, the caustic wit of Ireland and England, is reported to have said "if the British can survive their meals, they can survive anything".

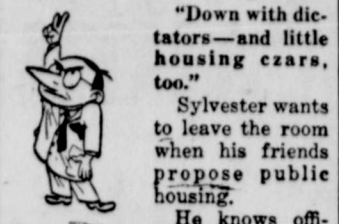

Well, the British have survived a long time on their diet of beef, etc. But on the other hand, Shaw, who is a vegetarian, has survived for nearly a century himself.

We have wondered often whether Shaw, in his long life, has had as much fun as the average meat eater has in a normal span. But we haven't wondered about it enough to experiment.

T. J. Harrell, who runs an oil mill, raises registered Hampshire hogs, and gets drafted for all sorts of thankless civic jobs in Fort Worth, found it his responsibility to procure 400 tons of sawdust to cover the grass in Farrington Field stadium for the Fort Worth Centennial show "Fiesta-Cade". It wasn't as easy as one would readily conclude. He almost had to hire a corps of whittlers from the old general store league. Even so, it was easier to find than buggy shaves.

The Hired Hand, famous WBAP character of the twenties, isn't on the air any more, but is still up to his cut ups. Last week he acquired three young buffalo for his Wise county ranch, then promptly left the state for a week, which seems like a good idea under the circumstances. Most of the people

Sylvester Says:

"Down with dictators—and little housing czars, too."
Sylvester wants to leave the room when his friends propose public housing.
He knows official reports show it costs $7, more a month to keep a family in a public housing unit than it costs to rent an average privately owned apartment or house in this country for that same family.
Why not, says Sylvester,—you can't add the payrolls for 17,000 government housing agency employees to construction costs and get a cheaper house.

Water power accounts for only five per cent of all energy produced in America.

we know who have owned buffaloes now prefer them on nickles to anywhere else.

Sylvester Says:

"Here's the plot! Now, who's home shall we build on it?"
When the Federal Government builds "public housing" it uses the same materials and the same men private industry is using now to build 5 homes a minute every eight-hour working day.
If the government takes men and material away from a home being built for your neighbor, it stops your neighbor from building his house.
If the government takes your tax money to build a house for your brother (public housing) it doesn't add a single house to the present supply. For, it must tear down your brother's old house to justify its spending of your tax money.
But if your neighbor has a good house and builds a new one, there would be two houses—one for your neighbor and one for your brother.

Sylvester Says:

"100 years is a long time to wait for a house, but by building 500,000 public housing units per year it would take the government 100 years to place every "low-income" American family in government public housing."
The average earnings of families now living in public "subsidized" housing is $2,200. There are approximately 20 million American families with incomes no higher than that.
On the basis of $2,200 a year income, more than half the families in the U. S. qualify for a home in a government housing unit.
But most American families haven't learned how helpless they are, for, according to U. S. Census figures, over one-half of our families with incomes below $1,000 per year already own their own homes.

NEW SON FOR CARTERS

An 8 1/2 pound son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dealbert T. Carter, of Center City on July 5 at 4:35 A. M. at the Smith Clinic. He has been named Bobbie Forest Carter and has three brothers and one sister. His maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Collier, and his paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Carter, all of Center City. Mrs. Carter and Bobbie Forest are doing fine and are now at home.

OF AN INCH?

Scientists Find Way to Make Extra Small Particles

Scientists working on the new Humble Esso Extra Motor Oil discovered that the addition of a special dispersive made it possible to break up the soot, sludge, varnish and dirt that the new product cleans from automobile engines, into particles as small as 38/1,000,000 of an inch in size. This, they say, is many times smaller than the smallest clearance in an automobile engine, so that the particles cleaned out of the engine by the new Esso Extra Motor Oil cannot damage moving parts. Humble station salesmen are urging customers to drain dirty, diluted oil and refill with new Esso Extra Motor Oil for extra protection.

Goldthwaite Red Sox Have Games Scheduled Tonite, Tuesday

Goldthwaite Red Sox have two games scheduled to be played at Municipal Ball Park here within the next few days with two teams that have beaten the Sox once each before this season.

Tonight (Friday) the Sox play a team from Waco made up mostly out of Baylor Cubs. This team beat the Sox here a few weeks ago.

Next Tuesday night the American Legion team of West comes here to take on the Sox. They also beat us once here.

Manager Howard Hoover announces also that on Monday night, July 25, Burnet comes here for a game. This will be the Sox' first play against Burnet.

The largest crowd to attend a ball game here this season was present Tuesday night when the Goldthwaite Red Sox took the top end of a 10 to 1 score over the Llano Niggers, a fast-playing colored team made up from Llano, San Saba and Brady players, who have been playing as a unit this year. The team seemed nervous the first inning, when Sox pitcher, Y. B. Johnson lost a ball in far center field for a home run, scoring three. They tightened up in the third and a tight game resulted.
