Inside WASHINGTON MARCH OF EVENTS

Many U.S. Embassies Suffer Shabby Housing U.S. Envoy's Quarters in Moscow 'Pig Pen'

Special to Central Press

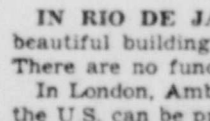

WASHINGTON—When a congressman termed the American embassy in Moscow a "pig pen," he said a mouthful whose repercussions will be heard on Capitol Hill when the legislators reconvene in January.

And when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles remarked that the objections of Rep. Patrick J. Hillings (R), California, could be applied also to the embassy in Laos, which has no plumbing, he didn't begin to tell the whole story.

In Tehran, Iran, American Ambassador Loy Henderson had to evacuate the U.S. embassy because the building had been condemned as unfit to live in. Henderson's successor, Selden Chapin, now lives in rented quarters.

In Manila, the staff of Ambassador Homer Ferguson lives in Quonset huts.

In Baghdad, Iraq, Ambassador Waldemar Gallian is embarrassed by a landlord who wants to tear the embassy down and construct an apartment building. The landlord refuses to make any repairs.

Rep. Patrick Hillings

IN RIO DE JANEIRO, Ambassador James C. Dunn occupies a beautiful building, but the exterior is sadly in need of a paint job. There are no funds for this purpose, so the building goes unpainted. In London, Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich has an embassy of which the U.S. can be proud. It's a gift to the government by Barbara Hutton. The building used prior to that was also given to the government, by J. Pierpont Morgan.

In earlier years, repeated attempts were made to get the U.S. to furnish adequate quarters in Great Britain. One of these concerned a report made to the State department in 1910 by Ambassador Joseph H. Choate.

Choate related that he was walking one bad wintry night on a London street when he was approached by a policeman.

"I say, old chap, what are you doing walking about in this beastly weather?" the London bobby asked the ambassador. "Better go home." "I have no home," replied Choate. "I am the American ambassador."

The lack of adequate quarters abroad is due in part to a practice in vogue for many years by the American government of selecting rich men to fill its top foreign posts. The ambassadors being wealthy, the government expected them to furnish quarters. In part, it's due to the failure of Congress to appropriate sufficient funds.

NOT ALL embassies abroad are sorry sights that make the American visitor redden with shame. Many beautiful structures have been erected in recent years, especially since World War II.

A handsome nine-story structure was built in Madrid at a cost of $2,500,000. The embassy residence in Tokyo is one of the nicest in the Japanese capital. In Brussels and Havana there are also modern buildings.

Between 1946 and 1952, Congress authorized the spending of $200 million for the construction of new embassy buildings. The foreign countries involved, in debt to the U.S., furnished the funds. More recently, Congress appropriated money for new buildings in Karachi and New Delhi which will cost $5 million.

The Moscow situation is in a class by itself. The United States cannot purchase property in the Russian capital and the three buildings occupied by American personnel are owned by the Soviet government. Repairs can be made only with the Soviets' permission and apparently that's difficult to get.

VIC'S . . . SOLILOQUY

Each year the oil industry devotes a week to making a comprehensive report to the American people. The occasion is known as Oil Progress Week, and its 1955 observance is taking place during this week, October 9 through 15.

It's hard to realize that the oil industry is less than a century old—the first successful well came into being at Titusville, Pennsylvania, in 1859. Few people were impressed by that achievement then. In fact, the New Brunswick driller brought in another well at about the same time—then shut it down, on the grounds that North America could support only one well.

No one ever did a more thorough job of wrong-guessing than that Canadian driller. Today 42,000 separate businesses serve American oil consumers. We produce almost 2,500,000,000 barrels of oil a year—yet, due to the effectiveness of the exploratory and pioneering operations of the industry, a barrel-and-a-quarter of oil is found for every barrel taken out of the earth. Oil was a major weapon of victory in two world wars. On the farm, in industry, and in the homes, oil has worked revolutions. And petrochemistry, oil's fast-growing baby, is enriching our living standards.

These accomplishments—unrivaled anywhere else in the world—were made under our system of free competitive enterprise. That is the true and basic significance of Oil Progress Week.

Mrs. Chas L. Stephan writes from Parker, Arizona. "Although I have not had the pleasure of meeting you personally, I know you through our beloved 'Goldthwaite Eagle.' Upon our arrival to Parker on Saturday there was our one and only home paper. We were proud indeed to get such a warm welcome from home with the Eagle and the 10:00 o'clock news from Fort Worth to keep us in touch with home and Texas."

The Stephan's, who reside at Star, recently traveled to Arizona after a visit to Mrs. Conroy in this city.

The public school opened Monday and Professor M. A. Courtwright, the principal, arrived a few days ago and has everything in readiness for the term to begin.

The friends of J. F. Head are glad to have him with them again. He is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Jas. Gray in this city and will remain here all winter.

Self Culture Club Observes Fiftieth Year Of Continuous Work

In July 1905 a group of eleven women of Goldthwaite began work on organizing a study or literary club for Goldthwaite. This was the first Women's Club in Goldthwaite and Mills County.

On September 22, 1955 the fiftieth continuous year of club work was started. The meeting was held in the Jenny Trent Dew Library and a number of the members came dressed in costumes like was worn in 1905.

Mrs. John Berry and Mrs. E. R. Bruce were hostesses for the meeting and they carried out the decor of 50 years ago with the "parlor" table covered with a Mexican drawn-work cover, the family Bible, lamp and "stereopticon views", which were all the rage in 1905.

Much merriment ensued as each guest arrived. There were several picture hats and one "Merry Widow Sailor", white flowers and black skirts and black hose.

The program for the day was a repetition of the first Bible program in 1905. Mrs. E. B. Anderson was on the first program and she again was on this program and did a fine job of the "Story of Ruth and Boaz".

Mrs. J. A. Hester was program leader and she paid tribute to the founders and also the incoming President, Mrs. C. C. Saylor, who responded in a gracious manner.

Mrs. J. M. Campbell, a member of long standing, gave "The Philosophy of Growing Old."

A delicious refreshment plate was served at the close of the program.

Mrs. Hart Shoemaker Guest Speaker At Art And Civic Club Meeting

Mrs. Marvin Hodges was hostess to the Art and Civic Club in regular meeting, Tuesday afternoon, October 4, at her home.

Conservation Service, Education Program, Fine Arts, Study, Home Program, International Study and Public Affairs.

Mrs. Shoemaker gave a very inspiring talk on "The Four Projects in the State This year."

These projects are: First-Mental Health which is being stressed over the district. Thirty three clubs discussed mental health last year and three general Mental Health Clinics were conducted.

Second—The General Achievement Project sponsors the giving Latin American Scholarships for worthy students.

QUALITY THE PRESCRIPTION PHARMACY SERVICE

IT NEVER WAS NECESSARY TO
"Enjoy" POOR HEALTH...

Many people seem to "enjoy" poor health. They would not care to be without a cupboardful of odd medicines for self-treatment—some of which may not be in keeping with competent medical advice.

The better way is to enjoy good health—by careful planning. Consult your Doctor at regular intervals, more often if required. He will prescribe only the preparations that you need—preparations of the highest quality, such as those from the laboratories of Parke, Davis & Company—prescriptions which we will be pleased to compound for you. The necessity for medication will pass, and life with abundant health can become a pleasure indeed.

Clementine Wilmeth Briley Writes From Temporary Home In El Paso

By CLEMENTINE WILMETH BRILEY

Saturday we left off most of the regular wash and went to town. A trip to town has a festive, holiday air about it that I enjoy immensely. I love to see the crowds and all the pretty things they have in the stores. We ate our dinner at Newbury's, and don't have to wash the dishes. When Granddad takes Johnny and Billy and goes to Plaza Park to watch the alligators, then Grace and I can really get around and can shop in peace.

Sunday it was cloudy, and it showered while we were at church. It rained all night that night (very slowly) Monday was a cloudy rainy day. It rained all day. Tuesday was still cloudy and rainy. After dinner it looked as if it might clear off. I took a chance and washed, but the clothes didn't get good dry. Wednesday morning the sun came out bright and beautiful again.

John and I enjoyed listening to the World Series over the kitchen radio as we washed the dishes each morning. Always for the underdog, of course we wanted the Dodgers to win. Even the maid from Juarez said, "I don't like the Yanks." I sensed that she too was for the underdog.

I got off my order for bulbs this week. It was later than I intended, but there are always complications. That yellow Chrysanthemum is just ready to burst into a thousand blooms.

A letter from Stella Reeves of Houston Monday said she watched with Opal while Mrs. Edna Dwyer underwent surgery at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute at Houston Thursday, Sept. 29. She was on the operating table 4 hrs. and 15 min. A letter from Daughter Ruth today (Oct. 5) said Opal and Austin were at Church at Beaumont Sunday night. They were returning home from Houston. Opal said her mother was now able to get along at the hospital with out her, so she would teach this week and not return to Houston until the weekend. We are all very happy that Mrs. Dwyer seems to be getting along fine.

John had a birthday Sunday. We celebrated it with a birthday dinner and a big angel food cake decorated with candles and marigolds. We all sang Happy Birthday.

When John was a small lad he would always say his birthday was October and second. So his cousins at Dallas always write him on his birthday and put on the letter "October and Second." This time his Cousin Bessie wrote him a long letter and told him all about the kin.

When Bessie's father, Uncle Bill Briley, left Kentucky and came to Mesquite in Dallas County, he rented some land from a man he knew in Kentucky (Mr. Carpenter). He put the land in cultivation and raised cotton on it till he made enough money to buy himself a blackland farm. His son, Harry, took over the Carpenter place in the course of time Harry made enough to buy himself a blackland farm, but he still rented and lived on the Carpenter place. By 1946 the City of Dallas was jam up against the place. Harry got an inkling that an International Highway was coming across it, so he went to Kentucky and bargained with the Carpenter heirs to buy the place for $180 per acre. Bessie said the right-of-way took 17 acres and paid him as much as he paid for all the land. The first Sunday in August, Bessie said, Harry and Pink celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. It was a very nice affair and Harry said if the next 50 years were as easy as this 50 had been, he didn't mind them. He intends to sell all of the land but five acres on which he plans to build a nice home.

Jill had a birthday September 27. She was five. I made her a pretty pink nylon dress. It got there on her birthday, and she wore it at the party. Jan will be four December 28. Ruth said she was a little jealous of Jill and her party and all her pretty things. So Ruth said to her, "You just wait till your birthday, Jan, and we will shoot the works." Jan replied, "Now, Mamma, I want a walking doll. I don't want any of that shooting stuff. You can give that to Robert."

Drought Disaster Loans Available Thru Small Business Administration

O. C. Jones, Acting Regional Director of the Small Business Administration for the Southwest area, today announced that SBA is now prepared to make drought disaster business loans in officially designated drought areas.

Under the law enacted by the last session of Congress, the Small Business Administration is given authority to make drought disaster business loans at 3 percent interest to firms able to show they actually suffered economic injury attributable to the drought.

Mr. Jones said 498 counties in the Dallas region have been officially declared as drought areas by the Secretary of Agriculture. They include all counties in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas; 49 counties in Louisiana; 27 counties in the lower half of Mississippi and 3 counties in Alabama.

Business firms in these areas are eligible to apply for a drought disaster business loan, if they can show that their business has been injured because of drought conditions. Such presentation may be in the form of comparative operating statements, excessively large accounts receivable, a decline in sales volume because of the drought, or similar information. The loans may be made for a term of 10 years, and the proceeds must be for the most part, confined to working capital. However, refinancing of indebtedness (except bank loans) on which delinquencies are directly attributable to the drought, is permissible. No drought disaster business loans will be made for the expansion of facilities, and collateral requirements are the same as for other types of disaster loans. Loans will not be made where credit is otherwise available, nor, generally, to any business established during a drought period. Farmers and stockmen are not eligible for drought disaster business loans. They should apply to the Farmers Home Administration for assistance.

Mr. Jones emphasized that banks in the area have been invited to participate in the new drought disaster loan program. Active participation by the banks will not only help assure loan applicants of quick service, but will also greatly reduce the cost to the Government of making the loans. Banks are urged particularly to aid the Small Business Administration in disbursing and servicing the loans. Many banks have already indicated that they will cooperate in the program as a public service to their communities, helping firms hard hit by the drought to obtain credit not otherwise available, Mr. Jones said.

Businessmen eligible for a drought disaster loan should apply to their local bank, or to the nearest office of the Small Business Administration. The Dallas Regional Office of the Small Business Administration is located at 1114 Commerce Street. Branch Offices are located at: Houston, Oklahoma City, Little Rock and New Orleans.

Farm Agencies Cooperate On Soil And Water Conservation Loans

Eligible farmers and ranchers may receive financial and technical assistance through cooperating Government agencies to provide their water and soil conservation needs.

To be eligible for a soil and water conservation loan a farmer must have sufficient experience or training to indicate that he has reasonable prospects of conducting successful farming operations, and be unable to obtain the necessary credit on reasonable terms and conditions from private and cooperative sources.

Loans may be advanced to eligible applicants through the Farmers Home Administration to pay the cash cost for materials, supplies, equipment and services directly related to the application or establishment of soil conservation practices and water development such as; terraces, dikes, reservoirs, ponds, tanks, cisterns, wells, pipelines, removal of brush, sodding, sub-sodding and fencing. Also fertilizer and seed used in connection with soil conservation practice, or the establishment or improvement of permanent pasture.

The interest rate on Soil and Water loans is 4½% on the unpaid principal. The loan will be scheduled for repayment within the shortest period consistent with the ability of the borrower to pay. In no case will the repayment period exceed 20 years from the date of the first installment. All loans will be secured by the best lien obtainable on chattels or real estate to the extent necessary to adequately protect the Government's interest.

Soil and Water loans will be made to carry out only the types of soil and conservation practices that are in accord with the recommendations made by the Extension Service and the Soil Conservation Service. The borrower will be expected to comply with ASC regulations on practices designated as applicable in their respective counties.

Applicants will obtain whatever technical assistance they need from the Soil Conservation Service, Extension Service, other agencies, individuals and firms.

A three member County Committee of the FHA will certify the eligibility of applicants. Applications for Soil and Water Conservation loans will be made at the office of the Farmers Home Administration in Lampasas, Texas.

Awards in the association's annual Ad Idea and Ad Campaign contest are scheduled for the luncheon period. The winning adman or woman in each contest will receive a copper plaque with his or her name engraved thereon. Plaques are contributed by Harold Coulthart of Metro Associated Services. All entries in the contests are to be displayed following the luncheon.

"A number of this year's entries are adaptations of ideas or campaigns entered in last year's contests," Bryant commented. Display of the entries is one of the most popular features of the meeting.

McCollum, Rinehart, Cowan and Sansing will speak on the morning program. They take part in the open forum discussion scheduled for the noon sessions also. Smith's will be a part of that session.

Program chairman for year's meeting is William Berger, publisher of the Anvil-Herald. More than 100 men and women from daily and weekly newspapers have pre-registered for the convention.

You can SEE why a McCormick drill seeds more accurately

Look closely at the fluted feed on a McCormick grain drill. Notice that the feed roll turns freely on a full-length bearing. This prevents binding or wobbling—assures precision seeding even after long use. Take off one of the blades on a McCormick double-disk opener. Notice the exclusive front seed delivery. Seed is carried to the bottom of the seed trench by the movement of the disk. This guarantees even depth planting at any speed. Look closely at a McCormick drill, and you'll find dozens of little differences in design that make a big difference in accuracy, dependability, and durability. Stop in for firsthand proof of McCormick drill superiority the next time you're in town.

NEEDED—30,000 ACRES OF LE-

GUMS PLANTED THIS FALL. This figure represents the number of acres of vetch, sweet-clover, and winterpeas that needs to be planted on cropland in this portion of the district this fall.

Many landowners in the district have begun sowing cover crops with intentions of having a good cover on their land this winter. Where land has had an adequate cover rainfall is much more effective. Moisture penetration tests show that rainfall has penetrated to a depth of 40 inches under good cover as compared to a depth of only three inches under poor cover.

The supervisors of this district remind all cooperators who wish to receive federal cost-share for the cover crops they plant, to make application to the local ASC office before planting the seed. After seed and fertilizer have been purchased, the sales slip should be taken to the ASC office for reimbursement in part for the purchase.

Firestone De Luxe Champions Give You the Extra Non-Skid Protection You Need on Wet, Slippery Pavements

- BLOWOUT PROTECTION
There's no tube to pinch or explode! Inside this tire there's a Safety-Liner, which slows air loss, and reinforces the tire in the event it should be injured... instead of a dangerous blowout you get a harmless slow leak. You drive relaxed, with greater peace of mind.
- PUNCTURE PROTECTION
If a nail, or any sharp object should penetrate this tire, the Safety-Liner grips it and slows the air loss... no sudden flat tires, no need to change flats on the road, instead the Firestone De Luxe Champion Tubeless enables you to drive to the nearest service station.
- SILENT-RIDE SAFETY-GRIP TREAD
SKID PROTECTION... Newly designed silent tread has 70% more angles and skid-protecting edges.
QUIETER RUNNING... Won't squeal even on sharpest turns. No hum or whine because tread elements overlap to prevent rhythmic vibration.

Suggestions On Poultry Culling Are Offered By Ben Wormeli

COLLEGE STATION, — Culling of the oldest flock management practices used by poultrymen for maintaining high production, is less important today because of changes made in flock handling methods. Little culling, except to remove the hopelessly sick or infirm birds, would now be recommended for the first eight to ten months of production. Ben Wormeli, extension poultry husbandman, says taking a young hen from the flock just because she fails to lay for a few days is sure way to cut income.

Wormeli adds that this may seem to contradict former recommendations about culling, but he says egg producers who are most successful place the entire laying flock in a pullet at the end of each year. Thereby eliminating the job of trying to select the hens to carry over for the second year of production.

The specialist explains, culling methods have been improved to the extent that the top quality chicks have been used the resulting flock lay at a rate for eight or nine months that makes culling of healthy hens unnecessary. If a flock of top bred birds is not laying at a high rate, Wormeli says the poultryman had best do some checking on the care and management his hens have been receiving. When corrections are made, the flock should return to a satisfactory rate of lay.

The poultryman has an investment of from $1.75 to $2.25 in a pullet by the time she begins to produce. This cost, points out Wormeli, must be recovered along with the expense of keeping her in production before any profit can be realized. The replacement flock must be well bred to justify these costs.

If a hen is removed by close culling early in the laying year, she is a sure money loser because she didn't have a chance to pay off the investment. Studies are now indicating, says the specialist, that a hen may take as long as a two weeks pause and lay a profitable number of eggs before the end of the laying year. If she had been culled early, this couldn't happen.

On the other hand, Wormeli says if the hen goes out of production near the end of the laying year, she should be culled because there isn't sufficient time for her to make a recovery and produce a worthwhile number of eggs.

These studies point up the need for poultrymen to be very careful about buying only chicks for the laying flock which have the very best breeding in them, says Wormeli. Too, he says, research findings are showing there is a correlation between death losses in chicks and mortality in the flock produced from the chicks.

Know the records not only from the standpoint of eggs produced but also the weight of eggs and the mortality record of the flocks from which replacement chicks are purchased, advises Wormeli. Buy the ones which are bred to lay.

JOHN WHITE RAPS SENDING FARM SURPLUS, MACHINERY TO RUSSIA

State Agriculture Commissioner John C. White claims, in his current newsletter to citizens, strong public support for his stand in a Pleasanton speech, opposing the sending of American agriculture machinery to Russia. White also said he is opposed to marketing our surplus farm products in Russia when millions of people in the free world are hungry.

"Russia apparently is being slowed in military preparations by the failure of collective farming to produce enough food and fiber," White said. "We should give the matter some mature consideration before we aid in building up their agricultural potential. After all, food and fiber are as basic to warfare as guns and planes. Until we are certain of Russia's intentions, I think we should proceed with extreme caution."

White's view is realistic. When we were at war with Germany and Japan, no one came forward with plans to aid the Germans and the Japanese, which in turn would have aided Hitler and Hirohito in their conquests. We are engaged in a cold war with Russia, which may break into a shooting war at any time that Russia feels she can win. Communists are engaged in world conquest.

Obviously one of the compelling reasons for Russia's making peace overtures now is to gain time to quell the restlessness of her people at home. The Russian people are restive because of the shortage of consumer goods.

Are we to provide the machinery for light industry to rescue Russia before we even know what the Communists are planning?

As White said, caution is best until we know their intentions. These intentions must be proved by acts, not by propaganda.

State 4-H Dress Revue Scheduled For Saturday October Fifteenth

COLLEGE STATION, — Climaxing county and district 4-H Dress Revues, in which more than 5,000 club girls participated, the State 4-H Dress Revue on October 15 will feature 46 outstanding girls, representing the 12 Extension district in Texas.

October 15 is Rural Youth Day at the State Fair and thousands of 4-Hers leaders, parents and visitors are expected. The revue will be staged in the State Fair Auditorium at 10:00 a. m., according to Extension clothing specialists, Nena Roberson, Graham Hard, and Madeline Russell. Mrs. Jessie Southworth, fashion coordinator for Sanger Bros., will instruct the models and serve as commentator for the revue.

A highlight of the 4-H clothing program, the State Revue is actually an achievement event. Training in grooming, poise, health, clothing care, repair, and construction are a regular part of 4-H Club work. Girls aged 14 to 21, who have been 4-H members for at least three years, are eligible to participate in district and state revues. Younger members participate in county revues.

Models are scored on the construction of the garment, suitability of fabric and design, becomingness, fit choice of accessories, grooming, posture, poise, and on the record of other achievements in 4-H work. Judges for the revue are Miss Janelle Allison, Oklahoma assistant extension clothing specialist, and Mrs. Lera D. Hancock, head of the Home Economics Department of Arlington State College.

Winners of the State Revue will be awarded an all-expense trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago to participate in the National Revue. Sewing machines, steam and electric irons and a fifty-dollar certificate are among other awards offered by donors of this 4-H achievement clothing program.

Research Paces Oil's Progress

There are three reasons why America's petroleum industry has been able to supply the ever-increasing demand for energy called for by our mechanized way of life: 1, it has fearlessly invested its capital in the hazardous search for oil and gas; 2, it has steadily expanded its facilities; and 3, it has conducted endless research to find better, more efficient ways to make the oil products America needs.

Research! That's the key to the petroleum industry's progress. And the Humble Company assures itself a place of leadership in this field with two great research laboratories.

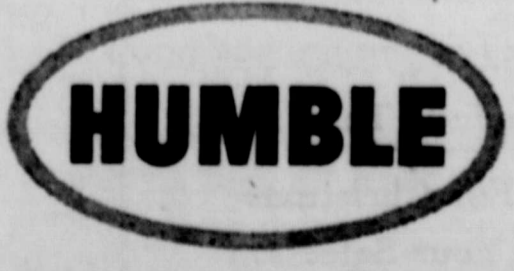

In the Humble Research Center in Houston scientists and engineers study all phases of finding, producing, and conserving oil and gas.

In the Research Laboratory at Humble's Baytown, Texas, Refinery, highly skilled technicians seek to develop new and better petroleum products, to improve those we already have, and to develop methods for making these products more efficiently.

Just as America's progress depends on oil, so oil's progress depends on research.
