Questions And Answers About Social Security

Question: My wife and I have been drawing social security for the past few years. In March of 1958 we legally adopted our grandson. I tried to get social security for him but your office advised me that he would have to be adopted three years before he would be eligible. Has there been any change on that?

Answer: Yes. Under the 1958 amendments, your adopted grandson would be eligible for payments beginning with September 1958. The previous three-year waiting period is no longer required.

Question: I operate a small business and intend to hire a man who is over 65 years of age and already drawing social security benefits. Do I have to report his earnings and pay the social security tax?

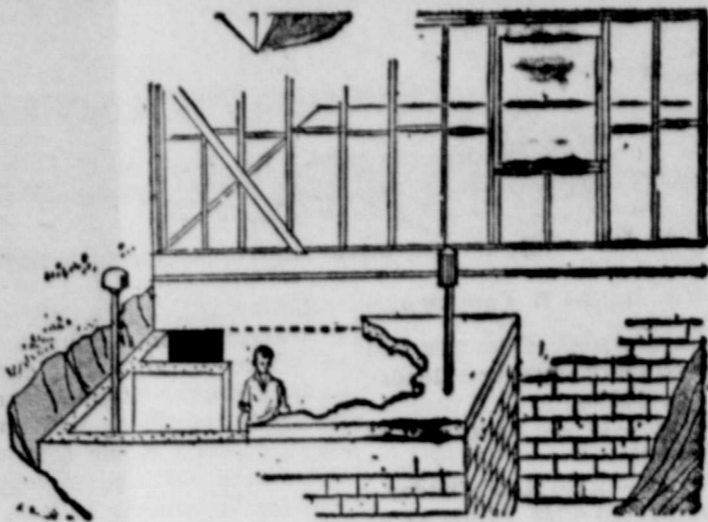

Answer: Yes, earnings must be reported and the social security tax paid on covered employment regardless of the worker's age or past work history. Additional earnings often are the basis of an increase in the benefit amount for the beneficiary even though he is already receiving social security checks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Massey and son, Jimmy, of Teague spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vic E. Koleber and Mr. and Mrs. Jess Massey.

FALLOUT SHELTER FOR A NEW HOME

For Family Protection in Nuclear War

ANOTHER type of shelter which gives excellent fallout protection can be built as an added room to the basement of a home under construction. It would add about $500 to the total cost of the home. The shelter illustrated here is based on such a room built into a new home in the Washington, D. C., area in the Spring of 1959. Important considerations for each type of shelter are: arrangement of the entrance, ventilation, radio reception and lighting. "The Family Fallout Shelter," an OGDUM publication, contains plans for five basic fallout shelters. Copies may be obtained by writing: Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Blue Thompson entertained friends over the weekend. They were Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Reed and their son, David, of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sharp of Lamesa; and Mr. and Mrs. Surgeon Volles of Kopperl. Lucky for me, the Reeds took the wrong road and landed at our house. I proceeded to get all the names. Mrs. Effie Egger had told me the day before that the Thompsons were expecting three couples of old friends. Mr. Reed said he was going to tell Blue that he ought to get his signpost out so they could find the way.

Really all of us, who live in these places so hard to find, ought to begin at Edward Egger's rock house and brick barn, put our names on signposts, and place them wherever needed on the roads that lead to the various houses. Just last week a Montgomery Ward wagon drew up at our house. The man was hunting for Hubert Reeves' house. He had been summoned out there to fix the television. John had gone to the mail box, and at our pasture gate he found another man hunting for the Reeveses.

Dr. Seal Tippen Cutbirth and family of Brownwood were guests for supper at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Effie Tippen, Thursday evening. I went to Mrs. Mayes' Studio at Brownwood Friday to have her touch up a picture. She told me her sister, Mrs. Cockrum, who lived near Goldthwaite, had just passed away at a Brownwood hospital. She said they grew up at Caradan. Their name was Caraway and the post office got its name from her father and another old citizen, whose name was Dan. Mrs. Mayes has no children of her own, but she has raised two girls who were kin to her late husband. She took them when the younger was a bottle baby.

L. Crowder and Kevin from Dallas. After church, several of us went on across the river to the Bowser Homecoming. There they had a shady arbor and a long table filled with good things to eat. The year 1909-1910 was my teaching year there. I still find some of my pupils. It is worth the trip just to see Mark Maxwell. He'll be forever young, and how he does love to sing.

Two unique characters there are Hervey and Bessie Sykes. No children. So they always rode the pasture together. If Hervey couldn't pen the cattle, Bessie could. Today I heard someone say, "Bessie, do you still ride that horse?" answered, "I still ride horse." A lady, sitting by said, "She's past 80."

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

Although Congress by legislation can overthrow the recent Supreme Court decision which held it is legal for states to levy income taxes on that part of the profit any firm makes by selling in a particular state, there still seems to be some doubt that Congress will take such action.

On the other hand, if Congress does not take such action, thousands of small firms are being squeezed out of business.

The most encouraging note is the introduction by Rep. Wm. McCullough of a bill to correct this evil known as HR 7757. Also encouraging is the fact that the Senate Small Business Committee, through a sub committee headed by Sen. Alan Bible of Nevada is continuing to hold hearings.

And perhaps the most encouraging sign of all is that current testimony is bringing out unless Congress acts, the Federal government is going to lose a great deal in income taxes.

For example, recently the treasurer of a small pharmaceutical firm testified to some of the monkey shins as it affected his business.

In Georgia in 1958 his firm sold $476.42 worth of merchandise, of which all but $22.80 was for resale, and thus exempt from any state tax on the part of his firm. The firm paid Georgia 67 cents in taxes.

On this amount, Georgia refunded a 2% discount, thus realizing 65 cents. But if the cost of a stamp is deducted, state only 63 cents.

realized 61 cents, not counting cost of bookkeeping labor. But the firm's accounting department costs in compiling the figures and making out the returns was $36 on this 61 cent transaction.

He also testified in the same year they paid to South Carolina taxes on $32.02 worth of sales, on which they paid a tax of $1.51, were refunded 5 cents, but the transaction cost them $15 in bookkeeping costs.

At this point a light apparently dawned on Sen. Leverett Saltonstall who inquired if these extraordinary costs are not deducted as business expenses on the firm's federal income taxes.

Naturally, it was pointed out that this was done.

This one fact, more than anything else, will probably compel Congress to act and declare that such state taxes on interstate commerce is a violation of the principle stated in the Constitution and pass laws that will prohibit such weird occurrences.

Actually, many legal minds claim the Supreme Court decision in February approving this nonsense will go down in history as one of the great blunders of the court.

While scores and even hundreds of businessmen who threaten to be wiped out by this decision are appearing before the Senate Small Business Committee, it would only seem logical that everyone who manufactures, wholesales, or retails across state lines makes strong representations to Congress for relief. While the actual amount of the taxes are in most cases not too great, the cost of keeping track of the sales and making returns to the various states is a bankrupting operation.

Hoegh Says Every Family Needs A Fallout Shelter

Civil and Defense Mobilization Director Leo A. Hoegh says "everyone, even those far from a likely target, would need shelter from fallout" in the event of an enemy attack. In the introduction to "The Family Fallout Shelter," a publication of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Mr. Hoegh says: "In an atomic war, blast, heat and initial radiation could kill millions close to ground zero of nuclear bursts. Many more millions—everybody else—could be threatened by radioactive fallout. But most of these could be saved."

LEO A. HOEGH
... most could be saved

Mr. Hoegh pointed out that the Federal shelter policy is based on the knowledge that most of those beyond the range of blast and heat will survive if they have adequate protection from fallout.

The OCDM booklet contains building plans for five basic fallout shelters. One is a do-it-yourself project with solid concrete blocks. Cost of the shelters ranges from $150 to $1500.

Copies of "The Family Fallout Shelter" may be obtained from local civil defense offices or by writing: Box Home Shelter, Battle Creek, Mich.

HOW TO SURVIVE—IF NUCLEAR WAR COMES

Substantial protection for families from radioactive fallout can now be developed through construction of simple home shelters. All of the illustrations used on this page are from "The Family Fallout Shelter," a publication of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization. As each family group left, they said, "See you next year, the Lord willing," each tired but happy, looking forward to the happy fellowship of family reunion in 1960.

Two Chevy middleweights prove their rawhide stamina!

Top hands on high-country hauls!

Ask any trucker who's been over Wolf Creek Pass, 10,850 feet up in the San Juans: a 9-mile pull to the summit and low gear all the way down. Mr. C. H. Phillips of Alamosa, Colorado, has a 6403 and a 6503 Chevrolet truck that are up over this route the year round, taking sheep and beef to pasture, later marketing the stock in Denver. In less than a year, his Chevy middleweights have averaged about 50,000 miles of this kind of treatment—and they're going stronger than ever!

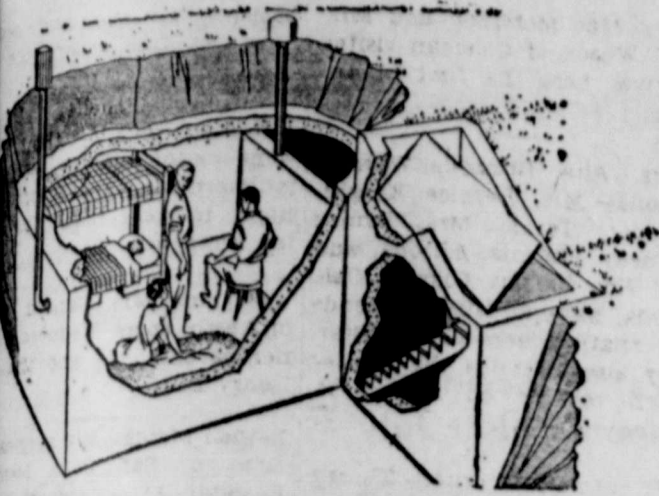

Watch Chevy trucks at work out in range country. It's a sight to see the way they pack into high-up mountain pastures and handle through brush and rock like a cowman's favorite cutting horse. Take any truck work for that matter. Chevy middleweights probably handle a bigger variety of jobs than any trucks alive. About anything you name, including work that used to be reserved strictly for bigger rigs. When a truck's built the way a Chevy is, lean-muscled and rawhide-tough, it takes to ugly trails the same way most trucks roll over the highway. It just keeps going, without a big to-do, but looking good every mile of the way. How they do it is your Chevrolet dealer's department. He'll be glad to supply details and specifications on the type of models you need.

No job's too tough for a Chevrolet truck!

TEXAS A. & M. COLLEGE EXTENSION SERVICE

BY GEORGE G. REESE

MAIZE STUBBLE

An application of nitrogen to grain sorghum stubble prior to plowing it under will prevent a nitrogen shortage for the crop which follows, says W. F. Bennett, soil chemist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The chemist suggests that stalks be shredded as soon after harvest as possible. An application of 20 pounds of nitrogen for each ton of residue to be turned under should be made just prior to the plowing. Where nitrogen is not applied, and stubble is left in the field until late in the year, the decomposition process will tie up the available nitrogen in the soil and often cause a nitrogen shortage for the following crop.

By using nitrogen and early shredding and plowing of stubble, this condition can be eliminated. Too, the nitrogen in the soil will be available for use by the crop which follows the grain sorghum.

Bennett cautions against the use of more nitrogen than the crop which is to follow can use. In no case, he adds, should more than 60 pounds of nitrogen be applied per acre. Generally, he says, about 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre will adequately take care of the residue to be plowed under.

ONE RAT COSTS $20 PER YEAR

At $20 per rat per year and $5 per mouse, it doesn't take long for our damage to really pile up. It's easy to see how it would pay to get rid of these pests.

Rats and mice destroy and contaminate much more than they eat. They spread disease and filth, and one of the most common diseases attributed to rats is Typhus. Rats have fleas which carry the disease organisms and these fleas sometimes get on man.

One good way to fight rat and mouse populations on your farm is to use anticoagulant poison baits. You must be careful with this poison, though, because it affects all warm-blooded animals, but at that it is one of the safest baits to use.

Anticoagulant prevent the clotting of blood which causes internal hemorrhages and death. It takes 5 to 15 days for the poison to take effect, but the pests keep eating it till it's too late. They never suspect they are in for trouble.

This is the same type of bait that the Mills County Farm Bureau was selling in our rat and mouse drive last year.

TEXAS LAMB CROP

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service announces that the Texas (1959) lamb crop is estimated at 2,900,000 head. This is the largest since 1950, and is 10 per cent above last year's crop and 7 per cent above the 1948-57 average of 2,793,000 lambs.

CORN CROP OUTLOOK

Crop reporters across the Corn Belt last month came up with an estimate of the 1959 corn crop that surprised and shocked USDA officials and the grain trade. They forecast a crop of 4.2 billion bushels, 10 per cent more than last year's all-time record and 29 per cent more than the 10 year average. A lot can happen between now and corn picking time to reduce this estimate but there seems no question that the big acreage planted last spring will produce another all-time record yield. The growing numbers of livestock probably can eat up a 4 billion bushel crop but it now appears that at least 200 million bushels will go into the surplus pile.

Summary For July

Sergeant G. E. Simmons, Jr., of the Llano Area, of the Texas Highway Patrol, released Blanco, Burnet, Lampasas, Llano, McCulloch, Mills, and San Saba Counties' Rural Traffic Accident Summary for July 1959.

The Highway Patrol in Area investigated a total of accidents with the following breakdown: Property Damage 10, Personal Injury 8, and Accidents 1.

Sgt. Simmons reported a Property Damage of $385 with 11 persons injured or killed. This is an increase of accident and the same number of one death for the same period of July 1958.

The report shows one accident investigated in Mills County with property damage $1,500.

Odd Fact

MORE DIMES NEEDED — State March of Dimes chairman Gordon McLendon, recently reappointed by National Foundation president Basil O'Connor, has called for additional help for "broke" Texas chapters who now owe one-half million dollars, mostly to hospitals in the state.

Shown here at a recent March of Dimes meeting, he is explaining to Clare Foran of Corpus Christi and foreign exchange students Francoise Loup of France and Josette Thonnard of Belgium how American teens gain insight into community action by participating in the March of Dimes and National Foundation chapter activities.

"Texans will respond freely with dollars," he said, "to save lives and to help bring those crippled by paralytic polio back to meaningful living if they know the facts and know that the money is wisely spent."

McLendon is president of the McLendon Corporation which operates stations KLIF in Dallas, KILT in Houston, KTSA in San Antonio, and others.

foothold within the Mexican domain, the right to garrison and hold with its troops, as is provided by the stipulation that she shall have the privilege of sending troops to protect the property of her citizens at the places of transit. This is creating the United States a power in the land, for it endows her with independent administrative authority. Then there is a clause expressing the readiness of the Mexican Government to accede to the assumption of protectorate relations by the United States—these, of course, to be defined and specified in another treaty offensive and defensive, creating the protectorate, which Mexico pledges her willingness to confit. Such a treaty as this will place Mexico entirely under the authority of the United States, which can send in any number of troops that may be deemed necessary to regulate the affairs of her ally and dependent, which would otherwise be continually liable to involve herself and her protector in difficulties with other powers by the lawless acts of her people. It would be a poor protector and a poor ally which would not take advantage of the whole scope of a treaty to guard against danger of any such disaster."

Whatever may be the rich fruits of the grand conception of the Mexican Protectorate, it is to be recollect, that the idea originated with General Houston. He, it was who conceived and elaborated it. President Buchanan, confiding in the wisdom of Houston, incorporated the "Protectorate" as a Democratic Administrative measure. The jaundiced enemies of both, who think that no good can come out of Nazareth, have opposed Houston and this measure of the administration. But the people have sustained both, and condemned the narrow-minded opposition in Texas. Hurrah for the Protectorate.

FIGHTS KHAPRA BEETLE

Khapra Beetle, native of Ceylon, and Malaya, and the United States, has invaded Texas. The insect was first discovered in El Paso County in March of this year.

The insect apparently gained entry into California during World War II, but because of its similarity to the domestic Black Carpet Beetle it was not brought to official attention until 1953. Its habit of congregating in cracks and crevices of bricks, masonry, and wood storage structures gives it the name "khapra," a word in an East Indian dialect meaning "brick."

The female adult of the Khapra beetle is a nondescript light - to - dark - brown beetle measuring about one-eighth of an inch long, a little larger than a flea. The male is about one-third smaller. The beetle depends upon man to spread it from place to place. Considering the large movement of grain, seeds, sacks, and other materials that might be infested by the khapra beetle, few countries have better facilities for its transportation than the United States.

In March the Texas Department of Agriculture discovered 19 infested grain elevators and feed mills in El Paso County, two in Hudspeth County and one in Presidio County. All but two of these have been treated. This quick action has saved feed mills and stores thousands of dollars.

For complete eradication, all infested properties have to be covered completely with plastic covers and filled or injected with methyl bromide gas. This method costs approximately $20 per cubic foot and is paid by the Texas Department of Agriculture and the Federal government on a 50-50 basis. One treated mill had a total of 300,000 cubic feet, bringing the cost to $6,000.

The real problem came in checking out each of the mill's 300 customers. And some of these customers had customers of their own which had to be checked.

By keeping a strict control on the Khapra Beetle, State and Federal officials prevented the situation from pyramiding.

Fence climbers present a continual problem in the protection of wildlife.

When Sheldon Reservoir, near Houston, was opened for the 1959 summer season of fishing, fence climbing was one of the big problems confronting the wardens and biologists.

Sheldon Reservoir is a state owned wildlife management project. During the winter months it is a waterfowl refuge, closed to fishing. During the summer it is thrown open to fishermen.

Fishing piers and launching ramps have been constructed by the Game & Fish Commission. The entire 1800 acres was fenced, except for two entrance gates. Even ample parking space was allotted.

Signs were posted advising fishermen to go to the gates. Nevertheless, on opening day, scores of fishermen climbed the fences and beat down the expensive protective undergrowth.

Late in the afternoon a group of the biologists and wardens were drinking coffee and talking about the problem. It had been pretty costly the first day.

One biologist said he thought every man caught climbing the fence should be given a ticket. Another ventured the suggestion that a sign be erected saying, "It Will Cost You $42 to Climb This Fence."

"Yes, we could give them tickets," one of the wardens said, "Then they'd have to go to court and pay a stiff fine. They'd cuss the game department and the wardens. I try to keep from giving a ticket anytime I can and still achieve the same purpose. Most of the fellows who fish out here are just like me. They work on salaries and perhaps not enough. If I gave one a ticket it would be just like reaching in his pocket and taking out a half-week's salary."

"That's all true," said the biologist. "On the other hand, think of the hundred of thousands of persons who pay $2.15 for a fishing license who don't climb a fence and destroy the property they are paying for. They have some rights, too. We can use all the science we know in trying to make hunting and fishing better. Then some thoughtless or perhaps just plain troublesome person comes along and climbs the fence and we've lost a thousand dollars of sportsmen's money."

The argument continued, as arguments do, where game and fish are involved. It's especially true about the offense of trespassing. Somehow there is a resentment to fences. It is nothing new. Back in the early days of Texas we had wars over barbed wire.

We look beyond a fence and see a pretty stream, or perhaps a good place to shoot, and we feel we should be able to cross over to the place. Fortunately, however, most persons recognize the rights of a property owner.

There are a great number of malicious fence climbers. Usually when they are arrested they have a gun. Some even carry a headlight and are bent on killing game, in season or not.

Thus in protecting the rights of landowners, the officers also give protection to wildlife.

As our population increases, the wildlife problems also grow. We have more wildlife today than we've had in years. This has been made possible in most instances through landowner cooperation with conservation officials.

Many of our landowners today recognize wildlife as a crop and permit it to be harvested at a profit to them. They are entitled to that profit. They feed the game and watch after it.

Then we have another situation that isn't too good. We have hundreds of sections of land behind fences where the

PARENT PROBLEMS

Children Learn Best When They Are Happy

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

OVER the years, I have pointed out, in this column, that the baby tends to make most progress in learning, especially at walking and talking, when he feels happy, especially toward the mother or other persons he is with. When angry and out of sorts, he may kick and strike, repeating old patterns of motion or just sit and howl. It's when he feels good that he makes new ventures at walking.

When he cries, he may repeat a narrow repertoire of sounds he has made before, but it's when he's happy that he keeps adding new sounds, as in his coos and babbles.

Crying—First Sound

The first sound the baby makes is crying. But during the first few weeks he also begins to make comfort sounds through his pleasure over taking food. As more weeks and months go by these comfort sounds increase in coos and babbles.

Flora Rheta Shreiber, in her current book "Your Child's Speech" (Putnam) makes much of the baby's comfort sounds in his early speech development.

Forms Sounds

"Babbling is a happy, spontaneous utterance during which the infant forms many, many sounds at random, many more than he will ever use once he actually talks. In the course of his babbling he forms all the vowels and consonants of which adult language is comprised—not only of his own language but of other languages as well."

Then comes the time between five and nine months of age, when the baby repeats some of the sounds he has made at random, which, presumably, he likes most. He may seem to make almost endless repetitions consisting of the same sounds used as two, three or more syllables—da-da-da-da-da or ma-ma-ma-ma.

Imitate Him

His parents, supposing he is saying Dada or Mama, imitate him. By and by this infant may be saying these words with meaning. So his parents may say, after the baby, other words he had at random innocently uttered and connected with purpose later.

Surely this becomes an easy step to deliberate imitations by this little child of all sorts of sounds he hears and likes. The more he likes the person from which a sound comes, the more ready he is to imitate it.

The moral for Mother and Father is obvious. Parents should not suppose, however, that letting the baby and young child always have what he wants and always doing as he pleases will guarantee his happiness and fondness for them. (My bulletins, "Love and Restraint" and "The Young Child's Speech," may be had by sending a self-addressed, U. S. stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.)

Answering Parents' Questions

Q. Our daughter is afraid of water at the beach, even to put her feet into water. Should we force her into the water?

A. No. Take enough time to help her, very gradually, to have fun paddling and wading in shallow, quiet water.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Austin, Texas—None of the money-raising bills that failed to pass the Legislature during the past seven months were put away to gather dust.

They'll be on parade again if a fourth special session is held to raise money to increase public school teachers' salaries.

Gov. Price Daniel has said he will call the session if the public demands it. Texas State Teachers Association has its campaign rolling to create this demand.

TSTA's goal is a program that would cost $63,000,000 over a two-year period. Of this, $56,000,000 would go for a $405 increase in annual base pay for teachers.

This would bring teachers' base pay up to $3,610 a year. Hale-Aikin Committee recommended a minimum of $3,800 a year plus a number of other school improvements that would have totaled some $200,000,000 for a two-year period. But TSTA decided that getting that big a tax bill would be too tough. For the time being, the 70,000-member teacher lobby will settle for a package one-third this size with emphasis on the item it wants most—pay raises.

Time most discussed for the new special session is the politically crucial month of January. This will give the teachers, scattered in summer, time to get organized. It also is the month for poll tax paying, with Jan. 31 as the deadline. (Governor Daniel said, "January or February would be the time.") Next year, for the first time, January will be the month for candidates for office to make their announcements. New law makes Feb. 1 the deadline for filing for state primaries.

There's talk that Governor Daniel will announce for a third term if teacher raises are turned down. On this the governor says, "I'm not closing any doors."

Privately, many legislators are grim at the prospect of being boxed in by another round of tax-and-spend pressures, particularly right before their campaigns begin. They expect to get a lot of static anyway, from the tax measures they've already voted.

But few will oppose teachers openly. As one said, "If you're against teacher raises, they'll say you're against good schools and little kids and motherhood—it's suicide."

Watch For New Laws—Scores of new laws passed during the regular Legislative session ending in May go into effect this month.

From here on, anyone convicted of four moving traffic violations within 12 months will be classed a "habitual violator," subject to drivers license suspension for any period up to a year. Same rule applies to anyone convicted of 7 or more violations committed within a 24-hour period.

New, tightened laws are in effect on the waterways, too. Now against the law are: operating a boat or skiing while under the influence of liquor, skiing at night and "reckless or negligent" boating and skiing. Now required by law are: a life preserver for every passenger on a boat and a lighting system, according to size, for every boat. Boat registration fees will not be required until next April.

Another new law makes taking a ride in someone else's car without his permission a felony offense. Previously, it was hard to get more than a misdemeanor conviction for car stealing.

Ranchers and farmers will be required to fence land along state and U. S. highways to prevent cattle from roaming on the road. Law does not apply to farm-to-market roads.

Retail merchants no longer may advertise goods at "wholesale" prices. Only firms that sell only to retailers may claim wholesale selling.

Other new laws won't be noticed until later. For example, the new "stick with the party" law requires that a poll tax holder have his receipt stamped "Republican" or "Democrat" the first time he participates in a primary or convention. From then on, in effect, he's stuck with the party stamped on his tax receipt—until he gets a new poll tax.

A new program to inspect for cattle disease at livestock auctions was authorized, but is expected to be very small scale for the first two years, at least. It was given only a fraction of the money supporters said was necessary.

Would-Be Speakers Busy—One of next year's campaigns is already going strong with two of the candidates claiming victory.

Rep. Wade Spilman of McAllen declares he has "more than a majority" of the present House members pledged to elect him as next speaker. Rep. James Turman of Gober claimed enough pledges "to practically assure my election."

Victory statements are a common campaign technique for speaker candidates since House members are prone to join a winner's bandwagon to get good committee assignments.

Actually, the speaker can't be officially elected until January, 1961, when the 57th Legislature convenes. A large turnover of House members in the primaries could upset the apple cart by removing many of the speaker candidates' pledged supporters from office.

Other candidates are Reps. L. DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi and Frank McGregor of Waco. Reps. Jerry Sadler of Percilla and W. T. Oliver of Port Neches are regarded as possible candidates.

Water Bonds Sold—First $10,000,000 in bonds to raise money for local water projects has been sold by the State Water Development Board.

Lower Nueces River Water Supply District of Corpus Christi may be the first beneficiary of the new program. Water Board has tentatively approved a $3,000,000 loan to the district to complete the $21,000,000 Wesley E. Seale Dam and Reservoir. State will pay slightly more than 3.5 per cent interest on the bonds and charge the borrower slightly more than 4 per cent.

Hope For Highway Funds—Texas highway builders are holding their breath over a threatened halt of the huge federal road building program. Continuation of the interstate road building, now going full steam in Texas, hinges on Congress' finding a way to get more money for the highway trust fund. Federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost of these projects.

State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer said the Highway Department is "proceeding on confidence that something will be done by Congress to avert such an economic blow."

Most Texas officials, including Governor Daniel, are opposed to getting the money through a hike in the federal gasoline tax, as recommended by the President.
