SAMMONS TRIAL IS ON AT CANADIAN

The trial of T. E. Sammons, of Shamrock, who is on trial for the killing of Carl Brooks, at Shamrock on September 23rd, began at Canadian Tuesday. The selection of the jury was completed at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday afternoon, and taking of testimony was immediately begun. Brooks was killed while Sammons was Marshall of Shamrock and the case is being tried at Canadian on a change of venue. District Judge Ewing is on the bench and Attorney E. J. Pickens, District Attorney, is conducting the prosecution, assisted by Attorneys B. Reeder, of Amarillo, Newt P. Ellis, of Canadian, and Walter Alford, of Perryton. Frank Willis, of Canadian, Clint Small, of Wellington, and J. B. Clark, of Shamrock, are the attorneys for Sammons.

Attorneys for the state announced yesterday in court that they would prosecute the prosecution of Sammons on the alleged conspiracy between Sammons and Jake Martin, deputy sheriff of Wheeler County, and who was alleged, was with Sammons at the time Brooks was killed. Martin also under indictment for the killing.

The attorneys for the defense are it to be understood that they would base their defense on the ground that Brooks had made numerous threats against Sammons. Gordon Stanford, of Shamrock, was the first witness and verified the reprint of the building in which Brooks was killed, and the second witness, Mike Swink, also verified the same.

C. E. Myrick, the third witness, told of Martin asking him if he had seen Brooks on the day he was killed, and said that later, about 10:15 at night, he was sitting in the restaurant when Sammons and Martin came in and walked to the kitchen and heard Sammons say: "Brooks, I have been threatening my life for a long time," or words meaning the same thing, and saying that he was going to kill him (Brooks) and when he said, he heard a shot and Brooks fell to the floor. Myrick also said that Swink, owner of the restaurant told that it was a keen trick to come in there and kill Brooks, when he had been at the fair grounds all day.

Mike Swink was called at the night session and testified that Sammons came into the kitchen of the restaurant where he, Brooks, and two other men were, and grabbed Brooks by the arm, saying: "Brooks, I have come to kill you. Stand up and take like a man."

Dr. A. B. Zeigler, of Shamrock, was the only witness for the yesterday, and his testimony had to do only with finding Brooks dead, and described the wounds.

The defense opened its testimony yesterday, and several witnesses testified that they had heard Brooks make threats against Sammons' life. The court room was crowded with people at every one of the sessions. More than one hundred witnesses are being examined at the trial. The case is arousing considerable of interest throughout the Panhandle and western Oklahoma, for both Brooks and Sammons were well known all over this section.

Tuesday's Amarillo Tribune carried the news that Roy Crunk, of that place had been killed there, having been run over by a gravel wagon. Roy Crunk formerly lived in Miami, and had several friends here. He was employed on the San Antonio ranch while here. He leaves a wife and one child, a boy about four months old.

YOUR FIRST DUTY TO YOURSELF

There is a duty you owe to yourself, to your dependance and that duty is to provide for yourself and those dependent upon you for years to come. The man without a bank account is really a day behind, for he is nothing ahead.

PANHANDLE LUMBER CO. TO BOOST DAIRY FARMING

The management of the Panhandle Lumber Co. has decided that it is to the interest of its customers as well as to their own to do all they can to get the Panhandle farmer to take up a diversified farming program. There have been three good wheat years, but the prospects for the year coming are rather unsettled, and the Company, feels that the farmer who makes his chickens, hogs, and cows pay his house and garage bills is going to do a lot toward making the Panhandle the finest country in the world to live in.

To this end they are planning an extensive campaign to interest the farmers in diversified farming, and also are working on plans for a new pattern poultry house that can be bought in sections, at a much more reasonable price than the material can be bought and the building built by the farmer. Also, they are working on new plans for modern and sanitary hog houses. This is a program that very few firms have as yet taken up, but one that proves that the Panhandle Lumber Co., is doing its best to live up to its slogan, "To Help Improve The Panhandle."

LEGION OYSTER SUPPER

Among the good things in the way of entertainment planned by the local Post of the American Legion, is an Oyster supper that will be served in the new Garden Cafe, Saturday January 28.

The supper will be served under the auspices of the Legion and Ladies Auxiliary, and the profits will be used by them for fixing up their hall as a club room, as they have always planned.

We are fortunate to have such a place as the new Garden Cafe in which to have such an affair, and it is doubtful if a more attractive place could be found elsewhere.

The supper will begin 4:00 p. m. and a Mess Sergeant and two K. P.'s in the kitchen will prepare oysters in any style desired and in any quantities. They will then be served by some of the fair members of the Legion Auxiliary.

WILL BE BIG EVENT

The local Legion Post is making big plans for their Second Annual Rodeo, which will come off June third. Miami has the advantage of having an ideal place to hold an event of this kind and aside from the Rodeo proper, the boys are planning for some other events that will, in connection make the Miami Rodeo one of the biggest events in the Panhandle this coming summer. The Business men and other progressive citizens of the Miami are lining up with the Legion boys in fine shape and with that kind of co-operation it will be easy to put the Rodeo over big.

REGISTER YOUR AUTOMOBILE AT ONCE

Sheriff Coffee wants every owner of an automobile, or truck to bear in mind that the duration of your license extends only to December 31st of the year in which it was issued. This is due notice that your license has expired and a new license must be issued for the coming year, other wise you are taking your own chances which you must realize subject you to prosecution.

Arrangements have been made to issue the 1922 License tags at the Ford Garage in Miami, and you should call there at once and get yours, or you will lay yourself liable to prosecution.

PANHANDLE PENWOMEN WILL MEET IN FEBRUARY

By request of members whose husbands wish their company at the meeting of the Buyers' and Sellers' Livestock Convention to be held in Amarillo in February, the next meeting of the Panhandle Penwomen will be held at that time.

An interesting program is being prepared by the program committee, and will appear in an issue of the Amarillo daily papers soon. The membership would appreciate the favor if the county papers would mention this meeting and its date.

New members are urged to attend this meeting. If your name has been submitted to the membership committee and has not been reported upon, write to Mrs. Mildred Cheney, Amarillo, or to the president at Claude, Texas. We wish you to be there and to be one of us from the

Each club member is asked to send in names of those interested so that they may be with us at the next meeting. One member has sent names of two prospective members since our last meeting. If all should do this the membership would soon reach the dimensions that the territory and the purpose warrant.

Please remember the month is February, and the date, which has not yet been set, will be announced later; the place is Amarillo; the headquarters, Amarillo Hotel, and for those who wish to ask questions upon arrival, we suggest that you use the telephones of the secretary, Mrs. Mabel Law Fish, the program committee, Mesdames R. B. Mesterson Jr., and R. S. Thompson, and the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Mildred Cheney. Whatever you are in doubt, they will know.

Be sure to come and bring others. Do not forget the associate membership is for those interested who do not write for market. We urge their attendance.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY MEETING

Tuesday night the regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary was held with eighteen members present. Three new members were admitted.

The President named the executive, entertainment and membership committees for the coming year, and a Junior Entertainment Committee named to have charge of the entertainment of the members at their social meetings. Mrs. J. E. George was voted "Mother" for the adopted boy and this week, will mail him a box of shirts, etc., which he writes that he is in need of.

A LITTLE BOOKLET EVERY TEXAS FARMER SHOULD HAVE

The Thirty-Third Annual Report of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, A. and M. College, has recently come from the press and contains the very newest and best information for the farmers of Texas who are engaged in a business amounting to more than 725 million dollars annually. If one desires information about proper feeding and breeding of animals or treatment of animals suffering from diseases or insect pests; proper fertilizer and cultivation of field crops or their protection from the ravages of plant diseases and insects; what is best to do to provide ample fruits and vegetables for home or for market; how to study the fertility of soil or the values of feeding stuffs and fertilizers; how different varieties of corn, of cotton and various other field crops compare with one another in production under fair tests in different sections of the State; how higher yielding strains of different crops are being developed and distributed by the Station; or, in general, information on the economic of farming and ranching, he should, by all means, read this report, which contains eighty pages describing in a general way and in simple language, the divers activities of the Experiment Station system.

As long as the supply lasts, this report will be mailed free to any person in Texas, if request is made to B. Youngblood, Director, College Station, Texas.

A TRIP

Late Saturday evening a party of girls (?) left-town for Mobeetie to spend a day with Beulah and her parents. Two of the bunch—they know who—arrived first, and said to say the chicken we expected for supper was not there; that is, unless you count the neck a piece.

Six young people from Wheeler were at the Lee home to greet us. They had the Victrola going and needless to say this same music was thoroughly enjoyed during the evening.

At the last hour of Saturday, refreshments were served, and the bunch then sought repose; but did they find it? Ask them!

Sunday morning, the two most pious of the crowd attended Sunday School and Church. After church we all helped devour—yes that's the word—a bounteous chicken dinner.

The afternoon found us joy-riding "up the hills and down the hollows," visiting Wheeler and then back to Mobeetie; where after thanking our host and hostess for the pleasant time spent, we came jogging back to good old Miami.

Form No. 11 was not received. The Financial Report was not read. Only seven members were present, on account of a rain the night before the meeting. It was agreed that the Secretary-Treasurer mail a copy of the Annual Report to all members. The members present elected all of the old Directors for the year 1922 except Mr. W. S. Paris who resigned. Mr. Geo. W. Hodges being elected to take his place. The new Board of Directors elected all of the old officers and declared Dividend No. 4 amounting to 6 per cent on the part of the capital stock of this association, held by our members, and covering the twelve month period from Oct. 1st. 1919 to September 30th 1921. They also declared Dividend No. 5, covering the nine month period from Oct. 1st 1920 to June 30th 1921. Dividend No. 5, is calculated as heretofore, upon the basis of 6 per cent annum, and being for nine months, represents 4 1-2 per cent on the capital stock of this association, owned by our members. The total of both Dividends is $1,098.63.

It is with great pride that I enclose herewith Dividend check or checks for the periods mentioned above. In order that this report may not confuse you, it seems that the following explanation is necessary. Dividend No. 6, amounting to $24.11, which has very recently been paid this association by the Federal Land Bank, has been carried to Reserve. The Federal Farm Loan Act requires all of their net earnings. We have adopted a very satisfactory plan of carrying one entire Dividend to Reserve at all times. This minimizes the word of paying dividend and reduces the liability of making errors to a minimum. Please bear in mind that this is the fourth and fifth dividend that this association has paid, though it may be the first one you receive. All dividends paid, it is hoped and expected that this rate of dividend will soon be increased. The Federal Land Bank has

COUNTY AND DISTRICT CLERK M. M. CRAIG, JR.

The Chief is authorized this week, to announce the candidacy for re-election to the office of County and District Clerk, of Roberts County, of M. M. Craig, Jr., subject to the Democratic Primary, July 22, 1922.

Mr. Craig asks for re-election to the office, on the record of his performance during the time that he has served as County and District Clerk, and we feel sure that if you cast your ballot for him you are voting for a man who is thoroughly capable and efficient and who will attend to the duties assigned him in a completely satisfactory manner.

Mr. Craig is so well known to the voters of Roberts County that we feel that we can say but very little for him than is known by his many friends whose votes he is asking for. Consider well Mr. Craig's claims and his merits before casting your vote, and we think that there is not the least possibility of your regretting it if you cast your vote for him.

"FRESH" CLASS MEETING

The Freshmen met Tuesday morning to decide whether or not they should have a class picnic. They decided it was too cold to have a picnic, so decided to have a party, "In The Sweet Bye and Bye." P. R.

paid this association. The dividends are calculated from the date the Vouchers are drawn to close your loan. If your loan was closed since June 30th 1921, you will not get a dividend in this letter, as all of the dividend paid on stock issued since then has been carried to Reserve, and will be paid when we declare our next dividend.

This report does not include a multitude of various collections and payments made by me such as application fees, title examination fees, abstract deposits and other items. An itemized Statement of the Current Expenses is on file in the Record Book of this association. It is too long to be included and I am not required to send you this report. Current Expenses are approved by the Board of Directors. An itemized statement of the Current Expenses will be read at the next annual meeting, if you so desire. Your presence is desired at all Annual Meetings. Those who attend always get a great deal more satisfaction than this brief report can possibly give you. We have eleven applications approved totaling $55,500.00, some of which will be closed in a very short time. We have one application Approved for $4,300.00, subject to closing when Additional funds are available. We hope that the past good record of this association can be maintained and that the year 1922 will be a pleasant and profitable one for you. This report is being mailed to all members, and applicants and friends. Thanking all for the highly appreciated support that you have given me, I do hereby certify that the above and foregoing statements are correct as shown by the records of my office as of the close of business this 10th day of January, A. D. 1922.

HARRY A. NELSON,
Secretary-Treasurer.

P. S. In case you sell your farm you should sell your stock in this Association for full value and accrued interest at not less than 6 per cent, as we pay the dividends to the party owning the stock at the time of payment. The Federal Land Bank advised that from present indications, you receive. All dividends paid, it is hoped and expected that this rate of dividend will soon be increased.

French Brides Are Happy Here

Few Are Homesick and Want to Go Back to Europe but They Are Exceptions.

Y. W. C. A. OFFERS ITS HELP

Clubs Formed in Various Cities and Young Wives Attend Classes in English—Some Still Coming to Join France.

New York.—Not all French brides in this country are so homesick that they long to return to France. Speaking of the recent incident of Marshal Foch's tour West in St. Maries, Idaho, where three French war brides tearfully begged to go back to France, Miss Eleanor Kiler, who directs this work at the National Board of the Young Women's Christian association and under whose chaperonage nearly 4,000 war brides of all nationalities came to this country, emphasized that records show the majority of them displaying the most fortitude in adapting themselves to American ways.

"Nothing was said of homesickness as a desire to return to France when Marshal Foch recently received the gift of a silver plate from the Union des Femmes de France, one of our nationalities clubs largely made up of French brides in Boston, although the personal greetings were warm and enthusiastic," said Miss Kiler. "In fact, a spontaneous 'Vive l'Amérique' immediately followed the 'Vive la France' as he passed by. Small as the incident was, nothing could be more typical of the spirit many of these young women are displaying in endeavoring to banish their homesickness and adopt the new country to which their American husbands have brought them."

Turn to Y. W. C. A.
Due to their acquaintance with the Young Women's Christian association in France, and the warm personal relationships established when they were officially chaperoned by the association on the trip across, in many cases, it was to the Y. W. C. A. that they have turned for guidance and help, it was explained.

"French clubs, or French War Brides' clubs, as they call themselves in some of our centers in other cities, which they themselves have organized, are not for sociability and companionship alone," Miss Kiler explained. "To learn English is their immediate desire, and our English classes from the first have been immensely popular among them. Classes in infant care, including pre-natal care, have also been repeatedly asked for and well attended. In the great majority of cases which we touch we have found them anxious to overcome all the handicaps which are so new and strange to them in their new homes."

An example given was that of the Union des Femmes de France, an organization of their own attached to the Y. W. C. A. of Boston. This club, of which Helen Luffberry, sister of Raoul Luffberry, the ace who was killed shortly before the armistice, was the first secretary, gives benefit concerts and other entertainments for war orphans or young women of their own nationality who are ill or in distress here. From the outset their American husbands have been enthusiastic in its support.

Tragic Exceptions.
The tragic exceptions to the majority of cases which have apparently turned out happily, Miss Kiler said, infrequently come to her notice. "Only last month a young woman who contracted tuberculosis after the birth of her baby, sailed back to France," she continued. "She had been deserted by her husband. Two cases of bigamy, for which the men in question are now in prison, are also pathetic. Although in one case the man begged his bride to stay, she scorned his offer of loyalty to her rather than to the wife that he had left here when he went overseas. She has gone back, and the Y. W.

C. A. representatives in Paris are helping her get a position and begin anew."

In cases of desperate homesickness, it was said that the American husbands had often sent for other members of their wives' families. Particularly where a sister has come over to take up work here, the companionship has proved a great comfort to the young wives widely scattered in isolated communities.

"Romances that started during the war are still resulting in marriages," Miss Kiler said. "Only last week a young woman came through here to join her fiancé in California. They had met and became engaged during the war, while he was still overseas. A highly accomplished girl, she had a splendidly paid position with a famous French house in Paris, and was reluctant to leave. Finally her fiancé wrote us to meet her, and she went on to begin life out in California."

Large Job of Corn Husking.

Webster City, Ia.—What is believed to establish a record for Iowa corn-huskers was set at Story City, near here, recently when Noah Valde picked and cribbed 188 bushels of corn. The achievement took place on his father's farm in Rose Grove township. He worked approximately ten hours, including the time taken to unload the wagon.

Historic Soho Doomed to Fall

London's Funny Little Bohemian Quarter to Be Swept Away.

CITY IN NEED OF MORE SPACE

Many Years Ago This Section of London Was Regarded as a Very Fashionable Dwelling Quarter—There All Races Meet.

London.—Dingy, funny, little Soho, known to all tourists and the affluent half of the American expeditious forces, is about to pull down its faded pink curtains, fold up its murky little shops and silently steal into the dusty pages of history—by request. London has need of space and, cruelly, London, has no need for funny little Soho. In which case that small, historic prowling spot of temperamental bohemians, which is supposed to have derived its name from the duke of Monmouth's famous war cry, "Soho," at Sedgemoor, intends to take itself apart, brick by brick, until it is no more.

Gone will be the window of the Italian grocer, lately so gay with swirls of pale green spinach paste, like fine spun spaghetti, the deep purple of choice violet liquor, the shiny festoons of red peppers and the tiny almond cakes sprinkled with pink sugar.

Rich Treasures in Filth.
Not again will one finger and yearn for the silky rugs from Afghanistan and Persia, the fat ivory elephants from India and the blue and gold Chinese embroideries one finds in the hidden dirty corners of Soho.

Many years ago this small section of London was regarded as a very fashionable dwelling quarter, but after a time trim maid and highly referenced butlers were glimpsed no longer in Soho's haughty doorways. Burnished name plates and shining brass knockers began to disappear and then, indeed, it seemed that severe respectability had deserted little Soho.

Its quaint, cobbled streets took to

THE HOLIDAY WORDS

"I am delighted that I belong to the Merry family."

"And I am more than delighted that I belong to the Thankful family."

"It pleases me that I belong to the Glorious family."

"And it makes me feel very proud that I belong to the Thankful family."

The words were all talking among themselves. And they were all feeling in high, good spirits.

"Of course," said Merry, "I am one of a good many of us. There have to be lots of us in the family, for we never know when one of us may be called out and we don't want to make any one ever go without us because one of us is missing, or because all of us are taken up with other people."

"Just suppose some one wanted to use the word Merry and couldn't. It would be a most horrible state of affairs."

"So there are lots of my family about always, waiting to be used."

"We love our family name and we like to do all we can to keep the family as important as we feel we should be. So that is why there is always a big extra supply of words named 'Merry' around."

"That is just what my family feels, too," said Merry.

"And my family feels the same way," said Merry.

"Mine, too," agreed Merry.

"You see," said Merry, "one of the nicest things about us is that we're so much used at this season of the year. We love the Christmas season. And the Christmas season seems to be very fond of us."

"People are always wishing each other a 'Merry Christmas.'"

"Now suppose any one wanted to wish another person a 'Merry Christmas' and there wasn't a member of our family about."

"That would be a dreadful state of affairs, but we will see to it that such a thing will never happen."

"So, as I said before, there are always plenty of us around. At Christ-

Two Bears Devour Honey and Bees

Chehalls, Wash.—William Dluhosh, Sr., a farmer of the Alpha neighborhood, lost two stands of good bees and the honey the latter had stored when two bears visited his apiary. The bears called in the night and ate a hive of bees as well as the honey. Their appetites whetted by the sweets, they returned the following night and got away with a second hive of bees and all their honey. The third night Charles Hanson, a neighbor, was waiting for them with a gun. The bears ambled away in the dark.

scraping acquaintance and short-cutting through the alleys of sordid neighbors, meandering around in circles and getting in too late to clean up for dinner—but nobody cared. Its bright windows got dust and soot in their eyes and grew grimy from the fog, but no one took the trouble to wipe them. Its front doors grew weary of keeping up appearances and shed hot tears that blistered the paint and uncovered scratches and gashes on their neglected cheeks.

Its back doors sagged sadly on rusty and broken hinges. They creaked painfully in a final, pitiful protest when they were steadily pushed open to admit the Armenians, the Portuguese and the Greeks.

Where All Races Meet.
Today Soho is a rather badly kept haunt of bohemia. Turkish, Chinese, French and Italian cafes beckon on every side and are well patronized by those who grow weary of a too frequent English diet of boiled mutton, greens of an unfathomable origin and pasty white sauce.

Not long ago I spent an afternoon in Soho and found begging as usual and business at least on its feet. One may buy anything from a pennyworth of stewed eels in vinegar to the last word in a fall bonnet, from the rickety old barrows that line and crowd the curb on certain streets.

The restaurants in Soho are very interesting. The food is always attractively served and if the quality isn't strictly first class the price is. One might expect to, but doesn't save any large number of the elusive shillings. The most popular cafes charge piece-meal prices without a blush or a palumot.

Papa, all done up in dress clothes and a gleaming—in places—celluloid shirt front, takes the order. Mamma hollers it down the back stairs to a mysterious uncle; one daughter bears it in triumph to your table, and the other obligingly offers to run out to buy your bitter because it is after hours—and D. O. R. A. prohibits the sale of liquor in restaurants at certain times each day.

But no longer will the dingy little shops call one, nor the restaurants amuse. Funny little Soho is going away.

Bear Steals Pig.

Warden, Pa.—A big black bear stole a 50-pound pig from a pen at the home of Henry Tibble on German Hill. A son, the only person at home, heard the squeals of the pig and ran out of the house. The bear fed with the pig under a foreleg. When the boy yelled and gave chase the bear dropped the pig and escaped. The pig had been squeezed so hard it died later.

mas time we are busier than at any other time of the year.

"Gracious! The work we do on Christmas cards and calendars and on little cards that go with presents, and the work we do on packages—well, it is something enormous!"

"But work and play are just the same with us. We like to work and we feel that it is play. We like to play and we feel that it is very pleasant work."

"We belong to a family who have always been fond of the holiday season. You could easily call us a holiday word."

"Yes," said Merry, "and the same is true of our family."

"Sometimes," Merry continued, "we are used around Christmas time. That quite often happens, but more often still are we used at the beginning of every New Year."

"That is really extremely nice. We help people start off the New Year right by not only wishing good things for themselves but by helping them to wish all their friends happiness, too."

"Yes, we help them when they say 'Happy New Year.' And we like to help."

"I," said Merry, "belong to a holiday family which so well describes the Fourth of July as we do."

"The Glorious Fourth!" How often you've heard people say that. We're about then in great numbers. But we're around all the rest of the year, too, for there is so much 'glorious weather' and 'glorious skating,' and 'glorious coasting,' and all sorts of 'glorious' things."

"We belong principally to Thanksgiving day," said Merry. "That is the way we feel. We are used then more than at any other time."

"Everyone is so 'thankful' then for all their blessings. To be sure, they're thankful at other times, but on Thanksgiving day they give thought and time to say how thankful they are."

"Yes," said Merry, "we belong to the Holiday words. And yet we are about on other days besides holidays, too. But we do love holidays."

"And Happy and I are the members of the family who belong to the holidays of this season—Christmas and New Year's day. That is enough to make us merry and happy anyway, if for no other reasons."

COMMANDER WELL KNOWN

D. D. Cunningham of Centralia, Wash., Was Prosecutor of I. W. W. Assassination of Legion Men.

One of the best-known men in the country is I. W. W. and other radical circles is the new commander of the American Legion at Washington, D. C.

He is D. D. Cunningham, Centralia, Wash., who was appointed to the post of commander of the American Legion at Washington, D. C., on the 1st anniversary of the attack on the U. S. Capitol building by radicals.

In the court proceedings, which held the attention of America for eight weeks, Cunningham was cited as the best legal talent that the national organization of the I. W. W. could offer.

During the war Cunningham served as an infantry private at Camp Dix, N. J.

HOW THE SERVICE MEN STAND

Checking Up at Washington by Legion Reveals That Many Members Are in Line with

When President Harding replied to Representative Lamar Jefferson, Alabama, and the legislative committee of the American Legion that there were no ex-service men of outstanding qualifications to be members of the American commission to the International department conference, there was a cheering up at Washington to determine how service men stand in the eyes of the American electorate.

A statement later issued by the Legion showed that the President appointed an ex-service man as secretary of the navy and another assistant secretary. His other property consisted in his service during the war.

The public has elected 26 men who served either in the army or the navy to the house of representatives, and two to the senate. In nearly a dozen states service men are the governors. Eight members of Secretary Hoover's national committee on unemployment were ex-service men.

HELPS TO FIND EMPLOYMENT

Arthur Woods, Head of Hoover Special Committee, Proves Aid to Ex-Service Men.

Ex-service men throughout the country have benefited largely from the operations of Secretary Hoover's committee on unemployment. The former soldier and sailor have had a special friend at court in Arthur Woods, New York, head of the Hoover special committee which has co-ordinated the nationwide effort to provide jobs for the jobless.

As a special assistant secretary of war in 1918, Mr. Woods rendered distinguished service in organizing and directing a national bureau for the establishment of civil life of service men. In that work he built up an organization whose activities encompassed the nation and proved his ability to get on with and understand men. Mr. Woods formerly was police commissioner of New York, and was the first chairman of the American Legion's national Americanism commission.

The Modern Fourth

LEGION GUEST HAS BIG IDEA

M. Charles Bertrand of France Plans Association of Veterans to Promote World Peace.

An association of men of all nations who fought with the Allies against Germany in the most effective and to generous world peace is planned by M. Charles Bertrand, commander of the French chapter of the American Legion and president of the International Veterans' Association.

More than 5,000,000 allied veterans have assembled under the leadership of the American Legion, and a meeting of the allied veterans of all countries will be held in Paris soon, representing America's ex-service men. The Legion will send a strong representative to the conference.

Bertrand served as an infantryman in the French army from the beginning of the war to its close. He was wounded several times and severely gassed, and his memory was retained with vivid details on many different occasions, as demonstrated was it in the French veteran society made up exclusively of men wounded in action.

In the formation of the international veterans' association, Bertrand has made frequent trips to Italy, England, Denmark and other allied countries. On his first trip to the United States he was the only civilian in the distinguished company of Marshal Foch, Admiral Beatty, General Diaz and Gen. Baron Joffre to receive the American Legion's gold medal for distinguished service.

SCHEMES TO COLLECT DUES

New Methods Are Being Employed to Induce Legion Members to Pay 1922 Assessment.

New methods employed by American Legion posts to get in membership dues early in 1922 are causing interest in every community where a post is located, according to reports to Legion national headquarters in Indianapolis.

Around the top of the list is the story from South Dakota. A post is offering such service men who pay its dues before a set date a benefit valued by the newest bride in the post women's auxiliary. Three of the benefits being distributed contain cash prizes to wit—$25, $10 and $5 in gold. The benefits may not be broken open until the night of the post banquet when they will serve as cards of attention. Early recipients of benefits declared they could not judge from their weight whether they contained gold pieces or bricks.

Out in Kansas a post gave its finance officer cards blank in collecting 1922 dues early. A few mornings later Legionnaires were being round out of bed at 4 a. m. by members of the committee who refused to let the slumberer go back to bed until he had paid up. The various state departments of the Legion are in a hot contest for the honor of being the first to send in the complete dues of the membership.

WILL HELP CHEER UP BOYS

Miss Rita Gould, Waukegan Star, Offers Her Services to American Legion.

"The boys need a little cheer now just as much as they did when they were in France, home, out and about. It is my share," said Miss Rita Gould, a 17-year-old Waukegan, Ill., girl, in offering her services to the American Legion.

During the war Miss Gould spent the period of America's participation in the various A. E. F. balling games, singing entertainments for the soldiers. After she had passed most of her summer in government hospitals and recreation camps entertaining sick and wounded men, Miss Gould informed the legion that on her discharge tour of the winter she would give her services free to legion posts in all towns she visits. Many posts are availing themselves of the opportunity to have a stage star feature their annual entertainments for the benefit of needy and disabled service men.

Asking Too Much

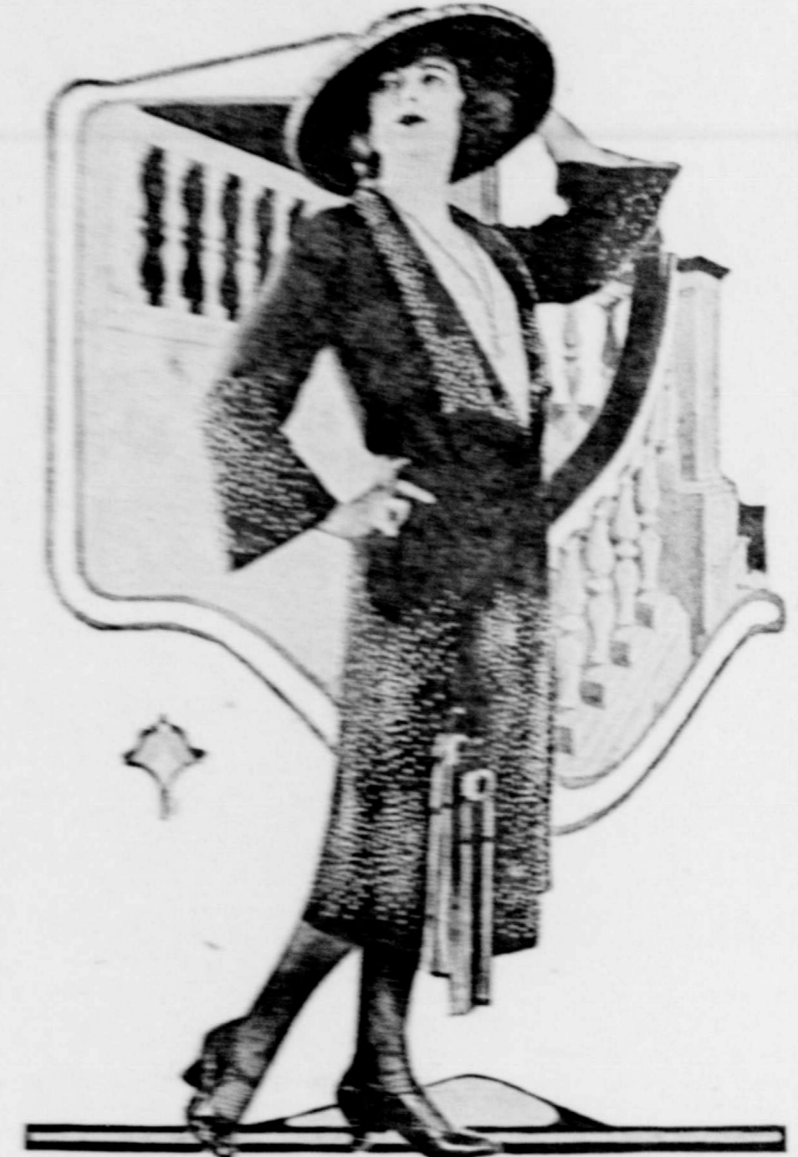

"I don't want to eat this egg. It's not a nice egg," protested the step-daughter of the house at the breakfast table. "Mary," said her mother sternly, "you are always complaining of your food. Eat what is placed before you—every bite of it—without another word, or else I'll have to give you a good spanking."

All was quiet for some minutes. Then from the other end of the table sounded a muffled voice. "Mother, dear, do I have to eat the back loaf?"—American Legion Weekly.

REFLECTING SPANISH MODES; WOMEN TURN TO BLOUSES

With imagination still the design of the blouse after some fashion shows here has been the fashion of Spanish modes over a gown that is constructed along strictly fashionable lines. With the grace and dignity of this woman's style it combines the vivacity and dash that bring to those of Spain—the Spanish American, with a delightful Spanish accent, and is one of the most successful of present adaptations of foreign ideas to our own. The fact is worth with this gown should be said, entirely in keeping with it, again we have clothes designed to keep up a continuous and interesting performance. They are busy now making blouses for spring, and resourceful women can imitate them, using their indoor time to prepare for their spring and summer needs. For present wear there are many crepe de chine blouses in colors and black, others in which crepe de chine and georgette are combined, and two or three colors used. Black blouses of crepe de chine, trimmed with bands of the same material, printed in the brilliant colorings of Paisley shawls, are among handsome novelties and these Paisley patterns are also used blouse, and this costume proves that they need not be tame. This gown, as illustrated, employs black crepe-de-chine with an embroidery of lines in purple-colored threads, that has the effect of leading. The embroidery design is very unusual. The flaring sleeves and long collar repeat the decorative features that covers three-quarters of the skirt and the neck is made of the same for tassel, with immense and handsome ones at the ends of the grille.

Save the skin silhouette appears to have crepe de chine for some time, and skirts are growing longer, the straight-line dress must be relinquished from plainness by the ingenuity of designers. They are depending much upon girdles, draperies, panels, plaits and contrasting materials, and the vague for decorative and unusual sleeves is an ally that saves the day for them in many a dress. Their resourcefulness is so great that we have ceased to be astonished while we continue to be fascinated by the wonderful decorative features brought out in the woman's gown. Crepe de chine, georgette and other crepes, with crepe-de-chine and contrasting values are the vehicles that best in the body of blouses combined with plain crepe de chine in dark colors. Black with jade or other vivid green, or with strong blue, has many admirers along with various other color combinations. Emma continues to be a favorite for dress blouses and is very rich in satin or crepe de chine.

Over-the-shoulder styles are in the ascendency, but they vary from the very short peplum to long costume blouses; length is a matter of preference. Decorous sleeves and the low waistline "A" points that reflect the most successful style features of frocks and the two dress blouses pictured are fine examples of the mode. One of them made of crepe-tulle, has very wide kimono sleeves, short peplum and long waistline, indicated by a sash with long ends, which is merely a French field of satin. Embroidery in bright, contrasting colors is used on these dark-colored blouses and they are very smart with "puffed" skirts.

Lace, in company with georgette, plays an important part in the other model shown. The lace appears in a panel that is fastened in at the front, and hangs free at the back. It lengthens the sleeves with a flounce and all interpret the styles of today in after-noon dresses.

One is safe in choosing crepe de chine and other crepes, as they are scheduled to play an important part in next summer styles and are more than likely to hold the center of the stage.

When winter apparel begins to grow monotonous, and the wardrobe needs spicing, women turn to blouses. There are always new and beautiful ones, brightening up the interior between seasons, and an occasional smart model is an inspiration that almost any woman may allow herself. Therefore, blouses come and go in endless procession—their designers the edges are bound with satin. Black lace over georgette makes opportunity for such popular combinations as black and king's blue or black and jade green.

Home Town Helps

SAYS STICK TO HOME TOWN

Successful Man Points Out Fact That Road to Success Lies in Small Community.

"Shall I stay in my own community or try my luck in the big city?" is a question that most young people sooner or later ask themselves. Of late years the tendency has been toward the city, which holds out the lure of fame and fortune.

Comes Edward W. Bok with an answer out of his own experience. He cries down the big city, and while admitting its necessity, warns youths to consider its greater opportunities only in connection with the greater struggle and the unnatural and even sordid conditions that surround such endeavor. Mr. Bok does not hold that the young man should dodge the hard knocks by which character is molded, but that it is foolish deliberately to seek them, since they will come fast enough unthought.

The shortest road to success in the big city is by way of the country or the small community. Very few of the leaders of the great financial institutions in New York got their training in New York. They were called to those duties after they had made a success in smaller communities. As a rule their training ground has been the producing agricultural districts of the Middle West. They have grown up in the small communities where quality counts.

Mr. Bok concludes that it is better to be a large toad in a pond than to be a small toad in a river. Work in the small community gives one a better opportunity to concentrate and to learn the principles of life under the most natural conditions.—Minneapolis Journal.

TO PRESERVE PUBLIC HEALTH

Movement in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, Is Given Warm Praise by Cleveland Newspaper.

Cleveland, long recognized as among the healthiest of large cities, bids for an even higher distinction in that field by the organization of the Cuyahoga County Public Health association.

According to Doctor Bishop, superintendent of the Lakeside hospital, we are to have here a situation not duplicated anywhere else in the country—all of the privately operated health agencies of a county brought together under one head for the purpose of forwarding the health work of the community and giving the right sort of support and co-operation to the public health agencies. It is an achievement of note. The people of Cleveland are its chief beneficiaries.

After all, community health is largely an optional matter with the community itself. Even a big city can reduce infant mortality, decrease the general death rate and furnish proper living conditions for its people, if it cares to take the trouble. In large part it is a matter of civic education.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Where Democracy "Grows"

A "community mind" took by accretion. The rolling years add each its portion to a living village spirit.

Ten years ago the small town of Roscoe, Ill., put on its year's program, having been led to it by the nascent Roscoe Improvement association. Since then, except for a brief forced interval, this village has kept on the job to become a community, split large, that is "a group of people dwelling at one locality and bound together by common interests."

So, without tax or special assessment they laid their own cement walks and crossings by volunteer labor and gifts of cash, installed an electric service on streets and in homes, conducted the May cleanup day and celebrated the glorious Fourth and Memorial day.—Chicago Daily News.

Make for Good Citizenship.

The wholesome surroundings of a small one-family house are a great asset to the city. Children can grow up without tearing down buildings to create playgrounds, as most big cities have been compelled to do in congested neighborhoods. An abundance of light and air is one of the best assurances for building up a sound, healthy family. In the long run this means the production of good citizens.

Doing Their Part.

"It's time for the world to acknowledge that us poor but honest waitresses and them pampered daughters of the idle rich are sisters under the skin, as some fella says!" asserted Heloise of the rapid-fire restaurant. "Why the outburst just now?" asked Claudine of the same establishment. "Well, you'll notice that we are shooting just about as many gents as them wealthy Janes are."—Kansas City Star.

Back in Town.

"Is your wife back from the seashore?" "Yes, but they say she can't leave the house for at least a week." "Who says that, the doctor?" "The washwoman."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PUREBRED HOGS ARE BETT

Much to Be Learned Concerning Live Merits of Scrub and Crossbred Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Although there is a higher percentage of purebred hogs in the country than of any other class of live stock there is still much room for improvement. And there is much to be learned concerning the relative merits of scrubs, crossbreds and purebreds. make some of the points clear, animal husbandry division of the United States Department of Agriculture is starting a breeding and feeding experiment that will contrast the merits of using scrub, crossbred and purebreds on scrub and crossbred sows. Appropriations provide sufficient

Purebred Duro-Jersey Boar.

It may be that the effect of pure crossbred and scrub sows on purebreds will be studied.

Ten crossbred sows, of various breeds, and ten scrub sows of razor-back kind will be used. Half each of those groups will be bred to crossbred, and half of the other group will be bred to a scrub. This scheme of breeding will be carried from generation to generation. Some of the offspring will be fed out on some of them will be kept for breeding before being fed out. Sheds for the different lots will be put in lots together and fed alike, so a fair comparison can be made. Some of these scrubs and crossbreds will be compared in feeding trials with purebreds raised on the department's experimental farm at Beltsville, Md. Some will be put into different experimental lots on various feeds.

Nearly everybody thinks the purebred is superior to the scrub, but this is a disagreement among farmers who feed the merits of purebred and crossbred. The department hopes to find in due time its experiments will give results that will answer any doubts.

SAFEST RATION FOR STE

Silage, Together With Cottonseed Oil Meal, and Either Clover or Alfalfa.

The safest steer ration for a year who has silage is to feed 40 pounds of silage per steer daily, together with about 3 pounds of cottonseed meal or oil meal and 2 pounds of hay, preferably clover or alfalfa. Cottonseed cake generally contains more protein than oil meal, but the protein in oil meal is of higher quality, and ordinarily would be willing to pay $5 or $6 a ton more for oil meal than for cottonseed meal. A question of feeding corn to steers depends to a considerable extent on the future action of the corn and soybean market. Probably it will be just well to feed four or five pounds of corn to the average steer daily during the last month or two of the feeding period.

BETTER SHEEP IN KENTUCKY

Breeders Improving Their Flocks Use of Purebred Rams—Sires Recently Bought.

In several Kentucky counties where sheep raising is one of the major projects sheep breeders are improving their flocks on an extensive scale, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. One of the outstanding developments is that purebred rams are being widely used. This indicates the increased interest in the improvement of the home flock by the use of better sires. Recently a special "better-sire" sale was held at Louisville, where 250 purebred rams of Hampshire, Shropshire, and Southdown breeding were sold and distributed in flocks throughout the state.

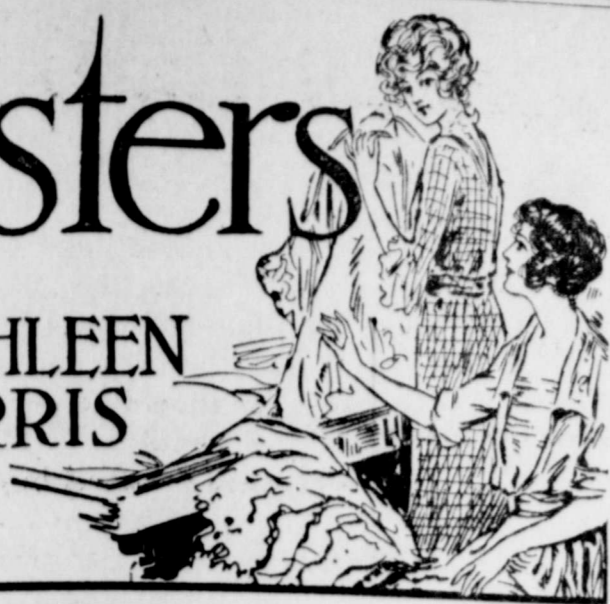

SUNSHINE INSIDE HOGHOUSE

Excellent Plan to Use Wire Gated Partitions—Keeps Building More Sanitary.

In order to get the most value from the sunshine inside the hoghouse is an excellent plan to use wire gates and partitions between the pens. This will allow the sun to get through the wire and reflect off the floor, so that the sunshine allows the floors to dry out and keeps the building more sanitary.

Sisters

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

PETER AND THE SISTERS.

Synopsis—Doctor Strickland, residing in Mill Valley, near San Francisco, has three daughters, Alix, 21, and Cherry, 18, and Anne, his niece, 15. Cherry is the closest friend of Peter Joyce, a visiting mining engineer. Alix is engaged to El Nido, a mine owner. Peter realizes that he loves Cherry. Justin Little wooed Anne. Cherry comes home for Anne's wedding.

"Well, we won't go into that!" her father interrupted her, hastily, for he had aired these views before and was not in sympathy with them. "I guess you're right; the child is a woman now, with a woman's responsibilities," he added. "And her life is with her husband. They'll have to solve life together, to learn to live together. I'll speak to Cherry."

Alix watched him walk away, and thought that she had never seen Dad so kind before. She saw the shadow of his kind face all the rest of that day.

It was only the next morning when she opened the question with Cherry. "It was a brilliant morning, with the sun already in the air. Cherry, on the porch steps, was reading a letter from Martin. Her father sat down beside her. She had on one of her old dresses and, bathed in soft sunlight, looked eighteen again. The air was sweet and pungent and damp and blue, and the sky high and blue, and the granite face of Tamalpais as soft as mist was floating.

"Well, what has Martin to say?" she asked. "Oh, he doesn't like it much!" Cherry said, making a little face. "He describes the village as perfectly hopeless. He's moved into the little house on E street, and gotten two stoves and a refrigerator."

"And when does he want his girl?" her father pursued. "He doesn't say," Cherry answered, demurely. "I think he is really happy to have me here, where he knows I'll be well off," she said. "I know I'll be well off," she ended after a moment's thought.

Her father was conscious of a pang; he had not even formed the thought that his own mind that Cherry was unhappy. The child, he told himself, had good husband, a home and health, and undeveloped resources within herself. It was puzzling and painful to him to realize that there was something more—and that that something was lacking. He felt a sudden anger at Martin; why wasn't Martin managing this affair?

"Don't mention any time!" he said. "Thank you!" Cherry said, smiling mischievously. "He wrote me the first of Christmas." "He added," but I told him that Dad had been such an angel and liked so much to have me here—" And Cherry's smile was full of childish triumph.

"My dear," her father said, spurred to sudden courage by a realization of the matter might easily become serious, "you mustn't abuse his generosity. Suppose you write that you'll join him—this is March—suppose you say the first of April?" Cherry flushed and looked down. Her lips trembled. There was a moment of unhappy silence.

"Very well, Dad," she said in a low voice. A second later she had jumped on her feet and vanished in the house. Her father roamed the woods in a dazed way, trying to find her in her place, but time to traces of tears about her eyes.

Nothing more was said for a day or two, and then Cherry read aloud to her father an affectionate letter in which Martin said that everything was ready for her whenever she pleased.

CHAPTER VII.

The last day of March and of Cherry's visit broke clear and blue, and it felt as if spring seemed to have come. Days had been soft and warm and this day was hot, and flushed with color and splendor. Alix and Cherry washed each other's hair in the old fashion, and came down with towels and combs to the garden. The doctor joined them in the midst of their toasting and reading, and sat smoking peacefully on the porch steps.

ter?" Cherry stated rather than asked. "Do you remember," she glanced at her father, who was reading his paper, "do you remember when Dad always used to scold us for being rude to Peter?"

"Well, I'd rather go to Peter's for dinner than anywhere else I ever go!" Alix remarked, dreamily. "Seriously, I mean it!" she repeated as Cherry looked at her in amused surprise. "In the first place, I love his bungalow—tiny as it is, it has the whole of a little canyon to itself, and the prettiest view in the valley, I think. And then I love the messy sitting room, with all the books and music, and I love the way Peter entertains. I wish," she added, simply, "that I liked Peter half as well as I do his house!"

"Peter's a dear!" Cherry contended. "Oh, I know he is!" Alix said, quickly. "Peter's always been a dear, of course. But I mean in a special sense—" finished Alix with an entirely unembarrassed grin.

Cherry, through a glittering cloud of hair, looked at her steadily. Suddenly she gave an odd laugh. "Do you know I never thought of Peter like that?" she said.

Alix nodded with a cautious look at her father, who was out of hearing. "No, nor I! We've always taken him rather for granted," she admitted. "Only I've been rather wishing, lately, that Peter wasn't such an unflattering, neighborly sort of person."

Cherry regarded her steadily, with an awakening look in her eyes. "Why lately?" she asked. "Because," said Alix, briskly and unromantically, "I think Peter would like me to—well, to stop taking him for granted! I imagine he's awfully lonely. And then I imagine it would please Dad—"

"Dad has always been ridiculously fond of him," Cherry said, thoughtfully. Peter—possibly in love with Alix! She had never even suspected it. Well, there was something rather pleasant in the thought, after all, if Alix didn't mind his ugliness and thinness. Cherry thought about it all day. She had no thought of money a year or two ago; but she was more experienced now. And Peter was rich.

Ordinarily she would have said that she was not going to change for Peter's dinner; but this afternoon, without mentioning the fact, she quietly got into one of her prettiest dresses; a dress that had been made in the long-ago excitement of troupeau days. Peter as a rather autocratic and critical neighbor was one thing; as a possible brother-in-law he was another.

She came downstairs to find her father waiting, and they walked away through the woods together. Alix had already gone up to Peter's house to play tennis. They walked slowly through the lovely aisles of the trees, crossing a road or two, climbing steadily upward under great redwoods. Cherry's skirt brushed the dust from masses and masses of buttercups. The tennis was over, but just over; Peter and Alix were sitting, still panting, on the rail of the wide, open porch, and shouted as the others came up.

"You missed doubles!" called Alix. "The grandest we ever did! Doubles with the Thompsons and three sets straight to us—six-two, six-two, and six-two again! They've gone. Oh, heavens, I never had such tennis. Oh, Peter, when you stood there at the net and just curved your hand like a cup"—Alix gave an enthusiastic imitation—"and over she went, and game and set!"

Cherry, sinking white and frilly into a chair, smiled indulgently. The walk had given her a wild-rose color, and even Alix was struck with her extraordinary beauty. Alix had wheeled about on the rail to face the porch, and Peter had gotten to his feet and was hospitably pushing basket chairs about. Now he gave Alix a critical look.

"You're disgracefully dirty!" he said, fraternally. "I know it," she answered, calmly. "Have I time to tub?" "All the time in the world!" he answered.

Alix departed. "It's very pleasant to me to have Alix so much at home here," Cherry said, when Alix was gone, and the doctor wandering happily about the garden. "I don't know what we'd do if any one ever usurped our places here!"

She had said it deliberately; the fascination of her recent discovery was too strong to resist. The man was too strong to resist. For a full minute she did not speak, and Cherry was surprised to find herself a little thrilled and even frightened by his silence.

"What put that into your head?" he asked, presently, smoking with his eyes fixed upon the valley far below. "Perhaps it's because there are so many changes, Peter; my marriage, Anne's—everything different! It just came to me that it is nice to have this always the same."

"Perhaps Alix will come up here and help keep it so some day," the man said, deliberately. Cherry's look of elaborate surprise and pleasure died before his serious glance. She was silent for a moment.

"Why don't you ask her?" she said in a low, thoughtful tone, trembling, eager to preserve his mood without a false note.

"I have," he answered simply. Cherry's heart jumped with a sudden unexpected emotion. What was it? Not pleasure, not all surprise—surely there could be no jealousy mixed with her feeling for Peter's plans? But she was dazed with the rush of feeling; hurt in some fashion she could not stop to dissect now.

"And she said no?" she stammered in confusion. "She said no. Or, at least, I intimated that I was a lonely old affectionate man with this and that to offer, and she intimated that that wasn't enough. I ought to have said—I ought to explain—that I had told her, only a few days previously, that I had always loved somebody else!"

"Oh-h-h!" Cherry was enlightened. She visualized an affair in the last years of the old century for Peter. "Oh, and—and she didn't love you?" Cherry asked.

"The lady? She was unfortunately married before I had a chance to ask her," said Peter. "Oh-h-h!" Cherry said again, impressed, "and you'll never get over it?" she asked, timidly. "Peter, I never knew that!" she added as he was silent. "Does—does Dad know?"

"Nobody knows but Alix, and she only knows the bare facts," he assured her. "Oh!" Cherry could think of nothing to add to the sympathetic little monosyllable.

"Finished with the shower!" shrieked Alix from the warm darkness inside the doorway. "Hurry up, Peter, something smells utterly grand!"

"That's the chicken thing!" Peter shouted back, springing up to disappear in the direction of the bathroom. Cherry sat on, silent, wrapped still in the new spell of the pleasant, the strangely appealing and yet masterful personality.

The dinner straggled as all Peter's dinners did; Alix mixed a salad dressing; Peter himself flashed in and out of the tiny, hot kitchen a hundred times. Kow, in immaculate linen, came back and forth in leisurely tabling. Suddenly everything was ready; the crisp, smoking-hot French loaf, the big, brown jar of bubbling and odorous chicken, the lettuce curled in its bowl, the long-necked bottles in their straw cases, and cheeses and crackers and olives and figs and tiny fish in oil and marmos in fluted paper that were a part of all Peter's dinners.

After dinner they watched the moon rise, until Alix drifted in to the piano and and Peter followed her, and the others came in, too, to sit beside the fire. As usual it was midnight before any one thought of ending one of Peter's evenings.

And all through the pleasant, quiet hours, and when he bundled them up in his own big loose coats to drive them home, Cherry was thinking of him in this new light; Peter loving a woman, and denied. The knowledge seemed to fling a strange glamor about him; she saw new charm in him, or perhaps, as she told herself, she saw for the first time how charming he really was. His speech seemed actually the pleasanter for the stammer at which they had all laughed years ago; the slight limp lent its own touch of individuality, and the man's blunt criticisms of books and music, and politics and people, were softened by his humor, his genuine humility, and his eager hospitality.

Next day she took occasion to mention Peter and his affairs to Alix. Alix turned fiery red, but laughed heartily.

"If he considers that an offer, he can consider it a refusal, I guess," she said, boyishly embarrassed. "I like him—I'm crazy about him. But I don't want any party in ringlets and crinolines to come floating from the dead past over my child's innocent craft!"

laughed. "You couldn't talk that way if you loved him!"

Alix laughed. "I suppose I ought to be a mass of blushes. The truth is, I like kids, and I don't like husbands!"

"You don't know anything about husbands!" Cherry laughed. "I know lots of men I'd like to go off with for a few months," Alix pursued. "But then I'd like to come home again! I don't see why that isn't perfectly reasonable—"

"Well, it's not!" Cherry declared almost crossly. "That isn't marriage. You belong where your husband is, and you—you are always glad to be with him—"

"But suppose you get tired of him, like a job or a boarding-house, or any of your other friends?" Alix persisted idly.

"Well, you aren't supposed to!" Cherry said, feebly. Alix let her have the last word; it was only due to her superior experience, she thought crossly. But half an hour later, lying wakeful, and thinking that she would miss dear old Cherry tomorrow, she fancied she heard something like a sob from Cherry's bed, and her whole heart softened with sympathy for her sister.

They came downstairs together the next day in midafternoon, both hatted and wrapped for the trip, for Peter was to take Cherry as far as Sausalito in the car, and Martin by a fortunate chance was to meet them there at the ferryboat for San Francisco. Mill Valley was not more than an hour's ride from the ferry. Alix was to drive down and return with Peter. Cherry said good-by to her father on the porch; she seemed more of a puzzled child than ever.

"I've had a wonderful visit, Dad—" she began bravely. Suddenly the tears came. She buried her face against her father's shabby old office coat and his arms went about her. Alix laughed awkwardly, and Peter shut his teeth. Anne, who had very properly come over to say good-by to her cousin, got in the back seat of the car and Alix took the seat beside her.

Cherry saw in Peter's expression something that she did not forget for many, many months—never quite forgot. His eyes were fixed upon her with something so yearning, so loving, so troubled in their gaze that a thrill went through Cherry from head to foot. He instantly averted his look, turned to the car, fumbled with the gears; they were off.

Cherry, tied trimly into a hat that was all big daisies, was silent for a while. But when Alix and Anne commenced an interested conversation in the back seat, she suddenly said regretfully:

"Oh, I hate to go away this time! I mind it more even than the first time!" Peter, edging smoothly about a wide blue puddle, nodded sympathetically, but did not answer.

"I envy Alix—" Cherry said in idle mischief. She knew that the subject was not a safe one, but was irresistibly impelled to pursue it. "Alix?" said Peter, after a silence long enough to make her feel ashamed of herself.

"Yes. Her young man lives in Mill Valley, right near home!" elucidated Cherry.

"Am I Alix's young man?" he asked, amused. "Well, aren't you?" "I don't know. I've never been any one's young man," said Peter.

"Whoever the woman who treated you meanly is—I hate her!" Cherry began again. "Unless," she added, "unless she was very young, and you never told her!"

He did not answer, and they spun along in utter silence. But when they were nearing Sausalito, Cherry said almost timidly:

"I think perhaps it would make her happy—and proud, to know that you admired her, Peter. I don't know who she is, of course, but almost any woman would feel that. I shall often think of that talk we had a week ago, and—think of you, too. N-n-next time you fall in love I hope you will be luckier!"

Silence. But he gave her his quick, friendly smile. Cherry dared not speak again. "Last stop—all out!" Alix exclaimed. "You get tickets, Peter. Hurray, there's Martin!"

Unexpectedly Martin's big figure came toward them from the ferry gate. Some ore from the mine had to be assayed in San Francisco, and he had volunteered to make the trip so that he might meet his wife and bring her back with him to Red Creek. Time hanging on his hands in the city, he had crossed the bay for the pleasure of the return trip with Cherry. He met them beamingly. There was a little confusion of greeting and good-bys. Alix and Peter watched the others at the railing until the ferryboat turned. Martin smiled over Anne's head; Cherry, both little white-gloved hands on the rail, blue eyes and a glint of bright hair showing under the daisies on her hat, her small figure enveloped in a big loose coat, looked as if she would like to cry again.

ROAD BUILDING

DEVICE FOR TREATING SAND

Engineers of California Bureau of Public Roads Use Blower to Obtain Material.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A new method of treating a local sand to make it conform to the specifications for a concrete road has been adopted by the engineers of the bureau of public works in charge of California federal-aid project No. 41. Near the south end of the project no local sand could be found which would conform to the requirements of the specifications approved by the bureau of roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. These prescribed that the sand should contain no more than 5 per cent of material which would pass a 100-mesh sieve. The local sand analyzed about 15 to 20 per cent, which was entirely too high to permit its use.

Instead of falling back upon the importation of suitable sand from another locality, the engineers devised a plant for blowing the fine particles from the sand. This district is extremely arid, and in summer the temperature sometimes mounts to 120 degrees in the shade, so that the sand is very dry when worked. The device used consists of an ordinary conveyor, which lifts the sand to a revolving screen. Material which will pass a one-fourth-inch mesh is discharged into a hopper under the screen and then through a narrow opening into a storage bin below. In falling from the hopper to the bin, the sheet of sand passes directly in front of a nozzle, which directs against it a current of air from a centrifugal air blower. By means of a pressure regulator at the blower, the velocity of the air at the nozzle can be so controlled as to blow from the falling sand any desired percentage of the finer material.

The blower is operated by a belt from the same gas engine which operates the conveyor and revolving screen. The whole device is compact and inexpensive. The result is a satisfactory sand obtained at less cost than by any other method. The success of the plan depends, of course, on their dryness of the sand. If it were necessary to dry it, the increased cost of treatment might make the importation of suitable material preferable.

TOURIST TRAFFIC PAYS BIG

Increase of Americans Into Canada Expected to Pay for Ontario's Highway System.

It is anticipated that American tourist traffic will pay for the installation and upkeep of Ontario's highways system. This traffic has increased remarkably since the Toronto-Hamilton highway was built, and already annual revenue from this source runs into millions of dollars. During 1929 approximately 37,500 American motorists crossed the border into Ontario, remaining from one hour to six months.

The question is not so much how you contract a cold, but how to get out of it with the least loss of time and inconvenience. If you will consider the experience of others under similar circumstances, who have been most successful in checking their colds, in their beginning, you will receive a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay, and use it faithfully. There are many families who have used this preparation, successful for years and hold it in high esteem. It is excellent.

NEW DOLLAR IN CIRCULATION

This month the new Peace Dollar has gone into circulation. This is the first time the design of the American dollar has been changed since 1878, and the design will remain the same for twenty five years, unless changed by legislation. The coin laws prohibit any change in the design of standard silver dollars for that period, except by special act of Congress.
The new dollar has the head of Liberty on one side and on the other a dove upon a mountain top, clutching an olive branch, with the word "Peace" beneath it.
About 500,000 of the new dollars will carry the date of 1921, and the remainder will carry the date of the year in which they are coined. The first of the new dollars coined was presented to President Harding.
