WELCOME

TO EASTLAND

Funeral Services Held Saturday

Funeral services were held Saturday, September 19, at 3:00 o'clock in Cisco for Mr. Jim Ray, whose home was near Cisco and who had been ill in his home for several days.

Mr. Ray had been a resident of Eastland county for a number of years and had made many friends near here.

He is survived by three sons, Will of Cisco and Walter and Bird of the Reagan community, and a daughter, Mrs. Ed Daniels, of Eastland.

Mr. L. M. Cawley returned to his home at 303 North Oak street Monday from a trip to Mattamoros and other southern points.

Amarillo Meets Ranger the 25th

Ranger, Texas, Sept. 17.—Coach Blair Cherry of the Amarillo Sandies will bring his team to Ranger Friday, September 25 to play the Ranger Bulldogs. Coach Cherry's team was runner-up for the State Championship last year, being defeated by Tyler.

The game will probably draw the biggest crowd of any exhibition game to be played in the Oil Belt this season, as Cherry coached the Ranger Bulldogs for four years and was one of the most popular coaches in this section. He also won the West Texas Championship for Ranger in 1926.

Ranger played her first exhibition game last Friday against Stephenville, Class B team, and defeated the Yellowjackets by a score of 58 to 0.

About 60 huskies are working out every day at Lillard field and the prospects look good for Coaches Curtis and Ward to put a team on the field that will average at least 170 throughout. Thirteen lettermen are back this year.

Eastland County Free Fair Opens Today at 7:00 p. m., Closes Sat.

All committees have announced ready, flags are flying and all the concessions are ready for the biggest and best fair staged here in years.

Our neighboring cities are coming in with us to help make our fair a grand success. Tonight, Wednesday, will be Cisco's contribution. The Chamber of Commerce under the leadership of Secretary J. E. Spencer and vocational teacher E. H. Varnell will present from the platform a program varied in nature and most amusing and entertaining in character. After this the American Legion will present their contribution from the same platform.

This all in addition to the attractions along the mid-way and dance to be staged by the Legion in the building at the entrance of the mid-way.

There will be fun and amusement for both old and young and a cordial invitation is extended to all to visit the fair as many days as possible.

The farm products of your county are attractively displayed in the store windows and offer much in return for your visit to the different stores.

Thursday night the rural communities will compete for prizes in the singing contest.

Friday night other rural communities will present one act dramas.

Saturday night the Chamber of Commerce of Ranger under the management of Secretary Wayne C. Hickey will give us the honor of listening to the famous American Legion Tickleville band.

There will be plenty of good band music for our Eastland Booster Band under the leadership of Prof. A. J. Campbell will play each evening. Then we are to have the Lone Star Band of Ranger led by Prof. Campbell for a forty minute concert Friday evening. The Cisco and Ranger high school bands will give a concert on their nights. The Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce will send their band of boosters and greeters to lend cheer to the midway of Friday evening.

Prof. W. H. Darrow of the A. & M. College Extension service will be here Thursday and Friday to take movie pictures of the mid-way features and crowds.

Patriotic Program Held Thursday

The 144th birthday of the Constitution of the United States was celebrated at Eastland high school Thursday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock.

The program opened with a song, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia," sung by the student body with Mr. Stewart at the piano. Followed by "America." Announcements by Mr. Palm. A talk about the "Critical Period" of the Constitution by Miss Bell Wilson. The "Leaders" of the Constitution and mention of their work by Mrs. W. D. R. Owen. A "Summary" of the clauses of the Constitution by Fletcher McWilliams.

A few quotations from the speakers' declarations are given below: "Critical Period:" After the treaty of peace which closed the Revolutionary War so many problems confronted the nation from 1783 to 1789 that historians designated this time as the critical period. Among the dangers were disputes with England and Spain financial problems, foreign debts, paper money, no executive or judiciary, dissatisfaction in the army, etc. The infant republic was struggling to rank as a respected nation among the great powers and to put her own household in order.

"Leaders:" A more distinguished assembly America has never seen than those who composed the Constitution. The real strength lay in the very fact that it included men of different abilities, temperaments, experiences, natures, imaginations and sympathies. Washington and Franklin being among the greatest men. All honor to the men on the 144th anniversary of their completion of their task.

After which, announcements by Mr. Stewart. Adjourning for an enthusiastic rally by the band and pep squad on the Square.

Mr. L. H. Fluellen of Ranger was in the courthouse on business Monday.

Mr. D. Carroll, deputy sheriff of Rising Star, was a visitor in Eastland Monday.

ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE AUTHOR

by ETHEL HUSTON

"See here," said Peter angrily, what sort of tommyrot is this any how? This lady is too old for the Juvenile Court. Why, she is her own mistress. She's twenty-three years old."

"Well, according to the complaint from New York, there is nothing we can do about it. Our orders are to put you under arrest. You'll have to talk to the judge."

"But Peter," cried Rowena, "are you going to let them arrest us for not being married, when we are married! Look at all the trouble we've had. That's proof enough."

"But why should they say you are only pretending to be married if you really are married?"

"Well, who says so? That's the first question. Where did the complaint come from anyhow?"

"From a gentleman in New York by the name of Carter Wellman—"

"You can fix this up," said the officer. "You got influential friends, ain't you? They'll fix you up all right. All they got to do is swear they know all about you and every thing's jake and there you are. You just hop down private in your own car with Bill here to show you the way—this is Bill Harmon—fine chap, too—he'll go down with you and introduce you to the judge. He's a swell gent, the judge is. He'll see how things are in a jiffy."

It was the simplest way out, and the officers made it as easy for them as possible, allowed them to walk unescorted through the lobby of the hotel and waited at a respectful distance when Peter stopped to send a telegram, which he wrote with a very firm hand and signaled for Rowena to come and read. It was addressed to Carter Wellman.

"Are you going to marry Roberta Lowell immediately on her return to New York, or are you not? If your engagement is canceled, as she believes, I shall marry her myself immediately. A rolling brown dumpling grthers nothing but trouble for all concerned. Please state your exact intentions."

"But you can't marry her," protested Rowena. "You're married now." "Well, he don't believe it.—And Rackruff, Inc., will pay for that wire if I have to steal a spare tire to get it."

The judge proved extremely sympathetic and agreed with Peter that it was an outrage, no less, the way people in love embroiled innocent bystanders in the tangled web of their affairs. He had his secretary send a wire to Denver to verify the marriage and to Rackruff Motors, Inc., in New York, for the details of the trip and complete information regarding Rowena and Peter. He even sent for the local Rackruff dealer, who fortunately turned out to be both a native son and a Brother Elk. He was willing to stand entirely responsible for their appearance if required.

Besides seeing to their freedom he made Rowena a present of a friendly little dog which he had found in his showrooms that morning and which Rowena promptly proceeded to call Constantine. Peter grumbled at the addition to their party but was overruled.

And so Rowena had a companion on the rumble seat from then on.

By the salesman's good offices they were enabled to return to the hotel without police escort or surveillance of any kind.

In the early morning Peter read to the girls the answer to his personal telegram.

"Such has been and is my intention," read the telegram. "I am probably the last man living entirely honorable in my dealings with women. Our engagement is not ended and if you interfere I shall sue. Plan to marry her instant of her arrival. In fact, expect to meet her with license, ring and minister. Wire what train."

So at ten-ten Peter and Rowena stood side by side under the quaint tiled portico of the Santa Fe station and waved a fond—and not ungrateful—farewell to little Brown Bobby.

The misadventures of Bobby's return and their legal entanglements in Los Angeles had keyed them to a high nervous tension, but when they had left the limits of the city a sudden quiet restfulness descended upon them. Rowena drooped drowsily against his shoulder.

"Shall I put up the umbrella in the rumble seat?" Peter asked facetiously. But Rowena pretended she was asleep.

By the time they reached the outskirts of San Diego, Peter as well as Rowena confessed to a complete exhaustion, mental as well as physical. They pulled up at the U. S. Grant Hotel. There was no boy in sight and Peter, unwilling to waste a moment, himself carried their bags into the lobby and hurried over to the desk. He was surprised at being immediately accommodated with two single rooms.

Their good fortune followed them and they both had a real good night's rest.

Peter had all the bags stored neatly away in the car the next morning, ready for their start for the East, when Rowena tripped out of the hotel, leading the freshly washed Constantine on a brand-new leash attached to a brand-new collar.

"Gosh, Rowena," ejaculated Peter, "what'll we do with the mut? I forgot about him?"

"Do with Constantine?" she echoed. "Why, we'll buy him a nice silk cushion to ride on, and get him a fresh bone every day. And charge it all to Rackruff."

Peter did his best picture at Grand Canyon, one which brought him no small amount of praise and profit. It was the Rackruff and Rowena riding through the rainbow fringe, with Constantine's queer, quaint black and white head nodding approbation beside her.

Rowena was not having the best of luck with her work in those declining weeks of their tour. She kept a ledger and note book constantly at hand, even teaching Constantine to carry them for her on command, but ideas were not coming to her with much frequency. For the first time in her life Rowena did not feel like writing, did not want to be bothered, and it may as well be added, her writing was far below its usual standard.

They lapsed into comfortable silence. They did not quarrel so much when they were alone—there seemed less point to it. To be sure, when occasion required, they would wither each other with a scathing word, but they never went to the old lengths.

In Albuquerque, when Peter had registered and called for their mail he was handed half a dozen telegrams and two or three letters.

"Nothing for Miss Rostand," said the clerk.

"What!" ejaculated Rowena. "Nothing for me? Not anything? Why, Buddy always—he surely must have written. Oh, please look again! There must be at least one!"

The clerk obligingly ran through the mail again.

"Sorry—not a thing," he said again.

"Dear me," said Rowena thoughtfully. "How extremely odd!"

Alone in his room Peter took off his coat and settled down to his mail. A quick glance at the letters told him they were of no special importance and he turned to the telegrams. The two that he opened first were from the company, but the third started off on an odd note.

"Darling, I hate to ask you again," Peter read, his eyes starting with surprise. Devil's own luck. Lost fifty bucks at craps. Got to have it this week or they will chuck me out. Rush it by wire. Wish I hadn't played." It was signed "Buddy."

To Peter it made no sense at all. He turned it over and scrutinized the address again. Ah! That explained it. It was addressed not to "Mr." but to "Mrs. Peter Blande."

His mind traveled back over the trip. Buddy—that was her brother—Ronald Rostand. Ready for his third year in college and taking summer (Continued on page 3) courses to cut down the time and expense. Rowena had received a letter or telegram from his at every stop enroute. He remembered her subsequent counting of bills and rush for a telegraph office—her complete financial stringency—the way she starved herself, eschewing all desserts—her thousand painful small economies.

Now Peter realized fully what it meant—this thing that he was going to do. Knew quite well that when Buddy wrote back in complaint of this unwarranted outside interference Rowena's rage would be beyond bounds.

They had talked sometimes of the future when their motor tour was over, thought they would probably be good friends in later years when their business vicissitudes were separate and distinct, and no longer bound up by compulsion in each other's work and wish. But if Peter flung open insult at Buddy, the sacred cow! he sneered—all such hopes for the future were null and void. Well, Peter told himself, he didn't know that he cared. After all he didn't get on so very well with Rowena. But she was a good sport—the best sport he had ever seen—and observed a Louter break than Buddy was giving her.

Peter's grip on the pen made it a sword as he gave form to his scathing thoughts.

"Granting to begin with that it is none of my business," he wrote heavily, it nevertheless affords me great pleasure to tell you that in my opinion you are an un-peak-able cad. You may not know—of course you do not know, for Rowena is one Rostand who is a good sport and would not throw up her privations to you—that in order to let you satiate demands for aoney, your sister, tired and exhausted as she is by her work and long driving, has saved money by doing her own laundry in the bath-tub nights has starved herself on soup and coffee and gone without a proper meal for days at a time.

"Better men than you have worked their way through college. For Rowena's sake I myself am sending you the fifty bucks.

"It is of course quite unnecessary for me to explain that Rowena does not know that you wired for this money nor that I am sending it. Your telegram was handed to me by mistake and I opened it under the impression it was for me."

And without an instant's hesitation

The Vacation Casualty List

he endorsed his sentiments with the signature that would one day be worth thousands—"Peter Blande."

Peter was pretty uncomfortable about the whole business. He was not used to any sort of double dealing and was not at all sure but at any moment officers of the law—or perhaps the telegraph company—would hale him away to jail to expiate his unwarranted manipulation of other people's affairs by telegraph.

At El Paso Rowena had two letters. She sat right down in the nearest chair to read them, and Peter stalked moodily from cigar stand to desk and back again, and watched her furtively.

Peter could stand it no longer. "Buddy O. K.?" he inquired anxiously.

"He's entirely too O. K. I'm worried."

"You can't be too O. K.," protested

Peter. "Nobody can—What do you mean?"

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

An active mind must have exercise in order to last long and prove the utmost in efficiency. Nothing endures long if allowed to rust, mold, decay. I have seen many men to whom mental idleness was a deadly bore. You've found it that way, haven't you? Wholesome activity is one of the best things, positively beneficial to the intellectual human being.

Even the eye is said to require systematic exercise, if the owner would preserve good eyesight far into life's arctic regions. Men who are dunned up in big cities rarely employ the eyes to see over a few blocks; they become accustomed to short distances and fine print. Hence the army of spectacle wearers, most of them bifocals. The aged resident of the great open spaces often does not need glasses at three score and ten! Wholesome exercise for the eyes.

The imprisoned muscle of the intellectual is never more than fifty per cent normal—often much lower. We are growing into a race of intellectuals, at the price of rugged, vigorous health.

But, be sure to get this: EXERCISE IS NOT TORTURE. No man gives his eyes exercise, reading diminutive, blurred type, with the over-stuffed publication held eight inches from his face, often with a poor light. He inflicts punishment of the most dangerous kind.

It is the same of the mind. To overwork the mental faculties is almost as fatal to them as profound laziness—idleness. I shudder for the fool that races his mind day and night—that gives it no rest in the mad chase for coin. Remember, the crash is out yonder in front, not so far as you think.

The muscles—those wonderful hinges, pulleys, levers! Exercise them, but stop short of punishment, if you would keep physically fit.

WORKER'S CONF. MET AT MERRIMAN TUES.

The monthly workers conference of the Cisco Baptist Association which was held with the Merriman church Tuesday of this week was well attended. In addition to the program which was carried out as planned, organization was set up to conduct the Fall Stewardship Campaign which is being carried on throughout the Southern Baptist Convention. Those chosen to conduct the campaign are: Director, Rev. W. R. Underwood; Pastor's Helper, Rev. W. T. Turner; Sunday School Director, Rev. H. H. Stephens; B. Y. P. U. Director, Rev. James; W. M. U. Director, Mrs. W. T. Turner; Publicity, Rev. Neil Greer. This organization is set up for the purpose of leading the churches in a campaign to enlist individuals as stewards for the Master. Study Courses in stewardship will be taught and speakers will emphasize stewardship from now until December 1. At that time tithers will be enrolled and subscriptions taken on next year's church budgets.

Those attending from Eastland were Mes. Lee Campbell, J. B. Overton, Ghent, Sandeford, R. E. Weatherford, John Norton, Roark, S. C. Walker, Drake, F. V. Williams, Don Brewer, L. V. Simmons, Cecil Nelson, Alice Burgamy, Jno. Matthews, L. Nash, Miss Sallie Morris and Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Turner.

HUMORETTES

"So Mrs. Riggs started going to church again Change of heart?" "No, hat."

"And you mean to stand there and tell me that Lungheigh was killed by a bolt from a clear sky?" "Sure, a workman on a 20-story building dropped the bolt."

1st Stude (writing home) — How do you spell "financially?"

2nd Stude — Financially, and but he saved my wife the trouble. There are two R's in "embarrassed."

Teacher — If Columbus were alive today, wouldn't he be looked upon as a remarkable man?

Jimmy — I'll tell the world. We would be 500 years old.

"I hope you are not one of those men who go home and find fault with the dinner," said Kidder.

"No," replied Growcher, "my wife and I eat at a restaurant where we both can find fault."

Hornblower — I heard that a bandit relieved you of your pocketbook last night.

Windjammer — No relief for me.

"At 20 you left the farm and came to the city. And for 30 years have been working like the dickens. What for?"

"In order to get money enough to live in the country."

"Yes," said the facetious barber, "we're up-to-date here. We shave you while you wait."

"Indeed," replied Fuller Peppe. "I've usually found that you shave several others while I wait."

"Does your grandpa wear a full beard?"

"No, he's always careful when he eats."

RASPBERRY GIVES FILLIP TO SUMMER

As soon as the raspberry is plentiful it behooves the clever cook to plan many ways of serving it.

Raspberries are one of the most delicate fruits that belong to our summer season. Good as they are just plain, they are good in many other ways, which you should learn.

Raspberry Muffins

Cream a heaping teaspoon of butter with a cup of sugar, add two eggs well beaten, a pinch of salt, one and one-half cups of milk, and enough flour sifted with a heaping teaspoon of baking powder to make a stiff batter. Stir in a pint of berries dredged with flour, bake in petty pans, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and serve hot with butter.

Raspberry Bavarian Cream

Two cups of raspberry juice, half cup sugar, three tablespoons gelatin, one-quarter cup cold water, two tablespoons lemon juice, two cups cream, whipped. Soften the gelatin in cold water then add one cup of the raspberry juice and beat carefully over hot water until the gelatin is dissolved. Cool and add the rest of the juice, the sugar and the lemon juice. Set the jelly to harden to the consistency of cream; whip the cream and beat it into the jelly.

Raspberry Sherbet

Raspberry sherbet can be made with a quart of water and a pint of sugar boiled together for ten minutes. To this add a teaspoon of granulated gelatin that has been soaked in a little cold water and strain. When it is cold add a pint of raspberry juice and the juice of two lemons. Freeze very hard. A variation of the above recipe is to make the raspberry sherbet as described, and to fill in the center of the sherbet when the dasher is removed, with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with a little vanilla.

Raspberry Mousse

Run through the sieve enough raspberries to make two cups of pulp. Add a cup of powdered sugar and fold into a pint of cream whipped cold. Turn into a mould, cover, and lay in salt and ice for four hours.

Raspberry Charlotte

Arrange small sponge cakes in a serving dish, spread with crushed sweetened raspberries, cover with whipped cream, and serve. The stiffly beaten whites of six eggs mixed with enough sugar to make a good meringue may be used instead of the cream.

Raspberry Jam

Wash and pick the berries, boil with a little water, mashing and scraping from the bottom as they simmer. When reduced to a thick pulp add one-half pound sugar to each pound berries. Stew till very thick, scraping constantly from the bottom. Cool in a large bowl, then put in a glass jar with a screw top.

Raspberry Shortcake

Raspberry shortcake is one of the delicious possibilities of this time of year. To make it with biscuit crust, roll a rich biscuit crust thin. Cut and put two disks, big enough to fit in

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for September 27

THE SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY IN ASIA

Golden Text Acts 14:27

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

This review lesson is of special importance because of the large amount comprehended in the quarter's lessons and since the regular study has been interrupted in many cases by reason of summer vacations. Begin by reading in Acts from Chapter 1 through 15:35. You will need your map constantly. The map that will help you most is the one that you draw as each new place is named.

Gloom incident to the crucifixion and then the Ascension of Jesus Christ was fully dispelled by the stupendous events that took place in Jerusalem on the Jewish feast of Pentecost. After the disciples had the ten day prayer meeting the dispensation of the Holy Spirit began with the awe inspiring manifestation, followed by the spiritually effective preaching of Peter when thousands believed that the Crucified was Messiah and Savior of Mankind.

Preaching and personal work followed, and miracles were confirming signs that attracted the attention of the people. Peter was no longer the coward to cringe before the sneer of a serving maid. The lame man was healed in the temple. When the authorities commanded that such preaching cease, Peter replied, "We must obey God rather than man."

Church organization was developed as occasion required and the order of deacons was established to give adequate attention to the worthy poor. Giving money is part of true religion. Persecution arose because of the very success of the early church. Deacon Stephen became the first martyr and deacon Philip did fine work in Samaria and as a missionary to the eunuch. Believers were scattered and Saul of Tarsus was changed from chief persecutor to an ardent believer and evangelist.

a cake or pie pan. Spread one with butter, put the other on top of it, and bake golden brown. Then remove from the pan to a serving plate, take off the top layer—the butter will make this easy. Spread the bottom layer thickly with sweetened and crushed raspberries. Pile more raspberries on the top layer. Serve with a sauce made of crushed and sweetened berries.

This shortcake may also be made with cake layers. The berries are put between and on top of two layers, sweetened and piled up with whipped cream.

Our old easy layer cake makes a good foundation for this kind of shortcake. Here it is! Sift together three times a cup and a half of flour with a scant cup of sugar, three level teaspoons of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Break two eggs in a measuring cup and fill the cup with milk. Add to the dry ingredients and mix thoroughly and then add five tablespoons of melted butter. Bake in two layers. Add a teaspoon of vanilla if you like.

By J. L. Cottingham

Milburn McCarthy says neither a prophet nor a bedbug are ever welcomed in their own home towns. Saw Virge Foster carrying a full set of mule harness into the courthouse the other morning—I wonder if Steele Hill is going to be hitched to the plow.

You know Ben Hamner wrote that piece telling everybody that I had not been dipped for ticks. It was a mean trick to let that out on me and it has almost made me a social outcast—nobody will have anything to do with me but Doss and John Teatsorth. For quite a while after the boys came back from France it was considered fashionable to be inhabited by parasites but that fad has worn out and I think that if a fellow has the misfortune to be infested with cattle ticks, he ought to have the sympathy of the public and not be held up to ridicule in the newspapers. I am sure we are all thoroughly ashamed of Ben.

J. J. Newsome has a green headed parrot and a red headed wife—he ought to have music wherever he goes. I do not like the new post-office—every time I walk through that narrow passage I always think how awful it would be if John Mouser and Lou Teatsorth ever came after their mail at the same time. I promised to use that crack as my own—Walter Gray said he did not want any credit for it.

I had to buy Hooker a drink yesterday—this is news because it usually is the other way. I see Jean Day has had a falling out with Ben Hamner and has moved to more cheerful quarters at Fred Yonkers' fruit stand. Oscar Chastain is now giving lectures on political economy in front of the Texas State Bank. Frank Sparks claims he has bought a new suit. Merrit Hines is keeping company with another elocution teacher—seems to have forgotten the last one. That is all the legal news.

Neal Day has closed a very successful season as manager of the Eastland Giants. He is going to take a short six months rest, seated on the ice box at the Corner Drug Store but he wants the public to know that he is giving the matter of building up a championship team for next year plenty of thought. He does not expect to go to flying school this year.

John Ernest has taken to rolling his own. If he would use cornshucks, they would pass for tamales. Curtis Hertig and Ed Freyschlag are doing their best to get their money's worth out of those white pants while the hot weather lasts. Dr. Payne has a new fall hat.

Fred Davenport tried to sell me a new car—I was very nice to him but I really think that anyone that thought I had money enough to buy a car ought to be taken before a lunacy commission.

Sid Pietzer has designed a dress and hat for the high school pep squad. Mrs. Wolf and Joe Cole are also coming out with suggestions for decorating the cheer girls—that ought to be an interesting scrap.

Curtis Hertig thinks Cisco may have to issue bonds to support their football team this year.

Hunter says I am as good as McIntyre—laugh that off if you can. I gave him a quarter—that would have been cheap at half the price. Well, I got to shut down, I am holding the prizes.

Further deponent sayeth not. I thank you.
