Attorneys for the gas company filed a motion to transfer the case to the federal court, and then filed a motion for dismissal when it came up Tuesday. The motion was upheld.

The case of C. F. Shepperd, who had won judgement in justice court here for $1.53 alleged overcharge on a gas bill, was also taken into the federal court and likewise dismissed.

Russian Chorus Is Coming Here

Announcements made by Eastland high school of the appearance here of the world-famous Royal Russian Chorus at Eastland high school on Saturday, April 16, are creating a distinct furor in local music circles and the success of their concert seems to be assured, as the advance seat sales has started very briskly, at the high school.

The Royal Russian Chorus has the distinction of probably having sung before, and been received by more Royalty than any other musical organization in the world. On two occasions under the personal direction of Prince Dmitry Slaviansky, the original founder of the choir, they sang before the Pope in Rome and at St. Peter's Cathedral. On their first European tour they were given over 50 medals, decorations and diplomas.

In Spain, they received the Order of Chivalry from the King and the silver medal of honor from the Ateneo Musical and Art Society of Madrid. King Edward, of England, bestowed upon them the British Medal of music and invited them to sing at Windsor Castle.

On their first American tour, the President invited them to sing at the White House, in Washington, and bestowed upon them the first, and possibly the only, Presidential medal ever given to a musical organization.

Their most recent Royal honors were bestowed upon them in Japan two years ago at the X coronation ceremony in Kyete, where they were invited by the Japanese government as a special foreign entertainment feature of the enthronement festivities, and Princess Slaviansky, the present conductor, was given an imperial medal. The Imperial Conservatory of Music, Tokyo, also honored her by making her an Honorary Member of their faculty, the first foreign woman to have ever received this honor. Their present American tour is under the personal direction of Walter Lowe, well known Pacific Coast Impresario.

This magnificent group of singers and dancers, with balalaika instruments will appear here on Saturday, April 16, giving both matinee and evening performances, under the local management of Eastland high school who is to be commended for its civic spirit in sponsoring this famous organization. Tickets are now on sale at high school at popular prices. A matinee performance will be given at 2:30 p. m. and the evening program will begin at 8:00 p. m.

THE CITY ELECTION

Tuesday's election puts into office, as city commissioners, three of Eastland's most popular business men.

Six good men were in the race, all running on the same platform, and the majority of the voters have spoken in favor of Frank Castleberry, Neil Moore, and M. L. Keasler—all of them pledged to support the very same program outlined by the people.

The election is a victory for the people, not only in that three business men were placed in charge of the city's affairs, who are pledged to do their best to lower taxes, gas and water rates, but they were placed there by one of the largest votes ever cast at a city election, over 700 having voted. Such heavy voting indicates interested voters and informed voters, which makes for better government.

It is the aim of the Record to bring to the people as much news as possible of the affairs of the city—encouraging interest in such affairs, bringing out big votes, thereby putting into office the choice of the majority.

The entire citizenship should get behind the new commissioners and lend every support. These men are taking office at a time when our city is badly in need of cooperative effort.

The problems which confront our city and with which these new commissioners will have to deal are of the utmost importance; they effect the very life of our city. The stage is all set, the wishes of the people are known, and with proper cooperation and hard work the affairs of our city can be put into such shape as to make Eastland a desirable place in which to live.

The new commissioners are to be congratulated on the support they received from the voters Tuesday and the best wishes of all for success during their administration.

LETTERS from Our Readers

The city election is over and the Citizen's ticket lost. Because of my activity in behalf of the losing side, I think it proper to make a statement for publication:

We contend that the other side adopted our platform and even promised the people more than we did. In any event the two main issues, reduction of taxes and gas rates were the same, in each platform, but the other side claimed they had a better method to bring about this reduction.

The other side convinced a majority of the people who voted that the "Regular Candidates" could better bring about the issues and principles we were all fighting for, and I believe that no stone should be thrown in the way to prevent the city commission as now elected from doing this work, or any other part for the betterment of Eastland.

While the fight for the principles we stand for has just started, but results is what we want; and, the winning ticket claims the result can be brought about best by their method, and I believe we should be fair and give them every opportunity to live up to their platform promises. Personally, I am not sore at anybody and will be glad to lend a helping hand. CHAS. C. ROBEY.

Editor, Record—

It seems that there is some confusion in the minds of the people regarding the suit filed by the local gas company in which the federal court enjoined the City of Eastland from enforcing the ordinance relative to prices to be charged by the company for gas.

This suit has not been tried and the City has a motion pending to dismiss the plaintiff's bill on the grounds that the company has not exhausted its remedy before the Railroad Commission. This motion will be heard soon and it is the opinion of many lawyers that the suit against the city will be dismissed. Of course if the injunction should be made permanent, there will be no necessity for the gas company to further prosecute its appeal to the Railroad Commission, as the city will be deprived of any power to act and the present rate will be continued until such time as the Gas Company experiences pity for the people of Eastland.

The suits already determined, arose by reason of their interference with the jurisdiction of the federal court in the original case and do not affect the main suit. Judge R. N. Grisham advises me that the hearing on the City's motion has been set down for April 14.

One Act Play Contest

HAZEL TILLEY

The District One Act Play contest was held in the Eastland high school auditorium March 31. The plays were given in the afternoon and evening performances with good attendance at each.

The first play, put on by Cisco High School, was a tragedy, "The Valiant," by Halworthy Hall and Robert Middlemas. This play was given first place by the judges. It was an excellent play and excellently rendered. The star of the performance was Frank Reynolds as James Dyke, "The Valiant."

The second play was a comedy rendered by the Stephenville High School. Although the play lacked force, the cast deserve much credit, especially the would be comic opera writer who wore long hair musician style and acted accordingly.

Mineral Wells high school offered the third play which was a light comedy by Edith Wade Harte, "Flyin." The play was fair and the acting was exceedingly good. Everyone was immediately attracted to Tony, the son of Ma Perkins. The play was given third place by the judges.

The fourth play, rendered by Ranger high school, was a tragedy by Hildegarde Flanner, "Mansions," an excellent play, presented exceedingly well. The girl who played the part of Lydia accidentally fell, but she gracefully carried off her part and held her poise on the stage. This play was given second place.

The fifth play was a melodrama, "Storm Before Sunset," by Willis K. Jones, presented by Breckenridge Senior High School. The play was given atmosphere through excellent outside effects, but was disqualified because a pistol was used as stage property.

The sixth and last play, "Mansions" by Hildegarde Flanner, was presented by Eastland high school. The play was well rendered and we are exceedingly proud of our Dramatic Club. We feel that our actors did well in their parts. The play was acted with a smoothness and polish that was almost professional. Perhaps in a place or so the characters were a bit too dramatic, but taking into consideration their scanty knowledge of the art of dramatics and their lack of experience we feel inclined to expect great things from them in the future.

We wish to congratulate Miss Russell on her stage set. Without a doubt it was the most appropriate set, in regard to the play given, that was placed on the stage.

The Junior Play

The play to be presented by the Junior Class this year has already been selected and work on it is well under way. It is "The Arrival of Kitty," a three act comedy which will be given on the evening of April 22, in the high school auditorium. Prices have not yet been determined.

This is a very clever comedy. It has a cast of characters who know something of dramatic work. The play is under the able direction of Miss Russell, who, as is generally known, has already directed several successful plays for the high school. Miss Johnson, the sponsor of the Junior class, is in charge of the business management of the play. Everyone concerned is working hard and every one feels that the result will be gratifying to all.

The money from this play will be used to help pay the expenses of the Junior-Senior banquet. All the patrons of the school are especially urged to be present. Every one is invited and the Juniors assure you that you will enjoy yourself every moment.

The cast includes:

Jane—Florence Perkins, Barbara A. Arnold.

Sam—Conard Reeves, S. J. Arthur. Ting—S. J. Arthur, Jack Grubbs. Kitty—Maxine Jordan, Barbara A. Arnold.

Aunt Jane—Marie Shoopman, Rachel Pentecost.

Winkler—Ed Pritchard, Truett Fulcher.

More—Raymond Lovett, R. Barlington.

Bob—Jack Grubbs, Ed Pritchard. Suzette—

World Famous Royal Russian Chorus Coming!

HAZEL TILLEY

Music and dance lovers will be exceedingly interested in the announcement made by Walter Lowe, who is advance managing the world-famous Royal Russian Chorus for their second trans-continental tour of the United States, that they will give a concert here on April 16, at the High School Auditorium under the auspices of the Eastland High School Library.

The Royal Russian Chorus is now making its second trans-continental tour, after a series of triumphs in New York, last year, where they were engaged as a special feature for Morris Gest's productions of the Passion Play, and Miracle Play, after having given fifteen capacity concerts in Carnegie Hall, New York City. During the past season they have given over two hundred successful concerts, playing everywhere under the leading auspices.

To those of us here, who have never heard of this Choir, it might be mentioned that it is one of the oldest choral organizations in the world. It was first organized almost a century ago, in Russia, and has visited practically every country in the world, under the very able direction of Prince Dmitry Slaviansky, founder of the choir, and his daughter, Princess Margarita Agreneva Slaviansky, present conductor.

It has been said of them that they are the "Undisputed Peers of Choral Harmony," and one of the slogans given them by a famous critic on the Pacific Coast is, "In all the World no Singers like these." Their programs are extremely versatile, including brilliant solo, duet, trio, and quartet and choral singing also fiery and characteristic Russian, Hungarian Gypsy and Spanish dancing, all performed in gorgeous costumes. With special lighting effects, their programs are extremely colorful, and fast moving, with an unusual eye and ear appeal to people everywhere. The city is indeed fortunate in being included in the itinerary of this celebrated company, and no doubt a large audience will be on hand to greet them at the high school auditorium on Saturday and Saturday evening, April 16.

From the appearance of Squint Pentecost's time keeper one quickly reaches the conclusion that time really does hang heavy on some part of his anatomy.

On an average men and boys probably visit a barber shop about once in every two and a half weeks. However, one local barber stated that one of his patrons possessed such a zealous desire for neatness of hair that he visits his tonsorial shop bi-weekly.

Saturday morning the pupils of the 4A health class met in the City Park for a sunrise picnic. Miss Hearn, the teacher of the class, was the chaperon. Each pupil brought his breakfast, and the Tigers, losers in the Daily Health Club contest, furnished added refreshments of suckers and gum. These refreshments were enjoyed by the guests and the eagles who were winners of the contest.

During the lunch hour the 3B English class has a luncheon in the school cafeteria with Miss Day in charge.

These meetings are held quarterly to stress table etiquette.

The tables were arranged and beautifully decorated with the Easter motif. All decorations were made by pupils in the art class. The color scheme was pink and orchid. Each pupil brought his lunch, and as an added treat, plates of cake and candy were passed. The program consisted of anecdotes and stories by the pupils. Hosts were Bobby Furse, Billy Huffman and Ray Gene McDonald; and hostess Marjorie Murphy.

MAN MADE THE TOWN

by RUBY M. AYRES

FIRST INSTALLMENT

It was intensely hot. In the big, somberly furnished consulting room, its blinds drawn closely against the midday sun which poured down on Harley Street, there seemed hardly a breath of air.

A girl sitting at the table, idly turning the pages of an illustrated paper, pushed her chair back with sudden impatience.

"How much longer is he going to keep us waiting, I wonder? It's disgraceful, asking anyone to wait in a lethal chamber like this."

The large overdressed woman in the armchair on the other side of the room roused herself with a sigh of regret from a doze which the heat and too large and too late a breakfast had brought upon her.

"I'm sure it's a very nice room," she said vaguely.

"Nice!" The girl flashed her contemptuous look. "Any place is nice to you as long as you can sleep in it," she said rudely.

The large woman sighed again; her only protest against life was a sigh, and she had long since grown accustomed to her niece's disrespect.

"The furniture must be most valuable," she said again in the same vague way.

The girl glanced around the room with a frown.

"Furniture which fools like us have paid for," she said irritably. "I don't know why we're here at all. There's nothing in the world the matter with me."

Mrs. Gladwyn began fanning her plump flushed face with a daily paper which had been lying disregarded on her lap.

"Six months ago you weighed nearly a hundred and twenty-five," she said without much interest. "Today you weigh—ninety-eight, is it? At any rate you have only to look at yourself in the glass to see that you're wasting away to a complete shadow without any adequate reason for it, unless—" she paused and a faintly malicious smile lit her sleepy eyes—"unless you're in love again," she added.

The girl turned another page of the magazine before her with an angry little flick.

"I don't believe in love," she said sharply.

Diana's further answer was checked by the opening of the door and the appearance of a maid.

"If you will please come this way, Miss—"

Bodily weakness, mental unhappiness, and a never ending fear that she was about to lose the only thing she had ever really wanted in life.

It was these things that had kept her obstinately in London when everyone else was away at the sea, or on the moors, or down in the country.

At twenty-two the only thing in the world which Diana really desired was another woman's husband.

Diana, a little nervous in spite of herself, entered the "top man's" consulting room.

He was big and rather clumsy looking, with grave steady eyes and a mouth that looked as if it rarely smiled.

It did not smile now, but his eyes seemed to pierce through all the bravery of her carefully reddened lips and make-up, right down through her artificiality to the trembling weakness of her.

Diana said nothing—she felt as if an ordinary greeting would be wasted on this man. She just stood and looked at him with an unconscious appeal in her eyes, till he said quietly:

"Won't you sit down?"

He indicated a chair close to his own and facing the window, so that the light fell full on her face.

Diana obeyed, her hands clasped in her lap, and her heart beating in a queer, frightened manner.

He seemed to realize this, for he said more gently:

"Don't be frightened. I am not going to eat you."

She flushed scarlet through all her pallor, and her eyes grew angry. Speaking to her as if she were a silly child with a cut thumb.

She gave a little high-pitched laugh. "I'm not really ill. I feel rather a humbug coming here at all, but my aunt insisted. I've got rather thin, you see—but then, I was always thin. It's the hot weather, I think, and I don't sleep very well. London's always rather trying at this time of the year, don't you think? We—generally go away, but this summer—"

She broke off, feeling suddenly very young and foolish and hating herself for it. It seemed so long since she had felt either young or foolish, and because the experience was strange she also hated this grave-faced man who was responsible for it and who looked at her searchingly.

After a moment she rattled on.

"I thought of you could give me a tonic . . . I fainted last night—not that that's anything, is it? But my aunt was nervous." The little high-pitched laugh came again. "As if fainting is anything important."

He spoke then.

"It depends entirely upon the cause of the faint. Will you take off your hat?"

She obeyed, holding it on her lap, and for a moment there was silence. In Diana's mind she was saying to herself dully:

"I wonder what he is thinking. I wish he would tell me what he is thinking of me. Why doesn't he tell me? I hate being looked at like that—as if he were driving gimlets right through me. Why doesn't he say something?"

He said something then.

"How old are you?"

"Twenty-two."

His eyes said plainly, "Is that all?" and Diana blanched.

Her glass had told her often enough that she looked worn and ill and older than the hated Linda, who could not be more than twenty-six, seeing that Aunt Florence had been present at her christening.

But Linda was happy and healthy and care-free and had always enjoyed her life, while she . . .

Suddenly the room began to grow dark and to swim about her, and though she clenched her teeth and pressed her feet hard upon the floor she could not control it or herself, and then for a little while everything was blank . . .

"Lie still. You'll be all right in a moment. Just drink this. No, lie still and keep your eyes shut."

She was glad enough to obey. She felt as weak as if she had just struggled through a long illness, weaker than she had felt last night when she fainted so suddenly in the middle of a crowded ballroom. Even the attempt to raise her head left her so exhausted that she felt almost dead.

But the potent drink this man gave her was wonderful—it seemed to open fresh life and energy into her body, and presently she opened her eyes and smiled.

He ignored that.

"Better?" he asked.

"Yes. Quite well thank you. It was silly. I'm sorry. It must have been the heat." She tried to laugh. "Your consulting room was very hot," she said.

"That was brandy, I suppose."

"No."

He kept away from her a moment, then, seeing that she had raised herself and was half sitting, half leaning against the cushions of the couch where he had placed her, he came back and looked down at her steadily.

"Do you like plain speaking?" he asked abruptly.

She raised her eyes, very blue against the pallor of her face.

"Why, of course."

"Very well, then I am going to tell you that you are very ill, very ill indeed, and that if you wish to get better you must do exactly what I tell you—and at once."

"Yes. Yes, of course."

"Well—for the present I am not going to worry you with anything but just the simplest prescription, and in a week's time I will see you again. First of all, you will go away into the country."

Her eyes dilated, and her hands gripped the cushions on either side of her.

"The country?—when?"

"At once. Tomorrow—if possible today, and when I say country I mean the very heart of the country—a cottage on Dartmoor or in the Surrey hills, where there are no theaters or night clubs, or picture houses. You will go to bed early—seven o'clock—and you will stay in bed till lunch-time every day till I see you again. You will be allowed no visitors—except your aunt, of course—and you are to do nothing except read and sleep. You will not write letters or receive any—and you will sleep with your windows wide open. You will have the very simplest food and no alcohol at all except when I order. As I said before, if you carry out my instructions you will get well again, but if not—" He broke off, for Diana had risen shakily to her feet.

"I can't do that. I can't go away from London yet—not just yet. I will later on—perhaps next month, I promise. Can't you give me some medicine just to go on with? I promise to take it regularly."

"It's not medicine you want. It's rest and sleep and quiet. Why can't you leave London? Surely it's not such an attractive place in this scorching heat? I only wish I were free to leave it. I do for every moment I can snatch. It's a poisonous place this weather, and to anyone in your nervous state—"

"I hate the country."

"You hate the country?"

He moved suddenly, laying a hand on her shoulder.

"Be a sensible child," he said gently. "Do as I tell you. Go right away for three months, and you'll come back a different being, able to enjoy life and laugh again."

She raised passionate eyes to his face.

"I'd rather die," she said, and he answered, suddenly grave:

"You may even do that if you refuse to take my advice."

Diana picked up her hat, which had fallen to the floor, and began to put it on, by force of habit hunting in her handbag first for a little mirror and the inevitable lipstick.

"It's very kind of you, Dr. Selfe," she began with a return of her artificial air—the lipstick was giving her back her poise. "But—"

He interrupted bluntly.

"I am not Dr. Selfe. I thought the secretary had made that plain to you. Dr. Selfe is away ill—I am taking his place for the time being. My name is Rathbone."

"Oh!" So this was not the "top man;" how annoyed Aunt Florence would be, and yet Diana herself was conscious of relief. If he was not the "top man" it would account for the nonsense he had talked, of the way in which he had almost succeeded in frightening her; it had been most unprofessional when one came to think of it. She looked at him with different eyes.

A big clumsy man, not a bit the orthodox Harley Street specialist; even his hair was rough, as if he had forgotten to brush it . . . she looked away from him quickly, meeting once again the piercing regard.

The country! Ugh! Spiders and other nasty crawling things, and no hot water or soft beds.

She drew on a glove.

Rathbone said, "I hope very earnestly, Miss Gladwyn, that you will take my advice."

"You are very kind." But she did not look up, and it was he who held out his hand.

She took it after the barest hesitation; a strong, kind hand—capable and secure. A little sigh escaped her—she had never known what it was to feel really secure, life had always been such a hectic scramble.

"If you would care to come and see me again, later on . . ." he said, and his voice was kind—the voice of a friend.

Diana said with a sense of helplessness, "But I can't go to the country. . . . I hate it, and surely it cannot be good to do a thing one hates very much."

"It's not possible to hate a thing you've never tried," this strange man said quietly, and then, "Do you know that line—"

"God made the country, and man made the town?"

"No."

He released her hand.

"Well, that's just the difference," he said.

In the car Mrs. Gladwyn woke up sufficiently to ask questions.

COUPLE WED IN OKLAHOMA SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wilcox announce the marriage of Mrs. Wilcox's sister, Miss Merle Crockett, to Mr. Virgil Murphy, of Cisco.

The wedding took place at 4:30 p. m. Sunday, April 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Steward, 712 E. Avenue, Lawton, Okla. The bride wore a white angel satin gown with accessories to match. A six o'clock dinner was served after the wedding.

Mrs. Murphy is a student in Eastland high school, and is one of Eastland's most popular young ladies. Mr. Murphy is a student of Randolph College, Cisco. They will make their home in Cisco. Both are well known in this vicinity, and their many friends join the Record in wishing them happiness.

There is an effect of sheerness about most of the new dresses for spring. This does not apply merely to the dresses of chiffon and other transparent materials, although all sorts of sheer and semi-sheer materials will be used extensively. Dresses made of crepe or satin also have a sheer touch which is achieved in a variety of ways. Sometimes there is a lace or georgette yoke. Sleeves may be of the same sheer material from wrists to elbows. Sometimes there are panels of inserts of net, and sometimes the light touch is achieved by fagoting. This is always a favorite trimming device of French dressmakers, and it is especially smart at the present time.

The dress shown in the sketch shows a new way of using fagoting. The V-neckline has a line of fagoting an inch or more from the edge and slightly flaring short sleeves are made of bands of the material fagotted together—six lines of fagoting on each sleeve. The dress shown here was of crepe de chine in the new bambino blue with fagoting to match, but the idea might be carried out in black, white or any one of the new colors.

The detail shows how to work some of the fagoting stitches. The first at the left is the simplest. Baste the edges of the material to be fagotted on a stiff paper at the proper distance from each other. Bring the needle out of one edge, carry it diagonally across and forward to the other edge, put it in, bring it back an eighth of an inch or less on the same side, pull it out, wrap the free thread once around the thread already in place, carry the needle diagonally across and forward to the first edge, and repeat.

The second stitch is laddering. Two threads are placed parallel to each other, across the opening, and then coarsely buttonholed across.

The third stitch is simple and effective. Two parallel stitches are taken along the entire seam, less than an eighth of an inch apart, with perhaps an interval of an inch. The needle is then carried out to the middle of the top between each pair of a quarter of thread and is worked toward the sewer, who takes a button-hole stitch to hold the lower stitch of a pair to the upper stitch of the pair below.

EASTLAND GUN CLUB OPENED SEASON SUNDAY

Eastland Gun Club officially opened their 1932 season Sunday, with the Breckenridge and Ranger clubs attending.

After the shooting the three clubs decided to form an "Oil Belt League" and to hold invitation shoots the second Sunday of each month.

The first shoot will be held at Breckenridge next Sunday when the Breckenridge Club will officially open their season. The May shoot will be held in Ranger the second Sunday in May. Eastland will have the third shoot the second Sunday in June.

Rifle, shotgun and pistol events will be shot. Breckenridge will put up a loving cup for the pistol shooting, Ranger a cup for rifle shooting and Eastland a cup for the shotgun. These cups will be awarded at the end of the season to the clubs making the highest average scores during the monthly meetings held through the summer.

Three weeks ago when Ranger opened their season the Ranger and Eastland rifle teams shot a tie. Last Sunday this tie was shot off over the Eastland range. Eastland won by six points, the final score being 216 to 210.

Ranger defeated Breckenridge in pistol shooting by seven points. High scores were turned in despite a high wind. Hughes of Breckenridge was high with a score of 99 out of a possible hundred.

Below are scores turned in Sunday, April 3:

LOCAL MAN RETURNS FROM DEALER MEETING

New developments in the rubber industry this year are following closely the general trend of automotive improvements, according to Mr. C. T. Lucas of Lucas Service Station, who just returned from Dallas where he attended a tire dealer's conference sponsored by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company.

"Tires of improved flexibility and lower pressures providing additional motoring comfort and safety are rapidly gaining widespread favor," Mr. Lucas said.

"The Goodrich company just introduced low pressure tires for small cars and colored tires for larger automobiles, which already have wide acceptance. These, together with the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown tire, introduced early this year, follow the lines of beauty, comfort, silence, economy and speed so exemplified by latest automobile design."

CHURCHES

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The lesson-sermon subject was "Unreality" in all Churches of Christ Scientist, Sunday, April 3.

The golden text was from Psalms 119:89,104. "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven . . . Through thy precepts I get understanding: therefore I hate false way."

Included in the service was the following passage from the Bible (Matthew 6:24): "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

The lesson-sermon also embraced the following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (pages 346, 277).

"Material beliefs must be expelled to make room for spiritual understanding. We cannot serve both God and mammon at the same time; but is not this what frail mortals are trying to do? . . . If goodness and spirituality are real, evil and materiality are unreal and can not be the outcome of an infinite God, good."

Basket Ball Banquet

Plans are being made for a basket ball banquet to be given April 15. Every member of the student body and faculty will be invited, with the addition of several special guests.

Menus are being planned and it is expected that several chickens will enter the basket ball association.

Tennis Ranking

The tennis players are battling now for the upper ten places. The positions of the players are now as follows:

1, Carl Karkatzke; 2, Aubrey Forrest; 3, Lester Crose; 4, Russell Barber; 5, Mabel Abernathy; 6, Mrs. Carl Kardatzke; 7, E. O. Bailey; 8, Elmer Kardatzke; 9, Ellen Abernathy; 10, Nora Ferguson.

Trustees Meeting

The meeting of the Board of Trustees of W. M. U. which was postponed March 8 will be held on Tuesday of this week. Ministers are expected from various parts of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Campus

Several changes are being made about the campus. Water is piped out to the tennis court; the road to the kitchen has been filled in, and a fence is being put up along the west of the building.

Sunday afternoon the students of W. M. U. felt the urge of the great open spaces. Two parties left the University shortly after dinner for an afternoon hike. One party, chaperoned by Miss Hagan, went on a general hiking and exploration trip. The other party, sponsored by Miss Ward, took sandwiches for an outdoor lunch, and brought back with them some very good specimens of wild ferns for one of the out-door gardens.

Miss Frances Ward took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ward, Sunday.

Mrs. I. F. Parker, Misses Mabel and Ellen Abernathy and Nora Ferguson enjoyed a supper in the woods last Saturday night after church.

The Kardatzkes and Parkers made ice cream in Parker's home Sunday evening.

Why did the students have a vacation on Friday?

It has been reported that Miss Grace Bailey is improving in violin because she had to get a new "beau."

A fast and furious game of tennis was witnessed by college students between Mrs. I. F. Parker and Mrs. E. O. Bailey.

The students and teachers of W. M. U. have been regular attendants to the revival now going on at the Church of God. They have also been helping out in the services. The four cars that bring the W. M. U. crowd are to be seen parked at the church every night.

Personal Sketch

Who—Ellen Abernathy.

From—Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Standing—Ellen (Pat) graduated from Putnam high school in Oklahoma City in 1927. She was secretary of her class every year of her high school work. The freshmen are very glad to have such a girl with them in W. M. U.

Description—Ellen has the honor of not being as large as some people she knows! She is five feet and two inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, and has blue eyes. She is a brunette, having brown hair. Ellen has no temper—'tis strange to say! To be brief she is a very exceptional girl in more ways than one.

Chapel Notes

Rev. Shearer, pastor of the Methodist church, gave a very interesting address in chapel Wednesday. The theme of his talk was "What is a Christian?"

Mrs. M. Hale talked in chapel Friday. She was not able to stand because of ill health, yet all present enjoyed her talk which she gave while sitting in a chair. We all love and appreciate Mrs. Hale very much and are always glad to have her speak to us.

Dr. Wilson talked on school pranks in chapel Monday. Many questions about school government which have been bothering some of the students were settled. All were in a good humor after the discourse.

Howard Harris, who submitted to an operation at the local hospital last Friday afternoon, is reported to be much improved the last few days. His condition was thought to be quite serious for a time, and his many friends are glad to know that he is better. Howard is a clerk in the local L. C. Burr store.

MRS. PETERS HOSTESS TO LADIES AUXILIARY

The Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian Church met Monday at home of Mrs. W. J. Peters. The subject for study was "Negros in America."

Mrs. M. Q. Taylor led the devotional and Mrs. J. Leroy Arnold gave a book review. A reading was given by Mrs. Hayes.

Refreshments were served to the following: Mmes. Arnold, Hart, Hayes, Fone, Bond, Ashley, and the hostess, Mrs. Peters.

HOW SIN BEGINS

Genesis 2:15-17; 3:1-8

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

If ever there was a love nest on earth it should have been when Adam and Eve were habited in the Garden of Eden. Certainly there could be no triangle love affair which would lead to a divorce court. One of the charming touches that is revealed is the declaration that God came down to walk and talk with tme "in the cool of the day." Safeguards were placed about them too.

Character is developed when one has the opportunity of doing either right or wrong but prefers to choose the way of rectitude. We are still free moral agents and have the power of individual choice. We live in a world where no one con continuously have his own way. We are strengthened when we obey the negatives that are for the common good. There was just one prohibition in Eden. Full freedom was not given except that there was the fruit of one tree that had to be avoided.

Satan was created as an angel of light but chose to rebel against God. Thereafter he became the enemy of all who would stand with the heavenly Father. The devil sought to reach God through man and began by casting slurs upon the commands of the Almighty. When we stop to argue with the tempter we are on most dangerous grounds. We are wise when we actually run away from temptation. Otherwise we argue against the prohibition and fail to note that each limitation is for our own good. All too soon the lie of the devil was accepted and personal sin brought its terrible consequences. One sin does not stand alone very long. Soon Adam was also involved and he was a coward when he tried to lay the blame on Eve. We are still and always individually responsible. That very day the dire consequences of sin began and they have continued to this day. "Be sure your sin will find you out." Numbers 32:23.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

Sunday was a busy day in Eastland Baptist church. Following a good Sunday school with 310 present, Rev. O. B. Darby delivered a soul-stirring message on "Back to Bethel." Just preceding the sermon Mrs. O. B. Darby brought a tender message in song, "Back to Bethel." In other words, "Back to the House of God." Many visitors from other churches were noted in the congregation.

Immediately after the morning service, about 60 men and women retired to the church dining room where they were served a delicious lunch consisting of chili, beans, rice, pickles, cake and coffee by the Young People's Department, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Herrington, Mrs. L. J. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Garrett. After the lunch the workers were paired, each couple being given a map of the city furnished by courtesy of the Eastland Abstract Company, on which their territory was marked off. These workers then went out to take a complete religious census of the city, without which no church can work intelligently. As the workers returned the office force classified the names turned in by said workers, and soon the church will have a complete record of the religious affiliations of the citizenship of Eastland.

Follow up work where the people were out of town will be done this week. The Baptist Church wishes to thank the entire citizenship of Eastland for their beautiful spirit of co-operation in this work, for everywhere the workers were received with a smile of welcome even though Sunday afternoon naps were somewhat disturbed.

Sunday School Training Course
Every evening this week, from seven to nine o'clock, there is being held at the church a Sunday school training school for the purpose of promoting the efficiency of the Sunday school. Two classes are being taught, one, "Building a Standard Sunday School," by Rev. H. D. Blair, our efficient Associational Missionary, the other, "The True Functions of a Sunday School," by Rev. O. B. Darby.

The Coming Revival

Beginning April 17th there will be held a two week's revival with Rev. O. B. Darby conducting preaching service. The music will be under the direction of L. E. Harrell, Educational Director of the First Baptist Church at Temple, Texas. A hearty invitation is given to every person in Eastland to assist in having a great revival.

REVIVAL PROGRESSING

The revival at the Church of God is making excellent progress. Large crowds have been attending each service. The results have been very good. Thus far, there have been eight different speakers. The fact that the speakers are not announced ahead of time, except in a few cases, has added interest to the services. The good congregational singing and the special quartet numbers have been greatly enjoyed by all attending the services. We are not asking people to join a church. What we want is for people to accept Jesus Christ. Christ is the only issue. If you are without Him, you need Him. If you have Him, you should help others to find Him. We would be very glad to shake your hand at the service tonight.
