City Commission Increases Water Allowance

The increase of the water minimum for Eastland water users was one of the first official acts of the new city commission at their regular meeting Monday.

The entire body was in accord on the subject, hope being expressed that the increase would encourage the growing of gardens and lawns and be a step toward beautifying the city.

It developed that the commission is willing to change the minimum to any amount which will produce the necessary revenue.

It is not generally understood that a fixed monthly payment on the water system is secured by a mortgage on the plant and that the failure to meet this payment automatically transfers the plant back to the bond holders. And in addition to the above payment, a monthly maintenance cost must be paid. The commission seems willing to grant most any concessions after this expense is taken care of.

With this in mind a motion carried which will put the minimum at 8,000 gallons, effective next meter reading date, which will be about May 20 and show on the June 1 bills, and will continue in effect until the September 1 billing, unless there is a shortage of water or they find it impossible to raise these fixed monthly charges under the new arrangement.

Other important matters disposed of at the meeting were the reappointment of W. C. Marlow as City Clerk and acting City Manager, Lee Reid as Chief of Police, and A. W. Hennessee as Fire Chief.

Much time was spent in discussing details and familiarizing the new members with all the affairs of the city.

Lions Will Buy Braces for Child

Mr. Larson extended an invitation to the Eastland Lions and ladies to attend a big barbecue at the Ranger Country Club Thursday, May 5, at 5:30 p. m. This entertainment is due the Eastland Club as winners of a recent attendance contest with Ranger.

Mr. Ringold gave a very interesting talk on taxation, and suggested several remedies for the present ills throughout this section as well as the entire nation.

A report was made by D. L. Kinnaird, who is chairman of a committee to raise funds to buy braces for Vera Mae Little, who is suffering from effects of infantile paralysis. City Taxes Now Due and Payable City Tax Collector Tom Harris calls the attention of the tax payers to the fact that the last half of 1931 taxes are now due and payable at the City Tax Collector's office in the City Hall.

This last half will become delinquent on the 1st day of June and Mr. Harris urges all tax payers to come at once and take care of their 1931 taxes in order to avoid the penalty attached after this date.

He also calls their attention to their renditions for 1932. If he has not been able to see all tax payers in person they should make it a point to render their property at once to avoid it getting on the unrendered roll.

Six hundred and sixty-four persons in and around Eastland have received free Red Cross flour as a result of four days distribution by Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and member of the executive committee of the local Red Cross. The flour is distributed from Piggly-Wiggly Grocery, where it is stored, after the receiver has applied at the Chamber of Commerce.

C. L. Garrett to Seek Re-Election

Judge Clyde L. Garrett authorized announcement of his candidacy for re-election to the office of County Judge.

He stated that he wished as many of his friends as possible to know of his decision to run and that he would make no effort to meet all the voters of the county before the election. The duties of the office at this time are such that he could not devote much time to a campaign, however. His formal announcement and platform will appear in this paper at a later date.

Judge Garrett stated in a short discussion of the office and its responsibilities that he felt that with his three years in the office along with his business experience, he is in a position to render the maximum in service.

He fully realizes these responsibilities, his three years in the office having given him an intimate knowledge of the many details. Having spent all his life in Eastland County, he feels that he knows the needs of the county, especially in these trying times, and asks that the people return him to the office for a second term.

Marvin Grubbs, manager of the drug department in Leonard Bros., Fort Worth, visited his mother, Mrs. Fronia Grubbs, here Sunday.

Dr. L. H. Thompson was a visitor in Eastland Monday. Dr. Thompson, formerly of this city, has been more recently located in East Texas.

Each actor played his particular role with originality, and all of them conveyed character interpretations that were convincing.

What's the Status Of Eastland And Your Business

The following is a nut shell filled with valuable data for the Eastland business man:

Fifteen and one-half billion dollars sold in one year by 698,000 stores in 15,600 towns under 10,000 population.

The above figures were given out by a national census bureau the first census of its kind ever made by this nation, and has only recently become available.

The report gives further valuable data: that the merchant whose sales are under the weekly average of more than $424 is not getting his share; of the 15,600 towns the average business for one year is slightly less than $1,000,000; of the 15,600 towns 851 have between 5,000 and 10,000 population, 1332 have between 2,500 and 5,000 population, 3087 have between 1,000 and 2,500 population, and 10,000 of the towns have less than 1,000 population.

It is evident that the major portion of the 15½ billion dollar sales is made in towns well below the 10,000 class.

The question arises—is Eastland getting its share? If not, how can it be brought about?

The census gives these figures for Texas: 69% of Texas population lives in towns of less than 10,000 population, 61% of the stores are located in these towns, and 47% of the total sales of the state are made by this 61% of the stores.

The census also gives figures which will enable us to figure out the amount of business a community of any given sizes should do. The average per capita sales in these small towns is $239. In other words, in a town of 1,000 population—men, women and children—there should be a total annual business of $239,000.

Figuring Eastland as a town of 4000 men, women and children and the annual per capita sales at $239, a total of $956,000 should be the total annual sales for the merchants of Eastland.

The bulletin states that whether your town is in the one, two or five thousand class and whatever the trade area may be, your town will get only a per capita sale commensurate with the efforts of the merchants and the newspaper in keeping up a continuous fight for the business of your trade area. The town that advertises and continues to fight will receive the business. Several illustrations were given, one concerning a town which was shown by a check to have 1,371 population and a per capita sale of $887, more than three times the average, which case goes to show that the merchants and newspaper can make the per capita sales very much better than the $239 average.

Mr. Eastlander, Mr. Merchant especially, there is much information in this article that can be used to your advantage. Other data is on file at the Record office, and efficient assistance is yours for the asking.

Let's get a check on our town and our personal business. There's relief if we will only get together and make it the business of all to make business better.

The WAY of LIFE BY BRUCE BARTON

LOSSES

On a gloomy day I met a New York man who seemed almost happy.

A friend asked him: "How's the market?"

"Haven't the slightest idea."

The questioner was astonished. "Don't you own stocks and bonds?"

"Sure I do," the man replied. "But I know the things I own can't disappear. I know, also, that I have no chance of selling them at a decent price in this market. Therefore, why should I torture myself by watching them every day and figuring out how much they have depreciated."

The other looked at him as if he were a traitor to the serious ideals of American finance. Whereupon my friend uttered an important truth.

"The trouble with these fellows in Wall street is that they have taken their losses fifteen times a day for two years," he said. "Think of it, fifteen times seven hundred. What a loss that makes. Nobody can stand a loss like that. If they'd put away their lead pencils; if they'd quit figuring on the back of envelopes and on the margin of newspapers, and forget the whole thing, they would be much better off. Taking your loss fifteen times a day doesn't get you anywhere. It uses up brain cells and nervous energy that might be used for progress."

Every one of us who has any heart at all has had his heart wrung in the past few months. We help as far as we can, but there are so many we can't help. So many men who want to work for whom there is no work.

To these victims of the depression, and especially to the old who have been wiped out and lack the strength or the time to make a fresh start, our deepest sympathy goes out.

But there has been a lot of whining on the part of men who have no excuse to whine.

I have been reading Emerson's diaries. His railroad bonds went sour in the panic of 1857. He refers to his losses just once. His house burned down, and his diary records: "House burned," and goes on to more important things.

Such men give us renewed respect for the human race, and America has her full share of them.

But I am weary of the boys who tell me how much they would have had if they had sold everything in the summer of 1929—the back-of-the-envelope lads who take their losses fifteen times a day.

Hints for the Home by Nancy Hart

Tuna Fish, A La Newburg
1 can of tuna fish
1 pint of cream sauce
2 egg yolks
nutmeg
salt and cayenne pepper
4 tablespoonfuls of cooking sherry
Make the cream sauce, and add a dash of cayenne, salt to taste, a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, and add the tuna fish broken into pieces with a fork. Cook until very hot, add the sherry and serve at once. Cooking sherry may be purchased at any good grocery.

If you have no shelf in the kitchen for cook books and books on house-keeping do try to have such a helpful aid as soon as possible. The handy man can make such a shelf, or maybe the handy woman can, but, if neither of them is able to use tools, try buying a small shelf or set of shelves at a hardware store, or in the house furnishing department in a department store. These may be purchased for less than a dollar, and will save innumerable steps, and the books being so near at hand, the culinary tempo will have a sudden but lasting rise.

Has the family income been cut to the extent that it is not possible for the children to have the things they have been used to,—must the amount of their spending money be reduced? Have you tried calling a family "con-fab", and talking it over, telling not only the mother how finances stand, but the children as well? Explain the cause and the necessity for retrenchments, and see if they all, the children especially, will not help and do it with cheerfulness and zest. It gives the children a feeling of being a part of the family, and teaches a lesson which would be hard to equal.

Use a soap shaker for the ends of soap. In this way each tiny piece of soap may be used up, and one does not need to put one's hands into the hot dish water to rescue the soap. Not only saves soap, but saves the hands as well.

VERY LATEST by MARY MARSHALL

It's the simplest trimming in the world and yet so absurdly easy to achieve! Just fringed edges of the material neatly stitched into place. You can make use of this trimming on a dress of wool crepe or one of silk crepe with the satisfaction of knowing that you have the authority of Paris behind you. Simply cut strips of the material about one inch and a half wide and unravel at one side to obtain a fringe of about three-quarters of an inch. If you are using the fringe at the edge of a collar, peplum or cuff insert it between the outside piece and the facing so that only the fringe shows and then machine stitch along the collar, peplum or cuff just above the fringe. This gives a neat finish and incidentally keeps the fringe from fraying.

If you use the fringe as a trimming on bodice or sleeve cut the material so that you will have an overlapping section beneath which to insert the strip of fringe.

CAMPUS

Mrs. Hale who has been at the college for some time, is planning to leave April 23. She is going to the home of her parents, in the southwest part of Oklahoma. We will all miss her.

There was much rejoicing among the single teachers last Tuesday when they were each given a check. Upon questioning the source of their good fortune, they learned that an old lady in Oklahoma had been saving pennies for years. She heard of the needs of the University and decided to send them ($20.80) to the single teachers. Needless to say they were greatly appreciated.

"STATIC"

By J. L. Cottingham.

There is that story of Samuel Butler at the bridge tournament. That is old but we have to fill space. The lady on Sam's right bid Seven Hearts and Sam did not intend to let anything like that go when he held three Ace-Kings. He doubled and was overjoyed to find that the lady was inclined to back her judgement with a redouble. We cannot even imagine Sam's feelings when she showed down Thirteen Hearts for a total profit of about three thousand points.

The other morning I found Chief Lee and Highway Patrolman Myers were holding a conference right behind my car—I think they were discussing what the well-dressed girl will wear, if anything. I was twenty minutes late to work waiting for the police barricade to be removed. Chief Lee is responsible for a story to the effect that Mrs. May Harrison requested him to inspect a load of a certain kind of fertilizer and advise her as to its probable efficiency. The Chief turned down the first load but passed on the second as exactly the right potency.

Frank Castleberry went into the office as the keynoter of a Reform administration. I heard him put out a lot of talk about honesty in public office. No sooner was he elected than he instructed a city employee to lend Len Hightower a trot line that had been captured in the City lake

PROVEN

Almost every day someone tells us that one of our patrons has told them how much more help our work has given them than the glasses they had fitted in cities.

We consider this the best proof one could have.

We not only excel in the care of our patients but our prices are often lower.

and he then phoned Len to forget to return it because he might want to borrow it from Len. Looks like Tammany Hall to me.

Keasler tells me that we are going to have double the amount of water for the same price. I am glad to hear this because Mr. Walter Gray and I can afford to take two baths a month instead of one. Morris thinks that we ought to wash often enough to look like Ed Freyschlag. Nothing doing—that would take effort as well as water.

Julius Krause's wife and A. H. Johnson's wife both left town the same day. We celebrated—with a bridge game. Marion Seaborn tells me that our postmaster used to be called Hog Johnson because he kept Poland-Chinas. He says that A. H. took a splendid care of those hogs and gave them the run of the place—I do not know whether he meant the hogs were allowed to sleep under the piano or not. Marion also says that A. H. was a very strong man in his day. He maintains the Postmaster could pick up a six-hundred pound Poland-China, put his hand under the hog's stomach and raise him, the hog not Marion, with one arm until the elbow was straight. I am glad the Postmaster has cut that out—I would hate to have him drop a Poland-China into the middle of a bridge table. All of which goes to prove that Marion ought to run a better race against Blanton than Joe Jones can.

I was up in Brelsford's law library the other day and saw a half dozen books labeled, "Sayles Texas Statutes." I knew Perry was pretty smart but did not know that he wrote our Texas laws. I guess he will have to marry a school teacher to get someone that can understand him.

Jim Prattley is looking sadder each day. He and Nick have been worked to death keeping the Marble shooting machine going.

By the way, Tobé Morton did not want his wife to find out about that scheme he told Mrs. Kimbrell for breaking her husband of rabbit hunting. He is afraid she might try it on him. I hope no one has told her.

Harry Porter certainly got a lot of advertising out of the Little Theatre show. There was a bill board in front of Porteretao etai etoin taoin oinn of the Majestic Cafe announcing, "HARRY PORTER SUPPORTED BY AN ALL STAR CAST." Circumstances over which I had no control made me miss the show—for the benefit of the Little Theatre Fans, however, I paid for two tickets so do not put me on your black list—but every body I talked to said the show was good. I certainly did hate missing Harry's performance—I have been saving that fifty cents for three weeks just for that.

Gus Rineman says it is all right to use him in this column. I thank him. I have double proof that he is a brave man. He risks appearing in Static and he lets Joe Laurent shave him.

Arl Williams says that the reason that he does not get married is that he does not want to starve any girl to death. Beaty and I agree that any girl would be glad to starve if she could have Arl to look at while she was getting ready for the potter's field.

My wife tells me that I must only look at those when they are displayed in the store show windows. For that reason, I am going to ask the lady that wears the pair of mesh hose with the two lobsters embroidered on each calf to please not wear them to town—those lobsters draw my eyes like a magnet.

I have made a discovery that should be a help to every married man. I have found that if you will carry your empty talcum powder cans to Ranger to throw away, it is sometimes a couple of days before your wife can locate them and get them back in your collar drawer again.

Further deponent sayeth not. I thank you.

See the Junior Play! What a Treat!

Folks if you miss the Junior play you will miss such a chance as you will never have again. The play in itself is enough to make you die laughing, but when you see the excellent actors from the Junior class you will die several deaths. Just imagine seeing Jack Grubbs as a girl. And Raymond Lovett actually gets married. That ought to be worth the money alone. This play will be given on the night of April 28, the price of admission will be 25c for students and 35c for adults. All you boys in the Senior and Sophomore class get your dates now, and girls if he is to bashful to ask you, come anyway. The class guarantees you a thoroughly enjoyable time. Don't forget Seniors, that the more money taken in, the better a banquet you will get, so let's be there on hand when the curtain is drawn, everybody.

Observation

The conduct of some of our students is surprising to say the least. Last Tuesday in chapel when a play was being put on, some of them behaved like we don't know what. The members of the cast were trying hard to put the play over and it was very disconcerting to them to be laughed at during the performance, especially when they had done nothing funny. The play was serious in character and so it was presented but we seem to have some students who can appreciate nothing but comedy. Here's hoping we have no more of such conduct.

Those students who missed the Russian Chorus missed one of the best things that we have had this year. It pays to go to such entertainments such as that was. The general rank and file of the students seemed to have forgotten that it was in town. The next time we are privileged to have such a treat let's see more of the student body there.

Pardon me for so much griping but these things needed attention.

South Ward News

Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins entertained the teachers of South Ward Wednesday evening, April 13, with a garden party. A delicious picnic supper consisting of sandwiches, olives, salad, cheese, potato chips, ice tea, and ice cream was served. Folk games and songs led by Miss Ruth Ramey, and Mrs. Perkins were enjoyed the latter part of the evening.

An interesting event to be anticipated is the San Jacinto Banquet to be given by the South Ward P. T. A., April 22. The purpose of this banquet is to raise money for the South Ward school fund as well as to insure a pleasant evening for those attending. A varied program has been arranged. The price of each plate will be 35 cents.

In connection with the Better Homes Week the pupils of South Ward will present a Health-Play exhibition on the school ground Friday, April 29, at 4 p. m. Primarily the program will give the patrons of South Ward an opportunity to view the supervised playground activities as they are practiced each day.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the lesson-sermon subject in all churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, April 17. Hebrews 9:28 furnished the golden text. "Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."

The lesson-sermon embraced the following verse from the Bible (II Corinthians 5:17): "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." Included in the services was the following citation from page 18 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Jesus of Nazareth taught and demonstrated man's oneness with the Father, and for this we owe him endless homage. His mission was both individual and collective. He did life's work aright not only in justice to himself, but in mercy to mortals, to show them how to do theirs, but not to do it for them nor to relieve them of a single responsibility."

MOTHER OF FORMER EASTLAND WOMAN DEAD

Word has been received here that Mrs. Wilson Burleson died at her home in Sipe Springs and was buried there Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. Burleson was the mother of Mrs. Cyrus Frost, at present of Austin but formerly of Eastland. Mrs. Burleson was a member of the Christian Church, and was well known over Eastland County.

Mrs. Frost has many friends here who sympathize with her over the loss of her mother.

Among the out-of-town people who attended the funeral of T. M. Toombs here Monday were: Dr. E. W. Kimble, Dr. Ed Wyatt, John Kimble, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Richardson, Roscoe Smith, and Dr. and Mrs. Stubblefield all of Gorman; Will Shults, J. L. Horton, Dr. Patterson, and D. E. Jones, of Rising Star; J. H. McDonald and A. J. Olson of Cisco; Dr. W. K. Weir, Jack Blackwell and W. W. Bobo, of Ranger.

JUNIOR CLASS TO PRESENT PLAY 28

In presentation of the Junior Class play, next week, the class is complimenting Better Homes Week. Friends and School are eagerly awaiting "The Arrival of Kitty", the clever entertainment, in which William Winkler played by Ed. Pritchard, Jr., mysteriously turns to the actress Kitty Benders played by Maxine Jordan. Winkler's old maid Sister-in-law, Jane, (Marie Shoopman) has an overwhelming desire for a husband and a "Better Home". Two young folk very much in love, Bobby Baxter and Jane, played by Jack Grubbs and Florence Perkins, decide after many misunderstandings to establish a "Better Home". Surely not Moore's fault that he has not established a "Better Home", for he expends plenty of thought and energy, but the result is for you to see for yourself. However, the home-loving spirit has been caught by Ting, which he puts into use with his tactful and comical matchmaking.

A final touch is given this play by the clever acting of Conrad Reaves, in role of Sam, colored porter, entirely too busy to show his inclination toward a "Better Home" though he is understood to have this year.

Affairs may seem complicated, but wait until after "The Arrival of Kitty" and then things do begin to happen.

STAR TIRES NOW AT HARPER TIRE STORE

In this issue of the Record Mr. G. M. Harper of the Harper Tire and Battery Co. announces that his tire store is now affiliated with the Hick's Rubber Co. and carries the famous Star tire which is manufactured in the Hick's factories located in Texas.

Mr. Harper states that the new arrangement is not an experiment, that the Hick's Rubber Co. has many successful years to their credit and operates under ideal condition for bringing to the people of Texas a super tire value.

He further states, "to make it short Hicks eliminates the frills, and applies the following in the operation of their business, efficiencies in manufacturing, economies in merchandising and elimination of excess overhead."

"This coupled with the fact that the Star tire is made for Southern roads assures the car owners a greater tire value."

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

THE REVIVAL

The revival services began very auspiciously Sunday morning at the eleven o'clock hour, with Brother L. B. Harrel, of Childress, Texas, in charge of the music. Rev. O. B. Darby delivered a stirring message on "The Challenge of the Unreached", showing by figures taken from the recent census that there is much work to be done here. Again at the evening hour there was a challenging message by the pastor.

The morning services during this revival will be from ten to eleven o'clock during the week, the evening services at 7:45 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend and help in these services.

Recently in discussing the needs of our nation, Calvin Coolidge in that clear, concise manner so characteristic of him, said, "The greatest need of our nation is more true religion. We are sure that he was right, the greatest need in our town is more true religion of Jesus Christ in our hearts. You will hear messages that will mean much to you by attending this meeting, for Rev. Darby is an earnest, eloquent speaker, filled with compassion for those in our midst who need the religion our ex-president spoke of. You will also enjoy the song service, good old-fashioned hymns as well as the new, led by Brother Harrell. Come and be with us.

Sunbeams Meet

On Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock the Sunbeams will hold their regular meeting at the church under the direction of Mrs. Thos. J. Pitts. The R. A.'s and G. A.'s for the older boys and girls will be held at the same hour and at the same place.

RUSSIAN CHORUS IS PRESENTED HERE TWICE

The Royal Russian Chorus presented a program of music and dancing to a highly appreciative audience at the Eastland High School auditorium Saturday evening.

The program consisted of classical numbers and folk songs in the Russian language and several native dances, all in gorgeous costumes. Solos, duets, trios, quartets and chorus numbers were included in the brilliant musical selections. Two numbers, "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "Old Man River", were given in English.

A sacred concert was given by the company to a packed house at the Methodist church Sunday evening at 8:45, after the regular worship services.

All who heard these performances pronounced them to be one of the rarest treats Eastland people have ever been fortunate enough to enjoy.

MAN MADE THE TOWN

by RUBY M. AYRES

THIRD INSTALLMENT

"Upon my word Linda—"
She laughed in cool unconcern.
"My dear boy, please don't pretend. You forget that this isn't the first time I've had to stand by and watch you muddle your way out of an affair like this. I don't really care, except for Diana's sake—she looks ill, terribly ill."

"Are you going to blame me for that? Really, this is beyond a joke. I suppose you're annoyed because I brought her here for dinner. Perhaps that was stupid of me, but—"

She came a step forward, her bright eyes meeting his very directly.

"If you want me to divorce you, Dennis—I will," she said.

There was a moment of absolute silence; then she went on, still in the same unemotional way:

"I think I've grown a little tired of this sort of life. We're neither married nor unmarried, and after all, I'm still young, and there are other men in the world."

"Other men—you mean . . ."

"Never mind what I mean. I'm making you a fair offer. If you want to marry Diana I'm willing to divorce you. You'd better think it well over before you refuse," she added with a little ironical smile, "because I may never be so generous again."

Dennis stifled an oath. He looked hot and angry as he went out of the room.

Linda sighed and turned with a smile as Diana returned. She had colored her lips and her cheeks, and she looked less worn, but there was a little defiant light in her eyes as she came towards Linda.

"I really feel terribly apologetic," she said rather unsteadily.

Linda went with them to the door.

"Don't keep her out too late, Dennis," she said lightly. "And I hope you'll have a good time," she added, a hint of laughter in her voice. Behind Diana's back Dennis gave his wife a furious look; he felt that he was being made a fool of, and the sensation was not pleasant.

They rode in silence till the cab stopped at the Savoy.

They went to the ballroom, which was not at all crowded, and Dennis ordered champagne.

He almost wished he had insisted upon staying at the flat with Linda. He roused himself with an effort and touched Diana's hand.

"Do you care to dance?"

"As you like."

She rose apathetically, and they joined the dancers.

The brilliant lights of the ballroom blinded her, and the noise of the band suddenly became deafening, driving her half mad.

She gave a little foolish laugh.

"Man made the town," she said—"the horrible, horrible town . . ."

Then, with a little moaning cry, she slipped to the floor at Dennis Waterman's feet.

CHAPTER IV

Everything was so very quiet, as if one had slipped out of life into the infinite space where only the stars hung against the dark background and the cool winds blew.

She opened her eyes and looked round the room. Drawn blinds veiled most of it from her, but she could faintly pick out a flowered wall paper and the shadowy space of a dressing table—an old-fashioned looking dressing table in a chintz and muslin petticoat.

That was queer for she had never seen a dressing table like that since she was a little girl, poking about in a wooden work box on her grandmother's dressing table.

She was dreaming, of course—dreaming backwards into a past which she had almost forgotten.

Such a queer world—different, somehow . . .

Diana tried to raise her head from the pillow, but the effort was too great, and she lay still for a little, eyes closed again, breathing heavily.

A hand on her wrist now—not Aunt Gladwyn's hand—but one that was firm and strong; a hand that seemed to put new life and strength into one . . . not like Dennis Waterman's hand, that only made one's pulse jerk suffocatingly and filled one's heart with unrest.

Diana gave a little stifled cry. She remembered now; he was the doctor from Harley street whose eyes had seemed to pierce through all the bravery of her carefully reddened lips and make-up, right down through her artificiality to the trembling weakness of her.

He heard the little cry and came back.

"Well," he said, very gently as if he were speaking to a child. Diana smiled too, confidently.

"You've got your own way," she whispered.

He laughed at that.

"I generally do in the long run," he said.

It was wearisome work trying to get well; more wearisome when at last Diana felt the first tug of returning health and the consequent revolt against enforced inaction.

Everyone was so tryingly optimistic. No matter how much Diana sulked or how rude she tried to be, she was met with the same determined kindness and good temper from the woman who, as she soon discovered, was a trained nurse and in charge of her.

This "Creature," as Diana soon called her to herself, was fortyish, with gray hair and the peaceful expression of one who has gone through so many turbulent waves that life no longer frightened her. Her proper name was Miss Starling; a name which Diana thought most suitable, seeing that she was eternally chirping tidings of good hope and wonderful days to come. Diana also discovered that once upon a time she had been a nurse in a big London hospital, but that she had given it up in order to retire to the country and take in difficult cases for specialists.

"Dr. Rathbone isn't a specialist," was Diana's first remark that showed any return of her old spirit.

"Dr. Rathbone," Miss Starling retorted calmly, "is a very wonderful man; he has saved your life, whatever you may think of him."

"I don't think of him at all," Diana retorted peevishly, and turned her face against the pillow, closing her eyes.

Miss Starling sat at the window, knitting by the light which shone through the half-closed curtains; she did not really need any light at all, seeing that she always knitted mechanically, with hardly a downward glance.

The needles made an irritating little clicking sound.

Diana flung the clothes back restlessly.

"Can't I get up?"

"Not until Dr. Rathbone says you may."

"He won't say it for ages."

"Then I'm afraid you'll have to stay in bed."

Petulant tears filled Diana's eyes. The clicking of knitting needles stopped, and Miss Starling rose.

"I think we might have the blind up a little," the Creature said. "It's such a wonderful evening."

The blind was raised a little higher and Diana caught a glimpse of leafy trees and a patch of blue sky through lacy boughs.

"Where is this place?" she asked suddenly.

"Surrey—about a mile outside a little village called Cheam."

Diana made a little grimace.

"Dr Rathbone has a house not far away," Miss Starling said presently.

"Oh!" Diana was wearily twisting the soft strands of her hair once more.

"Is that why I am here?" she asked.

"So that it will be easy for him to come and see me."

"It makes it more convenient for him, of course he is a very busy man and if you had been a great way off he would probably have put you in the care of another doctor."

"Why should he? I suppose he'd be paid, no matter how far away I was."

"Money is not everything. Dr. Rathbone does a great deal without any fee at all."

"He'll be paid for me."

"Yes, but then you've plenty of money. There are many poor people far more ill than you are who cannot afford to pay anything."

"Another lecture!" Diana told herself.

There was an unbroken silence for some moments, then Diana asked:

"Is he married?"

"Dr. Rathbone? No."

"He ought to be," Diana said perversely. "He's quite old."

"What do you call quite old?"

Diana considered. "Oh—forty, I suppose."

"Dr. Rathbone is only about thirty-eight."

"He looks fifty," Diana declared unkindly.

"How did I come here?" Diana asked.

"Dr. Rathbone brought you. You were taken ill—perhaps you remember, and Mrs. Gladwyn rang Dr. Rathbone because she was frightened and did not know what to do."

"I only fainted. It wasn't anything." No answer again.

"Has Aunt Gladwyn been to see me?"

"No. Dr. Rathbone would not allow her to come."

"Dr. Rathbone seems to think he can rule my life. I suppose I shall soon have to ask his permission when I want new clothes."

"I don't think that would interest him."

"I don't suppose I interest him either, really—do I?"

"Very much—as a patient."

"I suppose he makes a great deal of money?"

Miss Starling said quietly:

"Dr. Rathbone runs a small home for children at his own expense—that cannot be done for a small sum."

"He seems to be a kind of hero," Diana sneered.

"Can I get you anything? If not, I shall leave you for a little while."

"I don't want anything," was the not very gracious reply.

The door closed softly.

Why had the Creature left her alone? She did not want to be left alone to her thoughts. When Rathbone came again she would tell him that she would not be left to her thoughts, not for a single moment.

If he was such an autocrat, of course he would see that her wishes were obeyed.

CHAPTER V

It would be fun to get out of bed and creep over to the window, fun to see what lay outside, under the shelter of those leafy trees.

She listened, but there was no sound in the house, and with a little elfish smile she put the bed clothes gently aside and swung her feet down to the floor.

Her legs felt as if they did not belong to her, and if there had not been a table and a chair to cling to she would never have reached the window at all. But she was there at last breathless and faint, with beads of exhaustion on her face.

The fresh air revived her a little, and she knelt down by the open window, both hands clinging to the narrow sill.

It was very beautiful; Diana knelt there by the window looking out with eyes that were somehow tragic in her white face.

She felt weak and helpless; she wished it were not so far back to bed. Not that she wanted to go back—she felt that she could have stayed here forever looking out on the fields and trees and hedges. She hated the country, and yet it gave her such a feeling of peace; like someone laying a cool hand upon your forehead when it ached very badly after a succession of late nights.

She turned round and looked at the bed—it seemed miles away. She made an effort to rise but checked herself quickly. She was sure she would fall. The bell was so far away too—on the other side of the bed, and she was too weak to cry out. She might try, but they would not hear her if she did.

WILLIAM HAINES PLAYS FIRST SERIOUS ROLE IN "ARE YOU LISTENING?"

The "inside" of a great broadcasting station in operation, details of the strange occupations of artists heard over the air, their joys and sorrows, are woven into a powerful drama in "Are You Listening?" filmization of the J. P. McEvoy radio story, which will open Saturday at the Lyric Theatre.

William Haines is seen in his first straight dramatic characterization in this picture, playing the role of a radio continuity writer whose existence is made miserable by a neurotic, henpecking wife, who refuses to give him a divorce, so that he can marry the girl he really loves. This domestic impasse eventually results in a bitter quarrel in which the wife is accidentally killed. Haines is forced to flee the police and he is subsequently caught through the very channels of the radio by which he had hoped to achieve a successful career.

Underlying the plot are the diverse romances of three small town sisters who find employment in a New York radio broadcasting station and it is in this locale that much of the film's comedy moments take place. Audiences will be amused to see just what takes place "behind the scenes" when a broadcaster's idea of a thunderstorm or horse-race is put into execution.

TO THE MEMORY OF JUDGE STUBBLEFIELD

The Eastland County Bar Association has adopted the following resolution relating to the death of Judge Stubblefield, who died here in Eastland a few days ago:

JOHN RICH STUBBLEFIELD died at his home in Eastland, Texas, Sunday morning April 17th, Anno Domini, 1932.
 "We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;

In feelings, not in figures on the dial; We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best."

This sentiment has renewed inspiration when we are called to mourn and it comes more forcibly as we are brought to the knowledge of the passing from his life of service by our diligent and faithful associate and colleague.

He received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from the University of Texas, June 20, 1894; was licensed to practice law in this state, by the Supreme court of Texas, June 21, 1894 and began the active practice of law in Eastland, Texas in August 1894. With the exception of a few years during his early career as a lawyer, when he served this county as County Attorney and later as County Judge, he was continuously engaged in the general practice of law, with his office and home in Eastland, Texas. He was a member of the Bar Association of Eastland County; the State Bar Association of Texas and the American Bar Association. He was devoted to his profession and by precept and example endeavored to maintain the high ideals of the ethics and tenets of that profession. His diligence, knowledge of the law, fidelity to his clients, and his honesty and fair dealing with the Courts and his brother lawyers earned for him the reputation of being one of the ablest and most honorable lawyers of our state. He was an active life. He lived in deeds, in thoughts and in feelings such as are calculated to perpetuate the honor and nobility of our legal profession.

We appreciated him greatly and will ever cherish his memory.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: BY THE BAR ASSOCIATION OF EASTLAND COUNTY:

1st. We deeply deplore the untimely death of our loved and honored brother lawyer.

2nd We extend our sincere sympathy to W. Tilman Stubblefield, the surviving son and other devoted relatives of our colleague, in this hour of their great distress, and assure them that we too, mourn the loss of their Loved One.

3rd That a copy hereof be spread on the minutes of the District Court of this County and of the Court of Civil Appeals of this district and that a copy be tendered the local newspapers of Eastland for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
 B. W. Patterson
 Earl Conner
 R. L. Rust
 D. K. Scott
 L. R. Pearson
 Committee.
