

Christian Science Lecture Delivered

"Christian Science: The Road of Spiritual Development" was the title of a lecture delivered Tuesday night at the City Hall by Paul A. Harsch, C. S. B. of Toledo, Ohio, who is a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The following is a resume of the speech:

The New Revelation.

"I want to tell you now, succinctly but plainly, the most beautiful story of spiritual unfoldment among men since the chapter which recorded the coming of the Master of Palestine. The tyrant who once sat upon the throne in this land or in that was weak in power in comparison with the tyrant false belief who steals his way into a man's thinking, and thus from the inside seeks to wreck and destroy that man. And so, in the hour of man's greater need, it was divinely inevitable that there should come a fuller revelation, which should meet that need.

"The revelation did come. It came about sixty years ago through a woman who, like that other Mary in Bethlehem, had so uplifted her consciousness in spiritual longing and seeking that she could be the channel for the birth into the world of a new spiritual idea.

"Mary Baker Eddy discovered, founded, and gave the name to Christian Science. She established a church which now has branches in every civilized country of the earth, and a few members or many members in practically every city and town where order and progress indicate that the people are given to looking above wholly material things. Mrs. Eddy was herself healed by this revelation when physicians had despaired of saving her life. In order to understand and to make understandable to others the full nature and method of her healing she shut herself in with her Bible and God until the vision had been apprehended. She was able then to practice the healing power of God as the Master Christian had done, and she was able so clearly to set forth the method of this in her textbook, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures,' that earnest students of the book, although they never saw Mrs. Eddy nor any of her immediate students, might practice this healing too. It has been said that that book, next to the Bible, which it illumines and explains, is the volume most reverently in the hands of millions of people throughout the world today.

"Mary Baker Eddy understood and emulated Jesus the Christ as perhaps no other individual has done since the days when he led and taught his disciples in Judea. She shared his vision and she drank his cup. If she healed even as he healed, she also suffered and sorrowed with him. Ignorance and bigotry lighted the fires for her, and it was out of the flames of trial that her triumph came.

"Why did she suffer—why go through fire? Because she was bringing to a vastly needy world the spiritual knowledge and the spiritual method by which the tyrant false belief was to be reduced and banished from the enslaved minds of men. She was doing, and teaching others to do, what she perceived Jesus to have done, and thus she describes that activity on page 476 of Science and Health: 'Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Savior saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick.'

"The Scientific Statement of Being.' 'Mary Baker Eddy challenged the whole realm of material thinking. She exposed and set at naught the most cherished, which were also the most doleful, fallacies of suffering mortals. In what has become world-renowned as 'the scientific statement of being,' to be found on page 468 of her textbook, she has promulgated with marvelous clarity and unequalled courage one of the most remarkable expositions ever set forth concerning life and man. With the spiritual fact she has reversed the material fable as it relates to the most vital things in human existence.

"Consider for a moment how completely some of the most cherished of human theories—edicts they are of false belief—are reversed in this 'scientific statement of being.'

"Man is material, false belief has enunciated, and matter governs; but 'the scientific statement of being' explains, 'There is no life, truth, intelligence, nor substance in matter.' 'Under a protecting skull is a finite brain,' false belief

SUCH IS LIFE
By Charles Sughro
The Power of Imagination

announces, 'and all thinking is an emanation of this crinkly matter brain;' but 'the scientific statement of being' affirms, 'All is infinite Mind and its infinite manifestation, for God is All-in-all.' That only is true and real which can be perceived by the five physical senses, false belief maintains; but 'the scientific statement of being' re-ignites the lamp of men's hopes by the crystal-clear pronouncements, 'Spirit is immortal Truth; matter is mortal error.' 'Matter always has been,' says false belief, 'matter is all that may be;' but 'the scientific statement replies, 'Spirit is the real and eternal; matter is the unreal and temporal.' 'Spirit is a myth,' glibly argues false belief; 'man is no higher nor better than the suffering thing he seems to be;' but 'the scientific statement of being' rolls back the rejoinder, 'Spirit is God, and man is his image and likeness.' 'Man comes from the dust and returns to the dust and therefore he is dust,' false belief cries in final condemnation; but from afar there comes a 'still small voice,' like a strain of music through the clash of a storm, and 'the scientific statement of being' sets up hope and happiness and peace with the words, 'Therefore man is not material; he is spiritual.'

"This 'scientific statement of being,' as given in the Christian Science textbook, I recommend to your earnest consideration, not only as the most extraordinary epitome ever furnished us of man and his life, but as a divinely directed utterance, which established its truth and the power of this truth by the fruits which follow its acceptance. Christian Scientists the world around are measuring their problems every day against the straight edge of 'the scientific statement of being.' Through its illumination they are seeing how to lay off the shackles of disease; through its concrete directing they are seeing how to meet the besetments of illusion in all their business, social, and domestic affairs. 'The scientific statement of being,' as I believe you must begin to realize, my friends, is a spiritual weapon, the finding of which fills even the timid warrior in life's conflict with a glorious hope. He sees that with such a sword of the Spirit he may dethrone and utterly drive out of his thinking every false belief. Before the heaven-forged weapon of 'the scientific statement of being' false beliefs have no alternative but instantly or eventually to yield."

Tick Quarantine Area Is Reduced

Further progress in eradicating cattle ticks from the areas in the South still infested with this disease-carrying parasite is recorded in an order signed by R. W. Dunlap, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, to become effective December 5, 1932. This order removes the Federal quarantine from 20,290 square miles of territory in Arkansas, Florida, and Texas, and is recognition of progress, chiefly during the active tick eradication season of 1932.

Areas Affected by the Order. The new Federal order, which is known as B. A. I. Order 339, affects the following areas: All the areas now quarantined in Arkansas, the counties of Ashley, Bradley, Calhoun, Chicot, Drew, Ouachita, Union, and the remainder of Desha, are released from quarantine.

In Florida, the counties of Brevard, Citrus, Indian River, Orange, Seminole, Sumter, the remainder of Lake, and parts of Osceola and St. Lucie, are released from quarantine.

In Texas, the counties of Anderson, Austin, Brazos, Burleson, Cherokee, Milam, Panola, Robertson, Rusk, Washington, and the remainder of Fort Bend, are released from quarantine.

The existing quarantine in part of Louisiana and in the Territory of Puerto Rico is continued.

This release of territory in Arkansas makes it the twelfth State to gain freedom from this embargo. The States previously released are: Alabama, California, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Virginia.

When this order becomes effective on December 5, 1932, the areas remaining under Federal quarantine for splenic or tick fever in cattle in continental United States will be confined to parts of Florida, Louisiana, and Texas. Of the area originally tick-infested and quarantined, 88 per cent will have been freed from the pest by systematic eradication.

Friday, November 25, 1932. EASTLAND'S FORWARD MARCH

The feeling prevails that there is more co-operation among the business men in Eastland than has existed for several years. There is a general realization that the oil business does not furnish sufficient revenue, with which Eastland can expect to grow and expand.

Attention has been called to this particular condition several times within the last year or so, but only recently—perhaps within the last sixty days—has the entire town seemed to rally to the support of any permanent program of trade extension and expansion of Eastland's trade area.

The meeting week before last of about forty citizens with the Lone Star and Community Natural Gas Company officials was the first step in what is hoped will terminate in a permanent betterment.

Also, within the last week encouraging interviews with able bankers have been held, which, it is believed, will result in a bank for Eastland in the near future.

Action has been taken for the organization of a stock growers association, which is starting a county-wide agency with the hope of expansion into neighboring counties.

This association is only in its infancy. It warrants the support not only from raisers of stock but Eastland can well afford to get behind this movement and in bringing the association into a permanent successful organization.

Such things as we have mentioned are slowly but surely gaining for Eastland the words of praise that recent visitors have expressed.

LETTER BOX

Editor, the Record: Why don't we have our yards and gardens protected in a city where there is a law against livestock running out?

One has little encouragement to at out money and labor to beautify their premises, either for individual love for beauty or for civic pride, when chickens and other livestock are permitted to wander about at will.

Perhaps a lovely flower garden, that thrills all who behold it, a vegetable garden on which a family is depending for wholesome, health producing food and which has taken weeks and months to produce, not to take into consideration the water bill, can be destroyed in a few minutes by inconsiderate neighbors having let their chickens out or by a cow getting loose. Of course, "Old Jersey," or "Old Biddy," with a family of a dozen or more chicks, are not supposed to have the intellect not to tip off tender juicy vegetables or to scratch in nice loamy soil and uproot treasured plants, but besides the owners of these odd providers are to be taken to task?

There is no season of the year when home lovers want their yards and gardens left to the mercy of chickens and other livestock. Inconsiderate neighbors, please take notice of this. If you don't have chicken-proof fences, do not have chickens.

I ask in utter helplessness, what can we do to get protection? Let's hear from other "Peaceable Persecuted" Lovers of Beauty.

Converts Upland Into Good Pasture

NAPLES — With only an axe, five pounds of bur clover seed and a county agent as a start, D. C. Russell, Morris county farmer, has shown himself and neighbors what can be done to make real pasture out of common old upland and woods. Today his neighbors are pooling orders for 1000 pounds of bur clover seed for sowing in their pastures.

It began in the fall of 1929 when W. G. Ralph, county agent, "got after him" to improve a 26-acre pasture of which 20 acres was in woods. Mr. Russell has gradually thinned the trees and sown bur and other clovers and grasses in the Bermuda sod. He has never bought much seed but has sown in limited amounts and let livestock and rains spread the seed over the entire pasture.

The 26 acres saved him $156.72 worth of feed the last 12 months. That is about $6 per acre from a very small investment. He says he has had good grazing throughout the year for 3 mules, 8 dairy cows, and their increase of 5 calves.

The General Property Tax Prepared by the State Educational Committee

The assessment of property for the state ad valorem tax is made by locally elected county assessors. The work of these officers is not supervised by any state agency, and there is no state board of equalization. The inevitable result of such lack of system is that some counties bear a larger part of the burden of the state general property tax than they should while others escape with a payment of less than is just. The operation of the property tax is such that progressive counties using a high ratio of assessed to true value are discriminated against, whereas counties in which property is generally undervalued are favored.

Investigation revealed the fact that the per cent of assessed value to sale price of farm lands averaged 15.7 in Dallas county and 47.1 in Polk County. Similar variations exist between counties in the assessment of other classes of property. In 1926 the assessment of real and personal property for state purposes was reported to be twenty per cent of estimated true value in Dallas and seventy-five per cent in Galveston. Though the rate of the state levy per $1000 of assessed valuation was $7.70 in both these cities, the rate per $1000 of estimated true value was $1.54 in Dallas as compared with $5.78 in Galveston. Thus the burden of the state tax on property in Galveston was 3.75 times that on equally valuable property in Dallas. In 1929 real property was assessed for state purposes at thirty-five per cent in Houston and sixty-seven per cent in Waco. Enough examples have been cited and countless others could be added, to show that the state ad valorem tax imposes unequal burdens on the different counties. This will continue to be the case so long as the present system of administration is retained. It is simply out of the question to get at uniformly fair valuations of property for state purposes with 254 separate assessors appraising it according to local needs and local influences, and with 254 separate boards to equalize the value.

"STATIC"

By J. L. COTTINGHAM

I have been figuring out some of the things I should be thankful for:

I am thankful that a deer hunter sent me some venison. I am like Jim Horton. The only way I ever get venison is for someone else to kill it for me. The big difference between me and Jim is that I tell everybody the truth about how I got my venison.

I am thankful that I got another car. Now whenever I pass Earl's under on the road I am thankful again. It must be awful for a man to have to listen to that many rattles.

I am thankful that another pay day is almost here. They seem further apart than they used to be.

I am thankful that Jim Harrell has gotten this far on his job of painting the City Hall without falling off the scaffold and breaking his neck. If Jim would quit turning around to wave at people, he could do more painting in a day and would have a much better chance of eating next year's Thanksgiving Dinner.

I am thankful that a certain blonde beauty is coming back to town Friday; the square looks dark and dreary without her.

I am thankful that only three people have insisted that their names do not appear in Static. One lady who works in a store downtown says she knows some scandal on me and will tell it unless I quit writing about her. I should think that, at my age, I would be immune from scandal but since I am not, I am thankful that I could make a deal with her to keep it quiet.

I am thankful that Toad Earnest has at last quit bragging about the deer he killed. One would think that he is the only one in the world who ever killed a deer.

I am thankful that the Postmaster is again going to wear a board. I knew him for so long by his board that I never got used to him without one.

I am thankful that Herring has gotten no baldier in the year that has passed.

I am thankful that my wife has a new alarm clock. That will mean that I can now eat breakfast before going to work.

I would be thankful if my son would learn to take off his boots without help. I will be thankful when these wear out and I will also be thankful to someone for kicking the seat of my pants real hard if I ever let him have another pair.

You can find plenty of things to be thankful for, if you look around.

Further deponent sayeth not. I thank you.

Junior Class Officers

By Lurline Brawner

The Junior class was organized as soon as possible this year so that they could start making money. They are trying to make money to give the Seniors a banquet. Naturally the first thing to do is to elect officers.

Bessie Marlow was elected president. Bessie has not been a class officer before in high school but we all know that she is capable to hold this office. Randolph Railey was elected vice president. Randolph was his class president in his freshman and sophomore years, and so we know that he is capable to take the place of the president if there is an occasion for such a need. For their secretary, the class elected R. L. Perkins. R. L. has never before held a position as a class officer but we know that he is capable.

So far these officers have proved themselves capable of their respective offices and we know that they will continue to do so.

Chapel Notes

By Geraldine Francis

A delightful program was rendered in chapel last Thursday by out-of-town artists, Mrs. Helen Fouts Cahoon of Fort Worth, head of the voice department at Texas Christian University, and her accompanist, Mrs. Mary Page Martin, also of Fort Worth, who conducts the Martin School of Music.

Mrs. Cahoon has had the distinction of singing with Chicago Metropolitan Opera in joint recitals with Hiemrick. Mrs. Martin is well known in Texas music circles and was a soloist for Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra during 1931-1932.

Mrs. Cahoon's rendition of songs were: "Norwegian Echo Song," "Cuckoo Clock," "Hi Diddle de Diddle," and the closing number — "The Shadow Song." Mrs. Martin presented two solos: "Tishimingo," and "To a Chameleon," Cadman.

These talented artists were introduced by a member of the high school faculty, Miss Lesbia Word, who is personally acquainted with Mrs. Cahoon and Mrs. Martin. From 1927-31 Miss Word was associated with Mrs. Cahoon during her college work as Secretary of Registrar at T. C. U., where she received her degree of bachelor of business administration.

4-H Club Boy Gets 51 Cents for Corn

WHARTON—While others talk of low prices, Kenneth King, 13-year-old 4-H club boy of Wharton county, succeeded to get 51 cents a bushel for his corn by feeding it properly to a litter of nine pigs. They gained two pounds a day for a 58-day feeding period and made their gains for a feed cost of 3.15 cents per pound, says J. O. Graham, county agent. They were fed in a self feeder with corn and protein supplement while getting skim milk and running on alfalfa pasture.

In addition to his hog work Kenneth sold a beef calf in September for $65, after making it gain 1 1/2 pounds daily for 153 days at a feed cost of 5 1/2 cents per pound of gain. He also raises corn and cotton by demonstration methods.

Laredo—During recent week four new oil producers added to local district.

Sing a Song of Christmas,
Of gifts and toys, oh, my!
Four-and-twenty blackbirds
Baked in a pie!

When the pie was opened
The birds began to sing,
And then flew off to Penney's,
Where Santa now is King!
