Carbon

CARBON, March 23.—The Baptist young people of Carbon Baptist church were entertained Thursday night, March 16, at the pastor's home. St. Patrick, the good old Irish Saint, made his appearance in most of the interesting games that were played. Solving jig-saw puzzles created an appetite that was well satisfied by dainty refreshments of chicken salad, punch and angel food cake, which carried out the color of the Irish holiday. Those who were present included: Misses Lila Gay White, Mozelle Howard, Thelma Jo Hazelwood, Mary Neil Harris, Gladys Palmer, Violet Boatwright, Vita Foreman and Mrs. Triplett; Messrs Willard O'Brien, Derrell Moore, E. E. Powell, A. C. Hamilton, Herbert Phillips, Bruce Hampton, Truly Carter, Maurice Vaughn and the host and hostess, Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Davis. On Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 p. m. the W. M. S. of Carbon Baptist church had a social meeting. The members of the society and their friends enjoyed the afternoon of games and jig-saw puzzles carrying out the theme of St. Patrick's day. Delicious refreshments were served to Meses Reese, Pierce, Vaughn, F. J. Stubblefield, O'Brien, Hearn, Hines, Greer, Hazelwood, Crossley, Carter Triplett, Yarbrough, Stone, Harris, Owen, Rhyne, Hampton Davis and Miss Thelma Jo Hazelwood and Mrs. A. Pierce. The Methodist ladies of Dublin church surprised Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Holt with a box last Wednesday. This box was greatly appreciated by Rev. and Mrs. Holt. J. H. Reed spent last Saturday celebrating his 81st birthday. Mr. Reed is one of Carbon's home owners and enjoys the friendship of the town. He and his good wife have only been in our midst a few years but Carbon is glad to claim the mas citizens. May Mr. Reed enjoy a number of birthdays. Mrs. Ola Boles and son Jack, of Abilene were Thursday night guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Payne. Miss Sally Mathis and Mr. Arnett of Abilene were visiting friends here Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. The raven pest seems to be about over, as the ravens left recently for parts unknown. Our farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather to plant corn and the kernels are going into the ground with a vim. Every corn planter in the community is busy and the farmer who does not own a planter is in hard luck. He is waiting to hitch to the first one that he finds idle. A fine rain came to bless this community last Saturday morning. Some hail was reported in other districts but there was no hail here. A big rabbit drive is scheduled in this community for Wednesday, and here's hoping they do like the ravens—skidoo. Mrs. Alice Hall visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Van Hall in Flatwoods last Saturday. The President of the U. S. and Congress are doing things with a rush over in Washington and here's hoping they succeed in starting something worthwhile. Mr. Roosevelt is the first president to offer a remedy for farmers ills and then say if it fails he would be the first to admit it. Loraine Wooley, who has been residing in Arkansas the past few months, is here for a while. Last Friday night J. S. Turner and Henry Wilson were entertained with a 42 party at Mrs. Turner's. This was given by their wives in honor of their birthdays. Quite a few of the community were present and reported a nice time. Misses Blanche Payne and Bernice Clark of this community and Billie Jenne and Joe Payne of Carbon attended the show Saturday night. Mrs. G. L. McBee was on the sick list last week but is getting along nicely now. Mr. and Mrs. Travis Bond's baby has also been on the sick list, but is improving. Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Tucker were Eastland visitors Saturday. Miss Helen Wooley visited her sister, Mrs. Aubrey McBee, last Saturday. Miss Jo Hartwick and W. H.

Oak Grove

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cannaday and M. E. Hazlitt visited in the Shady Grove community Sunday, with Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hastings. Mrs. H. V. Fowler has been on the sick list this week, but is better at this writing. Troy Cannaday and wife visited in the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Kinard in Shady Grove last Sunday. A painful and unusual accident happened to Alex Clarke, Eastland city commissioner, Monday evening, when he stepped off the edge of a back porch, thinking the floor was level with the ground, and broke his right wrist. CHICKENS TURKEYS Give STAR PARASITE REMOVER in their drinking water and disinfect all nests and roosts by spraying each month; It will destroy disease-causing germs and worms, rid fowls and the premises of all lice, mites, fleas and blue-bugs, tone their system, keep them in good health and egg-production and prevent loss of baby-chicks. Begin its use now. Germs and worms always come with the hatching season. No trouble to use, cost very small and your money back if not satisfied. For Sale By— Corner Drug Store N.W. Cor. ### VACANT LOT GARDENS

Industry is apparent on most vacant lots in Eastland. There is hardly any such lots that do not have some evidence of the intention of some one to convert this vacant space into a vegetable garden. Whether it is the individual owners, or whether it is the forces of the Civic League that are making these transformations we do not know, but the fact remains that there will be more vacant lots producing garden truck this year than ever before in the history of Eastland.

This is, in a great degree, the result of the plans of the Civic League as published in the Chronicle a few weeks ago. It will be remembered that the League planned to secure as many lots as possible to be used for growing gardens, to furnish seed and tools for the planting and working of these gardens after R. F. C. funds had been utilized in breaking the land and further preparing it for planting. To what extent the League has succeeded in carrying out these plans is apparent on almost every block in the city.

After the ground had been prepared for planting the lot, according to the plans, was to be given in charge of some family that otherwise would not have the opportunity of growing a garden, the cultivation to be done by the family and the produce to be utilized by the family. In this the Civic League is doing a commendable work. These plans, if carried to their greatest possible fruition, will help many families over some hard places during the coming months. But the beauty of the whole outlay is that the people will be busy in caring for the gardens and will be earning, with their own labor, whatever produce they are able to harvest from the lots.

A NEWSPAPER'S DUTY IS SERVICE

A writer has said recently that public service policies, wisely planned and conscientiously and persistently pursued, will result in building up smaller communities in the face of the constantly increasing lure of the larger cities. In this statement he is speaking particularly of news papers, though the thought applies equally well to other lines of business. For the past several years there has seemed to be a tendency toward standardization in all lines of business. This is discernible in the newspaper field in their similarity in appearance and content; yet it is possible for the papers of the smaller towns and villages to win a permanent place in the appreciation and patronage of the home people, even when many also read the large dailies from the large cities; and eventually earn for the publishers a circulation and advertising support that spells prosperity.

In this connection we believe that it is proper for us to say that it is the purpose and policy of the Chronicle to render as much service to as many people, who are engaged in the various occupations, in Eastland and Eastland county as it is possible to do with our limited means and facilities. With this end in view the columns are made up with an assortment of news, with feature articles pertaining to the various industries and with comment on the subjects of current interest. This is done not only that the paper may be of interest to a large number of readers but of some help to them as well. We believe that when the paper carries wholesome news and sound and upbuilding editorial comment it comes into the homes of its subscribers as a welcome visitor each week and is keenly missed, if, for any reason, it fails to make its appearance. We realize too that the paper can be a benefit to the home in presenting advertisements of good merchants and dependable merchandise, but the publishing of advertising should be to some extent a secondary interest of the paper. Of course advertising at a reasonable rate is a necessity if the paper succeeds financially, but the point we are striving to make is that the paper that is run from a selfish motive, never publishes more news and other wholesome reading matter than the space taken up with advertising pays for, is failing in its duty to the territory that supports it. This brings us again to the statement that the duty of any paper is to be of the utmost service possible to all of the interests of the section of country that it covers in its circulation.

Of more vital import than these considerations, however, is the fact that such a policy of service will bring an editor the satisfaction that he has made his community a better, more desirable and prosperous community in which to live, and the realization that when he moves away or passes to his eternal reward, he can go with the assurance that he has carved out for himself a place in the permanent history of the community he has served.

We thought that, while all the other banks of the nation were closed, some enterprising citizens might slip one into Eastland and have it ready to open up when the others did. But this seems not to have happened. The outcome of the nation's banking holiday, from the present viewpoint, seems to have been a happy one indeed. A greater confidence in all financial affairs pervades the land. Indications are that the bottom of the depression has been touched and the upward climb has started. Whether the climb is to be slow and tortuous or whether it is to be speedy is yet to be seen. However, the greatest optimism prevails, and now is the time to start a movement that will get a bank for Eastland.

Meteorological phenomena in Kent county last week ran the gamut of rain, sleet, hail, snow and sand, notes the Jayton Chronicle. One morning failed to dawn because of snowflakes making it impossible to see any great distance; that same afternoon, the sky was obscured by a sandstorm.

The Scurry County Times of Snyder says that one boy from there, refusing to be licked in his ambition to get an education, took a good four-gallon milk cow with him to Lubbock, and old Bossy is paying his board and lodging while he attends Tech.

Dollars You Spend In Eastland Build Our Town

(Copyright 1933 by Associated Advertisers, Inc.)

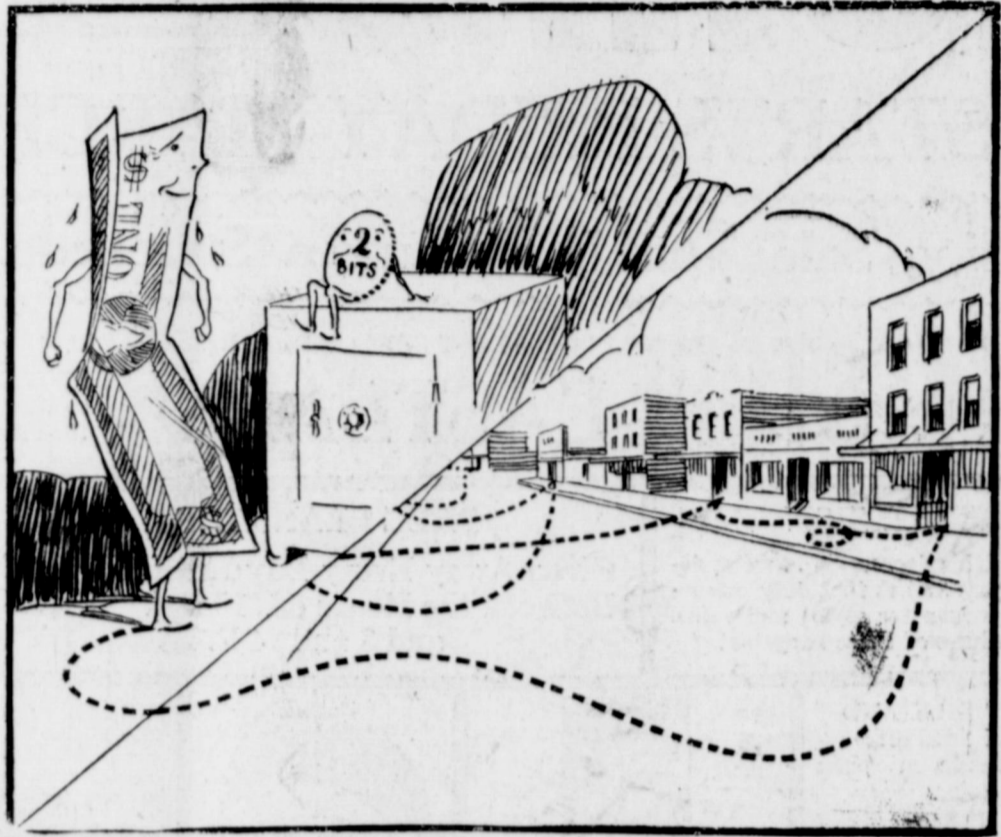

"Well, I've sure had a hard day today," remarked Old Man Dollar to his fellows, as the bank clerk shoved them all into the vault and closed the door. "Don't recall any day I traveled around more and changed hands so often. "When that fellow took me out of here this morning he said he was going down and pay his grocery bill and I knew that I was in for a lot of hard work. He took a bunch of us down and handed us to the grocer, who seemed glad to get us, but I didn't stay long with him. He passed me right out again to that clerk of his and the next thing I knew I was over at the clothing store buying a hat for him.

"Then somebody took me down to the meat market and from there I came back to the bank again to help pay off a note the meat man owed. But I didn't get to rest long. They took me out to settle with a man who had been building a house for somebody. He gave me to his wife and boy, then I did begin to travel. I bet I've been to every store in this man's town, almost. I've been folded and unfolded so many times today I'm about worn out. But everybody was glad to see me and from what they all said I must have done a lot of good."

"But what," asked Two Bits, "became of that other Dollar, that bright new one that went out with you this morning?"

"Oh him? He got into the hands of a fellow who said he was going to some other town to do his trading. We'll never see that Dollar again. He's gone for good."

An imaginary conversation, of course, but not so far-fetched when you come to think of it. Ever take time to figure just how far the dollar you spend at home goes? The number of things it helps buy, the number of people who receive it and pass it on, the good it does in a community in the course of a day, a week, a month or a year? Statistics are dull things and usually they prove little. Experiments conducted in a number of towns show plainly, however, that a dollar put to work passes through many hands in a given community in a given time, for the purchase of commodities of every description, the payment of debts and the financing of private and public construction.

Which is as it should be. The faster your dollar circulates the more it will buy and the more good it will do to a larger number of people. We have all seen what tight money has done for country during recent times. We have all seen, too, what happens to the small town when money becomes concentrated in the larger centers and in the hands of a few people.

Buying from your home-town merchants and supporting your home industries, therefore, becomes more than a matter of convenience, more even than a matter of civic pride. It keeps your money at home, working for you and for the benefit of the entire community, day after day. The financial welfare of any community depends, to a large extent, on the dollars that the individual members of the community spend at home.

Your dollars enable your merchant to keep a better stock of merchandise and a more attractive store; they pay the wages of those who work for him and support their families; they enable your merchant to buy more of the articles your community produces, thereby creating greater opportunities for home-folks; they pay taxes, build schools and churches and the many improvements that the town needs as it grows. In more way than you can imagine, your dollars come back to you, after helping other members of your own community.

But its an entirely different story with the money you spend away from home. Seldom, if ever, does it come back. Instead, it goes to help build up some other town and enrich those with whom it is spent.

So, if you have the good of your town and YOUR OWN financial welfare at heart, keep your money at home. Buy as many things as you can—and you can buy most of our necessities and luxuries—from your home town merchants. Patronize local stores and industries, for you will find that in the long run you can buy just as cheaply, if not more so, than you can elsewhere, and you will, at the same time, help build up your own community for YOUR OWN benefit.

WHY WE SHOULD TRADE IN EASTLAND

By JIMMIE MAHON
Freshman, Eastland High School
If we, the citizen of Eastland, buy our needs from local merchants, we open the way for the employment of men and women. The more goods we buy from our local enterprises, the more necessity there is for extra employees. The increased trade and employment during the holiday season in each December is enough to prove that this is true.

The more money we spend at home, the more money there is for taxes. The merchants pay this money out as taxes, and it is used to improve the appearance of our city an dto improve the conditions here in general.

If Eastland's enterprises are successful, more home-seekers will be attracted here. Everyone likes to live in a city where there are no vacant business buildings starting at him at every turn. There are far too many vacant buildings in Eastland. If we buy

What Constitutes A Citizen Of Any Community

Good merchants are loath to criticize any one who spend their money in foreign fields for any purpose. It is an unchallenged fact that the money in possession of an individual belongs to them to do with as they see fit. Therefore the merchant or professional business man or woman is helpless to express their opinions on the subject.

But a citizen of a community is the sole judge as to whether his community shall go forward or backward. The business of a citizen is to apply their activity in making purchases for the necessities or luxuries of life within the channels that will react towards their individual interests. The answer is inevitable that there is only one channel in which to spend it judiciously and profitably and that is within the community in which they live provided of course that the prices are not at a prohibitive premium, which is hardly any instance is a fact.

A good merchant is always in touch with all the markets and if the kind or class of merchandise is not on hand at the time the customer calls for it, they can get it within a few short hours, and will do so if given the chance.

There is no line of merchandise regardless of what it is needed for that is not represented right here in Eastland. There is no necessity to go miles away just to please a whim of with an idea that something different is wanted.

No person or firm has a right (Continued on Page Five) from our merchants, the merchants can enlarge their stores, and make use of these vacant buildings.

If we buy the goods of our merchants, the merchants will buy our products. This is because they wish to patronize us if they can help us by doing so. They expect our support, and at the same time we expect theirs.

When we buy products from our merchants we keep our money circulating in Eastland instead of in surrounding towns. We pay the merchant, the merchant pays the butcher, the butcher pays the light company, and the light company hires men and pays dividends on stock to the people.

to challenge any individual for their act of making purchases in other fields, but there is a right to have a concern over the matter because very dollar that is spent elsewhere handicaps the progress of the community and may be the means of costing someone their job because of decreasing sales.

It is particularly important at this time that all of us get down to real thinking and have a heart to heart talk with ourselves regarding as to where we should spend our money. Shall we just assume an attitude of independence and spend it where we please, or shall we take in consideration the loyalty that we owe to the community in which we live and spend our money at home.

A good citizen knows that loyalty is the most valuable asset that an individual has for their best interests, and common sense appliance will tell them that their loyalty to the community is best exemplified by coming in daily contact with their merchants for their entire needs. Eastland merchants and professional interests are proud of their wares, and are here to render every consistent service for the best interest of their community. And after all, a good business citizenry is always on the alert and active to do something for the community which spends their money with them. This fact is truly represented by the live civic organizations, municipal enterprises and fine churches.

Spend your money in Eastland to represent what it constitutes to make a good citizen.

Jests For Fun

Doctor: How much sleep do you get? Patient: Three or four hours a day. Doctor: That is not sufficient. How can you manage on that? Patient: Oh, I sleep eight or nine hours every night.

"Man criticizes woman for her extravagance but she never wastes two dollars worth of shot gun shells to get a 20c rabbit." Globe Trotter: I hear the U. S. is trying to get rid of prohibition. Can you tell me something about it? Ole Timer: Well, when they get rid of prohibition, they should be able to get a good price for it. It's hardly been used.

Wife: John, dear, what would you do if I should suddenly die, Hubby: I should go mad, my dear. Wife: Would you marry again? Hubby: Well, I don't think I would go as mad as that.
