WHAT HAS HAPPENED
John Hunter Yates, multi-millionaire, resigns as head of his huge industries that he might devote the rest of his life—he is 49—to doing the things he has always wanted to do. He is a music lover and takes piano lessons from Zukowski, handsome young composer and pianist. Yates' wife, society dowager, is not the type to begin seeking adventure at her age. Gilda, an heiress, is attracted by the Players Guild. Yates accidentally meets Blossom Bailey, beautiful young actress, she mistakes Yates for the waiter and asks him to help her go over the script. Yates impulsively agrees when the script's directions call for it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Blossom Bailey sat on the edge of her bed pulling up a shimmering silk stocking over her leg, smooth and white in the late morning light. Gilda Gordon, her roommate—for even the expenses of a cheap little furnished room must be shared when an actress is "between shows"—stared at Blossom quizzically, then repeated the play's lines, reading from the script in front of her on the coverlet. She finished reading, then turned back to Blossom.
"Now, for Pete's sake, will you tell me what's so hard about that and why you blew up in your lines last night at the Yates' affair?"
Blossom stared at the ceiling. "Funniest darn thing happened to me. I was out there in the garden, running over my lines, and I got one of the waiters to hold the script and cue me. Well—everything went along fine till we got up to this speech.
" 'What happened then?'
"Then he took the stage direction seriously. He started to play the scene—and how! He had the funniest look in his eye. I slapped his face and got away. But it must have upset me at that. Because when I got to playing the scene on the stage I couldn't remember a word.
"Gilda's tone was ironical. "Since when do you get thrown off by a kiss?"
" 'It wasn't that...but the fellow acted funny. I was a little scared. He said I looked like a ghost and I reminded him of a painting. And then, to top it off, he tried to tell me he was John Hunter Yates him- self.'
The phone buzzed insistently. Gilda jumped from bed and lifted the receiver. "Hello...Yes...well, I don't know...I'll see...Who's calling?...What?...Gilda covered the mouthpiece and turned to Blossom. "It's somebody claims he's Yates—wants to talk to you. Are you in?"
" 'No! It's that screwy waiter. How'd you like that for gall! Where did he get my phone number?'
" 'What'll I tell him?'
" 'Tell him I died. Tell him I don't speak English very good. Tell him I—' Blossom stopped suddenly as her eyes took in a picture on the front page of the morning newspaper. "Wait! Gilda!—Blossom jumped from the bed, showing the paper in front of Gilda. "Look!"
There on the front page was a photo of Yates, supplemented by a story announcing his resignation. "That's him! The WAITER," she exclaimed. "The one that kissed me last night!"
Gilda was tense with excitement. "The guy who said he was Yates?"
" 'He is Yates—that's his picture! I've struck oil! It's a gusher! Gimme that phone!' She grabbed the phone, and her voice became suddenly dulcet. "Yes?...This is Blossom Bailey...How do you do?...Fine, thank you, Mr. Yates... How did you get my phone number, Mr. Yates?...Stage manager?... Well, that's one I owe him. I guess Gosh, Mr. Yates, I meant to call you myself today and apologize for the way I acted last night...I don't mean on the stage—I mean in the garden. I couldn't sleep a wink all night, thinking about it. I thought it was just someone—you know, someone getting ideas...That's mighty nice of you, Mr. Yates, but I'll never forgive myself. I should have known who it was. But I guess I'm still wet behind the ears or something...What?...You're glad I am? Why?...Well, gee, that's a funny way of looking at it...No, I didn't...Well, thanks, anyway. You're terribly sweet...Yes... Yes...Surely—Of course...Yes... At six?...Yes...The Ritz?...Certainly...Of course not...Certainly...At six." She hung up, then turned away from the phone.
Gilda, exploding with excitement, blurted. "What did he have to say?"
" 'He said he called me up because I slapped his face when he kissed me.'
" 'Huh?'
" 'He said if I hadn't slapped him he wouldn't have called me up.'
" 'How do you like that?'
" 'He asked me if I'd ever heard of a character called 'He who gets slapped.'
" 'The show that ran here a few years ago? Maybe he wants to put it on again—maybe he wants you to play in it. What else did he say?'
" 'Nothing'...Blossom walked to the window and stared out. Gilda followed. Outside, the dull morning had turned to a hard, pattering rain. "Listen to that rain..."
" 'Yeah,' said Gilda sourly. "It looks like a tough winter."
Blossom spoke softly. "Not for me."

"I thought they grew in the streets here." (Posed by Elissa Landi and Frank Morgan)

I'll buy that newspaper and fire that scandal monger!"
" 'There'll be other newspapers and other scandal mongers. Will you buy them all and fire them all?'
" 'For you? Certainly.' Yates smiled. "When I get back home again—"
" 'Don't let's go back. I never want to leave Paris. I've never been so happy. I want to stay here forever.'
" 'Will you compromise on forty or fifty years?'
" 'No,' said Blossom. "Forever."
" 'So be it! Come on—' Yates grabbed her arm. "Let's go!"
" 'Where to?'
" 'Shopping.'
Blossom smiled. "But I have everything I want."
Followed hours of shopping for Blossom, then Yates left her to do personal shopping, with an agreement to meet for dinner at one of the popular cafes. An hour later, Yates was at the table of the sidewalk cafe, watching with interest the continual parade of passersby. Suddenly, his eyes widened with interest. At the same moment, there was a startled exclamation from the crowd.
"Mr. Yates!"
It was Zukowski, obviously not rolling in wealth, a trifle seedy, but withal, radiant and happy. His aura was that of well-being. He rushed up to Yates, pumping his hand vigorously.
" 'I couldn't believe my eyes at first—I had to look twice!'
Yates smiled. "They told me if I waited here on this boulevard everybody I knew would pass by in twenty-four hours. I've been here a dozen times and you're the first—"
" 'What's happened to you?' Zukowski still pumped Yates' hand. "You're another man. How long have you been here? When did you arrive? What are you doing here in a chair on the boulevard?"
" 'I'm on a holiday. I have an appointment here. And you. Why do you walk along the street singing to yourself? Is it because you're happy? Have you got more pupils in Paris than you had in New York—or perhaps better ones?'
Zukowski spoke joyously. "I have no pupils any more. I've stopped teaching. I'm composing now—and starving."
" 'We must have lunch together some time.'
" 'Fine!' blurted Zukowski. "Fine!"
" 'At the hotel, I mean.'
Zukowski ignored Yates' insinuation. "I should be glad to have you buy my lunch for me—but not as a bribe. I couldn't resume those lessons."
As Zukowski turned to summon the waiter, Yates spotted Blossom in the crowd coming towards him. Zukowski faced Yates.
" 'Rather a hungry composer than a well-fed teacher. You know, I've written a symphony. And you?'
Yates stood up. "I'm waiting for one."

Texas Flag Was Specified In a Legislative Act

AUSTIN.—The state legislature has taken official action on most of the patriotic and sentimental observances. Exact dimensions of the Texas Lone Star flag are specified by an act of the legislature in 1933. The same act directs that it shall be flown with the white above the red.
The Lone Star became an official Texas symbol in 1839 when it was made the central part of a coat of arms adopted by the Republic of Texas. An oak wreath is used in this coat of arms, but the legislature in 1919 made the pecan the state tree. The bluebonnet, or buffalo clover, became the state flower by act in 1901; in 1927 the mockingbird was made the state bird. "Texas Our Texas" was adopted as a state song by the legislature in 1930 and the same year "Friendship" was made the state motto.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson JESUS ON THE CROSS

Text: Matt. 27:33-49
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 10.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance

OUR lesson deals with the most significant event in all history—the death of Jesus on the cross. The crucifixion of Jesus was not an isolated tragedy in human history. Its significance lies in some measure in the fact that there is so much of tragedy in human life that this one outstanding event in the agony and death of the man of supreme gentleness and goodness is symbolic of the suffering of the innocent from tyranny and evil.
It was not only Jesus, but humanity, that was crucified upon the cross, and humanity continues to be crucified by the sins and cruelties of its own perpetration.
But there is a deeper significance in the crucifixion of Jesus. The story of Jesus and his life work did not end on the cross. In a sense, his life work had only attained its climax, for henceforth his influence was not simply to be that of a teacher instructing little groups on the mountain side or speaking to multitudes in the fields and highways.
His influence was to be that of a living spirit, everywhere present, guiding men and strengthening them as they sought to live in the light of his teaching and carry on his work in the world.

IN this story of the crucifixion of Jesus we have an episode in the life of a man, an individual whose divinity was manifest in human form in a body that could suffer and in a spirit that knew anguish. Were this not so, the story could have little meaning for our lives.
Paul wrote of his sharing the sufferings of Jesus, and in a deep sense we must share those sufferings if we would discover and know the meaning of the resurrection.
To know Jesus in his earthly life and to follow him all the way to the cross is an experience that must come into our lives if we would find the richness of his salvation and the power of fellowship with him.
But there is a larger aspect, also, of the crucifixion of Jesus. The agonies of Calvary were more than the sufferings of an individual. They have a social side related to all the great life of humanity.
There is a fellowship of the cross in which men may live an eternal life and find power to serve the Kingdom of God by ushering in a new day of mercy and justice and peace.

Floral offerings were beautiful. Sympathy is extended to the parents.

For several years, Dr. Hubble has been focussing a 100-inch telescope on the realm of the nebulae systems of stars described as "swarms of bees drifting through the air" far beyond the outermost limits of the system embracing our sun and planets.

Although the nebulae nearest the earth are large and bright, the astronomer disclosed the majority are so distant that through a telescope they appear faint patches of misty, vaporous light.

This is the frontier of the known universe — the frontier which bounds a vast sphere, 600,000,000 million light years in diameter, throughout which are scattered 100,000,000 nebulae.

At a recent meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, Dr. Hubble described the characteristics of the universe thus revealed and expressed the opinion that the observable region is a fair sample of the universe lying beyond the reach of present-day instruments.

He said the distribution in space of the observable nebulae was approximately uniform and that if the known region of the universe were divided into one hundred, one thousand, or even ten thousand equal parts, the nebulae contents of each division's respective parts would be similar.

Although he believes the realm of the nebulae stretches far beyond the frontiers of the universe now observable, Dr. Hubble found no indication of a super-system of nebulae analogous to a grander system of stars.

Texan Makes Violin Only Three Fourths Of An Inch Long

SABINAL, Texas.—A concert for humming birds could be played on a tiny violin made here, by E. C. Gibson. It is one and three-fourths inches long and weighs eight grains.

Gibson carved the miniature instrument from scraps of hard maple, pecan wood and ebony. The keys, nut and button, was secured from a violin made in 1633 which Gibson once repaired.

Everything about the small instrument is in proportion. The strings were made from a regular violin string which was softened, picked apart and spun into threads like strands.

Gibson also has two other violins which are mere miniatures but look huge behind the "body." These others are eight inches long.

Besides violins the wood carver has several other articles that rank with them for intricacy and delicacy. One is a small wagon truck inside a bottle. Others are an ornamental fan and a wooden chain carved from a single piece of wood.

BLAME IT ON TOM

Tersely the Fort Worth Star-Telegram rebukes the Chicago Daily News for the poor manners of an editorial, "Uncle Sam, Piker," in which blame for the reduced federal appropriation for the second edition of the World's Fair is laid upon the shoulders of Tom Blanton. Both the Star-Telegram and the Cisco Daily News, as well as sundry other newspapers in Texas and Washington, know that Tom Blanton doesn't care ainker's dam what the Chicago Daily News thinks about him. The point is that Blanton and most of his constituents, as well as millions of other good American citizens, admire Chicago and the splendid achievement of the World's Fair, but think that the fair ought to pay its own way. They certainly do not feel that the federal government and the taxpayers of this nation are obligated to reimburse the fair association for any losses it may have sustained, or guarantee it against any possible deficit through means of a large federal appropriation. The money that the administration is spending so liberally in an assault on the depression has to be repaid from some source, and that source will be the pockets of source will be the pockets of the tax-payers. At least that has always been the course in the past. And if any person in the United States thinks he, or she, is immune to assessment for these costs, let him reckon what percentage of the price of his meals, the clothing he wears, the cigar he smokes and even the cold drink he consumes is commanded by these taxes. The mathematical result will make a believer out of him. Because a person does not have his name upon the income tax list does not mean he is escaping any contribution to the national treasury. He's paying and he will pay and pay.

So, when the Chicago Daily News declares that when the Texas constituents of the "miserly watchdog of the treasury" visit the fair "they will find that the American government rates itself as a third or fourth class power," and "can thank Tom for it," his Texas constituents feel rather proud of having a representative in the national congress who rates the abuse. It is proof enough that they have a voice in the deliberations there.—Cisco Daily News. From his position on the important committee on appropriations, a position he has won by his long useful service in the House, Congressman Blanton keeps a watchful eye on appropriations being made by the congress and when he sees the people's money being illegally or wastefully spent he promptly starts action to stop it and is nearly always successful. This is just what he did to the tragic appropriation Chicago sought for her fair, and what we did to that proposed appropriation he has done to numerous other similar unworthy appropriations.

Prospects For New Postoffice Here Are Brighter

Two new federal buildings for Eastland county, a postoffice for Eastland and one for Ranger, are included in an appropriation measure offered in the house and which democratic leaders hope to put through congress today. The following news dispatch carried under a Washington date line gives in part the buildings included in the bill:

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Thirty-five public buildings in Texas on which no PWA funds have been allotted are listed for construction in the deficiency appropriation bill for which a total of $65,000,000 is provided. The bill was reported favorably to the house Saturday by its appropriations committee.

Twenty-nine of the buildings have been previously authorized by congress and six have been recommended by the treasury to the PWA for which no previous congressional authority existed. Authority for prosecutions of the 35 building projects is transferred in the bill from the PWA to the treasury and postoffice department. Estimates of cost of individual buildings have been reduced. The Texas buildings listed, with the proposed limit of cost, including administrative expenses, included Eastland, $66,000, Ranger, $80,000.

Eastland Rotary Club Endorses New Bank Plans

The Eastland Rotary club was given first hand information on the Boy Scouts of the county and their activities by scout executive Guy Quirl. The Eastland Rotary Club is sponsoring the local troop. Fay Y. Earnest, scoutmaster, gave a brief and interesting talk on the scout activities. The feature of the day's program was the presentation to the club by County Judge C. L. Garrett the proposed bank plan for Eastland.

He gave the club the details of the plan and expressed his views that it was one of the most important movements at this time. After hearing the plan explained the club went on record unanimously endorsing the plan, and extended the cooperation of the club to the depositors committee in getting the plans presented at Washington and before the state department of banking.

H. C. Davis, secretary of the Eastland chamber of commerce, spoke in the interest of bringing the fireman's convention to Eastland in 1935 or 1936 and Dr. P. M. Kuykendall, president of the Ranger chamber of commerce offered the cooperation of his organization in furthering the bank plans and the plans for the convention.

A committee composed of J. B. Johnson and Sam Gamble has been handling the project in the interest of the club, with both Cisco and Ranger expressing a willingness to join in cooperating.

L. C. Burr & Co. Store Burglarized

Burglars Saturday night entered the L. C. Burr department store in Eastland, knocked the knob off the safe and took $500 in cash and at least $100 in merchandise and make their escape.

Entrance to the building was gained by cutting a hole large enough for a man to enter in the southwest corner of the roof. A brace and bit, chisel, hammer and perhaps a small saw, was used to cut the hole. A rope, which was left inside the building, as was the hammer, was used by the burglars to let themselves into the building.

A large sledge hammer, used to knock the knob off the safe, was left inside the safe and under it was a note which read as follows:

"This was not done by Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, but by their friends."

The burglary was discovered Sunday morning by employees of the store. Officers were working on the case.

Bittle to Attend A&M Conference June 11th-15th

Supt. P. B. Bittle of the Eastland schools is to attend the Texas school administrative conference at A. & M. college in College Station, June 11-15. The conference is an annual affair attended by superintendents and principals of the state who discuss school problems. Problems which are to be discussed this year include the subjects of salaries, one of the major problems of the Eastland schools.

The discussions among the educators, which are listened in on by practically all high officials of the state board of education to obtain ideas for the betterment of schools, have the reputation of being free and frank.

N. S. Holland, superintendent of Breckenridge schools, is a member of the executive committee of the conference.

MEN'S 9:49 BIBLE CLASS

The Men's 9:49 Bible class had their usual Sunday morning session held in the Methodist church, opened by Earl Bender in the absence of their president, D. J. Jobe.

A wonderful lesson was brought by Judge J. E. Hickman, class teacher in "Christ In Gethsemane" in which the speaker stressed the need for prayer in difficult situations. That the first thing Christ did in his great trial, was to pray. That we needed more moral courage, which is the backbone of physical courage.

FRANKLY, one of the chief reasons why I enjoy Chesterfield is the fact that I don't get little crumbs of tobacco in my mouth.

Rarely ever do I find a Chesterfield that isn't well filled. The tobacco in them seems to be of the right length, and they must be the right size because they burn right and smoke right.

I like them also because they are milder.

"I've just bought an ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR."

"I've just bought an electric refrigerator—I can't afford to take chances with the food my family eats—I want to be sure that it is fresh and wholesome all of the time and that there is no danger of undermining health with food that looks, tastes and smells all right, but which in reality, due to improper refrigeration, is unfit for use."

And so it goes—electric refrigerators by necessity have been built for Texas' climate and will maintain constant temperatures of 50 degrees or less when the thermometer reads 100 in the shade for days on end. When you buy your electric refrigerator you are not experimenting—you know that regardless of how hot the weather may be, your food is kept at just the right temperatures all of the time and that it is perfectly safe to eat.

Gordian Knot Is Tied In Purse Strings of D. C.

Under the caption, "Voiceless Taxpayers of Nation's Capital Penalized by Tireless Tom Blanton," the Washington Daily News in its issue of Friday, May 25th, carried the following news story: "You know that's a superfluous question," was Rep. Tom Blanton's curt reply to a reporter who asked him whether he was going to the joint conference on the 1935 District supply bill with an "open mind."

Blanton has taken the floor of the House on many occasions to reply to attacks made upon him by Washington newspapers, and there have been times when undoubtedly he has come out on top.

No one has ever denied Blanton's prowess as a fighter or his ability to use the rules of the House. If Blanton doesn't like a bill, it pretty nearly takes a party caucus to pass it over his objections.

Foremost among the offenses laid to Blanton's doorstep by the populace of the Nation's Capital is the annual assault on the Federal contribution to District expenses. Tom's artful maneuvers have reduced the Federal share from $9,000,000 to its present low level of $5,700,000.

There are two principal reasons for Blanton's success in smothering District legislation he does not approve. One is his boundless energy, and the other is the lack of interest in District matters shown by the House.

Tom probably works as hard as any member of Congress. NRA lawyers don't apply in his office. He arrives early and leaves late. He is on the floor almost every minute the House is in session, and consequently he misses no bets.

His seat in the House chamber is in the second row on the Democratic side, near the aisle. When the debate becomes heated he skids forward to the edge of his seat, his sharp eyes darting back and forth over the chamber, ready to spring to his feet and join in the fray.

Tom has a husky, powerful voice and a tendency to st. allow his "r's" so that "revenue" might become "revenue."

Quite courtly in referring to his colleagues, he designates them all as "my friend" and follows that up whenever possible with any title they may once have borne such as "the Governor" or "the judge."

Blanton used to be a judge himself, serving on the bench in Texas for eight years prior to his first election to Congress in 1916. Tom neither drinks nor smokes. His only "vice" seems to be that of vice chairman of the House subcommittee in charge of the District supply bill.

Milk and Cream Consumption Down

WASHINGTON.—Americans are drinking less milk and cream, an Agriculture Department report indicates.

Consumption in cities and towns last year was estimated at 3,629,470,000 gallons compared to 3,731,743,000 gallons in 1932. 3,739,645,000 gallons in 1931 and 3,782,042,000 gallons in 1930.

Per capita consumption declined from 40 gallons in 1931 and 1932 to 38.8 gallons last year. The decreases occurred chiefly in the North Atlantic states where about four per cent less milk and cream was used than in 1932. Consumption decreased 3.5 per cent in South Central states, three per cent in South Atlantic and about two per cent in North Central.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable relief that contains no "dose" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

County Relief—

The citizens of this county as well as the inadequacy of the amount of relief heretofore granted and how it was far below the actual need and the possibilities of opening a work relief program. Following the close of the conference the committee returned to Eastland the same day.
On Wednesday, May 30, County Administrator Driscoll received notice from Miss Marie Dresden, director, Texas relief commission at Austin, that Eastland county's allocation was $25,000, which was 64 1/2 per cent of the entire requirement forwarded to Austin in the relief board's estimate for June and a sum permitting the relief board of Eastland county to inaugurate a work relief program during the month of June and this work relief to be paid one-third in cash and two-thirds in kind.
In April there was received $13,500 and in May $13,000, with which to operate.
The county administrator outlined the great detail necessary to properly put this program in force and estimated the start of the work relief activities would be as of approximately June 11.
The county relief board has at present eight approved work relief projects and during the interim required by the relief board to properly line up this program, such other applications for additional work relief projects will be submitted when and if local communities can provide the necessary finances required by the Texas relief commission.
County Administrator Driscoll has stated new registrations for direct or work relief will not be accepted as of the start of June 1, 1934.
All employables are respectfully requested by the county committee to refrain from applying for work relief assignments at the various relief offices. The case worker makes his contact in the home of the client.

Garden and Yard Hints From Club Women of County

Care of shrubs through the dry summer months is perhaps the biggest problem women face in yard improvement, especially in the rural sections. The plants must have moisture to survive, and usually watering a yard in the country is more than a matter of turning on the hydrant. But fortunately there are methods we can use that make watering effective even when it is done less often. In fact supposing the beds were in proper shape to begin with, there are four points that need to be considered in summer care of shrubs; removal of annuals from shrub beds, frequent shallow cultivation, proper watering and mulching.

Removal of annuals is necessary—even though you may feel that it leaves your beds looking bare—for the annuals grow so fast that they use all of the food and moisture that the shrubs, especially if they are new and not well established, need. As a result shrubs are stunted in growth if they survive at all. If the shrub beds do look a bit bare this summer, remember that the better start shrubs have the sooner they will make an effective planting that has some permanent value the year round.

Frequent shallow cultivation is quite as important as watering because it puts the soil in shape to receive and to hold the moisture applied. Like a sponge, a loose soil take up water and holds it, but like a brick, a baked crusted soil sheds water and dries out quickly. So, after every rain as soon as the top soil will crumble, it should be stirred about one to two inches deep with a rake—I say a rake because there's no danger of your working too deep with it. Remember this shallow cultivation is meant to conserve moisture—not to stimulate the plant. The ground should be stirred often enough that a crust never forms and that a dust mulch is kept on top—that will mean every three to ten days—depending on the soil and amount of rainfall. Though it is necessary to work the soil after every rain, it should not be dug while wet because it may sour and it gets cloddy and loses moisture.

Everybody realizes the necessity of watering—but it really is surprising how many folks do not water right. It's possible to do more harm than good at watering. Whatever method we use, to be effective, must get the water down into the soil far enough that the roots are encouraged to go deep for a drink. You may use a system of sub-irrigation so the water never reaches the top soil, or you may pour water down by the root of a plant through a pipe inserted for the purpose, or you may round out a depression in the soil around the plant and apply bucketsful of water, watching it soak in two or three times until the soil there seems to have drunk in all it wants. At any rate, when you water, soak the plants. A little bit of water put on top will cause the plant rootlets to come to top of the ground for water—which condition means that the hot sun or the dry winds or the winter freezes kill the plant easily. Instead of dabbling on a little water each day, save your water, your energy and your plants by watering thoroughly every week or ten days, and cultivating properly as already indicated. Unless you have a gardener whose sole duty is to look after the yard, plants should not be watered more than they need or cultivated deeper than one or two inches, for such treatment would stimulate a sappy growth that could not stand the reverses of sun and wind and freeze. For most of us, the best policy is to withhold any cultivation, fertilization, pruning or watering after September that might encourage fall growth, so that the spring and Manner growth will have a change to harden and mature before first freezes.

The fourth thing to consider in summer care is mulching. With soils that lose moisture quickly or that have a tendency to crust over quickly a good mulch should be used. After the bed has been watered and cultivated, a three or four inch layer of leaves, straw, pine needles, moss, etc., or an inch layer of leaf mold or well rotted fertilizer can be spread all over the top of the beds. This mulch is meant to prevent the excessive evaporation of moisture from the soil, it performs the same duty that the dust mulch does, but since a dust mulch is hard to keep on some soils, a much of other materials becomes necessary. Incidentally, as the mulch disintegrates, it makes a fine addition to the soil itself.

There is no hokus-pokus way of having a lovely yard—but the simplest methods patiently applied bring happy results. Summer is the time to test a good gardener; but if you adhere strictly to removal of all annuals from shrub beds, frequent shallow cultivation, SOAKING plants when they need water, and applying a special mulch to soils that lose moisture readily, you can qualify with the best.

Removal of annuals from rose garden and shrub beds is necessary because the annuals grow fast and use all the food and moisture that the shrubs and roses need, choking the plants out and stunting them, sometimes killing out the valuable plants. You feel as I have felt, the yard looks bare, but it is better to look bare for a season and get the good growth needed for the shrubs and roses. The annuals can be planted in a bed to themselves and have the flower garden along with the permanent plants. This is the experience Mrs. Genie Ford, yard improvement cooperator of the Romney home demonstration club.

Grass Lawn Without Using Bermuda Grass

Running mesquite grass is quite as good as Bermuda for a lawn. It has the advantage of being more drought resistant, grows more closely to the ground, requires less frequent mowing and is easier to get rid of when or if it should get into the fields or garden. Since the reasons given for not using Bermuda grass are that it take water mowing and gets into the fields there is no reason now for not having a grass lawn. Miss Halli Hill, yard demonstrator of Okma has put the mesquite grass on the yard and it grows well in the country, being a native grass. There are two mesquite grasses, the curly mesquite which grows in bunches and not flat. The running mesquite grass is sometimes called Buffalo grass. Carpet grass, a San Augustine grass, makes good lawns, but is rather coarse in texture. It is good in the shade and stands drought just fairly well.

The mesquite grass roots should be started in the yard in the fall when the rains start, this in order to get a good start or good root system before spring and summer.

Ship's Band Plays As Burning Vessel Conveyed to Port

HONOLULU, June 7.—When the ship's band playing "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," the Dollar liner President Lincoln, was conveyed into port here today, after the ship's crew had fought flames in the cargo hold all night.

Although passengers had been kept on deck wearing life preservers for many hours and some were tired, perfect order prevailed and at no time was the danger serious.

Phares Tells Why Clyde Remained at Liberty So Long

AUSTIN, June 1.—Frank Hamer, successful trailer of Clyde Barrow, plays marble boards for recreation.

The rolling spheres seem to fascinate him almost as much as solving a crime. He is a frequent patron of the marble parlors at a drug store adjoining the state capitol grounds.

His patrons had a double treat today. They saw both Hamer and Clyde Barrow, who were arrested at the same time.

Adding to the Hamer saga, State Attorney John W. Hornsby tells Hamer and Tom Hickman, another noted ranger, once defied the entire state of Oklahoma.

Hamer and Oklahoma had a dispute over ownership of a strip of land on the Red river. He had been covered on it and the taxes were withheld. Hornsby was named attorney for the property in a Texas court action. All he had to do was get hold of it. Hamer and Hickman were detailed for the purpose. Twenty Oklahoma guards were sent to take it.

When some of the Oklahoma guards were relieved, Hamer and Hickman slipped in, seized it and tried to be dislodged. Oklahoma threatened to use troops to get the rangers, but the matter was settled amicably.

Chief L. G. Phares of the state patrol says that congratulations over the successful chase of Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parson are followed by an inquiry as to why it took so long to get them.

He supplies several reasons. He, Phares said, was one of the wisest criminals that officers tried to trace. He changed quickly. His tactics were different from any type. In many places a man is located by being a woman acquaintance. Phares was not to be found that way. The chase was slowed up by Phares said, because of being used by officers to prevent innocent persons. They

Medical Problems Will Be Discussed At A.M.A. Meeting

By HENRY B. HENSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
CLEVELAND.—Modern medicine's four "problem children"—cancer, tuberculosis, heart disease and arthritis—will be clinically viewed when 8,000 physicians and surgeons meet here June 11 for the 85th annual meeting of the American Medical Association. Sessions will continue through June 15.

Three hundred medical and scientific papers, detailing the latest advances in man's war on the four perplexing diseases, and others, will be read.

Epidemic Diseases
Epidemic diseases, which have ruffled the brows of medics particularly during the past year—amoebic dysentery and epidemic encephalitis (sleeping sickness), will be analyzed in two symposiums.

The first disease, caused by infection from an amoebic, broke out in Chicago during the summer of 1933. The second disease caused a serious epidemic in St. Louis.

Speakers on amoebic dysentery will include Drs. Charles F. Craig and Sidney K. Simon, New Orleans; Henry E. Meloney, Tenn.; Thomas B. Magath, Rochester, Minn.; George W. McCoy, Washington, D. C.; Alfred C. Reed, San Francisco; and Kenneth M. Lynch, Charleston, S. C.

Other Subjects
Other subjects scheduled for special attention include forensic medicine, (the relation of medicine to law), lead poisoning, nutrition, new investigations on the functions of the outer layer of brain and indications for the interruption of childbirth.

The first general session will be held Tuesday evening, June 12, with Dr. Walter L. Biering, of Des Moines, new president, as speaker. Dr. Biering succeeds Dr. Dean Lewis of Baltimore, at that time.

Welcome addresses will be made

Your Grass Roots May Also Have This Affliction

BEAUMONT.—Yes, there's something wrong with those grass roots, County Farm Agent J. F. Combs is convinced, and if you want to know just what it is he'll let you read for yourself the official diagnosis.

Combs didn't like the looks of some of the roots so he sent them to the bureau of plant industry at Washington. The report received in reply said:

"These roots are infested with Nematodes. We found numerous specimens of the root-knot nematode, heterodera marioni, and also another quite serious plant-infesting form, anguilulina multicincta. In addition, aphelenchoides parietinus, cephalobus oxyuroides, anguilulina, filliformis, and dorylamus, perhaps obtusicaudatus, were found, but the trouble really comes from the first named species."

If you don't believe it, you can examine the roots yourself.

Rangers to Catch Crooks, Then Talk

AUSTIN, Tex.—Adjutant-General Henry Hutchings has issued orders to state rangers to "Catch them first." After they, meaning criminals, are caught, rangers may talk. Talk before capture will mean a vacancy to be filled on the Ranger force.

The general, one-time newspaper publisher, says he is not attempting to establish a censorship. "When something is accomplished, we will gladly furnish information about it," he said. His ban is against statements about plans. Most criminals can read the general believes. If they can't they have friends who can.

Few Rangers need the general's order. Seasoned news men long ago learned that when Rangers "put out" something, it is for the purpose of misleading the persons sought.

Orthography Says Witt Next Governor

FORT WORTH.—Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt has it all figured out—by the orthographical method—that he cannot miss being elected governor.

Orthography, the gubernatorial candidate quickly explained on a visit here, is nothing more than simple spelling, the kind you studied in the red or blue speller, or what you worry about when writing such words as phantasmagoria.

"It's very simple," Witt explained. "There are four letters in my home town's name, Waco. Three other Waco men elected governor also had four letters in their names. And there are four letters in my name. It's all so simple when you stop to think about it."

The other Waco governors were Sul Ross, Richard Coke and Pat Neff.

SHOT WOLF FROM PLANE

MACOMB, Ill.—Claim to being the first person to shoot a wolf from an airplane is made by Walter Zettle of Macomb. Zettle killed a large gray wolf recently with buckshot while shooting from a plane piloted by Harry Clugston, also of Macomb.

BEST FISH STORY PRIZE

VANCOUVER, B. C.—The prize for the best fish story of the season so far should go to Robert Reid, of Vancouver. Reid reports that on coming home from work one day he found every tap in his home blocked. An investigation, he says, revealed that the pipes were blocked by fish.

Special Service At M. E. Church Sunday Morning

The Methodist church will have a special service Sunday morning in recognition of the reception of the 20th member this year who will join the church Sunday morning. The theme will be "I Believe in Immortality," which is the third in a series.

Sunday night there will be special music and a theme of interest. The young people of the district will have a rally at the city park tonight.

The vacation church school will close Friday night with a special program.

The Board of Stewards and their wives meet tonight for an ice cream social at parsonage town.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis.—A check for five dollars, accepted by a bartender and approved by a tavern owner, was returned the next day after the band had discovered the signature, "U. R. Easy."

Man Finds Snake On Auto Engine

HENDERSON, Texas.—Charlie Ross says he's seen some funny things in automobiles, but when he opened the hood on his machine and saw a mean looking snake stick his tongue out at him the sight was too much. He gave up all thought of looking at the oil gauge and left the snake in full possession of the car.

Filling station attendants who weren't as close to the reptile as Charlie recovered quicker from their surprise and killed the usurper, which was identified as a coach whip snake.

College Fullback Now a Texas Coach

CANYON, Texas.—Characterized as "one of the best line-cracking fullbacks ever to perform in the Southwest conference," Bob Cox of Duke university has been named as assistant football coach of the West Texas Buffaloes.

He is a native of West Texas, having attended high school at Vernon and Wichita Falls. Al Baggett is athletic director at the West Texas State Teachers college.

The father of quintuplet daughters in Ontario is worried. Well he might be. Imagine five sons-in-law coming on, all at about the same time!

TEACHERS' PAY BOOSTED

AMARILLO, Tex.—Trustees of Amarillo College here are determined that teachers shall share in the recovery program. Salaries of the faculty were increased seven per cent over 1932-33 depression levels, effective in September. The year's salaries for the 13 members of the teaching staff will aggregate $23,470.

CHICKEN TURNED CANNIBAL

WOODLAKE, Cal.—How a chicken could swallow a chicken is one question that still remains unanswered to Walter Lewis. Lewis discovered a whole chicken in the gizzard of another chicken. Evidence of the mystery was being kept in the Lawhorn icehouse.

CAUGHT TROUT UNDER SIDEWALK

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va.—Bob Davis has a new kind of fish story—he dropped his line through a sidewalk grating and caught a trout. A mountain stream flows through the town and part of its course is through a viaduct under the street.

MISSOULA, Mont.—Two Missouri girls have captured what they believe to be the "granddaddy of all grasshoppers."

They found a 'hopper atop Mount Sentinel near here which measured two inches in length—not counting antenna, wings and legs.

THE FORD DRAMA OF PROGRESS

The Story of Transportation Through the Ages

The Ford Exposition is dominated by a tower ten stories high, in the center of which is an open court. Through the top of the rotunda, the sun's rays pour down upon a twenty-foot rotating globe — its surface bearing in relief the myriad units of the Ford industries.

Grouped about the Ford globe is a pageant of transportation, from the earliest Egyptian chariot, crude ox-carts and covered wagons to automobiles of varied age, type and design. A "Roads of the World" exhibit faithfully reproduces the roads upon which these vehicles traveled, from the earliest dawn of history.

Around the walls of the tower, behind the display of vehicles, appears a photographic mural covering 12,000 square feet. In the south wing Henry Ford personally has prepared a display which centers about the humble shop in Detroit where he experimented forty-odd years ago and where the first Ford car was built. The car itself—the first of millions—is a part of the exhibit.

Surrounding the Ford workshop is a series of displays which sharply etch the advance from the cruder machinery of other days to the almost wholly automatic machine shop of today. It is the story of "a hundred years of mechanical progress."

The Ford Motor Company invites you to visit its exposition at A Century of Progress, Chicago, where the absorbing story of Ford men, methods and ideals has been unfolded beneath a single roof.

In this story of advancement are imprints of Henry Ford's own career. Many devices in the display came into being through Mr. Ford's efforts, or through exigencies created by his insistent drive toward improvement and increased efficiency in every mechanical operation.

Beside the Ford Exposition Building stands the gray, weather-beaten barn in which Henry Ford worked and played as a Michigan farmer boy. Its presence is peculiarly significant, because it has been equipped with machinery to illustrate how the farmer may process raw materials for industrial uses and bring about a closer and mutually profitable relationship between industry and the farmer.

Suppliers Join Ford in Educational Exhibit

Twenty-one of the suppliers who manufacture Ford V-8 parts have joined with the Ford Motor Company in the industrial exhibits to make them complete and informative. Each exhibit begins and ends upon the same two keys — the first that every part of the Ford car comes from the earth. The second is that each part, from the smallest bolt to the heaviest steel part, must pass individual tests to make sure it is up to Ford standards.

From Mine to Finished Automobile Parts

The sources of iron, steel, copper, aluminum, zinc, lead and other metals are graphically portrayed. Exhibits depicting the processes that are used in manufacturing parts from these metals are actually at work producing the finished parts.

A program of symphony orchestra music has been planned for the Ford Exposition to last throughout the summer months. Opening the musical program will be the Women's Symphony Orchestra of Chicago, directed by Miss Ebba Sundstrom. The Women's Symphony will close a one-week program June 13th. An afternoon and evening concert will be given daily.

On June 16th the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will begin a series of daily concerts to continue for twelve weeks. Under the baton of Victor Kolar the Detroit Symphony will give a two-hour concert each afternoon and evening of the week.

The Ford Exposition Building is illuminated at night by hidden batteries of lights. These lights, playing upon the central tower exterior, produce an effect of great beauty. Straight up from the tower is a mighty beam of light furnished by searchlights with a combined strength of 600,000,000 candle-power. It is visible for many miles, and for hundreds of miles to airplanes.

The Grand Concourse of the Ford Building. Shown here is a priceless collection of vehicles of transportation of all time, from the ancient Egyptian chariot to the automobile of today.
