Balm to Victims Of Aches, Pains Soothes Mentally

By REED S. DUNHAM
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 CLEVELAND, O.—Ten million American allergics—people who get hay fever from weeds, asthma from feather beds or hives from anything from strawberries to an old-fashioned spanking—can cheer up. They may be smarter than other people.

Equally cheering news is that they may be cured as medical research uncovers more and more about what is commonly known as allergy, formerly defined as a sensitive constitution.

The Brush Foundation in Western Reserve University's medical school has increased the fund of knowledge on allergy with a rogues' gallery of the "criminals" who rob many a person of the best of health.

A strange thing about this Cassandra-like allergy business is that a feminine nose may be bulbous because it can't stand orris root face powders or because pollens of flowers and weeds make it that way.

Allied ailments run the gamut from skin disorders to severe choking and stomach trouble from a bite of cantaloupe.

The purpose of the Brush study is the tracking down and elimination of allergy "gangsters." One thousand allergic children already have been tested in research.

While the foundation's gallery of X-ray pictures definitely shows what harm allergic ailments can do to growth and normal development in children, the current studies of Doctors T. Wingate Todd and Carl C. Francis projects a beam of pride for allergics who have reached adulthood.

They should, for some yet unexplained reason, have sparkling energy. The social madadjustment of their adolescence may have become executive ability or a sense of the esthetic. Colicky babies may grow into men and women of regal carriage.

An allergic may have been all ribs and kneecaps in his grade school days and had to sit in the front row to see the blackboard. He may not have completely overcome his sensitive stomach. But there's a more than even chance that he will grow up to be shad smarter and quite overcome the hypersensitiveness of his high school days.

The Brush Foundation is engaged in sleuthing, to determine the

While the doctors are engaged in perfecting their injections to immunize with the very substances which spell trouble for an allergic, the Brush Foundation plans to give the public a glimpse of its rogues' gallery. Lectures are planned for the al-

Hip-Shooting Is Not A Lost Art

AUSTIN.—The art of hip-shooting, famed in Western movies and novels, is not dead.

Capt. J. W. McCormick, head of the Texas Rangers, still shoots without sighting. For match purposes, McCormick might not rate high among the nation's expert pistol shooters; but for practical purposes, his method will do.

"There are a lot of fellows probably who can outshoot me standing still, but to my mind good shootin' is like good baseball or good pool playing—you don't think about it," said McCormick. He pulled out a .44 calibre revolver and pointed toward a doorknob 25 feet away.

"See that? Well, if I sighted from here, I might not hit it at all. But I believe I can just shoot from the side here and hit it three times out of five."

McCormick brandished a "poppycock" many feats of the circus and vaudeville shooting artists, especially in earlier days. Many of them he found employed trickery to execute their hardest stunts.

Soon after the World War, McCormick and M. T. (Lone Wolf) Gonzales, now chief of the Texas public safety department's intelligence division, were assigned to the oil fields near Wichita Falls. They were youngsters in the Texas Rangers and knew something about shooting. A Wild West Show was in town so they went over to see it.

"There was a fellow there," McCormick said, "who pitched up chalk balls—six of 'em—and hit every one with his six-shooter. We knew there wasn't a man alive who could do that every time so after the show Lone Wolf and I went back to see the fellow."

"Just to see if he could, I offered to bet him I could outshoot him if he'd let me load his gun. He admitted he wasn't shootin' lead balls and showed me his bullets—loaded with bird shot."

A few days later McCormick used the trick to impress some oil field bullies. He put three good cartridges and three loaded with bird shot in his six-shooter and went downtown with Gonzales. McCormick stood in view of the persons he wanted to impress and nonchalantly ate an apple. When finished, he tossed up the core and whipped out his gun, hitting the core three times in the air.

Most practiced Texas Rangers now probably are those who patrol the western border between Texas and Mexico. McCormick declined to designate the Ranger he believed could shoot best. At least one is classified as an expert rifle shot also.

Royal Mounted Rides In Autos

OTTAWA, Ont.—Canada's famous Royal Canadian Mounted Police force has more motors than it has horses but its name is not to be changed. Recently Sir James MacBrien, Commissioner of the famous Mounties, made a speech which was misinterpreted as a suggestion that in view of the changed conditions, the "Mounted" should be dropped from the name of the organization. Public reaction was instant and unfavorable to any change. The name of the force speaks of its pioneering tradition and it is quite certain it will not be altered. Force Totals 2,573. The force consists of 91 officers, 2,148 non-commissioned officers and constables, 115 special constables and 219 members of the marine section a total of 2,573 of all ranks. For transport purposes it has 277 horses, 413 dog sleighs, 411 passenger automobiles, 34 motorcycles and 19 motor trucks. The marine section has 19 cruisers and patrol boats.

The duties of the Royal Mounted Police are of almost infinite variety. It is engaged in the prevention of smuggling, on sea and land and in enforcement of the Excise Act, the laws against drugs and narcotics and sundry other federal acts. In six provinces by agreement with the Dominion Government, the R. C. M. P. undertakes the duties of provincial forces and enforcement of the criminal code. It performs such routine duties as the patrol of government buildings in Ottawa and of government driveways, the search for truant Indian children on the reservations to hunting run-runners on the coasts and enforcing law and order in the wild spaces of the sub-arctic.

Population Is Four Per Cent Over 1930 WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Bureau of Census today estimated the population of the United States, July 1, 1935, at 127,521,000—a gain of 4,746,000 or nearly 4 per cent over that shown by the 1930 census.

100 Celebrations Will Reflect Texas' Glamorous History

AUSTIN.—The more than 100 celebrations with which Texas will observe its Centennial year of independence and progress throughout 1936 will reflect not only the glamorous history of the state but also the varied opportunity found here. While each celebration is planned with an historical background each also will depict graphically the agricultural, mineral, industrial, or recreational opportunities found in various sections of the state. The story has been started in the half dozen or more celebrations already held and will be continued on others planned throughout the year and in the $25,000,000 Centennial Central exposition which will be opened in Dallas on June 6.

Elaborate celebrations are planned in San Antonio, Houston, and Fort Worth, San Antonio, historic Alamo city with its shrine to Texas liberty, is one of the great vacation centers of the nation. Houston, city of historical importance which was named for General Sam Houston, hero of San Jacinto, will emphasize its position as a foremost cotton and oil shipping port and as a metropolitan business center. Fort Worth, "Where the West Begins" will call attention to its position as center of the wide-spread cattle industry of the southwest.

Western life of story and song will be relieved in West Texas where much of the tradition of cattle and range days still is to be found. A number of cities in that roundup which will thrill all spectators. This feature of the statewide celebrations will be extended into the cattle country of South Texas where rodeos and roundups are familiar spectacles. Typical western and ranchland barbecue celebrations will attract many from far places.

Texas' position as a coastal state with hundreds of miles of coast line along the Gulf of Mexico will be stressed in the celebration planned at the various port cities. The value of its shipping, its commercial and sport fishing, and its recreational advantages found along the Gulf of Mexico coastline will be emphasized. Gay festivals, agricultural and industrial exhibitions, water pageants and regattas, and fishing rodeos are planned.

Most of the many harvest festivals held in Texas each year will be presented as Centennial celebrations.

World Sends Fan Mail to a Victim Of Sterilization SAN FRANCISCO.—Fan mail received by Miss Ann Cooper Hewitt, 21-year-old heiress, in the past few weeks has eclipsed the bulk reaching many a film star in Hollywood. The girl, who is suing her mother and two San Francisco physicians for $500,000 damages as the result of a sterilization operation has received letters, telegrams and cablegrams from many parts of the world. But where the fan mail of movie stars has usually sung the same theme of either love or admiration, the bulk reaching Miss Hewitt has run the whole gamut of human emotions. All are to be answered in the same spirit in which they were sent, but Russell P. Tyler, who is representing Miss Cooper, is beginning to ask when and how, as every arrival of the mail man or messenger boy brings more and more to his office. "Miss Ann Cooper Hewitt, San Francisco," is the only address necessary to see that the mail, which comes at the rate of several hundred letters a day, finds its final resting place on Mr. Tyler's desk, where it is opened, classified and a record made before being passed on to Miss Hewitt. Inevitably, a certain proportion of the letters come from unattached young men who offer their hearts and hands. But the great majority of these are apparently prompted more by sympathy than by selfish motives. The writers tell of their own hard luck and disappointments in life and ask why their troubles should not be shared together. After the love letters, the next largest group comes from professional men—physicians, lawyers, judges, psychiatrists and others who have a professional interest in the case. Quite a few offer their services from whatever point of view they deem might be advisable. A Michigan judge wrote to say he will include in a treatise he is writing on sterilization, the Hewitt case as one of the outstanding examples of injustice and abuse. Those coming from London, Paris, Venice and other cities have never failed to prepay cable charges. From Venice, a man cabled that he would send his deposition at his own expense relative to what he saw of the Hewitt family at the time he and they were guests at the Excelsior hotel. Offers of free assistance have come from physicians all over the country. Other offers from London and Paris volunteer information relative to Mrs. Hewitt's treatment of her daughter. Not a few of the letters offer to adopt Miss Hewitt. Letters have been especially prolific from New York and New Jersey from people who knew Ann as a child and want to help her. Only one or two letters have come from manifest cranks. Few make demands for money.

STRIKES HOLD SWAY OVER WHOLE WORLD

PEKIN, Ill., Feb. 4.—Union labor called a general strike in this industrial town of 16,000 and the sheriff called for troops.

"I fear violence," Sheriff Ralph Goar told the United Press. "There are 700 men outside the American Distilling Company and 90 strike-breakers inside."

"I'm keeping the 90 inside and have wired Governor Horner to send troops at once. I have only 35 deputies, including guards at the plant."

The distillery strike, in progress two weeks, precipitated the general strike called by 8 a. m. by the trades assembly. Union leaders asserted 3,000 to 4,000 workers would refuse to work until distillery workers obtained seniority rights and a closed shop. They claimed the town would be "closed tighter than a drum."

Barbers, bakers, movie operators, farmers and laborers were reported on strike.

Strikes and other labor troubles impeded business in many parts of the world today.

The more important developments were:

New York—Strike call awaited 20,000 elevator operators and other service employes in 1,200 skyscrapers and factories. Twenty thousand millinery workers called out.

London—Strike of 8,200 market employes leaves London without meat.

Santiago, Chile—Troops called out to stop sabotage by striking state railroad workers.

Willenstad, Curacao — Rioting attends strike of oil workers.

Six From County Facing Trial On Liqueur Indictments

Cases of six Eastland county residents, originally charged in the Abilene division, and indicted by the grand jury at Fort Worth, have been transferred back to Abilene and docketed for the April term of federal district court.

The cases against the Eastland county residents were among 12 transferred from Fort Worth to Abilene.

Cases against the Eastland county residents as charged by the federal grand jury follows:

George L. Ingram, Nov. 4, possession and custody of distilling apparatus not registered, carrying on the business of a distiller without first giving bond, which is in violation of section 1184, title 26 of the United States code, and production of quantity of liquor with intent to defraud the government of taxes due on 640 gallons.

Queenville Ingram, Calvin Ingram and Ed Ingram, Dec. 12, possession and custody of still not registered, operation of a still without giving bond, possession of liquor with intent to defraud the government of due taxes, making and fermenting of mash and possession of 500 gallons of same, and possession of distilled spirits and non-tax paid.

Fred Tarver, Nov. 14, possession of an unregistered still, making and fermenting of mash and possession of 1,000 gallons of mash in violation of section 1185, title 26 of United States code;

Claude Ingram, Nov. 14, possession and custody of still, unregistered, feloniously engaging in and carrying on the business of a distiller without first giving bond, possession of 180 gallons of whiskey, subject to tax, with the intent to defraud the government, and making of mash.

Find is Proof Of 30-Inch Fly

ELMO, Kan.—A remnant of one of the world's largest insects, a prehistoric dragon fly about 2 1/2 feet long, recently was discovered in the limestone beds near here by Dr. Frank M. Carpenter of the Harvard University museum of comparative zoology.

Only a part of one wing of the giant insect was found, but there was sufficient of this to accurately estimate the size of the entire specimen. Many other insects of this same family have been found previously in other parts of the world, so it was not difficult for Dr. Carpenter to estimate the size from the portions of the wing.

The giant insect was a member of a group known as Protodonata and lived in the Permian Age about 150,000,000 years ago. Insects of this type, with long thin bodies and thin wings, were the most powerful that ever lived and masters of the air in their time, scientists agree.

They were among the swiftest of insects and because of their great strength could cover great distances in one flight. They lived off smaller insects, as no birds or mammals lived in that age.

More than 8,000 prehistoric insects have been found by Harvard expeditions in these same limestone beds in Kansas, where they are usually well preserved.

Foreign Loans By Government Aired

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The senate munitions committee sought to show today that allied nations borrowed from the United States government to pay off private debts incurred before America entered the World War. The war debts owed this nation are now in default with the exception of Finland.

The committee resumed testimony with J. P. Morgan company officials as witnesses. Coincident with charges by Chairman Samuel McLeynolds of the house foreign affairs committee an organized lobby was actively fighting embargo provisions of the administration's neutrality bill to keep the United States out of a foreign war. The bill has encountered such opposition it was predicted it might be delayed until the next session of congress.

Youths Prevail In Crime Record of Justice Department

WASHINGTON.—Statistics compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, U. S. Department of Justice, show that 15 out of every 100 persons arrested during 1935 were 19 years of age or younger.

The facts were gained from the examination of 392,251 arrest records of persons whose fingerprints during 1935 by state and municipal law enforcement agencies.

The compilation disclosed that during the year 13,290 individuals were arrested and charged with robbery, 32,649 with burglary, and 11,004 with auto theft. The predominance of youth in those types of crimes is shown by the fact that 7,108 (53.5 per cent) of those arrested and charged with robbery; 17,290 (59.1 per cent) of those charged with burglary, and 7,488 (68.0 per cent) of those charged with auto theft, were under 25.

Many previously arrested

During 1935, approximately one-fifth of the 392,251 persons arrested had a record of arrests previous to attaining their majority.

The fingerprints of 1,795 deceased persons were submitted to the bureau from May 1, 1935, to Jan. 1, 1936, in order that they might not be buried unidentified.

Through a search of its files containing a total of more than 5,500,000 fingerprint cards the bureau and law enforcement agencies throughout the country forwarding these fingerprints as to the identities of 457 of the deceased. The contributors of 666 of the 1,795 fingerprint cards had no knowledge of the identities of the deceased persons.

A check of the bureau's files revealed the identities of 158 of these unknown dead persons. They unwittingly in life had provided a means of being identified by committing criminal offenses. The 508 unknown deceased persons who were buried unnamed and had not availed themselves of the opportunity of sure identification by placing their fingerprints in the civil identification section of the bureau, which is maintained separately and apart from the criminal records.

Civil Identification File Grows

Nearly 6,000 persons sent their fingerprints to the Federal Bureau of Investigation during December, 1935, to be placed in its civil identification file. These personal identification records came from such far away points as Yokohama, Honolulu, England, Puerto Rico and Alaska, as well as from all sections of the United States. The value of having a permanent and reliable means of identification on file is rapidly becoming apparent, officials said.

All personal identification records are filed apart from the criminal records. This fact that the stigma of criminality is being divorced from fingerprints is evidenced by the receipt in the bureau on Dec. 10, 1935, of 25 sets of fingerprints taken at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association, Yakima, Wash.

Civic Groups Aid

Among those actively engaged in furthering civil identification are the Junior Chamber of Commerce, San Francisco, and the Sheriff's Office in Detroit. These organizations have submitted a large number of personal identification fingerprint cards to be placed in the files.

The value of a sure means of identification is well illustrated in

Committee Speeds Processing Repeal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The senate agriculture committee speeded President Roosevelt's request for quick repeal of the cotton, tobacco and potato control acts.

The committee authorized drafting a resolution repealing the three acts now regarded as invalid in view of the supreme court decision outlawing the AAA.

The committee also decided to ask the senate to delay debate on the administration's substitute farm program, providing for soil conservation and crop control until the companion measure brought out by the house agriculture committee can be studied.

SCIENTIFIC REPORT FAVORS BRAN

Relieves Common Constipation* Safely

Read this statement, taken from an article in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, pages 133-134, Nov., 1932: "The inclusion in the diet of a small portion of bran . . . would seem a very practical way of getting fiber which is not likely to be disintegrated. This bran has the additional advantage of furnishing a considerable amount of vitamin B and of readily available iron."

Exhaustive tests, over a period of five years, have proved Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to be a safe, effective way to correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk" or fiber in meals. It is accepted by the American Medical Association Committee on Foods for this purpose.

You will enjoy this pleasant way to prevent the dangers of constipation. You can eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream. Or cook into delicious breads and muffins.

Usually two tablespoonfuls apiece daily are enough to protect your family from common constipation. How much better than taking pills or drugs!

Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Grafters Will Get Veterans If They Don't Watch Out

From Texas Legion News
The average veteran of the World War is now "forty, fussy, fiery, and fat." As a man of mature years, and experiences, he need not be told how to spend his money when Adjusted Service certificates are paid. He has already, during the long years of waiting and working and watching, spent his so-called bonus over and over again. He knows just what he is going to do with it. If he needs it, he will know what to do with it. If he does not need it, he knows just how he is going to save it.

A recent survey published in the American Legion Monthly sets forth just where the money distributed from the bonus bonds will go.

It will wipe tears of distress from the eyes of veterans who have felt that they did not have a friend.

It will transform the cries of needy children of veterans into songs of joy.

It will give a loaf of bread and a glass of milk to the under-nourished.

It will enable the soldier of 1917 and 1918 again to stand up straight as an Indian at attention. He will be able to stand "Chest out" with eyes straight forward, looking to better things, and face his fellow men with a new lease on life and a determination to make this final payment of the bonds a genuine investment.

In many instances, the money will be used for a payment on a home or on a business. Automobiles and luxuries in many instances will be purchased, but he will be wise in his spending.

While the veteran of the World War may not need any advice as to how to spend his money, it is not out of place here to sound a warning.

Just as during the Great World War, there were citizens who were found around every army camp and in every community who were forever doing things and making "bargains" at the expense of the soldiers and their country in its hour of need. There are citizens abroad in the land right now who have already figured out just how they can fleece the veterans of their bonus money. Even before they receive the money plans have been made. Word has already come to Department Headquarters of how these public enemies, under the guise of rendering a service, are selling their products to veterans at exorbitant prices and taking their notes for same, payable sometime after June 15. Some veterans, in their distress, have begun to fall for this and other schemes and plans. They feel that a dollar today will help them earn two dollars tomorrow. They are already buying clothes and making other investments at increased and unreasonable prices, to so-called business men who do not have the heart to render a helping hand unless they can exact a pound of flesh and a gallon of blood.

Beware of haste: The money will not be available until June 15, and possibly later. The wisest policy of every veteran would be not to eat the cake until the money is in hand, or at least not to spend it with those who would advance their prices to exorbitant figures and thus place themselves in the ranks of racketeers and inhuman vultures that swoop down on their prey and make the road rough and rocky for everyone else.

No better investment can possibly be made by a veteran of the World War than to join The American Legion and other patriotic organizations to which he may find himself eligible. Looking into the future, the American Legion is needed today and will be needed tomorrow, just the same as it was yesterday.

A Ceaseless Warfare
With the final passage of the Adjusted Service Certificate Measure, a long and uphill fight has been won by The American Legion and other veteran organizations. They stayed in there and fought. Commander Ray Murphy made many friends for The American Legion and for the just cause.

He served as the National head of The American Legion during the days and weeks while the bill, that was finally favored, was being considered. He and Buddy Wright Patman of Texas and Buddy Vinson of Kentucky were as one man, according to all outward appearances. Their faces were always a smiling and when the final vote was taken by which the President's veto was over-whelmingly overridden, this trio of Legionnaires began to receive their dues from the people who believed with Theodore Roosevelt that the man who bares his breast to the bullets of a foreign foe should be given a square deal at home, when the battle flags are furled, and the boys come marching home. Congratulations, Commander Murphy! Congratulations, Buddy Vinson! And congratulations to every man and every woman within and without The American Legion who made possible the bonus victory by which a long siege has been ended.

Hey, Champ! Beware!

With Glenda Farrell (left) and Joan Blondell (right) setting their caps for a sailor, what chance has poor Allen Jenkins, even though he's the Navy's heavyweight champ and the world's best cane ringer in the Warner Bros. comedy "Miss Pacific Fleet" at the Arcadia Theatre?

While The American Legion has never worked merely for the payment of the Adjusted Service Certificates, for many years now it has been a National point on the program of most of the 11,000 Posts of these United States. The passage of the bonus takes the measure out of the realm of politics, which is to bring relief to thousands of veterans of the World War means that The American Legion and other organizations that have had to spend so much time and so much money and so much energy in behalf of the measure will be enabled now to direct their full force toward programs that will inspire the confidence of every man—every member.

The fight for veterans, however, is not yet over. It will never end so long as there is a war-disabled Buddy without hospitalization. The fight of The American Legion will never end so long as there is a neglected orphan or widow of a war Buddy. The fight of The American Legion will never end so long as communists and bolsheviks operate in this country, over which flies the Stars and Stripes of Democracy and Liberty. The fight of The American Legion will never end so long as community services are to be rendered by which the patriotic impulses of the people are inspired to be bigger and better Americans.

The call to veterans of the World War to join The American Legion comes today with more force than ever during the 18 years of honorable history since the Legion came into being. Eligible who disagreed with the Legion on the so-called bonus, and who have stayed without the organization because of that matter, need no longer remain without the ranks of the largest patriotic organization that God's glorious sun ever shone upon. "There is so much good in the worst of us, and so much bad in the best of us, that it little behooves any of us to talk about the rest of us." There is so much good in the program of The American Legion that it is a chal-

Tipsy Drivers Try To Say 'Susie and Sally Sat in Soup'

PHILADELPHIA.—"Susie and Sally Thompson sat in the soup." This is not the theme of the story, but if you can say that before a police surgeon you can rest assured that you have a good chance of not being classed as an intoxicated driver.

This tongue-twister is not the only test which suspected inebriates must undergo. There are 13 others, which include:

Standing at attention with eyes closed, to see if your body sways. Walk in a straight line. Finding your ears and nose without fumbling while blindfolded.

Walking around a given circle. Then there are many other medical and psychological tests such as tapping the knee for the proper reflex and the taking of the temperature and pulse.

It was found in the more than 1,400 cases in Philadelphia that a person who had three highballs within 40 minutes made decision 9.7 per cent slower than the totaler. Also that the drinker made 35.3 per cent more errors in problems of concentration, was 17.4 per cent slower in muscular reaction, and made 59.7 per cent more errors in coordination tests of the hand and eye.

Dr. Hubley R. Owen, who helped compile the 14 tests, believes the person with one drink in worse than the inebriate because "he thinks he has not been affected."

LEGIONNAIRES AND THE STORY OF THEIR WORLD WAR SERVICE

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of articles, being written by B. H. Peacock, post commander of the Carl Barnes Post, about the war experiences of members of the post. Other articles will follow, one to be published each Sunday.

WILLIS H. CLARKE

A great vista of experiences never to be forgotten began to unfold for Willis H. Clarke of De Leon, Texas, when he enlisted in the United States Army for overseas service at the still youthful age of 22 years. It was on September 19, 1917 when Citizen Clarke became Private Clarke, and was assigned to Headquarters Troop of the 90th Division at Camp Travis, Texas. Having been born in Denison, Texas, where he spent his early youth; educated in its public schools; gradually working up to the position of assistant superintendent of Barnhart Mercantile Company of that city, and later as superintendent of the De Leon Peanut Company; especially equipped young Clarke for the mission that was soon assigned him in the military service.

In those days, literally thousands of young Americans were pouring daily into the historic old city of San Antonio and thence to Camp Travis, and the very first duty assigned to Private Clarke was that in connection with the Division Mustering Office. Among other things, it fell to Clarke's lot to meet the incoming trains, escort the new men to camp, assist in the making out of their first papers, and sundry other matters pertaining to the initial organization and placement of the troops.

"The rookie soldier had his own particular eccentricities," said Clarke. "Almost without exception he would invariably get up and begin dressing anywhere between two and four o'clock in the morning following his arrival in camp, to make sure that he did not oversleep, not being aware that reveille would be sufficient to awaken him." Many other similar experiences might likewise be enumerated, should space permit, that would portray these odd, yet typically American, traits of the doughboys.

But Camp Mills, Hoboken; Le Havre, France, and the front lines of the Allies were beckoning. The Division pulled out of Camp Travis on June 1, 1928, arriving shortly thereafter in Camp Mills, New York. A few days and June 21 found the 90th Division of some thirty thousand men embarking for overseas. It was to be a great adventure, no doubt, for thousands of them, yet how untimely for hundreds, and even thousands of others who were leaving America never to return again. A sixteen day voyage at sea was none too eventful for Clarke and several hundred of his buddies who were passengers on His Majesty's cattle ship, the Shropshire. Crowded conditions, poor food served by the English chefs, together with a "feed the fish" tendency on the part of the soldiers, made Halifax, their first stop, a welcome spot. It was at Halifax, too, that the Shropshire joined the convoy of nine ships that plied on together toward Le Havre for their mutual protection. The extent of sea-sickness, at one time, according to Clarke, was such that several untutored doughboys signed a fake agreement presented by one of the "reulars" to the effect that they would give $2 in order to return to America by land after the big scrap was over.

But Le Havre at last. Could this be the France about which they had read and heard? The first few nights spent on beds made of barrel hoop meshes, together with only one blanket; a three day and night ride on the French "40 and 8" cattle car transportation system, where even reclining room for the night was at a premium; all were the initial contributions toward greater experiences that were soon to follow. Finally the little French village of Latrecey was reached, and Headquarters Troop to which Clarke was attached, pitched its pup tents. Many a mother's son, no doubt, as he breathed a sigh of relief after an arduous journey, thought of home and loved ones in far off America; what the fortune of war might have in store for him; and whether or not he might again sail westward to his homeland, as he rolled into his blanket for the night.

Reveille and a piping hot breakfast the next morning from the rolling kitchens of Headquarters Troop predicated a seventeen mile march to the village of Aigney-le-Duc. According to Private Clarke's diary, the training area in which the 90th Division was located was north of Dijon, in the Cote-d'Or Mountains, on a beautiful plateau. Although this was a relatively poor part of France, these rolling plateau lands were admirably adapted to training purposes. The region, according to Clarke, was rich in Roman historical legacy, and many traces of the ancient Roman civilization, such as the famous highways, abounded. Just west of Division Headquarters was the French town of Alais, or ancient Alesia, where the last of the Gauls had made a stand against Caesar in this mountainous region after having been driven from the valleys. It was said that Caesar had surrounded the stronghold with entrenchments said to have been fifteen miles in circumference, and thus starved the garrison into surrender. It was in this spot of such worldwide historical significance that Private Clarke and fellow members of Headquarters Troop of the Division received their last intensive training before entering the lines.

Having in the meantime been advanced to corporal, Clarke went first with an advance party to Toul, the great walled French ammunition center; later to Villers-en-Haye; and thence to Mamey near the front lines. "It was while driving my motorcycle along the camouflaged road toward Mamey, that the first creepy feeling of war really touched me," said Clarke. "We travelled only at night, and that without lights. Although this road, as well as others, was camouflaged in order to deceive the enemy, the Boches shelled it, as well as the town of Mamey every night. The American guns were very quiet on this particular occasion, due to the coming big St. Mihiel push."

On another occasion, Corporal Clarke and four of his buddies were sent on an advance mission, and had secreted themselves in a dugout. One out of a large number of the German artillery units that were trained on the Americans had a report all its own, and incidentally its projectiles seemed to be focused in the neighborhood of this particular dugout. Fortunately, no direct hits were made, but Clarke and his buddies knew well ahead, according to the peculiar report, that Heinie was shooting their way.

It was on September 11, the day before the big St. Mihiel drive, that Corporal Clarke, together with Private O'Connor, came near delivering himself unwittingly into the hands of the enemy. They had been ordered to investigate and prepare a dugout for a Division Headquarters outpost. The particular driveway over which the two were directing their motorcycle had not been blocked, and before Clarke or his buddy scarcely realized their predicament, an American sentry called from behind a clump of bushes and told the two that a few more paces and they would be in the German lines. "And believe me," said Clarke in relating the incident, "it didn't take second warning from that sentry for me to get along in the opposite direction."

"But the barrage that started the great St. Mihiel drive at 2 a. m. on the morning of September 12th, I'll never forget. The big naval guns to the rear opened up first. Then the 155 millimeter guns back at Mamey. Next came the 3 inch, or 75 m. m. guns in front of Mamey. The three inch guns in our sector were practically hub to hub, as they threw their projectiles at the enemy."

Zero hour came at 5 a. m., the men of the 90th Division went over the top, drove the Germans back some seven miles, and took many prisoners, among which were eleven officers and 890 men. It was shortly after this drive that Charlie Smith of De Leon, Texas, a very intimate friend of Corporal Clarke's, was killed by a shrapnel that passed under his helmet.

After St. Mihiel, the Division, together with Headquarters troop, moved to the Meuse Argonne front. Here they found the Germans on the retreat, with the Boche machine gunners left in the rear to harass the Americans, as well as protect the retreating German army. "Virtually all of the German gunners were killed," said Clarke. "It was not unusual to walk up to a German machine gun nest that had been silenced and find the gunner in position, but dead from the unerring aim of an allied sharp shooter or machine gunner. The horrors of war climaxed themselves on one particular occasion when I came upon one grave wherein we buried twenty-one American doughboys that had been moved down by one German machine gunner. Not far away, also, was the gruesome sight of the gunner who died at his post of duty."

But came November 11th and the Armistice. On the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of that fateful year, the hell of war stopped for Corporal Clarke and millions of other American doughboys. But in the meantime, the following bulletin from the 3rd Army Corps was published:

"1. you are informed that hostilities will cease along the whole front at 11 hours on November 11, 1918, Paris time.

"2. No allied troops will pass the line reached by them at that hour and date until further orders.

"3. All communication with the enemy, both before and after the termination of hostilities, is absolutely forbidden. In case of violation of this order the severest disciplinary measures will be immediately taken. Any officer offending will be sent to these headquarters under guard.

"4. Every emphasis will be laid on the fact that the arrangement is an armistice only, and not a peace.

"5. There must not be the slightest relaxation of vigilance. The troops must be prepared any moment for further operations. Special steps will be taken by all commanders to insure the strictest discipline and that all troops are in readiness and fully prepared for any eventualities. Division and brigade commanders of corps units will personally inspect all organizations with the foregoing in view."

"By command of Major-General Hines.

"Campbell King, Chief of Staff." Corporal Clarke, together with the Division Headquarters Troop, went with the Army of Occupation into Germany and were stationed at Barncastle on the Moselle River. It was his first and only Christmas in Germany, which after all the horrors of war was enjoyed.

On the latter part of May, 1919 Clarke and his outfit embarked at St. Nazaire for America on the U. S. Transport, Mongolia, lagging at Boston, Massachusetts; thence to Camp Bowie; and on June 17, an honorable discharge from the Army of the United States. Back to the old home in Denison, Texas, thence a couple of years spent in Valdosta, Georgia, and again in 1921 back to Denison. In June, 1923, Willis H. Clarke was married to Miss Gussie Mae Howell of De Leon. In 1927, after having resided in Oklahoma City for three years, found them moving to Ranger, where Mr. Clarke opened the Clarke's Radiator and Body Works at 207 South Rusk street, which business he now directs. Mr. Clarke is a substantial and respected citizen of the Ranger community, has been an active member of the Methodist church and the local American Legion since coming to Ranger, and numbers his friends by his acquaintances. His family consists of his wife and two children, Willis H., Jr., 11, and Carolyn, 9.

Universal Credit Co. Is Leading In Low Cost Payment Plan

Eight years ago the Universal Credit Company began its history as an important factor in the commercial, financial, and industrial life of the nation—a specialized financial institution created for the exclusive purpose of providing a stabilizing factor in financing the time sales of Ford cars and trucks. The Ford company has made sound and substantial progress ever since inception.

During this comparatively brief but disturbed period in the economic history of the United States, Universal Credit Company has financed the purchase of new Ford cars and used cars sold by Ford dealers exclusively to the motor-buying public of America in the amount of more than one and a half billion dollars, serving a total of more than 2,600,000 Ford customers. Such, in brief, is the history of one of the nation's greatest financial service corporations.

These figures are indicative of the substantial contribution being made by Universal Credit Company to improve conditions. This record of volume places UCC among the foremost of American financing institutions. UCC has been repeatedly responsible for the reduction of finance costs for Ford buyers. The large volume of business developed has made possible constantly improved plans, providing courtesy, safety, and economy for the Ford purchaser desiring to buy out of income.

UCC again follows with the lowest and best plans it has ever offered.

Under the new UCC plans, after the usual low down payment, the Ford buyer can purchase his Ford car anywhere in the country on instalments of only $52 a month.

The cost of his extension of credit is only 1/2 of 1 per cent per month on the original unpaid balance and insurance. Convenient UCC charts show these finance charges which are computed by multiplying the unpaid balance plus insurance by 1/2 per cent per month (6 per cent for 12 months—which is not simple interest but a multiplier for computation). Where the $25 per month plan is not used, and the Ford buyer wishes to vary the terms of his transaction, the cost is figured by multiplying the unpaid balance plus insurance by a multiplier determined at the rate of 1/2 per cent per month for the total number of months the transaction is to run.

The insurance provided in the new UCC convenient payment plans protects the purchaser's car against fire and theft, collision, flood, windstorm, tornado, cyclone, hail, riot, and other elements of physical damage—complete protection against accidental physical damage to the car itself.

It is a rather surprising fact that the leaves of the same tobacco plant may vary for more than the leaves from plants of quite different types. Chemical analysis shows that the top leaves contain excess alkalis which tend to give a harsh, alkaline taste. The bottom leaves tend to acidity in the smoke. It is only the center leaves which approach in Nature the most palatable, acid-alkaline balance. In Lucky Strike Cigarettes, the center leaves are used.

Depression's Legacy, Fear of Life

When the battle smoke of a long depression begins to lift a little bit, most of us jump to the conclusion that any man who wasn't actually knocked off his feet by unemployment and poverty is a very lucky man indeed, one who ought to be going his way without a care in the world.

This idea would be perfectly sound if human beings just didn't have any nerves. Unfortunately, they do have them—and the depression can do terrible things to them, even where a man has held his job right straight through from 1929.

Margaret Culkin Banning, author, touched on this point in a recent address before a Catholic club meeting in New York. She took occasion to point out that the security which protects a man from actual hunger and cold does not begin to be enough.

"There is delusion spreading over the United States that security is a denation of government, that it is a matter of legislation and new taxes," she said. "But when the best that governments can do has been done, the insecurity that we feel in the world today will not be destroyed.

"Insecurity is a fear of life, a lack of understanding of life, and a lack of knowledge of how to live—and you cannot pay off on that with $30 a month—or with $200 a month."

Now it is precisely this fear of life—this uneasy feeling that the modern world has ceased to be the ordered, predictable place we always supposed it to be—which is the most damaging legacy of the depression.

In the old days we assumed that certain things were natural and enduring; that the world would always have a place for an ambitious young man, that honest work and fidelity to duty would always reap a suitable reward, that the man who applied himself to his job intelligently and energetically would never need to worry about his future.

These things were pretty argely true, in actual practice. Knowing that they were true, we could shape our lives accordingly. If we got panicky over our prospects, it was because we were worried about our town shortcomings. The outside world itself was not a blame.

But the depression, for a great many people, ended this comfortable old conception. When there are no jobs at all, an ambitious young man can hunt himself blind without finding his place. When businesses are going broke in droves, honesty and fidelity may not do the individual worker any good whatsoever.

And a man's prospects for the future may not depend in the least upon himself but instead may hang on forces which he cannot hope to understand or to foresee.

It is this kind of insecurity that has hurt the most. We need to make our country depression-proof, not only because we must save people from actual want, but because this feeling of uncertainty and doubt is clouding the American dream itself.

Great Task Well Done By King George V.

The reign of King George V stands as one of history's most striking testimonials to the fact that the simple force of human character can be one of the greatest powers in the world.

Here was a man who occupied the throne of England during one of the most critical periods any ruler anywhere ever had to face. It was his job to keep his throne safe and his country reasonably contented, and to do it he had hardly so much as the shadow of real power.

And yet he succeeded, as far as success was possible in those trying years, while his fellow monarchs who had the power which he lacked failed miserably.

Wilhelm of Germany, who was war lord and all-highest in fact as well as in name, bungled things hopelessly and fled over the borders to Holland. Nicholas of Russia, a genuine autocrat, died miserably in a squalid cellar in a provincial town. Francis Joseph of Austria died in the full consciousness that his polyglot empire would inevitably fall apart in the hands of his successor.

But King George V of England, who reigned but did not rule, kept his throne and handed his heritage, unweakened, on to his son.

How did he do it? His kingdom went through a war that bled it white. It survived a semi-revolutionary general strike. It passed through the civil war out of which the Irish Free State was born. It saw Socialists in power in Downing street. It went through the world depression that killed the founding democracy of Germany.

Altogether, the times were difficult enough to jar a young king from his throne—particularly a king who held the shadow of power and not the substance, a king who was a mere figurehead, a symbol of the idea of royalty.

And yet the outpouring of public affection that flooded George V in the final years of his life was without parallel in English history. His people honestly loved him, as far as human beings can love a ruler.

At the close of his reign his throne rested on the firmest base a throne can occupy—the sincere affection of the ordinary man in the street.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
SEA Service Staff Writer

In the Gay Nineties, when the courses usually sent the guests away from a party suffering various degrees of discomfort, clever cooks used to make a point of fritters served as an entree.

Now fritters are back again and highly thought of as an accompaniment for meats or for dessert—say peach fritters with red raspberry sauce or apple fritters with fresh maple syrup.

Meat fritters use up left-over meats and are served with tomato or celery sauce.

Vegetable fritters go well with creamed vegetables of contrasting flavor, cauliflower fritters with creamed carrots, for example, or corn fritters with maple syrup. Chicken is the meat for these.

Fry at 360-400 Degrees
In making fritters the material is added to the batter or it is dipped into the batter. Both are fried in deep hot fat. If the fat is too hot a hard crust is formed which acts as a non-conductor of heat and the outside gets harder and darker while the inside remains doughy and uncooked.

If, on the other hand, the fat is not hot enough, the fritter sinks to the bottom of the kettle, absorbs too much fat and turns out pale and soggy and untempting. The right temperature is between 350 and 390 degrees F.

Better use a thermometer, but if you haven't one, drop an inch cube of bread (not crust) into the hot fat. It should turn a golden brown in sixty seconds. To test fritter batter, drop a teaspoonful into the hot fat. If it holds its shape and rises quickly to the top in a round ball, it is the right thickness. If it spreads, add a little more flour.

Fritter Batter
Two eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup milk, 1 cup flour, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 to 2 cups add ed material.
Beat eggs until very light. Beat in milk, salt and melted butter. Mix and sift flour and baking powder and stir into first mixture, stirring to make smooth. When thoroughly blended, add the material wanted or dip pieces into batter until they are completely coated.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Baked winter pears, cooked wheat cereal, cream, French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Vegetable soup, toasted cheese sandwiches, sliced oranges and bananas, hermits, milk, tea.

DINNER: Tomato bouillon, toast sticks, grilled Canadian bacon, pineapple fritters, sweetpotato, steamed island, milk, coffee.

baking powder, 1 to 2 cups add ed material.

Beat eggs until very light. Beat in milk, salt and melted butter. Mix and sift flour and baking powder and stir into first mixture, stirring to make smooth. When thoroughly blended, add the material wanted or dip pieces into batter until they are completely coated.

Sometimes the added material is such that more flour will be necessary, as is the case of left-over canned corn. The milk used in the first preparation of the vegetable naturally thins the batter.

Whenever fresh fruit is used in the fritter, it should be cut in paper thin slices that it may be thoroughly cooked by the time the fritter is done. Canned fruit, should, of course, be drained from its juice before adding to the batter or dipping it into the batter. The juice can be thickened and used as a sauce for the fritters.

Pineapple fritters served with grilled Canadian bacon and succotash makes a pleasant meal for a February evening. Finish it up with a chilled floating island.

Try orange fritters with broiled lamb chops and apple fritters with pan-broiled pork chops. Incidentally, fritters are a first class emergency dish because they take only a few minutes to prepare and cook.

Umpire Gets A-Head—and Hat

When a Texan gets ahead in the world, the state crowns his achievements in a large way—with a 10-gallon hat. Les Bullenfield, Texas League umpire, is the latest to receive the big chapera. It was tendered in recognition of his promotion to the National League. Rangerette Carolyn Durham makes the presentation on behalf of the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas.

"Everybody seems to have just sold the ones I have wanted," he said.

In numerous cases the owners of these old castles—handed down from generation to generation of old families—are unable to dispose of them because they were given to their ancestors by the Crown and cannot be sold. They must be handed on to each eldest son.

Schools, hospitals and country clubs now occupy many of these old places. For instance, Stowe, one-time palace of the Dukes of Buckingham, is a boys' school. Battle Abbey, with its parapets and stone towers reminiscent of medieval times, is a school for girls.

Building Permits Show an Increase

AUSTIN—Permits to build in Texas more than doubled in value during December in comparison with the corresponding month of 1934, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Reports from 35 representative Texas cities show total permits of $2,538,451 during December, an increase of 115 per cent over the corresponding month the year before.

Market Booms For English Castles

LONDON—The long years of decay and dissolution are ending for the great country estates of Great Britain, and feudal castles no longer are "white elephants" to their owners.

People are buying the gaunt old places and spending large sums on their improvement. Many of the buyers are Americans and South Americans, eagerly bidding for the ancient domains of Britain's barons.

Numerous castles and country places sold recently have moated granges and are set in tree-lined parks.

One would-be buyer of a historic country place said he is ready to pay $200,000—spot cash—but has searched for five months in vain.

Approximately 40,000 Michigan horses were treated for the removal of internal parasites during the 1934-1935 season. This represents an increase of 100 per cent over the previous season.

Organized horse parasite control work was started in Michigan in the winter of 1932-1933. Eleven meetings were held and about 2,000 horses were treated. During the following season (1933-1934) 65 meetings were held and about 20,000 horses treated. The season terminating in February, 1935, was marked by 91 meetings thru

TWENTY-TWO APPROVE PLANS FOR SERIES OF TRADES DAYS AT BREAKFAST HERE TUESDAY

Plans for a series of trades days to be conducted over a period of six months, were discussed at a retail merchants breakfast in Ranger Tuesday morning at which 22 merchants or their representatives were present.

A. J. Ratliff, president of the Retail Merchants Association presided at the breakfast and after the meal called on F. D. Hicks, who outlined tentative plans for a series of trades days.

Each person present was called upon to make a few remarks on the tentative program and every one spoke in favor of it and urged 100 per cent cooperation from the merchants.

After the round table discussion those present voted to support a committee, which was to be named later by the Retail Merchants president, and who would work out more definite details of the plans.

C. E. May suggested that since the merchants seemed to want to go into the trades day plans in a wholehearted way that monthly meetings be held in order that a check of the progress of the campaign could be made and mistakes, if any, could be ironed out and new features added from time to time.

It was tentatively decided that monthly breakfasts would be served by the Retail Merchants in order that everyone cooperating in the plan could be present to add any suggestions or to make any reports and it was suggested that such breakfasts might add zest to the entire enterprise.

Those present at the meeting and who approved of the plans were:

- F. N. Hassen of Hassen Co., A. J. Ratliff, D. Joseph, W. F. Croug-er of Commercial State Bank, W. H. Mayes, Jr., Ranger Times; L. J. McMillen, Clyde H. Davis, T. H. TO MILLIONS WHO SHOULD USE BRAN

Tests Show ALL-BRAN Corrects Constipation Gently and Naturally

Since its introduction, some fifteen years ago, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has been used with beneficial results by millions of people.

Realizing the important relationship between proper diet and health, the Kellogg Company has aided for some years research in leading university laboratories. These tests show that the continued use of bran is thoroughly satisfactory.

ALL-BRAN supplies soft "bulk" which absorbs water, and gently cleanses the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron. Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook in delicious recipes.

This tempting cereal may be enjoyed by every normal person. Two tablespoonsful of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Consult your doctor if you do not gain relief this way.

Help your family keep well. Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk."

"IT RATES RIGHT AT THE TOP WITH 'MAKIN'S' SMOKERS OUT OUR WAY" — SAYS BERT WEEMS... SPEAKING OF PRINCE ALBERT

Here's Bert Weems, who has been rolling his own with Prince Albert for the past 21 years.

NEW GET-ACQUAINTED OFFER
(30 smokes on us if you're not pleased)

Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. If you don't find them the finest, tastiest roll-your-own cigarettes you ever smoked, return the pocket tin with the rest of the tobacco in it to us at any time within a month from this date, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage. (Signed) R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

"THAT GOES FOR US TOO" — SAY ROLL-YOUR-OWN SMOKERS OF RANGER

Bert Weems is noted for rolling a nifty cigarette. Turns 'em out in 14 sec. This is what he says in compliment to Prince Albert: "Prince Albert rolls so slick and easy, it almost rolls itself. It's packed right, in tin, so there's no spilled tobacco, no waste. And there's enough for 70 cigarettes in every two-ounce big red tin. That rates Prince Albert right at the top with 'makin's', smokers out our way."

Real Man-Style Taste Too! "Prince Albert tastes right—rich and mellow," Mr. Weems continues. "It is the real joy smoke for roll-your-own cigarettes." You'll roll 'em quicker yourself with Prince Albert, and enjoy a mildness and good taste that you'd never met up with anywhere else.

For in Prince Albert there is all the mellowness of choice tobaccos. Then the P. A. "no-bite" process is used to make sure that harshness is marked "absent." Prince Albert is "crimp cut"—lies right in your cigarette paper and doesn't blow all over the lot. If you're "choosy" about your "makin's," you'll appreciate Prince Albert.

Change to Prince Albert for your rolling. You don't need to risk a penny on our money-back proposition. Prince Albert takes kindly to a pipe too.
