AAF FILM UNIT TOP PRODUCER IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — The Army Air Force has gone into the motion picture business in a big way. The War Department says the AAF first motion picture unit in Culver City now produces more films in a month than any other major studio.

In July, 1942, the infant AAF motion picture unit took its first breath at the old Vitagraph studios in Hollywood. The father of the new arrival was Lt. Col. Owen E. Crump. Attending nurse and handyman was Sgt. (now Capt.) Owen W. Haglund.

Baby did a lot of crying and caused a lot of rumpus. It seems family friends wanted to feed the baby a lot of food before it even had its first tooth.

Put the teeth began to push through quickly—in the form of skilled motion picture personnel from the commercial studios.

Then they ordered a bigger play pen. It turned out to be the Hal Roach studios in Culver City, complete with fancy production equipment. Baby began to demand three-cornered pants and demanded a pair of "lonzies."

The first production was a six-reel safety film called "Learn and Lie." Then the unit was swamped with assignments for films on take-offs, landings, instrument flying—in fact, the whole business of flying for Uncle Sam had to be put in pictures.

Soon more expansion became necessary. Art, sound, paint make-up wardrobe, and electrical department were organized.

It even took 15 bombers and liaison craft converted into special camera planes to make the one-time-baby a man. These craft made a beeline for every major front to photograph aerobatics, formation flying and special maneuvers.

One of the most important departments at the first motion picture unit is the animation section under Maj. Rudolph Ising. Here soldier-animators who only a few months ago penciled "Mickey Mouse" and Donald Duck are creating "Wilbur Wright" and "Wilbur Wrong."

Nearly a month ago they completed the first all-color, all-armed training cartoon. Before long boys in the air forces will be seeing "Camouflage Cartoon," illustrating 100 lessons in camouflage training.

The music department, headed by M-Sgt. Alexander Steinert, composes musical scores for nearly all the unit's productions. Recordings are made by the Army Air Forces radio production unit orchestra at Santa Ana.

Not all of the films produced by the first motion picture unit are for training alone. Material photographed overseas by air forces combat units is occasionally sent to the Culver City unit for editing, narrating and dubbing in sound. Most recent production of this nature was "The Memphis Belle," which many saw in their neighborhood theater.

Liberty Ship To Be Named For L. Richardson

GREENSBORO, N. C. Aug. 9.—Announcement by the U. S. Maritime Commission in Washington that a Liberty ship is to be named the "Lunsford Richardson," commemorating a distinguished American citizen and business leader, will be received with interest and gratification by many people throughout the country.

As the founder of Vick Chemical Company, Mr. Richardson's fame has been intimately known to several generations of Americans, and his original preparation for colds, Vick's Vapo-Rub, has gained established use throughout the world.

It is a commentary upon the broad interests of Mr. Richardson's life, however, that the naming of this vessel is done in recognition of his efforts in behalf of the negro race, and the improvement of inter-racial relations. The Maritime Commission was petitioned by leading negro citizens of Greensboro, North Carolina, to name a vessel for Mr. Richardson, "in honor of a white friend."

Their request was supported unanimously and enthusiastically by the Congressional delegation from North Carolina, of which Mr. Richardson is a member.

Dr. Albers said experiments have already determined that farmers in the southwest may find growing of Japanese mint a diversion crop to tide them over during years when prices drop on regular commercial crops.

Richardson was a native son. As their petition pointed out, Mr. Richardson, who died in 1919, "always found time to do useful and constructive community service," despite his extensive business interests.

"He was a trustee of Palmer Memorial Institute," the petition recited, "a school for negro boys and girls, located at Sedalia, North Carolina. He organized Sunday schools and other religious meetings for the negro citizens of Greensboro and with other white friends taught a Sunday school class each Sunday afternoon. After his death, members of his family erected a model hospital in the City of Greensboro for the exclusive use of the negro race, this hospital having been erected as a memorial to Mr. Richardson. The L. Richardson Memorial Hospital has been of great benefit to the people of our race in supplying them with modern hospital facilities and also in training nurses and providing the best equipment for the negro doctors of the community. Mr. Richardson was always active in trying to promote cordial relations between the white citizens and negro citizens of our community and by his splendid example did much to bring about a better understanding between the races.

"We are sure that the white citizens of Greensboro will appreciate this tribute to a fine citizen but we would like for it to be done on the petition of his negro friends."

Mr. Richardson's love for the colored race was inculcated during his boyhood on the Richardson plantation in Johnston county, North Carolina. His brothers were much older than he, and his main dependence for playmates were three little negro boys of his own age, the sons of plantation slaves.

Engineers Act As Hotel-Men To Liberating Troops

Headquarters European Theater of Operations—Used to doing all sorts of odd jobs, the United States Army Engineers had a brand new role in the assault on Europe.

"They provided 'hotel' service" for the thousands of tactical troops massed in the marshalling areas before the take-off. Among those assisting in this special work was Sgt. James Harrison of Route 3, Ranger.

"We claim to be versatile," said Colonel Car R. Shaw, Base Section Engineer "but this was something new, even for us."

In their peaceful garden retreat, the headquarters personnel seem to be very far from war. But they were furiously busy for weeks making all the plans for taking care of the troops while they waited at alert stations for D-Day.

First of all, most of the camps had to be enlarged. In most cases, their capacity was increased many fold. There was the urgent need to camouflage them well. There must be no chance of the camps being spotted from the air.

It was later that the Engineers took over as cooks, KPs, supply men, and the like. Naturally, there was some grumbling about "the dirty old Engineers having to do the job nobody else wanted to."

Often there would be a lieutenant of the Engineers as Camp commander. It didn't matter a bit that a general of the field forces was strictly in charge. If he'd wanted to make a general do some extra policing up, theoretically he could have done so.

Besides, the Engineer General Service Regiments, there were platoons and companies of Engineers expert in waterproofing, fire fighting, water supply, engineer stores, etc. Some were there just in case of emergency.

And after the soldiers had gone the Engineers still had work to do. They had to clean up and ready the camps for new occupants. A major problem was disposing of the numerous stocks of clothing and equipment the troops left behind.

That the Engineers did a fine job was attested by several high-ranking officers. One of these was an Infantry Colonel who commended Second Lieutenant John

Ceiling Placed On Farm Machines And Equipment

To prevent speculation in used farm equipment and machinery, the Office of Price Administration has brought sales of such equipment by any person who has acquired it for resale under price control, thereby protecting farmers from overcharges.

Thus farmers and farm equipment dealers will be protected from speculators who, in the past, have acquired used farm machinery at or below ceiling prices, and then resold the items at prices in excess of ceilings by claiming they were not retail dealers and therefore not subject to price control regulation.

Draft Board Issues Names Of Latest Inductees

The following list of Selectees recently have been inducted in the Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard:

Rubber Contour Maps Used By Invasion Forces As Guide

NEW YORK (UP)—Thin rubber contour maps of enemy country and fortifications were studied by invasion forces who unfolded them in landing boats just before H-hour.

Herbert E. Smith, president of the United States Rubber Co., said the rubber maps were first used to guide Gen. Mark Clark's divisions in the landings at Salerno.

Information for the maps is gathered from all possible sources he said, and brought up to date by aerial photography.

First a model is built, Smith explained, and from the model a plaster negative is cast, with mountains showing depressions. The rubber—natural latex—is sprayed dried, and cured on the cast he said.

Technicians Use Planes Sent Home As Guinea Pigs

ORLANDO, Fla. (UP)—After the photographers have gone and the crews have received their citations and everyone knows about the feats of some of the Flying Fortresses and Liberators that finally return to United States bases—what happens to the planes?

Officials at the Army Air Force tactical training center here recently revealed one of the home-front jobs given the great war wearies. They are made into guinea pigs.

Take the "Typhoon McGoon," B-17 veteran of the Pacific war theater. It is credited with the Japanese bomber, five fighter and innumerable search, reconnaissance and navigation missions now in the ship's log.

Little evidence of the wear and tear of missions and thousands of miles of air travel can be seen about the bomber today, but a mechanical gadget about the "Typhoon McGoon" reveals information valuable for improving weapons and for training men who will be crews of other Fortresses.

WHO PAID FOR Clyde Garrett's Posters?

Garrett's opposition in his race for election to Congress from the Seventeenth District, charges they were paid by the CIO Political Action Committee.

Here Are the Facts:

Photographic reproductions of the actual checks after they had been paid and cancelled by the bank; the names of those who contributed the money to pay for this advertising; the list of companies which ran the advertising, and the total cost of all billboard advertising during the campaign.

These Are the Men Who Paid the Bill For the Billboards

- C. W. HOFFMANN, Eastland Oil Operator; HAL JACKSON, Eastland Wholesale Gasoline Dealer; T. E. RICHARDSON, Eastland Druggist; VICTOR CORNELIUS, Eastland Theatrical Printing, Acting Treasurer; HALL WALKER, Ranger, Banker; DR. P. M. KUYKENDALL, Ranger, Physician; B. E. GARNER, Ranger, Theatre.

These are the checks with which they paid the bill for the billboards!

Here are actual photographic reproductions of all checks issued in payment for all billboard advertising for Clyde Garrett in the last primary. The opposition says that payment was made by the CIO. These checks, as the pictures show, were drawn against the account of Victor Cornelius, mayor of Eastland, and paid by the Eastland National Bank.

The Facts Were Available to Clyde Garrett's Opponent!

The facts as presented here were never hidden. They were available to the opposition. But it would have done the opposition no good to admit that individual citizens in the district, friends and supporters of Clyde Garrett among whom he has lived practically all of his life, would voluntarily give their time and money to support him.

What is the Real Issue In This Campaign?

The opposition knows that Labor is not an issue in this campaign. There have been no controversies of strikes that would interfere with the war effort. Workers and employers have been in harmony. The great majority of the voters are farmers, ranchers, small business men, professional men and operators and workers who have no love for the John L. Lewis type.

We Need a Change In Washington! CLYDE GARRETT Is That Change!

WARNING! SUCH UNWARRANTED RUMORS AS THIS CIO POSTER FICTION ARE AMPLIFIED BY THE FACT THAT THE PEOPLE OF THE DISTRICT MUST BE ON THEIR GUARD AGAINST OTHER AND EVEN MORE DISGRACEFUL CHARGES WHICH MAY BE PROMOTED AGAINST CLYDE GARRETT LATER IN THIS CAMPAIGN.
