Due to circumstances beyond my control, I was not able to attend the track meet at Cisco Tuesday April 3rd. Eastland won, however, by one point. Summary of events will be in the column next week.

Maddrey Named Rotary Head At Monday's Meet

The Eastland Rotary Club Monday elected W. D. Maddrey as president, succeeding Fred Brown whose term is expiring. Maddrey is an employee of the Texas Electric Service Company.

I. C. Inzer, in charge of Monday's Rotary program, presented W. G. Womack, Superintendent of Eastland schools, in a talk on the Eastland school system.

The Eastland Independent school district has 769 children within school age, according to the school census just completed, Mr. Womack said. Enrollment in the schools at this time is 800. Eastland schools operate no buses for transporting pupils from outlying district, but some come in. Plans are being considered by which buses will be acquired and operated for this purpose in the future, Mr. Womack said.

Mr. Womack also stated that the Eastland schools were employing at this time 26 teachers and that the average salary paid them on the nine months basis was $162.00 per month.

The schools, Mr. Womack said, were financing repairs being made on Maverick football field and that a projector and screen for motion pictures had been purchased by the school.

Deadline For Cotton Insurance Set For April 10

Applications for Federal Cotton Crop Insurance must be signed before the crop is planted, Emmett Powell, Secretary of the County ACA, pointed out today. In Eastland County the deadline for obtaining insurance on the 1946 cotton crop is April 10, 1946 but the applications must be made before the crop is seeded.

The insurance covers all unavoidable risks, such as hail, drought, floods, excessive rains, insects, diseases, wind, frost, snow, wildfire, hurricane and tornadoes, but it does not protect against available losses such as negligence damage to quality, or failure to prepare land, plant or cultivate according to good practices.

With a Federal Crop Insurance contract, planters can be sure of a return every year from the investment and work put into the cotton crop.

Local Clean-up Campaign Ends

The local clean-up campaign sponsored by the Civic League and Garden Club, has been completed with the result that the streets and alleys of the city as well as some of the roadsides in outlying districts have been cleared of unsightly rubbish, according to City manager, K. B. Tanner, who directed the operation of City owned trucks in removing much of the rubbish in co-operation with the sponsoring club.

Both the Civic League and Garden Club committees and Mr. Tanner and other City employees who participated in the campaign are due thanks for a job well done. It should be stated also that the property owners and public in general, gave full co-operation in the work.

Professor Seeks Correct Answers From Classes

AUSTIN, Tex., (UP) — A baffled history professor at the University of Texas here refuses to take any steps in the realm of science without first consulting his students.

He opened a lecture recently in this manner: "That last time I mentioned that there were 92 elements in existence, a student promptly corrected me and said that four more have recently been discovered. Now, before I say anything about planets, I wonder if there are any more than nine."

Smith stated today that a carload of mohair was shipped Wednesday and that it brought the owners better than $40,000. Collins and Akman of Rhode Island bought the mohair.

The Cloud warehouse was recently established in Ranger and indications are that it has started off on a successful business venture in this area.

John R. Blackburn To Run For 107th Representative

John R. Blackburn, former resident of Cross Plains but who now resides at Cisco, has announced his intention of running for State Representative from the 107th District composed of Eastland and Callahan counties.

Blackburn, 29, served in the recent war and indicated that his campaign slogan would be, "Let a Service Man Serve You." He is a graduate of Cisco High School and attended Cisco Junior College.

He is married and has one child, his wife being the former Dessie Huntington of Cross Plains.

There has been no announcement for 106th district State Representative, which was made vacant by the recent death of Representative R. N. Grisham. Friends of Omar Burket of Eastland, who was defeated by Pearson for the 107th place at last election, are urging him to run for either the 107th or the 107th. They state, however that Burket has made no commitments regarding the matter and has not intimated as to which of the two places he would prefer to try for if either.

Vardaman Sworn Into Office On Reserve Board

WASHINGTON (UP) — Commodore James K. Vardaman, Jr., was sworn in today as a member of the Federal Reserve Board and President Truman promptly named Capt. Clark M. Chifford, St. Louis attorney, to succeed Vardaman as his naval aide.

Vardaman, who will be released from the navy later in the day, took the oath from Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed. The Senate 66 to 2 yesterday confirmed Vardaman's appointment to the 14-year term as a federal reserve governor.

Frank Sparks and Earnest Hallikas, whose terms as members of the board of trustees of the Eastland Independent School district expire May 30, were the only candidates to file for election as trustees at the election tomorrow (Saturday).

Football Star Thinks Army Life Is Aging Him

COLLEGE STATION (A&M) — When he was a quarterback and most valuable player on the 1944 Texas Aggie football team everybody commented that Jimmie "Red" Cashion was "just a kid."

Cashion, son of M. L. Cashion, secretary of the A. & M. College Y. M. C. A., was born and reared on the college campus. He's now a staff sergeant in Seoul, Korea.

But army life has taken its toll, according to word received from Red, and he's now considered something of an "old man."

Here's how Red tells it in a letter to his dad: "We had a strange thing happen today. This morning the mail clerk was going through outgoing letters and he ran across one addressed to a girl at Baylor University. He called it to my attention, and I knew the girl. I contacted the writer of the letter and he turned out to be an Aggie too."

"He said he knew my brother when he played football at A. & M., and I had to tell him that my brother is still in high school and that he probably knew me. He said he thought I was at least thirty. I got a big buzz out of that, at first, but then I decided it might not be as funny as it sounded."

"Maybe I am getting old faster than I thought."

Red is 19 now, and will be back to finish his education and football playing at A. & M. as soon as possible.

Governor's Wit Puts Convention Into Stitches

AUSTIN, Tex., (UP) — Gov. Coke R. Stevenson long has been noted for his witty statements, and he put his hearers in stitches when he spoke at a breakfast given by Texas Postmasters honoring Postmaster General Robert Hannegan.

There had been considerable discussion of the Hatch Act which limits political activity of federal employees.

"Apparently you are not in politics and I am not in politics," so we might as well have a good time," said the Governor.

Aside from business discussion and other activities the Texas postmasters took occasion to pay a tribute to their former president and veteran secretary—Fred Massengill of Terrell.

At an association banquet Massengill was given a watch and a wristband. A resolution was passed praising his services.

And the Postmaster General was the first to congratulate Massengill.

RUSSIA GIVEN UNTIL THAT SET DATE TO MOVE TROOPS

NEW YORK (UP) — The United Nations Security Council ended the Iranian-Soviet crisis today by postponing consideration of the Iranian situation until May 6—the date by which Russia promised to have all her troops out of Iran.

Then the council adjourned until 3 p. m. Tuesday.

Col. W. R. Hodgson of Australia, who had denounced the council for failing to make a complete investigation and for holding secret meetings, was the only dissenter. He abstained from voting.

Russia was still absent from the council table so the vote was 9 to 0. Council procedure does not call for a count of those against.

The resolution, proposed by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, gives the council the right to reopen the Iranian case anytime before May 6 if necessary and put it at the top of the agenda.

Hodgson also served notice he was reserving the right to call for a complete investigation of all the facts in the Iranian case before May 6 "if we believe the facts justify."

Under the Byrnes resolution, both Soviet Russia and Iran are called upon to report to the council on May 6 whether Red Army troops have left Iran as promised.

After the vote, Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala told the council the people of Iran "accept the Soviet letter of yesterday as a mark of faith that Russian troops will be withdrawn."

Ala, whose country has been before the Security Council twice with complaints against Russia during the council's brief lifetime, told the council members he hoped he'd never have to return.

"But—if necessary—I will return with the highest confidence in the council," he said.

Dual Completion Hearing To Be Held On April 11

AUSTIN, Tex., (UP) — The University of Texas now seems destined to be drawn into the current oil production problem over the desirability of "dual completions."

A dual completion in the oil industry's rather confusing language means completion of a well in such a way that it taps oil deposits from different oil bearing sands or shales and produces them through the same pipe.

Recently the Railroad Commission has been tightening up on issuance of permits for such form of operations. The danger of costly blow-outs and other damage has been given as a reason to ban the practice in some fields. In others the structure is thought to be sufficiently firm to make the practice safe.

The University's interest has become affected by an application of Atlantic Refining Company for permits for dual completion of seven of its wells on University land in Crane County.

The Railroad Commission has called a hearing on the topic for April 11, at the state capital. The hearing was called originally to consider permits on but two wells, but since has been extended to five others.

Californian Writes of His Trip Back To His Native State of Texas

By S. ED REYNOLDS

I believe my cousins Eria and Dood Stokes and daughter, Doris Neal, had just taken me over to my friends, Jim and Mary Lile's, home when I ended the last story sent in.

We found Jim in the field helping the son gather corn, and I had spoken a very few words when he recognized me. Jim told his son, Willard, that he would leave the corn gathering with him.

Jim and I went to the house, where we found Mary washing their clothes. I think Jim is 72 or 73 and Mary is some younger, but they still do their work about the place. Jim feeding the stock and milking the cows and Mary doing her house-work, cooking and caring for the home in a splendid manner. Mary, like her mother, is a splendid cook. I stayed there three days with them and should know.

The next morning Jim asked me where I wanted to go and I told him I wanted to go down into old Pleasant Valley, where he, Mary, and I, went to school when we were kids, and Jim said, "anywhere old boy I'm with you", and believe me he was not only with every-one called her) had in their of the day. We returned in the late afternoon.

From Jim's home I could see across about three-fourth of a mile where "Uncle" Lucius Liles and Mrs. Liles—Jim's father and mother's home was until their death, I suppose. They were two fine old people. We went north to John Liles' old home and it made me feel terrible to see the decay and desolation in the place of my old friends' and smiling faces and the happy healthy family of children, John and Mattie (Matt, as every-one called her) had in their home. It seemed that I could hear their voices about me. People's voices seem to follow me forever, which may be one reason I love my old friends so much. Their old cistern, with its curbing, had become wrecked and I told Jim it was a pity to see those things that they had worked to provide, go to ruin. I especially mentioned the splendid capstone that John had selected, and had chiseled out a and placed the stone over the cistern for a covering. It was a splendid example of the common farmer's ingenuity and workmanship, and should be preserved.

We then went across to our old school teachers' home-place and found the farm not so well cultivated as Mr. Gray kept it. We went on by the Sherrill place just below the bridge and around the big rocks where "Uncle" John's goats used to be most of the time, especially in evenings. I could not hear a bleat nor smell a billy which did not seem like old times, still things had a familiar look to them.

I asked Jim to go to one side a few steps to take a look at an old pepper-wood tree that we kids had much pleasure out of by taking strange boys and girls there and getting them to chew a leaf and see them spit and slobber and take on about it, but there was no sign of it and no reason that we could see for it's not being there still. We then went a little further north where once was a fine well of water. Both school and church people got their drinking water from it. We could not be sure of the spot where it was although there was a very large hackberry tree and a large elm by it, neither were to be found. Everything looked so unnatural. I was terribly disappointed. Like the old song of "Just 40 Years Ago." Many of our boys had climbed that big hackberry and high upon its lofty branches cut their names in its bark and wood, but the tree stands today only in the minds of its friends of the long ago. We left that desolate spot for the school grounds and when we were nearing the large rocks south of the east end of the cemetery I said, "Jim, right about here is where the first school-house, built of logs stood", and he said yes right over there. I said, "do you know that I can remember how things looked in that log school house before I went to school". We went to church there, and in my mind I visualized the splittable benches, without backs, and long pegs for legs, and I can remember the fire-

Saturday, April 6 Is Army Day

It is the anniversary of our entry into World War I, but we observe this day by paying tribute to our Army. Rich in achievement, victorious in every war, the Army as a professional service to the nation deserves our profound respect and wholehearted support.

In dignity and purpose the Army must be recognized on equal terms with other professions. It must be recognized as a necessary branch of democracy, for without eternal vigilance and preparedness we could easily lose our cherished way of life.

We cannot ignore facts. The United States stands unbeaten through the pages of history. Never yet has tyranny triumphed over democracy; never have our forces failed to emerge victorious. And the Army has made many contributions of direct and indirect benefit to our national progress.

A few among hundreds of outstanding achievements are the construction of the nation's first railroad, the Bonneville Dam, the Panama Canal, the Lewis and Clark expedition opening up the Northwest, the Cumberland Pike opening up the Middle West, and Major Walter Reed's discovery of the cause and remedy of yellow fever.

In fields of science the Army has made numerous significant contributions— aeronautics, radio chemistry, engineering and medicine. Many of them, converted to civilian uses, have resulted in improved industrial products for the benefit of all people.

We must therefore recognize the Army as a profession, one dedicated to the service of mankind, and thus among the highest. For it is America's life insurance policy and a positive factor in the progress of civilization.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By Boyce House

Brownwood Banner says that Frank Grantham has suggested that when the Pioneers Association meets, the membership regulation should be changed so that all who come to Brown County 40 years or more ago would be eligible. Mr. Grantham was 80 years old the other day, writes Mr. White, "but due to a regrettable error in judgement, he did not come here 40 years ago, and would like to be on the roll."

If the limit is lowered to 40 years, your columnist would be eligible for membership for it was in January, 1906, that I moved with my parents to Brownwood. My father opened a small grocery store on the principal street and, every since then, the smell of spices and of freshly-ground coffee has reminded me of those days. The most important business establishment from the standpoint of a nine-year old boy was not however the Crescent Grocery—it was Kaneaster's Kandy Kitchen, where all the spare nickels that I could get were spent.

When we first arrived in Brownwood, we had rooms at a boarding house just across from the campus of Daniel Baker College and I remember some of the college boys—men, they seemed to me, and their athletic yells, one of which was a real gem of poetry: "Johnny get a rat-trap bigger than a cat-trap; Johnny get a cat-trap bigger than a rat-trap— Cannibal, cannibal, hiss-boom-bah!"

I regret that my memory has not preserved the masterpiece in its entirety but that will give you the general idea. After a few weeks, we found a house to move into; it was cat-cornered across the street from an elementary school, about three blocks from the business section—north of the business section, I think. Directions always confused me in Brownwood on account of the twisting streets. I remember there was a standpipe near the center of town and they told a story of a traveling man who walked around and around for half an hour then said, "This is the dumbest place I ever was in; five standpipes and not one post-office."

In our yard there was an oak tree, a big, tall one—about the biggest in the world, I reckon. One day, a playmate jumped out of the fork of the tree and so of course I wouldn't take a dare; I jumped out, too; it certainly was a long way to the ground. Nearly 20 years later, when I revisited Brownwood, I strolled past and, you know, the oddest thing: you'd think that in 20 years that tree would have grown a good deal; but it hadn't, in fact, it looked to me as though it had shrunk; it really wasn't very far from the fork to the ground.

George's cafe has moved into the building formerly occupied by the Breckenridge National Farm Loan Association.

Mrs. C. C. Adams of Ivan route, Breckenridge, is confined to her home with the flu.

Tom Warden of Eastland was in town Friday with a pair of Nylon hose. He was surrounded by three ladies wanting to know where and how he got hold of them. He declared it was the pull he had. Many of the women here would like to learn his method and be able to wear Nylons again.

ON FLAME COOKERY WITH GAS—IT'S FASTEST, CHEAPEST AND EASIEST TO REGULATE!

Practically unanimous is this opinion. And it's little wonder that the modern homemaker hugs to her belief in gas cooking—flame cooking. She values it for the time and money it saves her. She praises it for its ease of control. She understands that a flame is necessary for successful broiling.

The FLAME cooks it better

Instant heat controlled to the exact degree required for any cooking job is possible only with the clean blue flame of Natural Gas. This is the basic reason why practically all cooking in this Natural Gas area is done with Gas. Is it any wonder that modernization plans specify: "A New Freedom Gas Kitchen?"

Friends of Jesus Scripture: Mark 10:13-14, 16; 15:43; Luke 6:13-16; 9:1-3; 15:1-2; John 3:1-2

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. WHO were the friends of Jesus? First of all, the children, whom He took up in His arms and blessed. The Disciples, with those false notions that many religious people have had about the young, were going to send away the women who brought their children, rebuking them for troubling the Master. But the Master was "much displeased."

It was the Disciples who were rebuked; and the world was given that beautiful and revealing picture of Jesus surrounded by the children, with the reminder that childlikeness is essential for those who would enter the kingdom of heaven. Then, the Disciples themselves, already with Him and in His company—the men from fishing boats, from customs houses, and from other lowly places and walks of life, to whom Jesus said, "I have not called you servants, for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth, but I have called you friends."

THE great, also—men in authority, like the Roman centurion whose faith He commended; Nicodemus, the ruler of the Jews, who came to Him by night; Joseph of Arimathea, who claimed His body and gave it burial; the wealthy who invited Him to their homes and made for Him a feast, like Simon, the Pharisee, whose hospitality He accepted, but whom He lovingly rebuked.

He befriended, too, the sick and the needy, the common people who "heard Him gladly." The multitudes who followed Him for the loaves and fishes. He loved them all, and they were all His friends.

And he accepted the sinners, those publicly recognized as sinners, men and women of ill repute who earnestly longed to become more worthy, and who were already worthier than the hypocrites who despised and condemned them. How friendly Jesus was toward them! His kindness brought upon Him the reproach of the Pharisee, "this man receiveth sinners and eateth with them." But how little the Master cared for reputation, or for worldly popularity, in surrounding the lost and outcast with friendship and grace!

THE mourners and the sorrowful, with whom He wept, and upon whom He pronounced the blessing of comfort, were His friends, too.

Nor should we forget the women, so many of them, to whom He brought new hope and life, in a time and place where women had an inferior position—Mary and Martha in the home at Bethany; the "woman who was a sinner" who washed His feet with her tears, and dried them with the hair of her head; the "woman of Samaria" whom He met at the well, and who brought the people from the nearby city to meet Him, and to believe because of what they saw and heard.

The Syrophenician woman, beseeching him to heal her child, and more than matching Him in her reply to His questioning; the woman who touched the hem of His garment and found healing; the woman accused of having been taken in adultery whom He bade to go in peace and sin no more; the poor widow casting her mite into the temple treasury; the women, besides His mother, who followed Him all the way to the Cross; and the women who met Him on the Resurrection morning.

These were the friends of Jesus. And what a Friend He was to them all!

Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Hanna, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard of Mineral Wells, were guests in Tankersley Sunday.

Furnishings Alone Do Not Make a Home

LANDSCAPING, oriental rugs, family heirlooms, and comfortable furniture are desirable, and help. Electric refrigeration, automatic heat, air conditioning and scientific lighting - all make their contribution. But are these enough?

Church Inspiration Is Necessary

Living makes a home. The Church offers ideals for living—Sacredness of marriage—Family comradeship—Reserves for days of trouble—Comfort in sorrow—Joy in wholesome living.

The congress of unborn children would undoubtedly choose homes where the family lived a joyous and comradely life together.

They buy food at commissary in the well-stocked commissary, lower left, and other personal and household necessities are obtainable at reasonable prices at the post exchange. Their neat, comfortable living room, lower right, is the place for relaxation after Nancy Carol has been tucked in for the night. Their home is typical of those found on Regular Army posts throughout the nation and many foreign installations.

VETERAN TELLS MORE OF LIFE AT UNIVERSITY

AUSTIN, Texas — The fact that the World War II veteran back in school continues to be so much under observation prompts this second in a series of stories on how we 5,850 veterans are faring at the University of Texas.

I hesitate to speak for all, but I can't be a student of all the professions at once. After three or four years of "being spoken for and at" by the "boss" in the military hierarchy, the veteran is a little jealous of "interference" even over his own name.

The first significant obstacle is being hounded this week and next when "early summer examinations" are taken. These are the "seeing how well you're getting along" type, and in a class classes are featuring them.

The one biggest obstacle is the worry of the student himself. In my opinion, it is his weakness in mathematics. None of the vets are enrolled in the college of engineering than any other branch, and everyone knows math is the foundation there. The complaint I have heard more than any other is that professors are going too fast and forgetting that more than half of their students have been far removed from math and trigonometry for three or four years or more.

There's another side to it, of course. The instructors have a definite amount of material to cover in a definite amount of time. And there appears to be at least three ways a vet can get help in mathematics—but not in the middle of a physics or chemistry lecture. There are refresher classes and individual help periods during the day, as well as evening courses in algebra and trig that a vet may take either with or without credit. The University Veteran Advisory Service is devoting a great deal of its time to the refresher problem and has just assigned Carl Bredt, a University graduate and former AAF captain, to specialize on this assistance.

JAIL SELLS FOR JUNK
CHICAGO (UP) — The suburb of Winthrop has sold its jail, a three-room lockup which hadn't had an occupant for years. It was up for sale for three years and finally Elmer Knowles, a farmer, bought it as junk for $20 and obtained from it 1,500 pounds of doors, bars and frames.

Texas, Pacific Announces Two New Promotions

The Texas and Pacific Railway Company announces the promotion of two officials, T. E. Huffman and C. S. McDonald effective April first. Huffman becomes Merchandise Traffic Manager and McDonald is appointed to General Merchandise Traffic Agent. Their headquarters will be in the Dallas general offices.

Huffman, a native of Longview, Texas, was first employed by the railway company as Baggage Master and Railway Express Clerk. In 1911 he became joint agent and terminal manager for Texas and Pacific and International - Great Northern at Longview, going to Shreveport as Freight Agent in 1920 and later going to Ft. Worth as Agent. He was made General Agent, Fort Worth in 1923. Six years later he was appointed General Merchandise Traffic Agent, Dallas. In addition to these duties, Huffman organized and established the coordinated Texas and Pacific rail-motor transport service which now extends over the entire system. He will continue to serve as General Freight Agent for the motor freight service.

In November, 1945, the service of Huffman was drafted to make a special merchandise study on a nationwide scale for the Association of American Railroads, headquarters New York City. For fifteen months he acted as study director compiling a report on all forms of transportation handling merchandise. He has only recently returned to head the Merchandise department of the railroad.

McDonald, a native of Montgomery, Texas, was first employed by Texas and Pacific as Claim Mail Clerk in 1919. He became head of the Lumber Desk in 1933 and later head of the Petroleum Desk, Traffic Department. He was subsequently appointed Assistant General Merchandise Traffic Agent in 1939 and has been Acting General Merchandise Traffic Agent since September, 1945.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UP)—Visitors to West Virginia's 16-acre 333-room capitol here marvel at the beauty of the architecture—but few of them can find their way around. The reason is the little, understudied system of numbering the rooms. All offices in the eastern section of the main unit, and in the east wing, have even numbers that begin in the basement and "work up." Rooms in the western portions have odd numbers.

WARNS AGAINST TOO HASTY CONVERSION OF INSURANCE

A warning to veterans against too hasty conversion of their national Service Life Insurance policies was issued today by L. H. Graves, Jr., Assistant Director for Insurance in the Dallas Branch Office of the Veterans Administration.

"Failure to appreciate its true peace-time value is the main reason many veterans drop their insurance," Graves said. "But we were surprised to learn that bad advice is unintentionally being given to veterans by many persons really desiring to be helpful.

"It is of real concern to VA to learn that many veterans are being advised to convert their NSLI policies immediately to higher premium forms or to convert and 'date back' by making a large cash payment.

"In many cases," he pointed out, "the veteran cannot afford financially such action."

Graves declared that the best advice VA can give the average veteran—advice which is being given generally by experienced life insurance men—is to continue paying, at least temporarily, the same low premiums he paid while in the service. By doing this he can be protected by insurance until such a time as he is in a position to afford the kind of converted insurance that will fit his needs.

"By no means should the veteran be urged to convert his policy when he may be uncertain about his economic status," Graves said. "Nor should he be urged under ordinary circumstances to 'date back' his policy. Although it provides the veteran with a good means of investment, to 'date back' usually requires a substantial cash payment which the average veteran can ill afford and which gains him no particular advantage.

"If a veteran has extra cash it is a good thing for him to put it into insurance," he said. "But I would generally advise that it be used to pay premiums in advance. Premiums paid in advance are discounted at the rate of 3 per cent compounded annually and any unearned premiums can be withdrawn at any time by the insured. If the policy matures before all premiums are due, the beneficiary is paid the unearned premiums in addition to any other amount payable."

All term insurance issued before January 1, 1946, may be continued for eight years from the date of issue, and all other term insurance for five years, without conversion, he pointed out.

Deer Come To City For Peace, Quiet

SALT LAKE CITY (UP) — It's all well and fine for nature lovers to love the animals in the mountains but it's almost gone too far in Utah. It seems that Sunday motorists who have been motoring to the mountains to the deer feeding grounds have more or less pushed the deer out of their natural habitat.

The state fish and game department says that the caravan of motorists, horseback riders, amateur photographers and general interest seekers have resulted in deer moving from their feeding grounds down into the city to private grounds to browse on shrubs and foliage in comparative quiet.

WASHINGTON FARMNOTES

HAILS WORK ON CANCER RESEARCH

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP) — Dr. Alfred Taylor, research biologist at the University of Texas, today hailed the work of fellow researchers at the University of Minnesota as greatly shortening the road to a defense against cancer.

Taylor was met with skepticism in 1944, when the slender, balding scientist suggested that cancer is due to an infection and not, as long believed, something within the body cells.

Significance of the difference, he said, is that if cancer is an infection it is like influenza, smallpox and other ills against which the human body can be immunized. Today he said the success of the Minnesota scientists with a filterable extract that causes cancer, centers attention on the virus and infection theory. He warned that the solving of the problem is still far off.

"Cancer prophylaxis is a possibility," Dr. Taylor said. "I do not know whether we can control the tumor after it has started but eventually we believe an antibody will be discovered that will prevent its inception—just as smallpox vaccine immunizes against that disease.

"No one man is going to solve the cancer problem, and there is still a long way to go. But with mass attacks being made, it's bound to yield sooner or later. I, personally, am quite optimistic."

What Changes a Few Years Can Bring
... especially in prices and values on homes, business properties and other commodities we classify as housing facilities. In 1933, for example the average 5 and 6 room modern home, including lot, cost $3,820.00. The same home in 1940 cost $5009.00, while today, if you could get material to build, the price would be $7,197.00. (Figures taken from government statistics). CALIFORNIA U. GETS SHIPYARD HOUSES FOR GIS

RICHMOND, Cal. (UP) — Vet Village, part of a vast housing project where workers in Henry J. Kaiser's bustling but now almost deserted shipyards once lived, is the University of California's answer to the housing problem brought on by a record enrollment of ex-servicemen.

When the spring term opened in March, the Berkeley campus found itself with a total of more than 15,000 students—92 per cent above last year's enrollment—and with a record total of 4,000 veterans enrolled under the GI Bill of Rights.

The college was faced with an acute housing problem because few of the 64 war-closed fraternities have reopened and an always present San Francisco Bay area shortage of housing left few vacancies for veterans.

The immediate solution was the Richmond Housing Authority, a sprawling collection of two-story apartment dwellings which at its wartime peak housed 20,850 shipyard workers who labored in Kaiser's four shipyards here.

Still in business, but now renting only to veterans, the RHA turned over a total of 30 units to the college—15 to house single veterans and 15 for married ex-servicemen who quickly filled Vet Village, several hundred married ex-GIs went directly to the RHA and rented quarters.

Housing authority officials and veterans' coordinators at the university estimated as many as half of the 4,000 vets now enrolled are quartered in the Richmond project. Since single men receive only $65 a month under the GI Bill of Rights for subsistence, the college offered the furnished apartments to ex-servicemen for $12.50 a month per student.

Married men granted $90 by the government, usually pay rent of $30 a month—or even less, if they seek a rent adjustment from the housing authority and prove their inability to pay the regular rate.

A "house mother" serves as supervisor over every two apartment houses in Vet Village. None of them yet has reported any difficulties in enforcing discipline or the few house rules set up by the university, barring frequent violations of the 10:30 p. m. weekday curfew imposed on lower class men.

"It is somewhat difficult," one supervisor explained, "for an ex-serviceman in his 30s to have a 21 year old upper-classman tell him he has to be in by 10:30 p. m. during the week."

The college also grants meal tickets at low weekly rates and preserves the armed forces custom of "seconds at chow" in an effort to help the ex-GI meet his budget.

While many of the returning veterans at the college admittedly have had difficulty in settling down to classroom routine, professors at University of California said veterans as a whole "are more determined, if anything, than non-veterans to succeed in their courses."

"The veterans have a better scholastic average than the other students," said a spokesman at the veterans' co-ordinators office at the college.

AGGIES WORLD WIDE MUSTER DUE APRIL 21

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — Valley Forge, The Alamo and Corregidor—hallowed ground to all American fighting men—will be among the hundreds of spots the world over where Texas Aggies will observe their traditional annual Muster on April 21.

Held on the anniversary of one of the world's few decisive battles—San Jacinto in which Texas won her independence—the Muster promises this year to be the greatest ever held at Texas A.&M. College, which during World War II produced more officers for the United States Army than any college in the land.

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, U. S. Chief of Staff, is scheduled to be the honor guest and speaker.

The tradition of former students of Texas A.&M. meeting together each April 21, wherever they might be, grew out of a student demonstration on the campus on that date in 1903. Deprived of a holiday then, the Aggie cadets vowed they would always observe the day when they became alumni.

Each year since then Texas Aggies have met together at home and abroad.

This year's Aggie Muster will meet in prayer, in tribute to the more than 700 A.&M. men who died in the armed forces of their country in World Wars I and II, and with prayers for the comfort and solace of the families of those men. Despite the presence of thousands on the campus for the school's Victory Homecoming, other thousands will gather at an estimated three hundred other Musters throughout the world.

Philadelphia area Aggies and Texans will meet at the Washington Chapel at Valley Forge.

The San Antonio A.&M. Club Muster will be held at the Alamo. The Island of Corregidor will be the scene of the Manila Muster.

It was on April 21, 1942, that a group of 25 Aggie men on the embattled fortress got together briefly, talked of old times and "cussed the Japs, then went back to the job of fighting to the bitter end a little over two weeks later.

General Eisenhower and 29 former Aggie students who have reached the general's rank in the Army of the United States will be awarded honorary degrees.

Handicapped Employees Help Build Million Dollar Firm

CHICAGO (UP) — The girl in the outer office is attractive and courteous. But there are crutches beside her desk and she cannot walk without them.

The young man who takes you around the plant is efficient and businesslike. But his left ear is artificial and his left arm is missing.

So it is throughout the factory of the George Barr Chemical Co. Men and women who are severely paralyzed, who are without arms or legs, who are blind or deaf, will fill the shop and office, doing all conceivable types of work.

And thus doing their work as well as, if not better than, anyone with all his facilities, George P. Barr, president, says.

Barr has 150 employees and approximately 90 per cent of them are handicapped to some extent. His factory, he contends is definite proof that the handicapped veteran will be able to find private employment.

"If I have a job open I'll put anybody to work who can fill it," Barr says. "Whether he's handicapped or not doesn't make the least bit of difference. More and more manufacturers are realizing that each day and the sooner everyone knows it the more financially sound industry will be."

Barr himself is handicapped, although he says that has had no effect on his employment policy. "I want a job well done; I don't care who does it," he says. He has made no special effort to employ handicapped persons, but he says it has paid off.

"These people are intensely loyal," he says. "We don't have labor trouble." In addition, absenteeism and accident rates are considerably lower than in the average factory of the same type," he says.

In 1935 Barr lost a leg in an auto accident. He has been wearing one of metal since and he has not let it deter him in the least. He founded his concern after the accident, with little capital, and it has grown until today it occupies three buildings and does more than $1,000,000 business annually.

Barr manufactures shampoos and tonics. In his plant much of the assembling is done by deaf and blind persons. A man whose legs were immobilized by infantile paralysis sits at a complicated tube filling machine and operates it hour after hour. Persons with spastic paralysis and psycho-neuroses have less exacting but difficult tasks.

As yet, Barr does not employ a large number of veterans. "But I expect to," he said. "We are expanding rapidly. Veterans get first choice, naturally. They can do the work as well as anyone. If they remember that, and if everyone else does, the whole country will be better off."

New Students Get 250 Police Tickets In Week

AUSTIN, Tex., (UP) — Austin police have just been experiencing the usual headache that follows the opening of a new term at the University of Texas.

New students received more than 250 police tickets the first week of the present term. Most of them were for roveparking cars in the one-hour zones but some were for leaving cars blocking alley entrances or at restricted places.

Most of the overtime parking tickets were issued on "the Drag" as the portion of Gaudalup Street, abutting the campus, is known in student talk. Merchants put the bee on the traffic police to enforce the parking rules because customers were putting the bee on them.

Generally friendly relations are maintained between Austin police and university students. There seldom is a clash such as student pranks cause in some cities.

The students are not the only ones who violate Austin's traffic rule. Everytime the legislature meets, there is a similar wave of violations. But the legislators have this advantage over the students—they are immune so long as the legislature is in session.

But they get so many tickets that it is the practice to appoint a legislative representative to gather them up and take them to traffic court to claim the legislators' exemption.

MILK DEALERS BAND DENVER (UP) — Fluid milk dealers in this area have banded together to form the Denver Dairy Products Assn., a trade organization designed to "bring about a more friendly and co-operative feeling between producers, distributors, processors and consumers and to elevate the industry to a higher plane of efficiency.

Radio Future Discussed at University

AUSTIN, Texas — Frequency modulation radio is here to stay, particularly for educational institutions—television can't be expected for at least a year. Radio station owners will more and more recognize their responsibility to the community they serve.

These pertinent points summarizing the post-war radio outlook were made by Dr. A. L. Chapman, director of research in education by radio at the University of Texas in a recent talk to University radio students.

"Colleges and universities, in the main, will have to depend on FM for broadcasting education programs," Dr. Chapman said. "The competition for time on commercial regional networks is so terrific that it is virtually impossible for an educational institution to get a time when people aren't asleep. A network of FM educational stations can operate full time with each institution carrying only a part of the schedule."

A recent report from the Federal Communications Commission indicates that television cannot be expected for at least a year, Dr. Chapman said.

"Radio stations must give more attention to public service aspects of their operation, Dr. Chapman said. "Radio has become a part of our culture. Inefficient stations will fall by the wayside and others will prosper."

"I believe radio programs will improve. They will deal increasingly with current, important and international matters. I believe that there will be less of a tendency to prohibit controversial matters being broadcast, and that proponents of differing viewpoints will be brought to the microphone, so that the listeners will get arguments of various groups of interests."

"Radio may not keep up with the social maturity of our people, but it will be moving in that direction," he added.

His advice to persons interested in radio work was to get a college degree, be willing to cooperate, do a good job even if it takes a long time and develop the type personality necessary for radio work.

Prison Funds Disappear Very Mysteriously

AUSTIN (UP) — Money isn't safe even when it is in prison. Prison officials are trying to find out what became of $100 of the receipts from a prison rodeo, held in 1944.

According to the account of the affair, the employee who had gathered up the day's receipts, took them to the office to make up a deposit slip to go to the bank, sorting the currency by denominations and assembling the silver in piles.

While he was engaged in this work, he was called out to verify in view of the fact that the receipts on the sale of programs. Then he returned to the office and resumed preparing the money for deposit in the bank. He found it $100 short. Another man was in the office all the time but he was busy selling tickets and the money could have been taken by anyone while the ticket seller's attention was drawn away from the money that had been placed on a desk.

Only other rodeo loss reported was a "hot check" of $8.40 returned from a Houston bank with "insufficient funds" noted on it. In 1945 took in $45,095, the loss was small.

REDISTRICTING IS TOPIC OF MUCH DISPUTE

AUSTIN, Texas — Legislative Redistricting which may cause a special session of the Texas Legislature in the fall has been a topic of dispute since its neglect after two U. S. Censuses.

Repeatedly the legislature has failed to enact a redistricting bill, through numerous efforts have been made for grouping that could get the necessary number of House and Senate votes.

Sometimes one body would agree and the other object—sometimes it was impossible to get a majority in either the House or Senate.

Lee Satterwhite, who was twice Speaker of the House of Representatives and was a member of the House from four separate legislative districts, offers this solution:

He would divide the state into 60 legislative districts, each district to elect one senator and two representatives.

Now there are 127 House districts entitled to elect 150 representatives and 31 senatorial districts with a senator each.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE
 "Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 7.

The Golden Text is: "There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing; there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches" (Proverbs 13:7).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Unless thy law had been my delights, I should then have perished in mine affliction" (Psalms 119:92).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Truth, Life, and Love are the only legitimate and eternal demands on man, and they are spiritual lawgivers, enforcing obedience through divine statutes" (page 184).

Dog Forfeits $1,200 Left By Mistress

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—An aging Boston Terrier named Boots has walked out on a $1,200 trust fund which would have kept him in bones the rest of his life.

Boots received his legacy in June, 1944, when his dotting mistress, an 81-year-old widow, died. In addition she made provisions for Boots' proper burial in a cemetery with her deceased cat, "Babe."

For some time, Boots lived the life of the rich. But apparently he wasn't happy. Early last year, the nine-year-old Terrier just up and left home where he had been in the care of his mistress' aunt and principal legatee of the estate. He never returned.

So Orphans Court Judge Grover C. Ladner ended the trust fund and declared Boots had forfeited his inheritance.
