A PLEA FOR THE COMMUNITY SING-SONG

W. J. Laney, for 55 years a teacher and singer of gospel music in West Texas and enfeebled by his 77 years, in an appearance before the Eastland County Singing Convention meeting in Eastland Saturday and Sunday, made a plea to parents to not ever allow the custom of holding community and group singings—such as this convention—die, stating that the singing of gospel songs was good physically, morally and spiritually for young and old.

PICTURES OF MEMORY:

There is a poem which contains the lines: "Of all the pictures on memories' walls, the one of the old forest seemeth the best of all." Each of us is engaged each day of our lives in creating pictures that will hang on the walls of our memory as long as we shall live.

COLD FEET 'Tis said the ladder of success Can't well be climbed quite high By anyone who has cold feet— They might as well not try; For lack of faith in self prevents Free action of the brain, And one must think good thought alone If goals we would attain.

CHILDRESS IS NAMED MAYOR OF EASTLAND

City To Follow Pay-As-You-Go Policy And Demand A Dollar's Value For Every Dollar

With organization of the new Eastland City Commission at a recent meeting when newly elected commissioners W. W. Linkenhogger and Herman Rushing took the oath of office administered by City Manager Hari O'Brien, D. A. Childress, one of the holdover members of the board, was chosen chairman of the board, commonly known as mayor. A. J. Blevins, Jr., was selected as treasurer and Rushing as assistant treasurer. O'Brien continues as City Manager and Secretary.

When asked for his and the commissioners' plans for the future Childress said he could not say there would be anything new in particular as to plans. "We are pretty well agreed, I think, that we are going to work to a plan in order that anything done and any money spent for the City will not be lost by an overall change of plans—in other words we will try to build on a unit plan so that added units fit in with the first—and I think every member of the board is agreed that we are going to endeavor to pay as we go and keep out of debt; if there are supplies and equipment to be purchased we will try to get the best deal possible for the City even if it requires calling for bids on everything we buy," Childress said.

The commission agreed that the present 7,500 water minimum would be increased to 10,000 gallons in May, 12,500 in June to 15,000 gallons for July and August. The commission also will enter immediately into a campaign to clean up the city streets, which is in keeping with the clean up campaign started last week and which continues through this week. The accumulation of dirt on the streets will be scraped up and disposed of.

The motor house at the City Pumping Station at Ringling Lake, which was replaced recently by a new building, has been ordered removed to City property just south of the City Hall where it will be used as a garage for the new trash truck which, heretofore, has been left out in the weather when not in use.

Carl Elliott, Eastland County School Superintendent, was guest speaker at the Eastland Rotary club meeting Monday at noon. He was introduced by I. C. Inzer, in charge of the program for the day. Elliott gave a talk on "The Duties of a County School Superintendent," which was interesting and informative.

Power Plant To Be Reconstructed By US Britain

BERLIN, Apr. 13 (UP)—British and American authorities ordered highest priorities today for reconstructing the giant "Berliner West" power plant in the British sector of Berlin.

The plant, capable of supplying all power needs or the American, British and French sectors of the city, was ordered rebuilt in case the Russians cut off electricity for the western sectors.

Stalin Reported To Be Hopeful Of World Peace

MOSCOW, Apr. 13, (UP)—An expression by Premier Josef Stalin of a belief that with time and effort mistrust between nations can be eliminated was published today.

Stalin expressed the belief April 7 at a Kremlin dinner for the Finnish delegation here to negotiate a treaty with Russia. It was his first public declaration on international matters since Harold Stassen interviewed him last year. He was talking only about Soviet-Finnish relations. But his remarks were seized on here as a straw of hope for a stopping or slowing of the trend toward suspicion between the east and the west.

Stalin had a harsh word for politicians of other great powers who, he said, do not negotiate fair and equal treaties with small nations because they do not consider such countries as partners.

He said the long standing mistrust between Russia and Finland had been brought to and end with the new treaty.

Some Traffic Freed; Some Still Blockaded

VIENNA, Apr. 13 (UP)—The British reported today that their military trains were allowed to clear through the Russian zone without delay today but motor traffic on the international highway to Vienna still was blocked.

The Soviet policy of putting the pressure on the Americans and British in Vienna by impeding their transport was fluctuating. No further obstacles had been placed in the path of the Americans after the setting up of a check point on their highway to the west yesterday.

Earlier, the famed scientist, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, former president of California Institute of Technology and Nobel Prize winner, spoke on science and religion.

REFUTE CLAIM ACT VIOLATES UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION

WASHINGTON, Apr. 13 (UP)—A special three-judge court today upheld the constitutionality of the non-Communist section of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

In a 2 to 1 decision, the federal tribunal tossed out a complaint by the CIO national Maritime Union that the non-Communist provisions of the act violate the constitution.

"We are of the opinion . . . that . . . the provisions of the statute assailed by the plaintiff—the union—were enacted and may be enforced without offense to the constitution," the majority opinion said.

The section provides that no union can use the services of the national Labor Relations Board unless its officers sign affidavits stating that they are not Communists.

It is aimed at routing Communists from the American labor movement.

The majority opinion said, "it would be unrealistic to say, in the light of all that appears, that the presence of Communists in key positions in labor relations does not constitute a clearly discernible and imminent threat to important national interests."

The majority opinion was written by Judge Wilbur K. Miller, associate justice of the U. S. Court of Appeals. He was joined by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the U. S. District Court.

WASHINGTON COLUMN Little Stories of Big People —Truman, Condon, Slavik

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—President Truman is usually gracious and kindly. But he didn't like it a little bit when he had to present the Raymond Clapper award and a $500 prize to Nat S. Finney of the Cowles publications for outstanding Washington correspondence in 1947. The award was made at the annual White House correspondents' dinner for the President. Finney was named for the honor by a panel of five distinguished newspaper editors for a series of articles exposing plans to impose peacetime government censorship. The President shook hands with Finney as the $500 check and the award certificate were handed over. But the President did not offer his congratulations. Instead, he remarked quietly, so only Finney could hear it, that if you kept monkeying around with these things long enough, you got a kick in the pants. The President made it stronger than that, but it's against the rules to quote him directly. What puzzles Finney, however, is which one of them got the kick? Was it the President because Finney's series had criticized censorship policies? Or was it Finney himself because the President wasn't offering congratulations?

DR. EDWARD U. CONDON, National Bureau of Standards director, has a gagged-up idea for a new kind of "man of the year" award. He has just tried to sell the idea to publisher Marshall Field, suggesting that he offer it in competition to the Pulitzer prizes. Instead of giving the award for distinguished achievements in the arts and letters, however, Condon says it should be confined to the field of government service. And to give it a new twist, Condon says the prize should go to the public servant who gets the worst kicking around during the year. For instance, last year's award would unquestionably go to chairman David Lillenthal of the Atomic Energy Commission for the public beating and abuse he had to take from Senator McKellar.

When Dr. Condon explained his gag award idea to several newspaper men, they accused him of wanting the prize himself. Condon has been accused of consorting with Communists and Russian agents by Congressman John Rankin of Mississippi and the House Un-American Activities Committee. Condon wouldn't get this prize hands down, however. He has competition this year. Consider the kicking around that Dean James M. Landis took when he was bounced out of Civil Aeronautics Board chairmanship. Or how about the summary firing given Surgeon General Thomas Parran after a 12-year unblemished record as head of Public Health Service? Or take the case of Mariner S. Eccles' Federal Reserve Board demotion.

BEFORE the Communists took over Czechoslovakia, the Czech ladies in Washington were planning to have a benefit sale for relief in their native country. Madame Juraj Slavik, wife of the Czech ambassador, had lined up all the Czech ladies in Washington to help with the benefit. They were madly sewing away on gay peasant aprons and doing fancy embroidery work for which Czech women are famous. Then came the coup. Then came Ambassador Slavik's resignation and his dramatic denunciation of the Communists. The Slaviks moved out of the embassy. The sale was called off.

Among the women who had worked hardest getting ready for this sale was Mrs. Edward U. Condon, wife of the Bureau of Standards director. She is of Czech descent. All through the war, in Pittsburgh, Mrs. Condon had been one of the demon seamstresses for the Red Cross. For the Czech embassy relief sale, Mrs. Condon had made 28 aprons and doesn't know what to do with them now.

THE SCOREBOARD Straightening Out Pitching Is McCarthy's Main Job

SARASOTA, Fla.—(NEA)—When the Red Sox paid the Browns $360,000 for Stephens, Kramer, Kinder and Hitchcock and threw in several guys named Joe, Dan Topping of the Yankees squawked to Commissioner Chandler. And when the Senators obligingly passed along Stan Spence, the Browns were loaded like Notre Dame in football. Joe McCarthy has always said: "Give me four to hit it, three to throw it, and two to make the double play, and I'll win in any league." Well, Marse Joe certainly should have four to hit it, and then some, from among Dom DiMaggio, Pesky, Mele, Williams, Spence or Jones, Stephens, Doerr and Tebbetts. Junior Stephens and Bobby Doerr will make the double play. That leaves pitching the only prescription to be filled. McCarthy has Dobson, Kramer, Kinder, Galehouse, Johnson, Dorish, Parnell and the recruits, Earl Toolson, Cot Deal and the left-handed Windy McCall and Maurice McDermott. These are exclusive of the Big Three of 1946 that flopped the Boston Americans from the top to third place last season. The 1948 Red Sox are a striking example of the fact that a club never has enough good pitching. STRAIGHTENING out the pitching is McCarthy's main job, and the assignment couldn't be in better hands. Marse Joe develops and supervises slingers like Ben Jones handles horses. The Buffalo Irishman still doesn't know, however, whether the Big Three of 1946 will be any more effective this trip than they were last.

Chatting with McCarthy, who will tell you the right time any time provided you see his watch, you gather that he hasn't much faith in Tex Hughson, who underwent two operations calculated to correct his ailing arm. Mickey Harris' arm appears sound again, and there have been encouraging signs. Doc Ferriss has been so wild that he has had to aim his pitches. Under McCarthy, the Sox will hustle and win, or else. He knows no other way. For those who might have had their own way under Joe Cronin and elsewhere, the picnic is over. Something generally overlooked in analyzing the 1948 Red Sox is the 61-year-old McCarthy's health. The winningest manager of them all really works at his trade, and the condition of his gall bladder is about as important to the Tom Yawkey fortunes as any other one thing. Meanwhile, interviewing the manager of the Red Sox will consist of nothing more than a lot of dumb answers to as many dumb questions. But, rest assured, the Sox will not play dumb baseball with Joe McCarthy running the works.

PHILADELPHIA READY FOR BIG U.S. POLITICAL SHOW

By Betty Heineman United Press Staff Correspondent PHILADELPHIA—(UP)—Convention Hall, where both the Republican and Democratic national conventions will be staged this summer, is getting a million-dollar overhauling for America's biggest political show. The big auditorium seats 15,000 comfortably. It will have a new amplification system to carry the tumult and the shouting; a new $150,000 roof and a new switchboard costing more than $100,000. The hall is being painted throughout the interior. With extensive carpentry and cement work, the city's expenditure on the project will be almost $1,000,000, according to the budget secretary, Frank W. Short.

Several hundred workers have been on the remodeling job for months to have the convention unit ready for the Republicans to move in the week of June 29 and the Democrats the week of July 11. The spacious commercial museum, adjoining the auditorium, will be turned into a theater of television studios where from 18,000 to 20,000 spectators unable to crowd into the balcony of the hall may watch the proceedings. The television set-up at the museum is estimated to cost more than $250,000. Large screens also are being set up in public places, such as hotel ballrooms and bars, to show a "blow by blow" television account of the conventions to spectators in many eastern cities. The remodeling job on the auditorium is the first since it was built in 1931. Since that time, two national political conventions have been held in the hall. The Democrats nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt there in 1936, and in 1940 Wendell L. Willkie was chosen as the Republican nominee. The five connecting units of the city's "convention center" includes in addition to the hall, 68 meeting rooms which will be available for caucuses and committee meetings, and a ballroom seating 1,400 persons. The hall is not air conditioned, but chilled air will be circulated continuously during the convention sessions. However, the television lights around the balcony railing undoubtedly will heat the room considerably. There are no posts to obstruct the view of the delegates seated on the floor of the hall. The main stage will be extended to form a "tongue" where the speaker's rostrum will be placed. The stage proper will have seats for committeemen, convention of

The Innocent Impostor By Renee Shann

THE STORY: Patience Mond goes to London three times a week to attend dressmaking school. It is the only freedom allowed her by the two old-fashioned aunts who have brought her up and with whom she lives in the country. On the commuting train she meets Paul Taylor, who lives in a neighboring village and who finds himself attracted to the young girl. They date secretly, fall in love. The aunts find out, force Patience to promise not to see Paul again. Paul, meeting Patience as usual on the train, can't understand why she doesn't stand up to them. "Tell your Aunt Helen you're breaking that promise," he admonishes her. "Tell her you're engaged to me and you want to marry me."

PATIENCE stared at Paul. Her breath caught in her throat. "But I'm not engaged to you—" "I want you to be." "I—I couldn't possibly do anything like that without first asking my aunts' permission." "Holy mackerel!" "And under the circumstances," she went on desperately, "what chance is there of them giving it?" "The trouble with you is you're conventional and a prig." Her eyes flashed. "I'm not. But marriage is a very serious matter. Don't worry. I'm already sorry I suggested it." "Well, I didn't accept you." "You've not got the guts. No," he shook his head. "It's all right. We'll call it a day. We wouldn't get on, I can see now. I like a girl with more spirit. Look, I think we've said all there is to say, don't you? If it's all the same to you, I'm going to return to the carriage and read my evening paper."

He went, leaving her standing there alone in the corridor. Tears blinded her eyes. She tried to fight against them but they poured down her cheeks. She didn't go back to the carriage. She stood there in the corridor through the entire journey. As the train drew nearer to Oakley she thought: "He won't let me go like this. He can't if he really loves me." But the station came and he made no move to speak any further to her. She got out and walked slowly down the platform. She took her bicycle from the shed and rode home knowing that now it was really over. She didn't know quite what it was she'd expected, what she'd hoped might possibly happen. But she'd not dreamed it would be quite like this. That they'd quarrel the way they had. She opened the front door and went into the sitting room. There sat her aunts, one either side of the fireplace. "I thought I'd just let you know I was back, Aunt Helen." Her aunt put down her mending for a moment. "Did you have an interesting day at the academy, dear?" "Yes, thank you, Aunt Helen." "How are you getting on with your work?" "Very well." That was all. No mention of Paul. The subject was now closed, never to be reopened. THE Easter holiday came and for a month Patience didn't go to London. She told herself she was thankful. She was spared the agony of that journey back in the evenings. Knowing Paul was on the train. Sometimes catching a glimpse of him. Having him walk past her with just a curt nod as if she were the veriest stranger. And then the term started once more. Once more there were the early morning breakfasts. Aunt Alice getting up to see her off. Waving to her from the gate as she bicycled down the lane. Once more there were those return journeys. The weather now was warmer. Spring was in full glory. The trees were in leaf, the birds sang, wild flowers peeped from the

U.S. Town Has Too Many Houses

PEQUAMING, Mich. (UP)—Pequaming is one town in the United States that has an over-supply of housing. Revising the sad story of "no vacancy" that the house-hunter usually hears, only 10 of Pequaming's 70 neat, frame houses are occupied. The others are begging for tenants. This attractive town in Michigan's upper peninsula once was a bustling lumber settlement, built by the Ford Motor Company for its automobile manufacturing needs. When the supply of timber was exhausted, the company moved out, leaving a skelton community of 40 people where there were formerly 400. The entire town, which includes an excellent schoolhouse and mill, still is owned by Ford, who, people say, will sell to anyone prepared to take over the entire settlement.

Future Champ Swimmer Shows Stuff At Three

CHICAGO (UP)—Wonder-babe, more formally known as Teddy Wilt, is a familiar sight around the Duncan YMCA here now. But a year ago when he toddled into the place expecting to go swimming, everyone was surprised that his mother would let the two-year-old child out of her sight. As for using the pool, they said at first it was out of the question. However, Teddy did go swimming that day, and later learned to dive. His YMCA instructor, John Harris, said he expected the child to develop into an outstanding all-around athlete. "Right now he has the physical development of a boy of ten," Harris declared. "And with his start, he'll probably be an All-American in 1964."

Eastland County Towns & Communities

CISCO CONTINUED
The late Joe Wilson is authority for the statement that there were thirteen saloons in Cisco in 1882.

Prior to 1918 Cisco had a larger population than any other town in the county. The two railroads and its progressive citizenship, giving it an advantage which was not to be overcome by its neighboring towns but when oil was found at Ranger, with its accompanying rush to that community, that town took a big lead which though it has lost thousands of its boom population it still maintains that leadership.

Feeling the need of local self government, the citizens of Cisco requested the County Commissioners' Court to call an election to determine whether or not the town should be incorporated for municipal purposes. An election was held February 11, 1884 and resulted in there being 81 votes cast for incorporation and 76 against such a procedure. After declaring the result of the election, the Court ordered another to be held at which G. W. Graves was elected Mayor; E. B. Campbell, Marshall; and T. M. Taylor, Hugh Corrigan, Perry Paschal, F. J. Rogney and B. L. Pate, Alderman.

An election was held December 12, 1884 to determine whether or not the incorporation should be dissolved and was retained by a vote of 78 to 76.

On the night of April 28, 1893, Cisco was visited by a very destructive cyclone which destroyed almost the entire business district many of its residences, and damaged most of the remaining houses in the town.

The late Joe Wilson in an article in the Cisco Daily News had this to say: "An old relief book, published at the time of the cyclone gives, among other things, that the estimated damage was $210,991.37. Twenty-three were killed outright and five others died of their injuries. It took years to build back the town as very few of the buildings survived it."

Some idea of the effect of the cyclone on the minds of the people in this section of the country may be gained from a perusal of the following excerpt from the diary of Captain Jenkins of date June 21, 1894: "Made three trips to the storm cellar to-day."

The first school reported as having been taught in the vicinity of Cisco was by Miss Calista N. Green in 1879-80 at Red Gap known on the County records as school No. 30, and is said to have been conducted in a small log house which was without floor or window.

Miss Green continued her work there the following year but in 1881-83 the notation on the register is "Red Gap-Cisco" and the teachers named were Frank Kynette and Miss Sallie Greer. In 1881-83, Red Gap was dropped from the title and it was just Cisco.

In 1881 B. F. James and sons and J. K. Miller are said to have erected a little 16 by 20 school house, free of charge, and Rev. J. C. Finelle taught a subscription school. It is probable that the term taught by Frank Kynette and Miss Greer was in this building. Miss Greer, now Mrs. James H. Reed, was at Cisco at a Family Reunion the summer of 1941 and is probably the only teacher that taught in the Cisco Schools at so early a date that is still living.

The district was incorporated for school purposes at an election held August 15, 1882 and was the first incorporated school in Eastland County. J. R. Fleming, C. A. Parks, E. T. Hilliard, and John T. Yeargin were elected trustees at an election held soon afterwards.

Dr. S. H. Stout was elected principal of the Cisco Schools in the early 80's and it is probable that his influence in the development of the Cisco Schools and of education in Eastland County has been greater than that of any other person.

A charter was granted Cisco Lodge No. 556, A. F. and A. M. December 16, 1862. It had twenty members and no funds and each charter member made a note for twenty five dollars with which a hall was purchased, the second story of a building which stood where what is known as the Winston rock structure now stands.

Texas General Fund At New All Time High

AUSTIN, Tex. Apr. 12.—$50,301,231, is now the amount of surplus cash in the General Fund. After the first of September the balance in the fund went down slightly each month until March. The last raise in the price of Crude Oil reached the fund in the form of taxes and reversed the downward trend. Geo. W. Sheppard, State Comptroller, predicts that the balance in General Revenue will continue to rise.

Spending from all funds for fiscal operations has now dropped seven million per month behind receipts.

Motor Fuel Tax fell behind the same month a year ago for the first time in over a year. Sheppard does not think this is an indication of a reversal in our prosperity but is explained by the bad weather during February.

The school funds of the state are being added to in increasing amounts from Oil Royalties, Leases and Bonuses. In fact the prosperous condition of Texas fiscal affairs and the optimistic outlook are primarily a result of the prosperity of the oil and allied business.

So he parked his car in front of his hotel for five days.

Police targeted it daily the first three days, once an hour the fourth day and towed it away the fifth day.

Former Ranger And Indian Fighter Loses Fight To Live To Be 100

Joe S. Schoolcraft, former Texas Ranger and who helped to drive the Indians out of this section, died recently at his home in Breckenridge.

Probably Stephens county's oldest living resident, Schoolcraft died short a little more of a year of the 100 years he had expressed the hope of reaching.

He fought this battle to the end, but the ravages of old age was too much for him and he passed away almost in sight of the coveted goal.

When interviewed last summer by a reporter Mr. Schoolcraft did not appear very eager to talk about his Indian fighting experiences, but he did tell of one instance in which he and a companion came upon two tepees. He said he told the companion to take one of them and he would take the other. Then he stopped. When asked, "What Else," the aged man replied, "None Got Away."

Schoolcraft came to Picketville in 1859. He was born in Mississippi, Oct. 15, 1850. He lived at Picketville, the original Breckenridge, until, as he said, the Indians were driven out or until 1898. He was a stone and brick mason by trade.

About 1898 he moved to Mountain View, Oklahoma, and returned to Breckenridge about a year prior to his death.

4-H Youths Learn How To Improve Dairy Herds

Asked what he planned to do with a dairy heifer he had just bought at a sale, a 14-year-old 4-H Club boy replied: "Add her to my foundation herd. Through my 4-H projects, I'm learning how to select and breed dairy animals to increase milk production per cow; also how to balance rations and keep records. He demonstrating to others what I learn not only gives me experience in public speaking but helps to improve the dairy industry in my community. This year I'm helping to save grain for foreign relief by feeding more good roughage and by preventing waste."

The statements are typical of those made by rural boys throughout the nation who are taking part in the 1948 National 4-H Dairy Production awards program. More than 1,600 of them will be awarded county medals of honor and 350 state winners will receive $25.00 U. S. Savings Bonds for outstanding records of achievement. Ten sectional winners will each get a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next Nov. provided by Kraft Foods Co. Six-national champions selected from the sectional winners will each be awarded a $200.00 college scholarship.

Last year's state winners in Texas were: C. W. Grissom, Farewell; Doyle Davis; Hart; Floyd R. Owens, Abilene; George Truitt, Odessa, and Franklin Wall, Moore.

The program is conducted under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service. County extension agents will furnish full information.

Underseas Marines Brave Artic Ice

SAN DIEGO, Cal. (UP)—Marine Corps underwater swimmers trained during the war penetrated Artic ice and slush for below-surface forays in recent Alaskan maneuvers, Vice Adm. George D. Murray, commander of the First Task Fleet, disclosed here.

Operating from submarines off Kodak Island, the rubber-suited swimmers knifed through slush six inches deep and brushed against four-inch ice to carry out assignments. They were able to remain in water estimated at four degrees below freezing for periods of more than an hour, re-surfacing after missions were completed.

The men wore long underwear under their rubber suits and smeared their faces with petroleum jelly.

The swimmers were from the First Marine Division reconnaissance company, led by Maj. Charles A. Rigaud, Swimmers. from the Navy underwater demolition team also took part.

Murray said that not even during the war did swimmers operate so far north. Underwater scouting teams were developed by the Marine Corps and the Navy during World War II to blast obstacles from enemy beaches in pre-invasion missions.
