Collings already has started a tour of the 23-county district, and said he plans to visit all points in behalf of his candidacy before the July Democratic primary.

The Big Spring judge is presenting a record of public service that dates back 20 years. He has been a resident of Big Spring since March, 1928. In 1934 he was elected district attorney of the 70th judicial district, and then was elevated to the district bench in 1938. He was reelected in 1942 and in 1946.

Born at Chalk Mountain, Erath county (he thus is a native of the appellate district,) September 28, 1899 Collings attended public school at Glen Rose and was graduated from high school there. He attended Meridian Junior College and then the University of Texas, interrupting his education at the latter school to serve a term as county judge of Somervell county. Contact Man For VA To Start New Schedule June 9

The Veterans Administration contact representative for Eastland will start a new schedule for Eastland beginning Wednesday, June 9. He will be at the Prairie Sinclair Building each Wednesday from 9:15 a. m. to 3:15 p. m.

This change was necessary in order that more veterans and their dependents may be served. The previous time of only being in Eastland one morning a week proved inadequate to take care of those who desired assistance.

Every effort will be made by the VA to help those who are entitled to benefits under the laws administered by the VA.

TEXAS GAS PRODUCTION IN BIG GAIN

Texas boosted its gas production 157 per cent between 1939 and 1947 and today the nations is beginning to reap the benefits.

A recent report of the Texas Railroad Commission lists at least 17 major pipe lines completed under construction or proposed for carrying gas from Texas to the East Coast, the Middle West, the Rocky Mountains and the West Coast.

A recent Federal Power Commission report listed 80 per cent of the nation's gas production currently goes to industries but not a trend toward gas fuel for homes.

Growth Watched

Petroleum industry officials are watching the rapid growth of gas transmission lines with interest, particularly in view of the continued close battle for balance of supply and demand for petroleum and petroleum products.

Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, places the state's gas well production last year at 2,241,697,304,000 cubic feet as compared with 872,268,000,000 for 1939.

He said authoritative sources predict Texas production will continue to increase and reach 4,750,000,000,000 cubic feet during 1950.

A Railroad Commission map shows pipe lines currently carrying Texas natural gas to West Virginia, Newark, N. J., Louisiana and Mississippi, Oklahoma, Kansas City, St. Paul, Chicago, Detroit, Denver, and Monterrey.

Most of these projects have lateral lines feeding other areas.

Proposed lines or lines under construction would serve such areas as New York, Pittsburgh, Ohio, Iowa, Michigan, and California.

Rapid-fire natural gas pipe line developments last week saw:

The Federal Power Commission approved construction of a $151,000,000 line by Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Company over a 1,840-mile route from South Texas to the New York-Philadelphia area.

FPC approval for Texas Eastern Transmission Co., owner of the government-built wartime Big and Little Inch pipe lines of three new gathering lines to Texas and Louisiana fields. The lines will boost the company's capacity to 508,000,000 cubic feet daily by the end of the year.

A federal court of appeals in Washington upheld a 1946 FPC ruling authorized the Michigan-Wisconsin Pipe Line Company to construct a line from a point in Illinois in Wisconsin. The order had been disputed by Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company which supplies some parts of Michigan as well as other Middle West states.

EXTENSION OF RECIPROCAL TRADE VOTED

WASHINGTON, June 8 (UP)—The Senate Finance Committee today voted 8 to 5 to extend the Reciprocal Trade Act for one year after knocking out of the House-approved bill a provision to give Congress a veto over any new tariff cuts.

Chairman Eugene D. Millikin, R., Colo., said he hopes to bring the bill up on the Senate floor tomorrow. He said he hopes Congress will complete action on the legislation before Saturday, when the present law expires.

The administration wanted a three-year extension of the law with no changes.

But the version okayed by the Senate committee is certain to be more welcome to administration leaders than the more restrictive House version. Secretary of State George C. Marshall said it would be better to let the law expire than extend it in the form passed by the House.

If the Senate approves the action of its committee, differences between the two versions still must be ironed out in conference.

Dozes Through Okla., Lands In Wrong State

WICHITA, Kan. (UP)—Austin Yarnell, Wichita oil man, slept through Oklahoma. That's the state not the musical.

Lulled into slumber by the muted roar of an airliner's engines, he slept through approach and landing at the Oklahoma City airport, then through the take-off and continued his long-distance snooze to Dallas, Texas.

Awakening in the wrong state, Yarnell realized he had missed what he termed "a very important conference" in the Oklahoma Capitol.

More than 4,000,000 persons visited Illinois' state parks during 1946.

Final Rites For Don Hill, Jr. Held Sunday Afternoon

A pretty service was that for Don Hill, Jr., held Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist Church. Don lost his life in a car-truck accident near Amarillo last Thursday morning while on a vacation and fishing trip.

Rev. E. R. Gordon, pastor of the Methodist Church of which Don was a faithful member, officiated at the church rites and paid tribute to the boy whom everyone that knew him loved.

Don's body lay in state at Hamner Home for several hours before being taken to the church. The audience, in which were a large number of Don's school mates and chums, filled the church auditorium to full capacity.

Senate Votes To Approve Alien Enlistment

WASHINGTON, June 8 (UP)—The Senate voted today to let the armed services enlist 25,000 aliens.

By a roll call vote of 43 to 33, the senators adopted an amendment by Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, R., Mass., to the pending 19-through-25 draft bill.

Chairman Chan Gurney, R., S. D., of the Senate armed services committee led the opposition to the amendment. Lodge argued that it would cut down by 25,000 the number of necessary draftees and give the U. S. Army many "wonderful citizens."

The aliens would become eligible for U. S. citizenship after five years in the armed forces.

Meanwhile, Senate Republican leaders pushed for a final vote on the draft bill after winning their fight to tack on an anti-poll tax amendment.

DELEGATES RUSH REPORTS TO THEIR GOVERNMENTS

CARIO, June 8, (UP)—Arab leaders discussed Count Folke Bernadotte's plan for a truce in Palestine for two hours today and prepared to draft their answer tonight.

After the meeting of the delegates of all seven Arab League states, they forwarded an up-to-the-minute report to their governments.

Abul Rahman Azzam Pasha, secretary general of the Arab League, said the League's political committee would meet tonight to draft the answer to Bernadotte, United Nations' mediator. He said the drafting might be completed at the single meeting.

A ranking member of Bernadotte's mediation party, commenting on Russia's desire to send military observers to Palestine, said the party was neutral, "steering clear of all United Nations cross currents."

Egyptians Bomb Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV, June 8 (UP)—Egyptian planes bombed Tel Aviv yesterday in several hit-run raids in which at least a score of persons were killed or wounded.

After a long respite since the early days of the full dress hostilities touched off by the British evacuation, the raiders darted in over the capital of Israel and caught the defenders by surprise.

Bombs were dropped in various parts of the city. The attack was known generally late yesterday, but dispatches mentioning it were delayed.

Kilgore's Team Defeated By King Motor In Softball

The King Motor team almost had to rob the cradle Monday night to find a pitcher, but found a suitable 12-year-old. The boy, whose name is Jack Petree, allowed eleven hits, walked two, and allowed but two earned runs. Jack, who is small for his age, completely handuffed some pitching skill as has not been seen around here for some time, particularly by a boy his size and age.

King Motor got a hit in every inning, and failed to score in only one, the eighth. Their speed on the basepaths and infield made a game into a rout in its early stages. In the first inning, however, they failed shoddily, making two errors and miffing another pop-up which was foul. In all two runs were let in, when heads-up fielding would have prevented any scoring. For the entire game, King Motor made three errors, while Kilgore made five.

Kilgore's batteries were charged about the middle of the game. B. Adams was replaced by T. Edwards. J. Adams caught the entire game. Batteries for King Motor were Petree and Franklin.

The Innocent Impostor

By Renee Shann

XXXIV

THEY walked along in silence. They saw a taxi coming towards them, and Miss Helen hailed it.

"Liverpool Street Station, please."

"Hop in, luv."

Miss Helen bristled.

"What a nice friendly driver," murmured Miss Alice.

Miss Helen ignored her. She stared out of the window. Not for worlds would she let her sister know that she was wondering if perhaps after all she agreed with her. Was she perhaps just a little too strict with Patience? Alice, of course, would be a perfect fool over her. She'd let her do every single thing she wanted. It was Charlotte's reference to her mother that was worrying her. Estelle had been kept under strict lock and key. And Patience was so terribly like her. Much more so indeed than Charlotte. Estelle had been quiet and docile. No one at home had ever dreamed in those far-off days that she was meeting that dreadful man night after night, crawling down the rain-water pipe to get to him after all the rest of the family had gone to bed.

Supposing she'd been given more freedom? Allowed to meet whom she pleased? Allowed to bring her young men to the house? Why, then, she might not have thought him half so wonderful!

They reached Liverpool Street and found that they'd have to hurry in order to catch their train. They'd been at Charlotte's far longer than they'd realized.

"Have you everything?" asked Miss Helen frostily.

Miss Alice looked around her. Her suitcase. Her umbrella. Her library book. The paper parcel of plants she was bringing for the garden. Yes, she had everything.

"I think so, Helen."

"Better be sure. You know how forgetful you are."

MISS ALICE gave one final look in the taxi. Miss Helen paid the man and bade him a curt good evening.

"Cheerio," he called after her. Miss Alice followed her sister through the press of people, thinking how good it would be to be home again. This, she supposed, was the rush hour. It was really a little frightening. Everyone pushing and bustling. She felt the string of her brown paper parcel loosening in her hand. She tried to retrieve it.

"I say, let me help!"

The plants were strewn all around her. But instantly a tall, pleasant-looking young man was coming to her rescue.

"Alice, we really can't wait."

"But, Helen, I went to such trouble to get them."

"I think that's the lot," said the young man. "Here, let me do them up for you."

"Oh, thank you. I'm in such a hurry."

"Alice!" called Miss Helen imperatively.

"I'm just coming. Oh, really you're most kind."

Miss Alice took the parcel, and went to pick up her suitcase again. But the young man was before her.

"Let me carry it for you. We'll get along more quickly. Which train are you catching?"

"The 6:30 to Oakley."

Swift interest sprang to his eyes, but Miss Alice was too flustered to notice it.

"So am I," he said. "At least I'm going farther on. We'll have to be shippy, you know."

Miss Helen, hurrying on ahead, paused a moment to shift her suitcase from one hand to another.

"I say, let me take that as well. I'll sort of balance things."

Miss Helen made a grab at it. "Oh, no, I couldn't let you." "Nonsense." He grinned at her impudently. "You'd better, you know, if you want to catch that train. Look, I'll have on and save you a couple of seats."

THEY hurried after him, puffing and blowing. The ticket collector shooed them through the barrier.

"Train's just going."

The young man was waving to them frantically. He had seats, it would seem, in the very last compartment. He came running towards them and grabbed Miss Alice by one arm, and Miss Helen by the other. And with one last effort they made it.

The guard slammed the door of their carriage. Paul glanced up at the two suitcases he'd flung onto the rack. He could read the labels on them even though they were upside down. Miss Helen Melville. Miss Alice Melville. Holy smoke! So these really were the two old dragons!

Miss Alice sat back in her corner and laid a hand over her heart.

"You all right?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh yes, thank you. It's just—I'm not very used to hurrying."

"Let me open the window a little more."

Miss Helen looked at the young man who'd been so helpful and decided he was really very pleasant. He was extremely nice-looking too. And he'd got such charming manners. He was clearly the sort of young man any young girl might fall in love with.

She wondered who he was and where he came from. She wondered if just possibly it might be a good idea to sound him. Of course she'd not been introduced to him. So far she really knew nothing about him. But maybe he knew someone she knew. Maybe it might be all right, if his answers to her questionings were satisfactory, to ask him over one afternoon just for fun.

At any rate it would be interesting to see how Patience liked him.

A yard light under the eaves of the house or fastened on the garage will give you plenty of light for games, evening meals outdoors and for reading and relaxation. You can also mow the lawn, trim the hedge or weed the flower beds in the cool of the evening, eliminating the need for working under a hot sun.

Now is the time to put in your floodlights to enjoy pleasant evenings outdoors. Yard lights are inexpensive and easy to install.

President's Life Not An Easy One, Writer Reveals

WASHINGTON (UP)—What does the President of the United States have to do? Everyone knows he has a hard job. Just how hard it is, few voters appreciate. His working hours generally are 7 a.m. to midnight—except on nights when he toils "late." He lives in a goldfish bowl as far as his private life is concerned. Secret service agents never let him out of sight and his personal physician gives him twice daily—or oftener—checkups. The pressure never ceases. Visitors, mail and problems pour in without respite.

Merriman Smith, United Press White House correspondent, has undertaken "to show in human factors and in words of as few syllables as possible how the intricate 20th century presidency operates" in his new book, "A President Is Many Men."

Avoiding the legalistic side of the story, Smith endeavors to highlight and describe the office now sought to eagerly by a host of candidates. "It is the story of the night President Jackson's guest ate nearly a ton of cheese at the White House; how some of the most distinguished world figures are not above stealing White House silver for souvenirs; the story of what Thomas Jefferson called life in "splendid misery," Smith said in a foreword to his book.

Back of the President moves an army of advisers, secretaries, experts, "idea men," "insiders" and workmen of all kinds.

Mainly by anecdote and allusion to the striking or bizarre historical facts, Smith gives a lively picture of this army in action. Dozens of anonymous but powerful figures are brought to the surface and the author gently exposes their methods.

It's extremely hard for the President to amuse himself. A dance or dinner party turns into a rigorously programmed affair at which he, his wife and family are apt to be prize exhibits, and in which they must follow strictly formalized procedure. A trip finds his every mile recorded in a special White House book, endless arrangements involved, and urgent communications dogging him at every step.

The President is bound by tradition and rule in many, many ways. He was not even allowed to help himself to a "snack" out of the White House ice-box under a rule that he must not touch anything but absolutely fresh food. Franklin D. Roosevelt finally shattered that obviously antiquated rule.

The President has many things no millionaire could buy, to be sure. His private plane and private railway car are far beyond any private individual's dreams. His prestige and power defy exact limitation. And his wife can indulge herself in various ways, if she wishes; Mrs. Coolidge drank two quarts of orange juice daily while she was in the White

In the round, however, the White House makes a poor sort of home. Smith recounts as indicative of life there the story of "Sistie" and "Buzzie," the Roosevelt grandchildren, who once took some aluminum serving trays to use as sleds because no

There's An Easy Test For Grade A Eggs

ST. PAUL (UP) — University of Minnesota farm school men say a housewife can tell whether high-priced eggs really are grade A.

If the egg has a round, high yolk and if the cover of the yolk is strong and has plainly-seen white knots on its sides, the egg is grade A.

If the egg flattens out and runs all over the dish, or has barely-visible white knots on the yolks, farm school experts suggest buying elsewhere.

The latter, they said may be perfectly all right but they're considerably less than grade A.

one had remembered to get them real ones.

Traveling On The Highways And Byways . . .
... one has a chance to observe what is going on. It may be just a roadside collision or a modern farm home with every convenience. If within the city it may be the sight of a huge explosion that has rocked great buildings or a park with children playing everywhere. If one travels he cannot help but observe—he observes things seen and unseen. And back of all these gigantic material accomplishments stands Insurance which, as strong as Gibraltar, protects, preserves and makes possible rehabilitation and replacement, for better living.

Merchant Marine Program Backed By House Group

WASHINGTON, June 8 (UP)—The House appropriations committee today authorized the maritime Commission to launch a $104,000,000 merchant shipbuilding program to back up an expanded Army and Navy.

The total was $4,000,000 more than President Truman had requested. But the committee earmarked only $29,000,000 to be spent in fiscal 1949. Mr. Truman requested $39,858,000 for the first year of the program.

The committee also extended the commission's authority to spend some $84,000,000 in ship construction money appropriated previously but not yet spent.

It provided, however, that the commission must consult with defense Secretary James V. Forrestal before going ahead with any new vessels "so that the maximum benefits to the national defense will be derived."

Christian Scientists Pick New Leader

BOSTON, June 7 — Harry C. Browne, former lecturer and radio figure, Monday was elected president of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, mother church of Christian Science, at its annual meeting here.

He succeeds Mrs. Helen Chaffee Elwell of East Hebron, N. H., and Boston.

In assuming his new position, Browne asserted that "the success of any organization, institution or government depends upon the spiritual efficacy of the governing or controlling instrument."

Outgoing Head Speaks
"With the problem of world peace confronting us," he said, "the same divine qualities applied an individual thought and action will be found as potent and as powerful as they were in Jesus time."

Mrs. Elwell, at conclusion of her report, reiterated the need for zealously guarding the democratic privileges of free assembly and freedom of worship.

"Individuals and nations no longer can remain isolationist in thought or action," she asserted. "Selfishness gives way to unselfishness, lethargy and inaction are superseded by the prompt response to a brother's need. Such action constitutes democracy in action."

Born in Massachusetts
Browne, a native of North Adams, Mass., saw active service in the Spanish-American War, after which he became a lecturer. In 1900, he became interested in the theater as an actor.

He became interested in Christian Science in 1910 and, six years later, united with the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Flushing, N. Y.

In 1926 he left the theater and entered radio, becoming production director and announcer for the Columbia Broadcasting System, a position he resigned in

State Is Solvent; Has $164,219,714 In Cash On Hand

The state of Texas is very much solvent these days with $164,219,714.48 cash on hand in its treasury kitty, the state Treasury Department reported Saturday.

That's the total cash in the 183 separate state funds as of May 31, an approximate $6,500,000 increase over the total on April 30, according to the department figures.

The department report shows this picture:

The general revenue fund, currently being eyed by proponents of better roads, more teacher pay, a state veterans bonus and other purposes, is far and away the largest single fund with $62,024,507.05 credited to it.

Other eight-figure funds include the unallocated clearance, $17,499,144.56; the state highway fund $18,965,249.97; the permanent school fund, $13,892,243.64; and county and road district highway fund, 10,829,750.10.

The total net of all funds was 156,693,907.92 by the end of May. That plus outstanding warrants amounting to $7,597,806.86 gave the overall cash figure.

Because of the development of a new research tool, rust may be discovered early in its damaging career.

REPUBLICANS PUSH DRAFT BILL VOTE

WASHINGTON, June 8 (UP)—Senate Republican leaders today pushed for a final vote on the 19-through-25 draft bill after winning their fight to tack on an anti-poll tax amendment.

Southern Democrats, joined by some northerners at a spirited session last night, accused Republicans of playing politics in pushing through the civil rights amendment. But a spokesman indicated the southerners would not try to block the draft because of it.

Senate Republican Whip Kenneth S. Wherry said another night session would be held in an effort to pass the draft bill tonight. Action on other amendments may follow the vote until tomorrow,
