"In The Agricultural Center Of Parmer County"

WHITTLIN

By DOLPH MOTEN

* One thing that'll make folks brag on the weather is two ing temperatures followed by a warming trend. And that warming trend doesn't have to be a heat wave to bring out the complimentary remarks about nice weather, we've noticed.

Several weeks ago, some comments appeared in this space about the forthcoming senatorial race in which Ralph Yarborough, the senior senator from Texas, will seek re-election. We warned that the opposition, whoever that is, would pull out all the stops to try and defeat Yarborough. That was before it happened, though, and while we expected it to be bad, we really didn't anticipate it would be as bad as it is.

In the Democratic primary, Yarborough will face, for one, Lloyd M. Bentsen, Jr. of Houston. He slipped in on us. We hadn't expected him. And certainly we hadn't expected such vicious remarks as he made in his opening announcement. He blamed Yarborough for keeping a "split" in the state's Democratic ranks, Of all the things he could have said to get attention, surely none would have been so ridiculous. His campaign, as we see it, canaccomplish nothing but a still greater "split" in the so-called party in Texas. The Republicans are going to shoot their best shot at Yarborough, anyway. That would be Congressman George Bush, who is also from Texas' largest city, Houston. Bentsen's campaign will, we'd guess, be of great benefit to that of Bush in that Bentsen will spend most of his time campaigning against Yarborough instead of for himself and that will be an aid to Bush when he takes on the Senator in the general election in No-

Since Yarborough was first For Cattle -elected to the Senate, politicians who were a heap better known than Bentsen have challenged him without success. What makes B. Jr. think he'll get along any better is beyond

However, his right to run and seek the party's nomination is part of the great American political system and we want him to have it and do it if that's what he thinks needs doing. But, we understand not why he wants to flounder around and muddy the Democratic water and then accuse Yarborough of being the one who has created a "split" in the state's Demo ranks.

Enough of that kind of nonsense and Texas will have not one, but two, Republicans sen-

Already, if you've noticed, the Republican administration is crowding the present farm program, for instance. Without the likes of Senator Yarborough to look out for our area's interest in Washington, the beneficial farm program might just be folded back into history and for-

Yarborough has proven his interest in looking out for the agricultural areas of the country and the state. When it comes to governmental matters which pertain to the Plains, we wouldn't trade Yarborough and his record . . . and seniority, remember for a Houstonian, be he Democrat (Bentsen) or Republican (Bush).

"Yarborough is the one we can expect to help us with our farm program and danged if they're not going to try to get him beat," an area farmer told us disgustedly last week.

We appreciate Mr. Bentsen, Jr.'s right to be in the race and we hope his campaign doesn't result in defeat for the Democratic party.

Application blanks are available at the Bovina Blade and city hall.

Regulations for registering to vote remain the same as last year. However, these are expected to undergo some changes before 1971.

Moseley pointed out there are four county and district elections this year, in addition to two commissioners, city officials and school trustees.

All one must do is fill out the application blank and mail to the tax assessor-collector's office in Farwell.

Holly sugarbeet station in beets is over," the field man said.

Whether or not the closing is temporary or permanent for the remainder of this season will not be known until Wednesday or Thursday, according to Richard C. Hunsaker, agriculturist and field man for Holly Sugar Corporation.

Weather is primarily the reason for the station closing. Beets already loaded in cars have frozen in the cars, making their removal impossible, Hunsaker says. In addition, beets coming in the past few days are losing their sugar con-remains closed, he'll let his cattle graze the beet tops, then plow them up and let the cattle have the beets.

School Board --

Appreciation to the people was voiced by the board who have and are reporting the number of cattle on their land.

Jacobs gave a report on the annual conference held in Austin last week. Changes and additions to the school program, as set up by the last session of the Legislature, was explained. The number of school days in the school year beginning in 1970-'71 had been increased to 180 days for students and 190 days for teachers.

Installation of kindergarten will begin next year for the edicationally deprived. Child will begin this program at the age of five years, five months, Jacobs said. In a few years, all five year olds will be in-

A state plan for sick leave for teachers will be effective next year.

Vocational and Technical schools and training was a major topic of discussion at the conference, Jacobs said. Board members heard a more thorough explanation of the new teacher salary schedule which went into effect this year. Jacobs said final instructions and interpretations will be forthcoming from officials in Austin and in future meetings on many of these programs.

The board asked the superintendent to make a study of area and Class A schools in determining the salary schedule for local teachers and administrators, in accordance with the state salary schedule.

The contract of the superintendent was extended through the school year of 1972-'73.

The resignation of Miss Joyce Adams was accepted. The board approved the employment of Mrs. Margaret Durben to teach English and speech in high

Mrs. Dickie Clayton and Mrs. Charles Corn presented a pro-gram on Germany at the Thursday afternoon meeting of Bo-vina Woman's Study Club, Topic for the day was "Learning of International Neighbors."

Mrs. Clayton, who lived in Germany 10 months while her husband was stationed there with the army, said they lived in the state of Bavaria, considered to be the best area.

It took them two months to find an apartment in the small, historic town of Oxsburg. Their apartment had three bathrooms, each with a different fixture installed.

Mrs. Clayton said both the scenery and the weather were beautiful in the area.

Mrs. Corn showed slides of her home area of Germany, the northern part near the Czechoslavakia border, as well as those of Mrs. Clayton's.
A native of Germany, Mrs.
Corn said the area from which she came was cold. Their house overlooked the Czech border, but they dared not cross it. Her slides were those of the countryside and depicted the way of life in the area. On display at the club meeting were articles from that Hostesses were Mrs. Ovid Lawlis and Mrs. O. H. Jones. Refreshments included triangle sandwiches, potato crips, apri-lusion was held by a satin bow. The bride carried a small white Bible which held white catallaya orchids and showers of white stephanotis blooms. Garlands of white stephanotis and strings of simulated pearls cascaded from the Bible.

For something old she wore a gold locket that her mother received as a child and wore at her wedding, Something new was her bridal veil and something borrowed were pearls and matching earrings belonging to her aunt, Mrs. Alton Griffin. Something blue was the traditional blue garter, a gift from her aunt, Mrs. Clarence Oster. The bride also wore a sixpence in her shoe brought from New Zealand by her uncle, Riley

Her attendants were Miss Sue Foster, maid of honor, and Mrs. Helen Masters, matron of honor. Both are sisters of the bride. They wore floor-length gowns with hot pink velveteen bodices and moss green crepe skirts. The dresses featured a raised waistline, tapered long sleeves and slashed necklines. They carried cascade bouquets of white pom-pom chrysanthemums trimmed in pale pink satin. Their headpieces were flat bows of hot pink velveteen with circular veils of tulle.

THE FAMILY ALTAR

How does a family grow in faith? Is there a well-charted road that parents can take and be assured that their children will grow in faith? Probably not, but there are some things a parent can do that may help.

The parent can do that may help.

The parent can provide an atmosphere of faith. A child early senses whether the people in his home are related to some higher authority or if they feel they are alone and on their own. A child can feel the presence of God if the members of his family have an attitude of gratitude for goodness and beauty, if they accept all men as God's children, and if they have a real joy in living.

Such an atmosphere produces a deeper kind of conver-

Such an atmosphere produces a deeper kind of conversation. People say, "Of course we talk to each other."
But what do they talk about? Is their conversation limited to reports of the day's activities, jokes, and chitchat about people. Or are they also concerned about each other -- how they feel about things, or why they choose to do what they do? Do they share their ideas, their feelings, their doubts, their fears, their hopes and dreams? Do they really listen to one another?

This kind of open communication between members of a family can encourage a child in prayer. Undergirded by faith that God cares about him just as his family cares, a child will carry on conversations with God much as he does with his family He will carry his innermost thoughts and feelings to God in prayer. Through family guidance faith will grow in every member and we shall all be equipped for life's challenges.
