Going Forward

With Eastland By Bob Moore

Eastland has a reputation of being a clean and attractive place in which to live. Surely, we want to keep it that way. We can by cooperating to the fullest extent in our annual clean-up drive sponsored by the Civic League and Garden Club, which begins Monday. Let's all roll up our sleeves and get busy.

Our old friend Boyce House, Texas author and humorist, visited with us Friday afternoon. Boyce was en route back to his Fort Worth home, after making an address Thursday night in Albany. He came to Eastland to eat and be sure he got beef and not horsemeat. Incidentally, Boyce has a new book out—poetry this time which includes several poems about Eastland County.

Would like to remind readers that your letters are welcomed. However, they must be signed before they can be published. Your name will be withheld, if desired.

Two brothers, one a famous baseball pitcher, the other a minister, met after a long separation. Some time was spent in exchange of reminiscences.

Finally the minister said, "How is it, Bill—I spent four years in college and three in seminary, and you've never done anything but play ball. Now you're getting a salary of 30 thousand, and I'm getting three. I can't understand." Bill thought a minute, then said, "I'll tell you how it is, Jim; it's all in the delivery."

Seems at least one of the weekly editors failed to appreciate our remarks Thursday about scarcely being able to recognize our news articles after the weekly papers got through re-writing them. Merritt Dunn, editor of the Carbon Messenger, advises he's not guilty of such a practice. In fact, he picks them up and uses them in the Messenger just as they are written.

John Dorsett has come to the rescue of our joke department with the following:

Little Jimmie and little Ikey had been having lots of fun playing together for several days. But one day when they started into Jimmie's yard, Jimmie waved him regretfully away. "My papa says I can't play with you anymore," said the little fellow. "Vy not?" asked Ikey. "Because you are a Jew", replied Jimmie.

"Oh, dots all tight", said Ikey smilingly, "tell your papa ve ain't playing for money."

DOCTOR POINTS OUT HOPE FOR DR. SANDER'S FUTURE

By Stan Calderwood
United Press Staff Correspondent
CANDIA, N. H. March 11—(UP)—If New Hampshire revokes the license of Dr. Hermann N. Sander, he still may be able to practice medicine in some other state, it was indicated today.

The hint came from Dr. John S. Wheeler, executive secretary of the state board of registration in medicine. His board will announce Monday when Dr. Sander will be called for a hearing to determine whether his license should be revoked.

Dr. Wheeler said that in cases where the physician whose license is revoked is considered "dangerous," notices of the action are sent to all other states in the nation. However, in the Sander case, he said, such information would not be "offered." This would enable Dr. Sander to apply for a license outside New Hampshire. "Our board will not be swayed by any group," said Dr. Wheeler. "We will sit down and make our own decision."

Wearied by the ordeal of the trial, Dr. and Mrs. Sander left their home during the night for a vacation at an undisclosed spot. Dr. Sander's sister, Mrs. Georgine Weinlick of Bethlehem, Pa., remained at the Sander home with the couple's three young daughters. Mrs. Weinlick described as "untrue" reports that Dr. and Mrs. Sander had gone south for their holiday.

Meanwhile, chairman George Woodbury of the "Hermann N. Sander Fund" reported that receipts had reached $13,000, representing more than 2,000 individual contributors. Woodbury disclosed that a prosecution witness at the trial turned over to the fund his $3,12 witness fee.

SNOW AND FREEZING RAIN DUE BY SUNDAY MORNING

By United Press
Winter was due back in Texas over the week end with snow and freezing rain expected to emphasize the fact that spring was not here to stay.

Light snow was predicted for the Panhandle this afternoon, tonight and tomorrow and freezing rain as far southeastward as the Dallas-Fort Worth area by early tomorrow morning. A cold front, which toppled the mercury to a low of 18 degrees at Dalhart this morning retained that section of the state in its grasp at mid-morning and was pushing steadily southward.

At 8:30 A. M., it had passed Lubbock and Wichita Falls and was due into the Dallas-Fort Worth sector around 3 P. M.

Miss Helen Maciolek Dr. Sander's medical secretary, said she was being deluged with calls from patients asking when the doctor would resume his practice.

"I can't give them any answer other than to call next week," she said. "I try to refer them to some one else (five physicians are sharing Dr. Sander's practice) but they say just forget till the doctor is back."

The house delegates of the New Hampshire Medical Society will meet tomorrow to decide whether Dr. Sander should be expelled, censured or approved.

Clean-Up Drive Starts Monday

Eastland's annual beautification program, the 1950 Clean-Up Fix-Up campaign under auspices of the Civic League and Garden Club, will get underway Monday.

From the time until April 9, local residents will undoubtedly spend a good deal of their "away from work" energies in cleaning up the yard or doing some other job that has needed attention for a considerable length of time. Mrs. T. E. Richardson, general chairman, said.

Purpose of the campaign is to give Eastland a better appearance to check into the fire hazard situation around property.

Householders are asked to gather up all trash, weeds, old limbs and other rubbish and pile near the street or adjacent to an alley for city pick up crews to haul away.

Owners of vacant lots are asked to have them cleared in order that the clean-up may be complete and uniform.

Taylor Pupils Give Program At High School

A Texas Day program was given at an assembly of Eastland High School students Friday morning at 11:30 o'clock by students of Mrs. A. F. Taylor.

Jana Weaver and Babeth Quinn lead the assembly in singing of "Eyes of Texas."

"Hungary" (Koelling) was played by a quartet introduced as Four Texas Belles. The quartet consisted of the following Junior High School students: Helen Taylor, Janette Chapman, Helen Ruth Flowers and Lou Ann Corbell. Alice Joyce Cushman sang "Bluebonnet, Flower of Texas" (Oscar J. Fox), with Mrs. Taylor at the piano.

Billie Hunt played "Poet and Peasant Overture" (Sutle). Sally Cooper sang "Bluebonnets" (W. J. Marsh), with Miss Weaver accompanying.

Closing number was a piano quartet playing "Hungarian Rhapsody" (Liszt). The quartet was composed of Miss Hunt, Margie June Poe, Miss Weaver, and Herb Weaver. Master of Ceremonies was Allan Vermillion.

2 Charged In Gasoline Theft

After being caught in an attempt to steal drip gasoline from the Lone Star plant near Eastland Thursday, two men faced charges in Eastland County Friday.

In the county jail was Tommy Craven of Eastland who was one of the men caught in the theft. The other man, A. C. Baker, was in Ranger hospital suffering from severe burns which resulted from a flash fire when he struck a match near the drip. The fire caused extensive damage to the Lone Star equipment and to the automobile.

Charges were filed in Justice of the Peace E. E. Wood's Court.

Farmers Urged To Make Use Of Free Parking Lot

Farmers, especially, are reminded by the city Commission that a free parking lot is maintained by Eastland one block east of the square on Highway 80.

The city endeavors to keep the lot in good condition for parking of cars and all are invited to make use of it, the commission stated.

Hurricane Like Winds Damage Tulsa Business

TULSA, Okla., March 11 (UP)—Winds of hurricane-strength caused an estimated $100,000 damage at the Spartan Trailer Factory here today.

The winds virtually splintered 35 expensive trailers which were ready for shipment, plant superintendent R. R. Morey said. Ten of the new homes on wheels, which sell from $3,000 to $6,000 each, were completely destroyed, he said.

The trailers were on a lot north of the factory, near Tulsa municipal airport. The factory itself was not damaged, and no injuries were reported.

Winds knocked out power for a time here, and also at Claremore, in adjoining Rogers County early today.

High winds were general over the state overnight. Rain accompanied the winds here and also at a number of other points. Hail was reported at Pawnee, in the northeast part of the state, and also here.

Men in the Civil Aeronautics control tower here left their posts for a time because of hail, which they feared would break windows. No hail damage was reported.

CAA employees reported winds of 75 to 80 mile an hour velocity. Weather bureau officials said winds of 75 miles per hour or more are considered hurricane strength.

Wreck Victim In Critical Condition

W. G. Breckenridge of Fort Worth remained in a critical condition Friday night in a Cisco hospital suffering from multiple injuries sustained in an automobile collision west of Eastland on U. S. Highway 80 Thursday.

Guy Brogdon of Cisco, also injured in the collision, received a broken leg and severe bruises but his condition was reported as satisfactory.

The accident occurred when Breckenridge lost control of his car after negotiating a curve, it was reported by Highway Patrolman T. S. Barrett, who investigated the crash. Breckenridge was driving a 1936 Ford. Both cars suffered extensive damage, Barrett said.

Both men were taken to Graham hospital for emergency treatment. Brogdon was removed to a Gorman hospital Friday. He was returning to Cisco from Gorman when the accident occurred.

Firm To Produce New ACTH Drug

CHICAGO, March 11 (UP)—Wilson and Co., meat packing firm, will begin production soon of acth, the rare drug which offers hope in the treatment of arthritis and other diseases. A Wilson spokesman said all of the drug produced by the firm will be used for experimental purposes and none will be available to the public.

Acth is obtained from the pituitary glands of hogs. So microscopic is the amount gained from each animal that only 60 pounds would be produced each year if every hog slaughtered in the United States for one year was processed for the drug.

Gorman Lodge To Confer 2 Master Degrees

V. E. Vessels, secretary of the Eastland Masonic Lodge, had been advised the Gorman Lodge will confer two Master degrees Saturday night, March 11, at 7 o'clock.

Dianna Johnson Arraigned On Murder Charges

AMARILLO, Tex., March 11 (UP)—Twenty-year-old Dianna Johnson, a baby-faced blonde, was ordered brought before Judge Henry S. Bishop today for arraignment on charges of murdering W. A. (Tex) Thornton, famed oil field explosives expert.

Mrs. Johnson and her 30-year-old husband, Evald, were accused of slaying Thornton last June 22 in an Amarillo tourist court.

Dianna surrendered to police at Washington, D. C. Feb. 8 and said her husband killed Thornton. He was arrested two days later at Munising, Mich., and admitted battering Thornton to death.

Dianna was not without friends today from her home town of Compton, Cal.

Her weary parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry, the pastor of their church and its congregation had rallied to her support.

Using funds donated by the congregation, the Henrys and the Rev. Morgan Gates last night engaged E. Bryon Singleton, prominent Amarillo attorney, to defend Dianna.

The Henrys said they had spent all their limited savings on Dianna when she was treated at a mental institution in California. They said Dianna was released from the hospital only two days before Thornton was slain.

When news of the Henrys' plight reached their fellow Baptist church members, the congregation rallied to their support and pledged sufficient funds to supply adequate legal counsel for Dianna.

Powell Charged In Burglary

F. W. Powell, about 40, was charged Friday with burglary of the A & P Store in Ranger. The burglary occurred on the night of January 14.

Powell was in the Callahan County jail where he has been charged with participation in the burglary of the W. T. Cox Grocery in Cross Plains. He was arrested on a bench warrant in Kaufman Tuesday and returned to Baird by the Callahan County sheriff.

Mail Goes Through LEWISTON, Ida. (UP)—A snow sled powered by an engine and propeller has been designed by mechanic Gannar Anderson to bring the mail into Dixie, tiny snow bound community 138 miles southeast of here. The sled will make the 59 mile run from Elk City to Dixie for some 60 residents.

More Flying Disc

Samuel Brateman and his 10-year-old daughter, Roselyn, told the Houston Press that they saw a flying disc over Houston last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Brateman, president of a Houston mattress manufacturing company, said he was driving slowly when his daughter pointed the disc out. (NEA Telephoto)

City Commission Takes Strides For New Improvement, Progress

8 Parking Meters Removal Authorized On S. Seaman

Great strides for the continued progress and improvement of Eastland were taken at a regular monthly meeting of the City Commission Friday night.

The Commission voted to purchase a weed cutter and Mayor W. W. Linkenhoger was instructed to go to Dallas to make arrangements. The weed cutter will be used to clear vacant lots and right-of-ways along city streets, eliminating much of the fly and mosquito menace.

It was decided to run a 1,000 foot, four-inch pipe line from the main water outlet to the Colored section of the city, providing that area with a fire hydrant. There has been no fire hydrant in the Colored area in the past. City Manager I. C. Heck said, and with the installation of one, the insurance rate for the city will be decreased.

The purchase of 250 feet of fire hose was authorized. A similar amount will be purchased every three months until 1,000 feet has been bought to bring the supply up to state standards. The fire trucks are also to be checked and brought up to proper shape.

V. A. Cross of Abilene, State Department of Public Health representative, met with the Commission regarding the proposed rat eradication program in the business area. Cross recently spoke to the Rotary, Lions and Civic League and Garden Club regarding the program. No dissenting vote was cast in a "straw vote" taken of each club for expression on the proposed program for Eastland. The Commission instructed Cross to contact each building owner, personally, to secure a direct expression of sentiment.

The Commission decided to take up eight parking meters on South Seaman Street, four along the side of the Sinclair-Prairie Building and four across the street. This was authorized since the Sinclair-Prairie Building is no longer used as an office building and now operated as a facility of the First Baptist Church. These meters, along with some others the city has on hand, will be returned to the Magee Hale Park-O-Meter Company. This will amount to $1,000 credit on the meters, leaving an unpaid balance of $16,500. Meter collections at present are averaging $1,000 a month.

A letter to the United States government, authorizing the U. S. Air Force to fly planes lower than the regulation limit for the Fourth of July Celebration air show, was instructed. Lowest altitude the planes will fly will be 400 feet.

Dr. T. E. Payne, city health officer, was re-hired for another year. His term expired February 22.

The Commission went on record endorsing the Civic League and Garden Club's annual clean-up drive, which begins Monday, one hundred percent. An extra truck to pick up garbage and rubbish will be added by the city for ten days during the drive.

FINGERPRINTS Don't Lie

By Rupert Hughes

Dist. by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Refusing to believe that fingerprint evidence proves that her father, Asalea Palmer, was the murderer of her mother, Queri- pel to investigate the case. As Queri- pel and Harley Kenyon, the lawyer who is to defend Paul, question the girl she reveals that during the murder investigation police detective James Stivers warned another detective, Pete Kelso, to stay away from the telephone which had been used to bludgeon Wendell Palmer, Asalea's father, to death. Timothy O'Han, Queri- pel's assistant, reveals that Kelso is "was had as they make 'em." Asalea has just left Queri- pel's office.

MARTIN QUERIPEL and Harley Kenyon stood for a long moment lost in the gloom left when Asalea Palmer's bright presence was absent. Queri- pel broke it with a confession:

"I'm curious to see what kind of a man could inspire such a girl to such devotion."

"So am I," said Kenyon with such ardor that Queri- pel laughed. "Jealous?"

"Maybe I am at that," said Kenyon. "You'd better come along with me to the jail."

There was no difficulty about securing the interview. An officer brought Paul Moody into the conference room and the young sculptor came in almost as heavily and coldly as if he were one of his own statues moving. He was grim and bitter and almost petrified with rage and wonder at his own helplessness and humiliation.

Queri- pel introduced himself and Kenyon and said:

"We came at the request of Miss Asalea Palmer—or rather at her command."

The mere sound of her name brought Moody's whole frame alive as by a miracle. The words "at her command" mobilized his carved features into a smile so is full of stark, naked women, he roared.

"I tried to explain that they are emblematic figures. He wouldn't hear me out. He shouted: 'What difference does it make whether you call a naked hussy Light or Hope or Virtue or Science or what-not?—She's still a naked hussy.'"

"He made me laugh with his old-fashioned Philistinism, but I couldn't judge him. At last I told him that he was simply impoverishing Asalea in his spite at me, because she was going to marry me anyway. At that he simply exploded with rage. He ordered me out of the house. He grew so belligerent that I had to retreat because I couldn't resist him. The only thing I could do was to run away from him."

said Queri- pel. "And remember one thing. As I told your Asalea: 'Never lie to your doctor or your lawyer' needs one amendment: 'Never try to deceive your detective.' Tell us just what occurred as you saw it."

PAUL hesitated a moment to collect and arrange his thoughts. Then he said:

"I got the bad news that I had lost my big commission just as I was going into a tennis tournament. Well, I was pretty hot under the collar. I couldn't even finish the set. I had to be a bad sport and default."

"As a last resort I went to see Asalea's father. I was angry as hell, but couldn't have killed him, no matter what he said or did. What good would it have done me? It wouldn't have won the commission back. It would have robbed me of my—of Asalea—as it has already done."

"I took a bus to the nearest corner and walked to the house. The old man was alone. He answered the door himself."

"Did anyone see you go in?" said Queri- pel.

"Yes, I saw a woman looking out of a window. And a boy and a girl roller skating ran slambang into me. I laughed and they watched me go up the steps, then they rolled away."

"The old man answered the bell and didn't want to let me in; but I pushed him back and insisted on being heard."

"He was in an unusually ugly mood and seemed to have something else on his mind. What it was I don't know except I remember his saying, 'Everybody is after my money. You and—and—well, that's none of your business. Why don't you go and earn some honest money instead of trying to be a parasite on other people?'"

"He was old, and Asalea's father, and I answered gently: 'That's just what I'm trying to do, Mr. Palmer. How would you have felt when you earned your first hundred thousand if somebody had snatched it away out of spite?' He merely sniffed and snorted at that."

"Tell us just what happened," ing for a taxicab. Then I heard the door open, and Mr. Palmer stepped out and shouted: 'Here's your hat, damn you!' And he hurled it at me."

"It was a flat-brimmed felt hat. I don't usually wear one; but I had been in the sun so much on account of the tennis games that I kept one with me."

"The proof of what I'm telling you is that the old man gave me my hat and a kind of skirling throw, and it went wavy over my head."

"I laughed and called back 'Thanks!' Then I went after my hat. It had lighted on the street and it went rolling so far that a passing limousine almost ran over it. The car stopped just in time to keep from crushing it. The chauffeur set the brakes so hard that the woman on the back seat was thrown forward with a slam. But she looked out of the window and I heard her say to the chauffeur, 'There's Mr. Palmer!' And she waved to him as she stood on the steps and called, 'Hello, Wendell dear! How are you?'"

"He waved to her angrily and went back into the house. The car drove on and I went my way still laughing."

THERE was something so convincing in Paul Moody's version that Kenyon broke in:

"Did you recognize the woman?"

His hope died when Paul shook his head. Kenyon tried again:

"Did you notice the number of the car?"

"Paul shook his head. 'Would you remember the chauffeur or the woman if you saw them again?'"

Paul nodded. "I think so. I didn't see her clearly. But I saw her hand waving, and heard her voice."

Queri- pel sighed sepulchrally and asked:

"If we could find that woman and she would remember you, it would prove that you left Wendell Palmer alive. If only she can be found! Yes, and if only those fingerprints of yours had not been found!"

Kenyon had an idea: "Let's put an advertisement in the papers asking that woman to come forward and testify."

Timothy O'Han, Queri- pel's assistant, reveals that Kelso is "was had as they make 'em." Asalea has just left Queri- pel's office.

MARTIN QUERIPEL and Harley Kenyon stood for a long moment lost in the gloom left when Asalea Palmer's bright presence was absent. Queri- pel broke it with a confession:

"I'm curious to see what kind of a man could inspire such a girl to such devotion."

"So am I," said Kenyon with such ardor that Queri- pel laughed. "Jealous?"

"Maybe I am at that," said Kenyon. "You'd better come along with me to the jail."

There was no difficulty about securing the interview. An officer brought Paul Moody into the conference room and the young sculptor came in almost as heavily and coldly as if he were one of his own statues moving. He was grim and bitter and almost petrified with rage and wonder at his own helplessness and humiliation.

Queri- pel introduced himself and Kenyon and said:

is full of stark, naked women, he roared.

"I tried to explain that they are emblematic figures. He wouldn't hear me out. He shouted: 'What difference does it make whether you call a naked hussy Light or Hope or Virtue or Science or what-not?—She's still a naked hussy.'"

"He made me laugh with his old-fashioned Philistinism, but I couldn't judge him. At last I told him that he was simply impoverishing Asalea in his spite at me, because she was going to marry me anyway. At that he simply exploded with rage. He ordered me out of the house. He grew so belligerent that I had to retreat because I couldn't resist him. The only thing I could do was to run away from him."

ing for a taxicab. Then I heard the door open, and Mr. Palmer stepped out and shouted: 'Here's your hat, damn you!' And he hurled it at me."

"It was a flat-brimmed felt hat. I don't usually wear one; but I had been in the sun so much on account of the tennis games that I kept one with me."

"The proof of what I'm telling you is that the old man gave me my hat and a kind of skirling throw, and it went wavy over my head."

"I laughed and called back 'Thanks!' Then I went after my hat. It had lighted on the street and it went rolling so far that a passing limousine almost ran over it. The car stopped just in time to keep from crushing it. The chauffeur set the brakes so hard that the woman on the back seat was thrown forward with a slam. But she looked out of the window and I heard her say to the chauffeur, 'There's Mr. Palmer!' And she waved to him as she stood on the steps and called, 'Hello, Wendell dear! How are you?'"

"He waved to her angrily and went back into the house. The car drove on and I went my way still laughing."

THERE was something so convincing in Paul Moody's version that Kenyon broke in:

"Did you recognize the woman?"

His hope died when Paul shook his head. Kenyon tried again:

"Did you notice the number of the car?"

"Paul shook his head. 'Would you remember the chauffeur or the woman if you saw them again?'"

Paul nodded. "I think so. I didn't see her clearly. But I saw her hand waving, and heard her voice."

Queri- pel sighed sepulchrally and asked:

"If we could find that woman and she would remember you, it would prove that you left Wendell Palmer alive. If only she can be found! Yes, and if only those fingerprints of yours had not been found!"

Kenyon had an idea: "Let's put an advertisement in the papers asking that woman to come forward and testify."

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

MOST FAMOUS FIVE children in the world were the Dionne quintuplets—Cecile, Marie, Annette, Yvonne and Emilio—born May 28, 1934, in the little French-Canadian town of Callander, Ont. Here they cluster around Dr. Allan R. Dafee, the country doctor who brought them into the world and who gave eight years of his life to keeping them alive and healthy. For years the quintuplets lived in their own unique nursery and enclosed recreation grounds. A special one-way-vision glass separated them from the public, enabling them to be seen without seeing the curious throngs that came from all over the world. Since their births hit front pages almost 16 years ago, an adoring public has followed their growth, largely through newspaper and magazine pictures and stories.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible. "But it is written, Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him" (1 Corinthians 2:9).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Matter, with its mortality, cannot be substantial if Spirit if Spirit is substantial and eternal" (page 278.)

HOW THE NAVY'S "BREAKAWAY" COCKPIT WORKS—These sketches show the working of a new "breakaway" cockpit unit, designed by the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics to allow pilots of high-altitude super-sonic planes to escape in emergencies by means of a parachute-borne "pod." The pressurized pod (1) is ejected from the plane's main body; a small, "drogue" parachute is released (2), the drogue chute operates mechanism which releases the main chute (3), which then billows out (4) to drop the pod gently to earth or water (5). In water landing, the pilot releases his chute and drops a battery into water for stabilization.
