An open letter to Eastland:
I had rather do most anything than to write this particular column. It's my last one. Yep, I'm leaving Saturday. Going back to school and try to learn more about the newspaper set up. Will register at Hardin-Simmons about the 1st and begin work on my master's degree.

Just want to take time out to tell you Eastlanders that I think you're one heck of a swell bunch of people, some of the best I've ever met. I've had a lot of fun at the Lions and Rotary meetings, and other affairs and thanks for taking an outsider in like you did me.

The new editor is Everett Taylor, Jr. He's a graduate of Baylor with a B. A. Degree and I know he will do a bang-up job. I urge you to take him in as did you and help him in any way that you can. And remember, if he too makes an occasional mistake, you and everyone else makes them also.

Thanks to Mr. Dick and Mr. Dennis for giving me this chance in the newspaper world. I have missed it but I love it. I just kinda imagine that you will see my by-line again, some day.

Thanks to Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Dick whom I worked with and who listened to my gripes and complaints without blowing their tops. Both have been much help to me.

Thanks to Sheriff Williams, Cotton Graham, the school officials, and all the rest of you who have been so much help to me. I'll be coming over regularly to visit my "adopted" home and please remember to call on me you are around H-SU.

The Gorman High School seniors who left from the depot here last Sunday were slightly excited. And they had the right to be. They were going to romantic old New Orleans. And the kids deserved the trip if anyone deserved anything. They had been saving their money for two years to make this trip. Very prominent among the level-clad class of 30 was new luggage, presumably graduation gifts. Here's to you kids—lots of luck in time to come and I hope you had the time of your lives.

Anyone need golf clubs—mine are for sale. No time for golf at school and I have a new set to sell for about $40, bag and all—plus three tees.

The night was late and dark and all around the Marvin Hutto residence, quietness prevailed—that is 'till a stealthy scratching on the front porch awakened Marvin. He arose and slipped his trousers on and grabbed the flashlight. Walking across the floor in slipped feet, he crept out on the porch, turned the flashlight on the flower bed—and lo and behold, a monster stared him in the eye.

Quickly summoning the aid of Dad Crowley and son Charles, Marvin leaped into the flower bed to do away with the unwelcome visitor.

Dad Crowley armed with a grubbing hoe rushed into the battle. Lifting high the weapon, Dad (Continued on Page 8)

Truman Hails Move As Step That Should Promote Peace, Security

WASHINGTON, May 25 (UP)—The United States, Britain and France announced today agreement on arming the Arab nations and Israel. President Truman hailed it as a step that should promote peace and security.

The agreement on a unified policy is designed to ease Arab-Jewish tension, prevent a new outbreak of war and bolster the area against Communist aggression.

The Arab nations and the new Jewish state are pledged to use the arms only for their own internal security, and not for aggression against any other state.

The Big Three agreement was announced simultaneously here, in London and in Paris. President Truman made the American announcement and said our participation in the plan "emphasizes this country's desire to promote the maintenance of peace in the near east."

"It is the belief of the United States government," Truman said, "that the declaration will stimulate in the Arab states and Israel increased confidence in future security, thus accelerating the progress now being made in the Near East and contributing toward the well-being of the peoples there."

Shortly before the agreement was announced, the state department called in the chief diplomats of the six Arab states and Israel to inform them of the pact.

The agreement was made at the recent London conference of the Big Three foreign ministers. At this time, the President said, the foreign ministers reviewed the security and armament situation in the Near East and considered what action to take to provide greater stability in the Area. The arms-shipping agreement was the result.

part of the herd? The soil conservation people said they could. They proposed a plan of pushing down part of the brush and seeding it for pasture. This plan has been put into operation and already twelve acres have been cleared.

The open pasture on the Higginbottom farm was fairly well sodded with bermuda and native grasses, but soil samples showed the pasture soil to be lacking in fertility. To remedy this fault, 300 pounds per acre of 4-12-4 fertilizer were applied to part of the pasture land and 300 pounds per acre of 0-20-0 fertilizer to the rest. The land was then sowed in hairy vetch to supplant the grass growth.

Amount ten acres of the open pasture are sub-irrigated, making fertilizer application nearly impossible. This portion of the pasture had a luscious growth of grass, but was infested with cockleburrs. Sheep have been allowed to graze the cockleburrs to aid in their control and remarkable results have been obtained.

Practical application of conservation methods and demonstration of educational abilities have brought recognition to Mr. Higginbottom. He was elected last year as secretary of the Eastland County Dairy Association, and as district supervisor of the Upper Leon Soil Conservation District. Dr. Smoker of the North Texas Breeders' Association this year as one of the most upcoming organizations in this territory.

Mr. Higginbottom has now constructed a grade A dairy barn and is selling Grade-A milk to Kilgore's dairy plant in Eastland. He breeds his cows through the artificial insemination program, of the dairy association. Last year he showed the grand champion dairy cow at the Eastland County Dairy Show.

In his district supervisory capacity, Higginbottom has worked with school superintendents, the county agents, Vocational agriculture teachers, the county judge, the commissioners court, bankers, the G. I. Schools, and the FHA.

Farm Roundup News

Converting a sandy land farm into a $10,000 a year income is a pretty big task for any man, but that is what L. R. Higginbottom of the Kokomo Community has done.

When asked how he did it, Higginbottom related a story that showed how coordination on the farm can be made to pay off. One of the chief contributing factors in his plan of profitable farming was the idea of soil conservation.

By coordinating soil conservation with dairying and vocational agriculture work, the 166 acre farm located in the Windhorst sandy loam section of Texas has been converted into the present productive and paying unit.

When he began his present dairy program in 1948, Higginbottom saw a dramatic need and urgency to apply soil conservation practices to his farm if he was to keep increasing farm profits. Work was begun immediately.

One of the first measures taken was to get in contact with the officials of the Upper Leon Soil Conservation District. Under their influence he put his plan into operation.

A grade B dairy barn was constructed that year from an old laying house on the farm. Money to purchase a herd of registered Jersey cows was obtained through loans. A cheese plant at Comanche agreed to buy all the milk output for cheese processing.

The next step was to make every acre of the 166 acre farm produce good grazing land, because feed costs were high. Part of the farm was covered in woods, part in open pasture and the rest in cultivation.

Eighteen acres of the best cultivated land is now rented to a neighbor to farm in peanuts. The remaining land in cultivation is sowed in hairy vetch and rye for the dairy herd.

The wooded areas presented a problem. Could they be made to produce enough grass to carry

Primary In California May Play Crucial Part In National Politics

By Bruce Blossat
NEA Staff Correspondent
California, warming up for a bigger role in national politics is staging a lively, tangled primary campaign with a U. S. Senate seat and the governorship the main prizes. Voting day is June 6.

The state's entry into the 10,000,000 population class means that, starting in 1952 it will pack much more weight than heretofore at national party conventions. Winners in California will have to be reckoned with in presidential slate-picking.

The toughest scrap this year involves a former actress and a publisher.

The lady is Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, wife of Actor Melvyn Douglas and now an experienced congresswoman. She's running for the Senate on the Democratic slate against Manchester Boddy, middle-of-the-roader and publisher of the Los Angeles Daily News. He's new to politics.

In the governorship race the leading figures are newly Gov. Earl Warren, 1948 GOP vice-presdential nominee now seeking a third term at Sacramento, and James Roosevelt, ex-Marine, Democratic state chairman, eldest son of a famous father.

Neither has primary opposition within his own party. But California's odd cross-filing system, which allows a candidate to seek both party nominations, has Warren and Roosevelt battling each other as if the fall election were coming up.

Mrs. Douglas, an ardent Fair Dealer, has been canvassing California like a veteran trouper used to one-night stands. She began her drive last October and except for short interludes in Washington, has been at it ever since. Labor has lined up almost solidly for her, and she claims the backing of eight Democratic county organizations. Some key Democrats, however, are cool to her.

Lately she has charged that the Los Angeles Press, including her opponent's paper, is imposing a "news blackout" of her campaign. She has been buying advertising space in the Daily News to "bring light to the blackout."

Boddy's paper announced that "in the interests of accuracy" it would measure the space devoted to the Douglas campaign and publish the findings.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE
PRECINCT NO. 1:
E. E. WOOD
(Re-election)

TRUMAN'S CHOICE—Stanley Woodward, above, chief of protocol in the State Department, is reported to be President Truman's personal choice as U. S. ambassador to Canada. Wood would succeed the late Laurence Steinhardt, killed in a recent plane crash near Ottawa.

Boddy's keynote has been: produce more wealth in the U. S. to meet the mounting cost of foreign and domestic programs. Without more wealth, he sees federal subsidies, farm price supports, pensions and other benefits as like "feeding a cow her own milk."

Boddy and Mrs. Douglas have more than each other to worry about. Another Democrat, State Senator Earl Desmond of Sacramento, may chip away some of their vote. And he main GOP candidate, Rep. Richard N. Nixon, has cross-filed in the Democratic column.

Nixon, a Navy veteran who gained notice for helping to dig out facts in the Alger Hiss case as a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, is slugging hard against the Democrats. He's given a mathematical chance to win both nominations since Boddy, Mrs. Douglas and Desmond could divide the orthodox Democrats badly.

Roosevelt in his first try for office, can't ignore the same threat. Warren turned the trick in 1946, asking the Democratic nomination by some 60,000 votes. Roosevelt is admittedly a far stronger opponent than Warren's previous adversary, but the governor has a powerful hold on California voters.

A progressive Republican, Warren has fought successfully for some welfare measures and vainly for others. Having won both nominations last time, he gave his second term a strong "non-partisan" flavor. This may have helped him in a state with a majority of voters registered as Democrats.

It did not endear him to old-line Republicans. Some wrote him off after his defeat on the Dewey ticket, but he snapped back strongly. Today the GOP leaders are with him again. They know he's a vote getter—and they have no where else to turn.

To Warren this is a "vote of confidence" campaign. He's making his hardest push since 1942, continuing his "non-partisan" approach and assailing Roosevelt (though not by name) for promising too much.

The lanky Roosevelt, flashing the family grin, goes on plugging in his factory gate, street-corner campaign to break into state—and national—politics. Some observers suggest he may have burned himself out too early and is possibly losing ground.

But Jimmy, remembering his background, is confident he's on his way.
"Thanks to my father and mother, I feel I've had the soundest possible political training."

Memorial Day May Kill 290

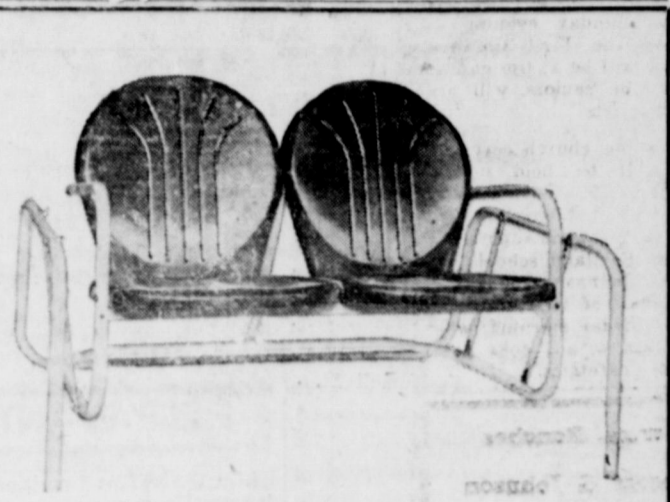

CHICAGO, May 25 (UP) —A total of 290 persons may be killed in traffic during the four-day Memorial day week-end, the National Safety council estimated today.

Ned H. Dearbor, council president, said good weather would bring 30,000,000 vehicles onto highways. The death toll will be especially heavy, he said, if many persons are released from work on Monday.

The council's estimate of casualties applies only to injuries suffered during the holiday.

The toll could be cut in half if motorists met the holiday hazards with extra caution and courtesy, Dearborn said. "This year, motorists ought to honor the dead on Memorial day by protecting the living."

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before

Following the graduation exercises Friday evening a group of mothers of senior students will be hostesses at a party in the gymnasium for the student personal of Eastland High School. The Gym will be decorated for the occasion.

A special program honoring the senior class of 1950 has been arranged for Sunday evening by members of the First Christian Church, and will be at the church. Parents of the seniors will also be honored guests.

Following the church service a reception will be held in the church annex.

Mr. W. G. Womack, superintendent of the Eastland schools and Miss Verna Johnson, sponsor of the senior class of 1950, will honor the class Friday morning, when they entertain with a coke party in the school cafeteria.

Refreshments will be served from a table laid with a red cloth and centered with a large black basket containing red flowers, carrying out the school colors.

A general assembly, which will be held in the school auditorium Friday afternoon, members of the Senior Class of 1950 will present a gift to their Alma mater and give up their places to the junior class.

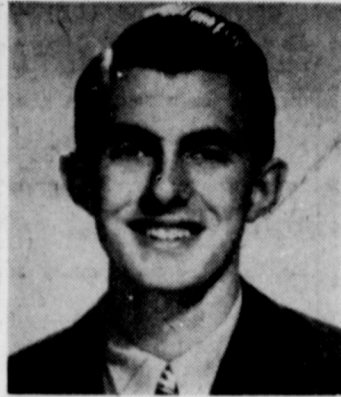

On hand to wish them Au Revoir will be Miss Verna Johnson, class sponsor, W. G. Womack, superintendent, the faculty of Eastland High School and the ever faithful senior mothers, and perhaps a few fathers of the group.

The Senior Trip, planned for Saturday, has been postponed until one day next week, when several of the senior mothers, Miss Johnson and the senior class of 1950 will fill the school bus and go to Glen Rose for the annual senior outing. Too many things like a few exams, and exciting social events coming thick and fast have left little time and strength for outing, this week Miss Johnson class sponsor, said.

Members of the Co-Ed Club are honoring the senior class, May 31st, when they will entertain with a formal dance. They have secured the services of a band, Edith Cox, president said, and with their sponsors, Mrs. Marene Johnson and Mrs. David McKee are planning for fun and frolic on the City Hill at the American Legion Hall.

Queen Mary Plans To Celebrate Her Birthday, Friday

By Geraldine Hill
LONDON, May 25 (UP) — Queen Mary celebrates her 83rd birthday tomorrow in pretty good health for a great-grandmother and according to those who know her she's as excited as a school-girl.

She always is; they said; when a birthday comes around. "The Queen Mother may be ageing" but woe betide anyone who forgets to wish her many happy returns" a member of the Royal household said.

It isn't likely anyone will forget. There will be presents from her son King George VI and Queen Elizabeth and other Royal relatives' and thousands of people of all walks of life throughout the world will send flowers or greetings.

The Royal post office at Buckingham Palace will stay open all night sorting mail addressed to "Her Majesty Queen Mary" Marlborough House.

Sent on to her will be a list of all cables' whether they are from Prime Ministers or from American ex-GI's who were stationed in Britain during the war and joined Britons in their affection for the dowager Queen.

U. S. Warships in British waters will fire a 21-gun salute in her honor at noon tomorrow.

Queen Mary's health is not bad for a person her age; palace reports said; and her energy makes her "younger" friends—those in their 60's and 70's—feel old beside her.

Although she had an attack of Sciatica recently, which curtailed her activities and made her use a wheel chair for the last half hour of a British Industries fair tour, she has suffered no serious illness.

At a Chelsea flower show earlier this week two septuagenarians had a hard time keeping up with her as she walked from stall to stall.

"Next year I shall order a wheel chair," one of them puffed, "and she can push me around."

The presents she'll get tomorrow have been discussed by the Royal family and among her intimate friends for months. Queen Mary has one of the largest private antique collections in the world, and it's quite a problem to find something suitable for her that she doesn't have already.

The gifts will be piled high under a cloth-covered table in her private drawing room, ready for her tomorrow morning after her breakfast of tea and rolls.

Then the members of the Royal family will start arriving at Marlborough house to congratulate her. There will be no official celebration. Lunch will be a family affair at Buckingham palace. About 25 persons, including the Earl of Harewood and his Vienesse-borne bride Marion Stein—who is expecting a baby in the fall—will attend.

After lunch Queen Mary will appear on the palace balcony to wave and bow to the crowd below. And, as on her past birthdays, there'll be quite a crowd.

Promising Lead Found In Fight Against Polio

NEW YORK—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis reported today that its extensive research program has yielded "promising leads which indicate that drugs, serums and vaccines against polio are all within the realm of possibility."

The information is contained in the organization's 12th annual report, published today, which declares: "The problem now is to determine which of these will serve as a practical means of control." In an introduction entitled "The Nation's Worst Polio Epidemic" Basil O'Connor, National Foundation president, listed 1949 as the likely turning point in the history of the disease, and said, "We may be able to halt the rising tide of polio in the not-to-distant future."

Other portions of the report gave the following statistics for the all-time record polio epidemic of 1949 which drained the National Foundation funds to their lowest point:

1. Of the 42,375 new patients last year, the organization directly assisted 80 per cent of them.

2. Funds of 1,089 of the 2,822 local chapters were wiped out.

3. Were it not for an emergency drive last fall, the National Foundation $2,500,000 in the red. "Despite the overwhelming cost of aid no single request for support... was refused for financial reasons," it was reported.

4. More respirators (a total of 803) were rushed to all parts of the country in 1949 than the total of all previous years combined.

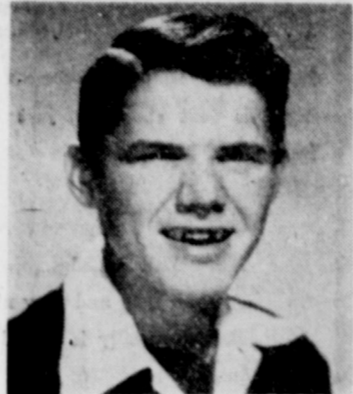

5. Approximately 17,000 of last year's new patients will need continuing care in 1950.

were listed as:

1. Growth for the first time of the polio virus in non-nervous tissue in test tubes. Great quantities of the virus would be needed should a vaccine be developed.

2. Classification by National Foundation grantees of three distinct types of polio virus. The search for all types, under way since January 1949, is expected to be completed by the end of 1951.

3. Improved techniques of rehabilitation and of mechanical devices that can reduce to "an absolute minimum the number of patients who suffer permanent disability."

Although the report warns that "obstacles that lie ahead (in research) cannot be minimized," it gave this optimistic conclusion: "We have reached solid ground... We are traveling in the right direction and as rapidly as man's ingenuity will permit."

While gains were being made on the research front, the program of patient care in 1949 was barely able to meet financial demands, it was revealed.

"Before the year was out," the report disclosed, "if the National Foundation's 2,822 chapters, 1,089 had gone broke meeting the demands of the epidemic. Scattered over 45 states and one territory, they had received epidemic aid (from the national office) amounting to $10,648,609 in this one year. An additional $677,778 was spent by the national office in direct aid not specifically chargeable to individual chapters. "And this was just emergency help total of $11,326,387 added to $16,000,000 spent directly from local chapter funds to care for patients in this one year."

The Polio Emergency Drive last September raised $3,768,357, and the National Foundation balance at national headquarters at the end of 1949 was $1,318,877, the report showed. Local treasuries of the National Foundation—based on reports from 85.6 per cent of the local chapters (2,415 of 2,822) received at national headquarters when the annual report went to press—showed a net chapter cash balance of about $971 per chapter reporting, or hardly enough to pay costs of care for one average paralyzed polio patient.

Emergency aid to chapters during the year was more than the headquarters' net share of the 1949 March of Dimes. Half of the funds raised each year remain with the local chapter for patient care, the other 50 per cent going to national headquarters for research, education and emergency aid.

Annual Senior, Slave Breakfast At Ringling Lake, Much Fun

Tuesday morning members of the Senior Class were the honorees at the annual Slave Breakfast, held bright and early at the Ringling lake, north of Eastland.

As is the custom, the slave of the senior's choice, gets up early gathers up the makings of a wonderful breakfast, goes by for his senior master and they proceed to the lake, where other slaves and seniors have gathered. Over an open fire breakfast is prepared and the seniors are served in grand style by the slaves, who have no recourse until another spring rolls around and he or her, as the case may be, can command a junior to do his bidding.

As usual the group had a lot of fun and were accompanied on the outing by Miss Verna Johnson, senior sponsor.

Seniors and Slaves arising in time for the trip were, Don Anderson, senior, Ernest Sneed, slave; Christina Arther, senior, Bettye Grimes and Billie Farr, slaves; Betty Bennett, senior, Faye Lovel, Gail Harr, slaves; Janeil Day,

Educator Warns Of Texas Need For Quality

AUSTIN, Tex.—A study of the needs of state-supported colleges in Texas similar to that which led to enactment of laws improving the public school system was called for here today. "Unless Texas improves the quality of training available to its youth in institution of higher learning the high standards established for public schools will be undermined," said Dr. Sam Barton, of Denton, president of the College Classroom Teachers Association. Dr. Barton said his association which is affiliated with the Texas

State Teachers Association, would soon place results of numerous surveys before the Texas Legislative Council, a state body charged with making recommendations, after complete investigation of various matters, before the legislature.

Dr. Barton listed the major needs of the colleges as: 1. Standardization of student-teacher ratios to prevent overcrowding of classes and the overloading of instructors and professors with classes.

2. Equalizing of salaries with similar institutions in other states to prevent Texas losing many of its most able teachers.

3. Increasing the library facilities and laboratory equipment and expenditures for research.

"The inadequacies of our present college system must be called to the attention of Texans. Our state will suffer unless our colleges are able to produce well-trained teachers to go into our new greatly improved public school system," Dr. Barton said.

"Our association is confident that once Texans are made acquainted with the colleges' needs they will rally to continue the climb in education which they started when the enacted the Gilmer-Aikin laws. Those laws lifted Texas to a place among the leading states in education."

Teacher student ratios are out of proportion in the various Texas schools and most college classrooms are crowded, Dr. Barton pointed out.

"The ratio among Texas colleges varies from a low of 9.7 students per teacher to a high of 23.2," he said. President Truman's commission of higher learning recommends a ratio of 20 for the freshmen and sophomores, 13 for juniors and seniors and 10 for the graduate level.

"Ratios in recitation hours are also too high. They vary in Texas from 12 to 18 hours to six to fifteen hours. Better institutions everywhere limit instructors to 12 hours and professors to six to nine.

"Professors are also overloaded in their supervisions of these. This is a serious threat to the quality of the M. A. degrees granted in accord with the Gilmer-Aikin program and for which considerable additional salary is granted under state laws."

The College Classroom Teachers Association has made several studies of instructors' and professors' salaries as compared with those paid in similar colleges in other states.

"The figures conclusively show why Texas is losing many of its most able teachers to other colleges," Dr. Barton commented.

"A study last year disclosed that our colleges are losing 29 percent of the members of their faculties holding doctor's degrees. Worse yet, only 60 percent of those are being replaced with other teachers holding doctor's degrees. Dr. Barton compared salaries paid in Texas colleges to others.

"A comparison of salaries with those in state-supported institutions in California, Connecticut, Illinois, Arizona, Colorado, Massachusetts, Indiana, Michigan and New Jersey, most of which are teacher training institutions, shows Texas badly lagging.

"The minimum salaries for instructors in Texas is $1,913, whereas the minimum in those nine states is $3,000.

"Skipping assistant professors and associate professors, we find that the minimum salary for professors in Texas is $3,700 whereas it is $4,780 in those nine states.

"Out of fifteen Texas colleges studied, nine had a top salary of $4,850 for full professors while the top salary range in the other states is from $5,000 to $7,400.

Administration Warns Have SS Card Already

Students who expect to work during the summer vacation should see that they have their social security cards ready for immediate use, according to a statement made today by Ralph T. Fisher, manager of the Abilene office of the Social Security Administration.

If you go to work for wages in private industry, you must show your social security card to your employer promptly. If you have never had a social security card and are going to need one soon, you should go to the local post office and get an application.

Fill it out and mail it to the Social Security Administration, Abilene, Texas. You will receive your card in just a few days.

If you have lost your social security card now is the time to ask for a duplicate. Get an application at your post office, fill it out showing that you have had a card and lost it, and mail it to the Social Security Administration, Abilene, Texas. You will soon have a new card with that same number.

There are some jobs for which you will not need a card. If you are going to work on the farm, for the city, state or federal government, or if you are under 21 and working for your parents, you will not need a social security card. Do not apply for a card unless you are fairly sure to need it. Then get one promptly.

Tom Grissom is a penniless, broken down gambler. The right horse didn't win, his aces up his sleeve wouldn't come down at the right time, his dice were loaded wrong—anyway he is having no luck at all, and we repeat "he is flat broke!"

Max Harrison is now the devoted Mr. America. He is seen posing for a screen test with his arm around a lovely brunett. His goal is to take Bob Hope's place as "The Great Lover".

In 1954 we see Quata Head taking all the first places in running events. She has trained down to 200 pounds for the Olympics. Her son is there cheering her on.

John Hensley is the rocket number 5 pilot. He makes 5 trips a day to the moon. His side line is selling green cheese at black market prices.

Jeanie Howard has studied for 8 years in Paris as a ballet dancer. She is now living in Eastland teaching the brats of her former school chums.

J. B. Jesse has just returned to the world from hunting big game in Mars. He came back with a very nice collection of trophies. He is catching the most Mars Men and bringing back their heads.

As we look into the future again we see a mighty man! He is known now as Gorgeous George Lane the World's Champion Wrestler and weighing 296 pounds. Although he has gained some weight, lost 3 teeth, broken his nose, and lost all of his hair, he still has the same ornery look that he had way back in 1950.

Now we see G. W. McBee, known to all as "speedy". He is now seated by the fire-place with his six little McBees teaching them his favorite song "I wish I Were a Baby Bumble Bee."

We now see Henry Parsons as he walks behind his team of joggling mules plowing the garden patch. Henry has always been the first man in the community to plant his garden. Of course, getting Nita to help may account for this.

Now as we look into the future we see Tommy Patterson who is band Director at one of the largest schools in Texas, Flatwoods. He is having the same trouble as his former band director, Mr. Atwood was having with his tromboneist.

We see Professor Windell Reed as he tries so hard to teach his students to use correct English. We can hear him no was he tries to explain to his students that you never use ain't without a helper.

Joe Stanley Stephens owns a three-acre ranch in Gorman, specializing in ant-eaters.

Bob Vaught has a food market of his own, and although it is high in prices, one may be sure he will get cultivated bugs on all vegetables which is truly an advantage.

Jesse Whaley holds the record as the World's best twirler. Each afternoon she holds classes in order to teach her five offsprings the art of twirling the ole rod.

Kenneth Williamson is the owner of a funeral home. Mary, who once belonged to Ben Hamner, is now the property of Williamson's Funeral Home. Now it's Kenneth's job to find someone who will claim the old body.

Virginia Wright is a hat designer. She and her husband are responsible for the fish bowls ladies are now wearing on their heads.

Possibility Short Season Opened On Antelope In West

AUSTIN, May 24.—The annual census of antelope is now underway in the Panhandle and West of the Pecos where the herds are concentrated, according to the executive secretary of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission.

Preliminary reports are favorable concerning the status of the fleet wild animal, which has been restored to a degree on the Texas plains. There is a possibility that a short open season will be permitted this fall West of the Pecos, and also in the Panhandle, where there has been no modern-day hunting.

The executive secretary estimates the present herd strength at about 9,000. The actual number, almost to the very animal, will be determined by the present census.

The tally is made by a two-man airplane crew. The pilot is Warden J. W. Gilbreth of Alpine, and the checker is Frank Etheridge, wildlife biologist.

The count is made on one ranch at a time and records kept on a master map which covers the antelope range. The executive secretary explained that men trained in his routine become very proficient. He added that the antelope herds are easy to spot because they stay out in the open plains areas. The number of bucks and does is recorded.

The executive secretary said a decision on whether there will be an open season will be made in July, probably at the monthly meeting of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission.

Texas has had four recent open seasons on antelopes since the herds were restored to substantial size under modern game management techniques. The last season was in 1948, when 814 permits were issued at $5.00 each. The total bag that season was 629 male antelope. The hunt is closely supervised and is broken up into staggered three-day periods for different areas during the overall nine to twelve day season. Extra game wardens are assigned to the supervisory detail.

No open season was held last year because of the severe 1948-winter season that caused some losses to the herds.

Margo Jones All For Small Local Theatres; New Idea Pans Out Good

By Ernest Conine
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 DALLAS (UP) — Margo Jones, an attractive Texan who provided one answer to unemployed actors' dreams has vowed she would make her theatre '50 the greatest in the world.

And Margo, well-known on Broadway since co-directing Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," has been in the theatrical whirl long enough to know how broad a statement that is.

This fall, with Tad Adoue and Manning Gurian, she will take Owen Chump's new comedy, "Southern Exposure," to New York for another assault on Broadway.

Miss Jones doesn't expect her Dallas enterprise to surpass New York's dwindling number of playhouses in terms of box office receipts or audience capacity. A "full house" at theatre '50 (which becomes theatre '51 next year) means 198 persons seated chummily in a room smaller than the lobby of most theatres.

What the enthusiastic Margo does intend to do is give drama-lovers in the Dallas area "good theatre." In the process, the wolf will be kept away from the stage door for many actors.

Her peritry "theatre in the round" is popular, with nine or 10 actors signed each season. A 1 1/2 are paid the same salary — above actors' equity scale. There are no "stars" in the usual sense. Actor John Denny said two words in "Southern Exposure," but had the lead in "Golden Porcupine."

The idea of local permanent theatres is catching on. Several have been established in other cities.

"Our theatre '50 is an end in itself," Miss Jones explained. "We don't warm over Broadway hits, and this isn't a try-out ground for unproven actors or plays. But we're not afraid of new scripts," she said.

A look at this season's program reveals three classics, including Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," and five new plays.

"Nowadays, many producers and directors read good plays, if at all, with assumption it won't be any good," Margo said. "A lot of good plays are being passed up. The theatre won't remain a vital factor in this country if it slams the door on new blood and new ideas," she added.

Theatre '50 is in its third season and has aroused international enthusiasm. It came on the scene at a time when many show people said the American theatre was sick. They point to the packed New York theatres — many operating at a loss — with thousands of good actors still unemployed.

These are the problems to which Margo Jones thinks she has developed a partial solution.

"Every city of America should have a permanent professional theatre," she said. "Decentralization would mean first class entertainment for those Americans living in the great neglected area between New York and the West Coast. And it would mean many more jobs for actors and other theatre people."
