In talking to several persons around town we have discovered that quite a few of them are highly in favor of Bernard Baruch's total economic mobilization plan.

Baruch's plan is also gaining favor among several national leaders.

Most of the people in favor of the plan seem to reason along this line.

It seems to be the only way to halt excessive scare buying and hoarding, which are much the same thing.

Although we are assured by those who should know that there is no scarcity of many of the items which are in high demand, fast buying continues and the prices are rising.

This situation will continue unless something is done to stop it. An appeal to the public has apparently failed, and hoarding has sloped off very little if any, despite all assurances that it is an unnecessary thing. And despite blasts which brand it as un-American, selfish and other unflattering terms.

If the American people are growing too self-centered to consider the other person, some restrictions must be made, and they must be strong enough to stick. Baruch's plan seems to be the answer.

The selfishness works on both sides. The manufacturer, the wholesaler or retailer is taking advantage of the situation by hiking prices where there is no substantial reason for doing so.

An example is the bread price hike which has been branded as unnecessary since there is an overabundance of wheat on hand. This is just the beginning. Others will join the high price parade to "get their share."

Put the controls on. The ones who don't hoard will get all they would buy anyway, probably. If the fast buying rate going on now continues they may not, and probably will not, when controls are finally forced.

As one person put it, "If there is not enough to go around when controls are on, I won't mind doing without a few things, and it's a cinch there wouldn't be enough without them."

Controls will only make black marketing such as we had in the last war. No controls are enforced to set a limit on how low prices can go, why should they be put on how high they can go?

There is no necessity for controls at the present time. The situation does not warrant it. We have enough of everything. Why worry because some selfish person buys too much. Only he stands to lose.

Prices may go up some, but not enough to matter if there is a good supply. They will go down again when the scare buying dies down and everyone sees that there is enough to go around.

These are the two views on the Baruch plan. A majority of the persons we have seen seem to have the former belief on the matter.

Whether or not controls are made, we should get together on one idea. That is that we are a nation of people who wish to be one nation, Americans all. At least most of us.

This nation of American people has been acting like 150,000,000 one man nations recently. We can accomplish little in this manner, except chaos.

Many persons believe we are now in a struggle for the survival of our nation, and our way of life.

If so, we can never win it by acting as a bunch of self-centered individuals. Let's get together. Consider your neighbor, before you buy more than you need, controls or not.

If you are too selfish to do this, think of the controls which will be put on you, if our nation does not survive.

Eastland County Demos Name Delegates For State Convention

The naming of delegates to the state democratic convention to be held Sept. 12 at Mineral Wells, highlighted the county democratic meeting in the district courtroom Saturday afternoon.

Cyrus B. Frost, Jr. was elected temporary chairman of the county meeting, and then was elected permanent chairman.

A resolution was accepted approving the actions of President Truman in the Korean crisis, and pledging the local party's support to state officers.

A resolution which would have cut down the number of precincts in the county was tabled on a motion that the convention had no authority over the matter, and authority lay with the county commissioners.

By a close vote, the motion to table the resolution carried.

Delegates for the state convention were nominated by the nominating group, making those nominated the official county delegates.

Congressmen Working

Congress Prepares Wage-Price Control Bill; Administration Still Claims No Need Of Law

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (UP)—The Administration yielded to public and Congressional pressure today for some kind of government controls over wages and prices.

Although President Truman's advisers were still convinced such controls are not necessary now, his lieutenants in Congress were busy preparing legislation giving him standby powers to impose ceilings on prices and to freeze wages.

Under their bill, price and wage controls would go into effect only when President Truman gave the word. This could mean immediately, or it could mean that Truman would never invoke the powers at all.

The President's Congressional lieutenants decided to prepare such a bill when it became evident that Congress is in a mood to vote the President wage and price powers whether he wanted them or not.

Elsewhere in Congress:

Spending—The House appropriations committee ordered its various subcommittees to go back over the House-approved $28,894,000,000 appropriation bill and trim all non-essential items. Chairman Clarence Cannon, D. Mo., said he looked for a substantial cut in view of the anticipated heavy boost in defense spending.

Foreign Aid—Administration leaders claimed enough votes to block the attempt of Sen. Pat McCarran, D., Nev., to earmark $100,000,000 in Marshall plan funds for Spain. But they conceded the vote would be close. Because of parliamentary technicalities, McCarran's proposal needs a two-thirds vote for adoption.

Crime—The Senate's special crime investigating committee intends to expand its inquiry to Pennsylvania and California. The committee already has opened an investigation of underworld operations in Missouri and Florida and has served notice that it would look into conditions in Chicago.

Sanctions—Seventy-two Republican Congressmen have joined in demanding that the United States and the United Nations impose economic sanctions against aggressor nations and their supporters. They said there is "no justification for continued trade on a business-as-usual basis with governments supporting the North Koreans."

Byrd—Sen Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., urged Congress to investigate what he said was the South Korean's failure to resist effectively the Communist invaders. He also demanded to know why Congress was told two weeks before the invasion that the South Koreans could handle "any challenge."

Instanced—The House executive expenditures committee recommended that the government stop selling life insurance to servicemen, and grant free death benefits instead.

Watchdog—The Senate's watchdog committee—a subcommittee of the Senate armed services committee—set out to see that everything possible is done "to defeat aggression wherever it may appear."

The committee held its first meeting yesterday.

at the state meeting. The list of delegates includes, Dr. R. N. Whitehead, Mrs. Don Parker, W. B. Pickens, Frank Sparks, B. W. Patterson, Earl Conner, Sr., Cyrus B. Frost, Jr., Jack W. Frost, Turner Collier, Jesse McKee, Mrs. Sam Butler and Virgil Seaberry, Jr., all of Eastland. Alternates from Eastland are P. L. Crossley, Cyrus B. Frost, Sr., Oscar Lyerla, J. C. Allison and Omar Burkett.

Named from Gorman were: Henry Capers, T. S. Ross, F. S. Perry, John Kimble, Dr. J. B. Brandon, T. O. Shelly, Boyd Hilley, Mrs. John Love, Dr. Rodgers, J. E. Walker, Jr., and alternates Dick Jay, Glen Kirk, I. C. Underwood and Mrs. M. F. Allen.

Others were: J. D. McCarty, M. B. Shoak, and W. N. Favors of Rising Star, and L. E. Clark, H. H. Williams, S. W. Powers and F. F. Sparks.

County Dairy Work Starts

Forrest Boone, Rising Star dairyman and newly qualified Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisor for the Eastland County Dairy Association, said today that the testing work has started on eight different herds.

Boone spent the week of July 10-17 attending a DHIA supervisors school at Texas A & M College. He planned to begin the testing work at A. Z. Myrick's Dairy near Cisco on July 31.

Included among those who have enrolled their herds for dairy herd improvement association testing are: Mosley Pror, Olden; L. R. Higginbottom, Kokomo; L. O. Swindle, Cisco; Raymond Sprawls, Seranton; A. Z. Myrick, Cisco; J. C. Caraway, Kokomo; Forrest Boone, Rising Star; and Leo Baum, Cross Plains.

Boone will visit each dairyman enrolled for the night and succeeding morning milking once each month. Each cow milk will be weighed and a butter-fat sample tested.

The feed per cow will also be weighed and cost records made of the feed. All cows in lactation in the herd will be tested.

The fee for the testing service is very nominal according to A. Z. Myrick, Cisco, president of the association that is sponsoring the service.

"Cows that are not making a profit above feed costs can be detected by this bookkeeping system on individual cows and they can be culled out and replaced," Boone said.

The new testing program will be discussed at the meeting of the dairy association in Kinger Thursday night at the chamber of commerce building, Boone said.

All dairymen of the county are invited to attend the meeting. There are 32 other testing associations in the state with over 13,000 cows. In 1949, over a million cows in the U. S. were enrolled in DHIA testing work.

KOREDS PUT ON PRESSURE AGAINST U.S.

By Earnest Hoberecht
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Wednesday, Aug. 2 (UP)—The U. S. Marines docked at a Korean port today and prepared to join the thousands of fresh American troops streaming up to the front lines. The troops were armed with a formidable array of weapons including several still on the secret list.

While the Leathernecks of the 1st Marine division waited to disembark, the U. S. Army's 5th regimental combat team arrived from Hawaii and hurried into the battle on the heels of the 2nd infantry division.

The dramatic arrival of American men and arms came at a crucial hour. Massed Communist forces hammered the Allies back in a general retreat through five key towns. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in his midnight communique that the enemy now was striking for Pusan, the U. S. supply port, and Taegu, the provisional South Korean capital.

As the Communists pressed their battle arc toward Pusan and Taegu by sheer weight of numbers, United Press Correspondent Jack James reported from a Korean port that almost all the freshly landed Americans had hurried to the front, and the Marines were waiting.

"These are the men who are expected to start the push back north," he reported. "They are in full-strength units. They are armed to the teeth with every weapon which experience has indicated will be practical in Korea—including flame throwers, bazookas, and several weapons still on the classified list."

For the first time in the Korean war, time was running out on the Communists faster than space was running out on the Americans.

Confirming front reports of a general withdrawal along a shortened line, MacArthur's communique reported a pullback but said: "However, it was pointed out that this was not a forced withdrawal, but was planned for regrouping and effecting better disposition of the United Nations forces."

It reported relentless pressure in the Chinju area where North Koreans had slugged through American foxholes to new positions less than 60 miles from Pusan. In that area, MacArthur said, the Communists "massed for an offensive toward the American supply port of Pusan."

Some 40 miles to the north in the Koehang area the enemy "continued his effort to break through to Taegu," 40 miles to the northeast, MacArthur reported.

The sentence was ordered by Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson in Dallas.

Owens admitted taking the money in $5 bills from a pouch at the Cisco depot early July 7. He said that he took the money through a slit in the sack, and left $1,000 in $1 bills.

He said that he had spent the money for a pick-up truck, a load of watermelons, two tricycles for his two children and furniture.

Police Hunt For Soldier, Teen-Age Girl

AMARILLO, Aug. 1 (UP)—A young AWOL soldier strolled into an Amarillo cafe for breakfast today with a frightened teenage girl he allegedly kidnapped from her Alamogordo, N. M., home.

Before the pair left, the girl—Jo Anne Kinder—slipped a waitress a note saying "she was scared to death," and to tell police they could be picked up on U. S. Highway 66.

New Mexico authorities notified Amarillo police the soldier was believed to be Frank Maklary, 20, AWOL from Holoman Air Base at Alamogordo, where he is charged with kidnapping the Kinder girl.

West Texas and New Mexico authorities watched highway 66 for the dilapidated 1938 ten Dodge coupe in which the pair was driving. Amarillo police set up road blocks while they searched the city for the couple.

the transition for a gradual build-up of strength for the final showdown.

The magazine warns that force of circumstances could quickly drive us from partial to total mobilization, adding that there are at least three things that could make the U. S. whoosh into an all-out war basis. First, Russia could force our hand by direct attack on us or our major allies; second, the controls that Truman proposed could prove inadequate even for the needs of a limited military program; and third, the additional military demands could start a whirlwind inflation and Washington would have to clamp down to protect the country from buying itself crazy.

If the limited mobilization works, it will stay in effect until Russia forces the issue—or until we finally reach some long-term settlement with the Communists," says the article.

If the limited program foils—or if Russia attacks—we will switch to all-out mobilization. In many respects this will bring fewer problems than the halfway measures.

The overriding problem of total mobilization would be manpower controls since there is no pool of unemployed from which to draw and here are few nonessential industries that the producers of military goods could raid for additional workers.

"Some sort of national service law, to put workers into industries where they are needed, would be almost inescapable," says the article. "But the planners still haven't decided what course the U. S. should take."

Other problems expected to face us in a total mobilization are inflation, higher taxes and civilian defense.

Draft Officials Inherit Plenty Of Headaches From Peace Lull

By United Press Harassed draft officials, struggling to get the nation's selective service machinery into gear, reported today that thousands of men were failing to respond to their greetings from Uncle Sam.

In many cities across the country, a United Press survey showed, at least one fourth of the prospective draftees failed to show up for physical examinations. In Portland, Ore., the rate of delinquency soared to 42 per cent. Eighty-two of 191 men ordered up for physicals at Portland failed to keep the date.

However, officials said they doubted that many of the delinquents deliberately stayed away. They said that those who put in tardy appearances had a satisfactory explanation in almost every case.

Chicago officials said only about two-thirds of the men sent greetings actually were showing up for physical examinations. A selective service spokesman said that in most cases registrants just weren't receiving the notices.

Draft board clerks, he said, are far behind in the task of correcting the addresses or registrants who have moved.

Twenty-seven of 100 men called up in Washington, D. C., failed to report. Officials said some were in jail but most delinquents simply had moved without giving a forwarding address.

Cleveland draft boards said 38 of 110 men failed to respond. Some were sick, some were temporarily out of town, some had moved.

In Milwaukee, Red Cross volunteers aided draft officials in rounding up "literally thousands of men" who had failed to register. A clerk at St. Louis said "loads" of men have failed to register. Since the war started, he said,

Business Magazine Writers Fear All-Out Mobilization Coming

Business Week predicts that even if the Korean war stopped tomorrow the current mobilization crisis would not end.

The present situation, the magazine says, could easily span the whole decade of the 1950's.

The Magazine of Wall Street seems to feel the same way and in an article by E. A. Kraus states "business as usual" can not last long the way things are going.

XXVIII THE bull-fighting procession moved through the tunnel that led into the arena with Lucas walking arrogantly at the head. Friends and hangers-on scattered, hurrying up the steps that led to the grandstand. Carmen stood at the mouth of the tunnel, waving after the matador. "Bring me his gas, Lucas," she called out.

When the procession had nearly disappeared, she turned and started toward the steps herself. Her face was alive with anticipation of the thrills to come. Suddenly she stopped short and the laughter choked in her throat. A black cat had run in front of her, right over her feet.

She shrank back, frightened, and crossed her fingers in an automatic sign against bad luck. A figure loomed in her path. She looked up and there, before her, close, close, was Jose.

Only his feverish eyes betrayed the fact that this battered, filthy beggar was the once proud young dragon from Navarre.

After the first shock of recognition, Carmen glanced quickly around. "What kind of a fool are you to show your face in Cordova?" she snapped. "You'll be caught."

"Carmen—" his voice was unsteady. "Did you see that black cat? It means serious trouble every time, Jose. If you have any sense at all, you will—"

He took her hand. "Carmen, let's go home," he implored. "No."

"Please, Carmen. I can't stand it any longer—waiting, waiting, waiting. Please, Carmen."

HE followed her, still hanging on to her hand, his voice unnaturally hoarse and rapid. "It was because I struck you, wasn't it? You wouldn't have left me. I know you wouldn't. I don't know what made me do it!" He tried to smile at her. "I'll be such a good husband—you'll see." His face was working but it found a forced smile. "Let's go home, Carmen."

She tried to pull her hand away. "No."

His control began to crack. "You'll do what I tell you to do."

"I'll do what it pleases me to do," she snapped. "I always have and I always will." She twisted her wrist out of his grasp. "And right now it pleases me to watch a bull fight and a bull."

She turned and ran toward the steps and Jose ran after her, his face wild with jealousy. "It's Lucas, the matador, now, is that it?" he cried.

She turned on him furiously. "Yes. Yes. Now are you satisfied?" Her words flayed him. "And why not! I like to laugh once in a while. What have I had with you? Nothing but tears and preaching and long faces. I'm sick of it, can't you understand? I'm sick of you!" She shoved him savagely. "Now get away and leave me alone."

She tried to move off but he clutched her again, putting his arms around her desperately. "Carmen, don't leave me." He kissed her eyes, her face, her mouth, hungrily, frantically, trying to talk as he kissed her. "I love you so much, Carmen. You're all I have left. I've lost everything. I gave up everything for you, but it is all right. I'm not sorry." He slid down her body, his arms tight around her knees like fetters. "Only don't leave me, Carmen."

She looked down at him, contemptuously. Her lips curled at sight of his tear-stained face.

World Will Listen To Red Malik Today: His Words May Decide Fate Of World For Generation Or More

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Foreign News Editor

The slow surge of history occasionally carries a single man to the point where the ears of the world are straining to catch his every word.

Winston Churchill was there when he was making his famous speeches of defiance against Hitler. Franklin D. Roosevelt was there when he told the world the United States had nothing to fear but fear itself. The Duke of Windsor was there when he broadcast the word that he was abdicating a throne for love.

This is Jacob Alexandrovitch Malik's day.

Before sunset he is going to speak words that will give the world a better idea what is in store for it during the next generation. He appears before the United Nations Security Council this afternoon to assume the chairmanship for one month. It could be that what he says will reveal Russia's plans for the immediate future—whether she is going to be tough and do something that will lead to World War

III or whether she has decided that she burned her fingers in Korea and now wants to put out the fire for a while.

The news may be that Moscow is still tough, but the message won't be delivered in a tough manner. Malik is a mild-mannered man who makes a matter of fact speech. He can't afford to get too excited because he has heart trouble. As he explains it to friends: "I look strong and healthy but I'm like a rotten apple. I am a hollow shell."

Other delegates at the U.N. have become accustomed to Russians who make long speeches with the maximum amount of shouting and arm waving—Molotov, Vishinsky and Gromyko. Malik is not that type. He works more in the tradition of Maxim Litvinov, the former Russia Ambassador to the United States, who always believed he could accomplish more by going off in a corner and making a quiet deal than he could by delivering an oration.

Malik is well equipped to represent the Soviet Union in this time of crisis in Korea because:

1. He is an expert on the Far East. He was formerly Soviet Ambassador to Tokyo and delivered the news to the Japanese that the Russians had declared war on them.
2. He is the top expert in the Russian diplomatic corps on the Atomic bomb. In 1945 he was a delegate to the council of foreign ministers' meeting in Moscow where it was agreed to set up the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. The next year he was promoted to Deputy Foreign Minister.

Malik is 44 years old and was graduated from the college of diplomacy of the University of Moscow in 1937. He first arrived in the United States in May, 1948, and New York reporters went down the bay to interview him.

"I am a man of peace," he told them.

We'll find out about that today.

A fire warden in New Hampshire is also the town's switchboard operator—making a false alarm a double headache.

Another Texas Longhorn Showing Form To Dominate Golf For Time

By Oscar Fraley
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (UP)—Winning one golf tournament does not make a leading money winner, but the men who turn divots into dollars and line their wallets with a wedge will tell you today that another Texan is about to take over.

Golf for years has been dominated by larrupers from the Lone Star State. Just to name a few there was Ralph Guldahl, Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Demaret. In the last decade it has been Texas against the world, and Texas could feel that those odds were just about right.

Most of them are now either over the hill, or well past the crest. So along comes another Longhorn iron artist to start picking up the marbles.

He is Jackie Burke, a strapping 27 year old out of Houston who last spring was voted by the professionals as the most promising youngster on the tournament trail.

Jackie last weekend won the Sioux City open, but it wasn't his first triumph.

On the winter trail, the handsome blond with the blue eyes started earning his reputation with a tie for first in the Bing Crosby tournament and victories in the Rio Grande valley open and the St. Petersburg open. That Iowa win boosted his year's take to $12,487. Jackie's victories weren't unexpected. He is the son of Jack Burke, Sr., one of the nation's best-known pros, who finished in a tie for second with hallowed Harry Vardon in the 1921 open.

The young man cut his teeth on a niblick and learned to walk on a fairway and never has wanted to be anything but a pro golfer. His dad objected at first, but finally realized that young Jackie couldn't be swerved away from his objective.

So Jackie started playing for keeps when he was only seven. Qualified for the national open at 16 and became a pro at 18. His ambitions were halted by a four-year hitch as a Sergeant in the Marines, but he went right back to golf after his discharge.

In 1946, Burke attracted the attention of Claude Harmon, the former masters champion who tutors at Winged Foot, near Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Harmon took him on as an assistant. Two years ago, Harmon got Burke the job at Metropolitan C. C., White Plains, N. Y.—and he now draws a higher salary than his benefactor.

Demaret, who has worked in the elder Burke's pro shop at Houston in getting his start, took young Jackie under his wing when the lad took his first crack at the tournament trail in 1942. Jackie still has a very boyish look but at 19 he looked like a baby.

One day Demaret took Burke to the Paramount lot in Hollywood to have lunch with Bing Crosby and Bob Hope. Hope asked Jackie:

"What do you do for a living, sonny?"

"I'm a golf professional," Burke replied.

Hope gulped, looked him up and down, and then grinned:

"Where? Boys Town?"

Jackie still looks young, but as of the moment he's making a lot of his brother pros feel a lot older.

OLD PROS—The incomparable Stanley Musial, right, and Enos Slaughter of the Cardinals are running one-two or threeabouts in the National League batting race, while supplying the stick work keeping the St. Louis Red Birds in the thick of the pennant fight.

Koreas Strip, Torture Captured Americans; Bayonet Wounded Ones

WITH US TROOPS IN KOREA

Aug. 1 (UP)—Pvt. Alfred C. Meek of Walla Walla, Wash., was in a battalion sent to clean out what intelligence reports called "200 highly disorganized North Koreans."

But the enemy turned out to number a lot more than 200, and to be anything but disorganized. So it was another case of a "lost battalion," of which there have been many in this war.

The battalion was cut off for six hours in an exposed position—exposed to Communist mortars, heavy artillery, machine guns and small arms.

"There was no battle to it," said Sgt. Charles J. Alsop of Fort Worth, "it was just a one-sided slaughter."

Finally the battalion was given the word to get out as best it could. Young Meek was alone in a concealed hill position, and couldn't go alone.

"After the withdrawal," he said, "I could see the enemy taking prisoners, and making the well ones carry out the wounded. The wounded ones were bayoneted along the side of the road."

"When some of the well ones tried to make a break, they were caught and stripped. Then the Communists made them run up and down the road until they dropped.

"When one would drop, a bunch of them would gather around him and each would hit him."

"It was six when they started running. It was nine when the last one dropped. I got out in the dark across the hills a little later."

Truman's Vote Pulling Gets Tested Today

By United Press
President Truman's vote-pulling strength received a test today as voters in four states—Missouri, Kansas, Virginia and West Virginia—balloted in primary elections.

The test of Truman's political pincer came in his own state as State Senator Emery W. Allison, endorsed by the President, sought the Democratic senatorial nomination against former Congressman Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., and three other candidates.

Elsewhere, attention was centered on Republican Senatorial and gubernatorial races in Kansas and in former Democratic Senator Rush D. Holt's bid for a GOP Congressional nomination in West Virginia.

In Kansas, Republican Governor Frank Carlson, who never has lost a political race, opposed Harry W. Colmery, former National Commander of the American Legion, for the GOP Senatorial nomination.

The Democratic Senatorial race in Kansas featured a struggle for party leadership between National Committeeman Carl V. Rice and young Paul Aiken, who resigned as an assistant Postmaster General to make the campaign.

Business Leader With Great War Record Tells How Hadacol Rebuilt Him Physically

Was run-down, weak, after service in South Pacific due to deficiencies of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin

Mr. Donald Hedburg, who resides at 1812 Parker in the fashionable Riverside District of Wichita, Kansas, has been an up-and-coming executive member of the staff of the great Wichita Eagle newspaper for over four years.

Mr. Hedburg has an enviable record of combat with the U. S. Army in the South Pacific in World War II. He is very active in civic affairs. And just as he was anxious to pitch in and do a job during the war—he now wants to help his fellow citizens who (like he was once) are physically run-down and weak due to lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin in their systems.

Here is Donald W. Hedburg's witnessed statement: "When I returned from service, I faced the problem of rebuilding myself physically. I was in a general run-down condition. In my present capacity for advertising salesman for Kansas' greatest newspaper, The Wichita Eagle, it's absolutely necessary that I have plenty of vitality—get up and go. I had real cause to worry. Nothing seemed to rebuild me constitutionally. Then a friend of mine on the national staff told me about HADACOL—he asked me to try at least five bottles. I'm on my fourth bottle and already I feel like my old self. I look forward to a day's work and go home—play with the children—work in the yard—fish until midnight! Thanks again to HADACOL, energy and vitality once again course through every fiber of my body. You bet, I too, am now a missionary for this great new HADACOL!"

Get That Wonderful HADACOL Feeling Everyone is Talking About
HADACOL gives such wonderful results because it not only supplies deficient, weak run-down systems with more than their daily needs of important Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin—

but also helpful amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—elements so vital to help maintain good health and physical fitness. If you are a victim of neuritis, certain stomach and nervous disturbances, constipation, insomnia or a weak, run-down condition due to such deficiencies, HADACOL will start you on the road to feeling better, offer, within a few days. Thousands upon thousands of records of grateful men, women and children proved this to be so.

Many Doctors Recommend It
HADACOL is recommended by many doctors not only to their patients but to members of their own families who have such deficiencies. Before giving up hope—you owe it to yourself to at least give HADACOL a chance to help you. Why keep dragging yourself around feeling 'half-alive' when it's so easy to have that wonderful HADACOL feeling everyone is talking about! Trial-size bottle, only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. © 1950, The Lullans Corporation

Nancy A. Winstead, W. E. Lowery Jr. Exchange Vows In Wichita Falls

Mrs. B. J. Collings, accompanied by Mrs. W. Q. Verner, attended the wedding of her brother, Walter Earl Lowry, Jr., when formal marriage rites were read Saturday evening at the Church of the Good Sheppard (Episcopal), in Wichita Falls, for him and his bride, Miss Nancy Ann Winstead, of Wichita Falls.

Given in marriage by her father, Raymond L. Winstead, the bride's summer wedding dress of Chantilly lace was styled with a closely fitted bodice fashioned with long sleeves and a full cut skirt which swept into a long train.

The flowing veil of illusion cascaded from a headdress ornamented with seed pearls. Completing her costume was her orchid bouquet combined with stephanotis and fleur d'amour.

Attendants were Miss Geraldine Heninger, maid of honor and Mrs. Lehman Dix Jackson, bride's maid. Cleo Hohlbeck served as best man. Groomsman were Homer Jackson of Austin, Glen Price of Electra, and Gene Dow of Wink. John mark Hirschi lighted the candles.

The altar and church was beautifully decorated with palm and woodwardia, interspersed with majestic and ether reed daisies in golden vases, baskets of gladioli and daisies backgrounded by massed foliage in which branched candelabra held burning white tapers.

The bride's parents hosted a reception immediately following the wedding, held in the Wichita Falls Country club. Callers were greeted by the host and hostess, the bridal party and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lowery of Electra.

YOUR YARD FOR HAPPY PLEASANT EVENINGS OUTDOORS

Mowing the lawn is not nearly as tiring if its done in the cool of the evening.

You can enjoy your favorite outdoor game after the sun goes down.

For real relaxation after a hot, strenuous day, rest and read in the cool evening breeze.

Fire up the charcoal and invite the neighbors over—it's great fun to cook and serve an evening meal outdoors. Really enjoy your back yard these fine summer evenings—a yard light under the eaves, on the garage or on a portable pole will do the trick.

Your favorite store which sells electric appliances has a YARD LIGHT to fit your needs.
