Wage Increases End Eleven Day 'Phone' Strike

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (UP)—Contractors promising substantial wage increases ended an 11-day strike in the telephone industry today and headed off a threatened walkout by television and radio performers.

The Communications Workers of America (CWA) withdrew its cross-country "hit and run" picket lines at noon yesterday and ordered 33,000 striking telephone employees back to work this morning.

The threatened strike by 25,000 artists against major television networks was settled only 35 minutes before the 8 a. m. EST Sunday deadline when some of the biggest names in show business were scheduled to man picket lines, leaving video audiences with little more than old movies and discussion forums for programs.

The CWA and Western Electric Co. agreed at noon yesterday on a 15-month contract providing a basic wage increase of nine to 14 cents an hour for 17,000 men employed by the manufacturing subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

An almost simultaneous settlement was reached in Detroit, Mich. for 17,000 Michigan Bell operators who went on strike simultaneously with the Western Electric men Nov. 9.

The National Broadcasting Co. was the first to reach agreement with TV authority, the bargaining group of five AFL entertainment unions. Columbia Broadcasting System, the American Broadcasting Company, Dumont Television Network, and WOR-TV, a New York station, then followed suit.

The two-year agreements, to be voted on this week by union members, set wage scales of $70 for a 15-minute program with five hours of rehearsals, $125 for a half-hour show with 12 hours of rehearsals and $170 for an hour's program with 22 hours of rehearsals.

Separate bargaining sessions yesterday also settled a wage dispute and long-standing strike threat in the radio industry. The American Federation of Radio Artists (AFRA) said the network staff announcers in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago will receive 30 per cent wage increases, actors and singers on sustaining programs 15 per cent increases.

DRIVER BRINGS RUNAWAY BUS LOAD TO A HALT AFTER CAREENING AROUND NEAR PERPENDICULAR MOUNTAIN CLIFFS

SALIDA, Colo., Nov. 20 (UP)—A bus driver who guided a runaway bus with 33 football players aboard around near-perpendicular mountain cliffs at a 110-mile-an-hour clip said today he "never wanted to do that again."

Jerry Tobin, 44-year-old driver for Western State College of Gunnison, Colorado, shook his head as he told of a 17-minute near-brush with death.

"We had just started down Monarch Pass when I noticed my air pressure had dropped from 115 pounds to 30 pounds and I didn't have any brakes," he said. "Joe Thomas, Western State coach, tried to kick the rear shift back into second after it snapped into neutral, but he broke it off at the floor. Then we didn't have anything. "We kept rolling and gaining

Mule Defends Self In Freak Auto Accident

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 20 (UP)—A mule, a taxicab, a cab driver and an iceman were the casualties in a freak accident today.

The mule, apparently defending himself, did the most damage. Investigator E. L. Cartwright said the mule was pulling an ice wagon driven by William Pittman, 63. The taxi was driven by Johnny L. Terrell, 35.

Trying to avoid the wagon, Terrell's cab skidded into the mule. The mule reared up and started whamming the taxi with its front feet. That tipped over the ice wagon and tossed Pittman to the ground. The mule stopped pounding the taxi and stepped on Pittman.

Both men were treated for minor bruises. The mule suffered a cut over one eye.

AL Backs Move To Keep Unsafe Drivers Off Road

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 20 (UP)—Members of the American Legion 12th District backed a move today to keep unsafe drivers and defective cars off Texas highways.

Delegates to the closing session of a district convention yesterday passed a resolution urging the Texas legislature to pass a motor vehicle responsibility act. The resolution said such a law should make mandatory the carrying by motor vehicle owners and operators of public liability insurance.

A spokesman said such a law would tend to keep off the road some drivers "who shouldn't be driving" and also keep defective cars off the highways.

A similar bill failed to pass at the last regular session of the legislature when it was rejected by the house.

NAVY JETS ENGAGE RUSSIAN MIG-15'S AT 35,000 FEET

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (UP)—Navy Panther jet planes fought Russian-made jet planes Saturday in the highest jet aerial battle of history and won, the Air Force disclosed today.

An Air Force spokesman said the aerial duels were fought at altitudes from 32,000 to 35,000 feet.

No Navy planes were damaged. Possibly three Russian-made MIG-15's were damaged. The Communists jets were smoking and losing altitude when last seen disappearing over the Manchurian border, a Navy spokesman said.

The Navy aircraft were from the carriers Valley Forge and Philippine Sea. The Valley Forge Panthers, providing cover for other aircraft at the time, sighted from seven to nine MIG's and closed for the attack.

Two Panthers concentrated on one MIG as the Communist planes started hightailing it for the border and the MIG was losing altitude rapidly and "smoking at the stern" when last seen, the Navy said.

The Philippine Sea Panther group attacked 12 MIG's and the Navy pilots believed that at least two were damaged because they were smoking and dropping fast when last seen going over the border.

The Air Force spokesman explained that fighting at that altitude does not provide the "free" action attainable at lower altitudes. He was not sure whether conventional piston fighter aircraft in World War II ever engaged in combat at such altitude.

In discussing activity of surface units of the Navy, a spokesman said that the Cruiser St. Paul was fired on by coastal batteries of the North Koreans on the east coast of the Peninsula. The St. Paul's guns silenced the Communist batteries. Indications were that the cruiser suffered no damage.

"Ornamental Iron"

Casey, Lois Meazel Build Iron Work Into Thriving Business In Semi-Ghost Town Of Desdemona

DESDEMONA, (Sp.)—Eyebrows lifted and a few heads shook doubtfully when Casey Meazel and his wife, Lois, opened Casey's Iron and Metal Craft Shop in the almost forgotten little town of Desdemona.

Desdemona had once been a booming oil town, but it was but a skeleton of a city when Casey's shop was opened late in 1949.

To make the project look hopeful, the Meazels had very little physical equipment with which to operate. But they had equipment which was not visible from the outside, the knowledge and ability to craft ornamental iron, and the determination to make their venture a success.

Casey and Lois started their shop in an old blacksmith shop which had been abandoned many years before by her father, L. E. Clark. The shop had been badly wrecked by a storm which struck the little city that year.

In the dead of winter, with the snow and sleet falling into the little shop, the Meazel's started to work. Old equipment was taken out and cleaned up, the shop was straightened out and cleaned and soon the shop was alive with ringing of hammer and anvil as the first hand wrought ornamental iron was turned out.

Time went by, and with the passing of time, the word spread of the skill with which the little shop turned out beautiful ornamental iron in the forms porch posts to the most ornate glass top dining tables with cushioned chairs. Each product of the shop is an individual design. The customer can tell Lois what he wants and she will design it to fit the taste. "Ornamental Iron" is the trade name the shop puts on their material.

Products from the shop were soon made for homes in Eastland, Stephenville, Dublin, DeLeon, Ranger, Cisco, Gorman and the surrounding communities.

With the growing of demand for the products, Casey hired additional men to help with the craft. Now there are five employees in the shop, but each item turned out still receives the personal attention of Casey and Lois.

Thelma Edwards was high scorer for the Olden girls. Asst. Fire Chief Missing—SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 20 (UP)—Some 100 city police officers, firemen, and volunteers joined today in a search for Asst. Fire Chief E. B. Earnest, 60, missing since yesterday on a deer hunt north of San Geronimo.

SWC Race Turns Into Battle For Second Place

By Ed Fite
United Press Sports Writer
With the championship and automatic Cotton Bowl host team bid safely entrusted to the University of Texas Longhorns, the Southwest Conference race turns into a torrid battle for runnerup honors this week.
Texas A&M, the last club to bow out of title contention, Southern Methodist, Rice and Baylor all are in the thick of the scrap for the No. 2 spot with only two weeks of play remaining. Each has lost two games.
The Mustang-Bear brawl probably will come close to packing the big 75,000-capacity Cotton Bowl stadium in Dallas with fans who remember last year's high scoring melee between the clubs when Baylor scored on the opening play of the game and went on to win.
Rice, back in winning stride after its cripples started functioning, makes its bid to stay in the fight against Texas Christian at Houston Saturday.

In the only other game on the week's card, Arkansas meets Tulsa in a traditional Thanksgiving day clash at Tulsa. The Porkers have wound up their conference slate with only one victory in six starts.
Texas sacked up the title with an assist from Rice last Saturday when the Longhorns rallied to beat TCU 21-7 at Fort Worth while the Aggies were bowing to Rice 21-13 at College Station.
SMU, meanwhile, had to operate in the mud and rain—the first conference tilt of the season to be so plagued—to get a 14-7 win over Arkansas at Little Rock.
Texas and the Aggies rest this week, getting ready for their own belated Thanksgiving Day game Nov. 30 at Austin when the Aggies will be spoiling to ruin the Longhorns' undefeated record in loop play.
Texas still has a Dec. 9 date with Louisiana State before it can relax a bit.

It's Worn-Out Lungs, Not Legs, That Slow Up Aging Athletes

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—An interesting bit of information is embodied in the research of Prof. Harvey C. Lehman, who devoted years to discovering that athletes are at their best between the ages of 27 and 29, inclusive.

Professor Lehman, who specialized in establishing the exact years when persons in the arts and professions are at their peak, arrived at the conclusion concerning sports participants checking the careers of 10,000 performers.

The Ohio University savant laboriously examined the records of 1666 major league pitchers to discover that the hurler is at maximum efficiency at 27, when he can count on 4.39 good years.

Studying 3126 major leaguers other than pitchers, Professor Lehman found them at the top at 28, with a summit spread of 4.04 years.

While not a few contend with a combatant's eyes go first, the generally accepted idea is that it is the legs.

In his newest The All-Sports Record Book, the indefatigable Frank G. Menke refutes this, however, with a statement by a member of the New York coroner's staff, who says:

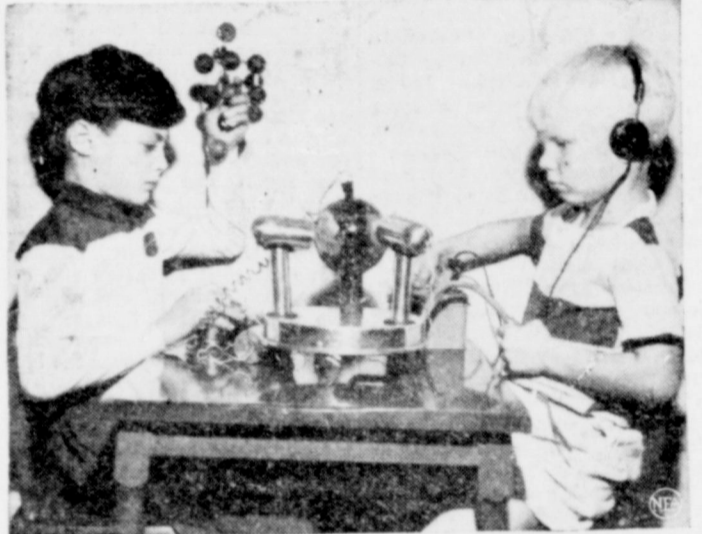

"Performing more than 4500 autopsies, I never found a body beyond 30 years of age which did not show a deterioration in the lungs. It is this, I am sure, which explains why athletes begin to slow up at that age."

"It is to be observed that when athletes have amazing lungs, they carry on far into the 30s and, in some rare instances, until beyond 40, thus disproving the theory that legs fall an athlete after 30."

Maybe the man is right—and Joe Louis should wear an oxygen tent when the Old Brown Bomber tackles young Cesar Brion, the Argentine Collar Ad, at the Chicago Stadium, Nov. 29.

In the era up to 1910, the just-out The All-Sports Record Book reveals, there were twice as many draws in the prize ring as in all the time since.

Early-day warriors had their gangs parked in the rivals' corners, bets were heavy.
Unless one fighter completely outclassed the other, referees took no chances.
It was a draw.
Them wuz the days.

Warped Mind in Puerto Rico Linked to Assassination Plot

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The crazy attempted assassination of President Truman is wrapped up in the warped life story of Pedro Albizu Campos. He is head of the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party and self-styled President of the Republic of Puerto Rico. A note signed by Pedro Albizu Campos telling him to "assume leadership of the movement" in the U. S. was found on the body of Griselo Torresola, the assassin who was shot down by police on Blair House steps.

Pedro Albizu Campos was born in Ponce, Puerto Rico, in 1891. His mother, named Albizu, was Negress. The father was white or predominantly white and was a man of some means. For a number of years he refused to allow the boy to go by the name of "Campos."

Pedro Albizu added it himself when he grew up.
The boy was unusually bright. Though he earned a few centavos for his mother as a shoe shine boy at a time when few Puerto Ricans could afford shoes, he got an education. The mayor of Ponce took an interest in him and sent him to University of Vermont. Later he went to Harvard. Racial considerations never bothered him in the North at these colleges.

When World War I broke out, Pedro Albizu Campos became imbued with an idea. He wanted to fight Germans and go kill the Kaiser.

He enlisted in the U. S. Army, went to officers' training camp and came out a first lieutenant. The Army, however, classed him as colored or mulatto. Instead of sending him to Germany, he was sent to Panama with a labor battalion. He served out the war in command of colored troops that dug ditches.

THAT experience is believed to have warped the man's whole life. From the standpoint of heredity, a case could be made that there was an element in his heritage, and that was responsible.

Anyway, Pedro Albizu Campos was given an honorable discharge at the end of the war. He went back to Harvard and won his law degree in 1921. That year he married a Peruvian woman and went back to Puerto Rico to live. They now have three children.

Politics is a major sport in Puerto Rico. Pedro Albizu Campos soon got into politics. He joined the Union Party. He left it abruptly because he thought its stand on independence too weak. Next year he organized his own Nationalist Party as a radical group, favoring complete independence from the U. S. for Puerto Rico.

He worked somewhat futilely in this party for five years. Then for two years, from 1927 to 1929, he toured Latin America to preach independence. In 1930 he was proclaimed "President" of the party. In the 1932 elections he got only 5000 votes out of 384,000 cast.

He became involved in half a dozen violent uprisings. He led a march on the San Juan capital in April, 1932, to force the Senate to adopt his Nationalist Party flag as the emblem of Puerto Rico. The stairs collapsed from the weight of the mob and many were injured.

IN April, 1936, Pedro Albizu Campos was arrested and charged with conspiracy to overthrow the government, recruit soldiers and incite rebellion against the United States. He was convicted in July, appealed, sentenced again in June, 1937. One of his defense attorneys was Vito Marcantonio, New York congressman, then counsel for the Workers' Defense League.

Albizu Campos served six years of a ten-year sentence in the U. S. prison at Atlanta, Ga. Paroled in 1943, he went to New York, where he immediately made contact with Marcantonio and Earl Browder.

Because he was on parole, Albizu Campos had to stay in the U. S. until 1947. When he returned to Puerto Rico, he was greeted with a big reception and he resumed his position as head of the Nationalist Party. For the last three years he has been active in attacks on the United States, resistance to the draft, and similar activities.

JAPANESE PUBLIC BATHING DISAPPOINTS CORRESPONDENT; MEN AND WOMEN BATHE INTERCHANGEABLY, NOT SIMULTANEOUSLY

By H. D. Quigg
YUGAWARA, Japan, Nov. 20 (UP)—After three months in Korea, you need a bath.
This is as good a place as you can find to take one because here the water is always hot. It comes out the sides of the mountain at a temperature slightly below boiling.
By the time it reaches your bath, via pipe and plumbing, it has cooled somewhat. But after you have been here a while and have taken several baths, there are pink scald splashes scattered over your outside.
Japanese public bathing is a disappointment to your jaded correspondent. It had been advertised to me as being coeducational. There were no coeds in any of the pools I bathed in, and only one nude in the swimming pool, and she turned out to be bashful.
Bathing, of course, is an institution in Japan. Hot baths are supposed to be good for whatever ails you, and, among other things, they are cleansing.
We came here to take the baths at a hotel called the Seikof. That's pronounced "Sei-ko-f." The Psycho Inn was host to a convention of the Japanese Bus Company, and the front entrance was a flutter with banners and pennants of the celebration.
It was the quietest convention of bus company men, or any other men, I have seen. They came to this hot spring to bathe and convene all in one operation. I suppose the hot baths took all the starch out of them. Maybe the hotel should make a note of that.
Wonder if the American Legion ever had considered Japan for an annual convention?
The Psycho Inn has several bathing pools, entered by sliding doors. Men and women use them interchangeably but not, to my knowledge simultaneously.
Each bathing pool is a separate compartment. The decoration includes rock formations and statuary. The compartment floor and the pool are tiled. There are mirrors on the wall and little wooden stools in the tub on the floor. Extremely hot water runs constantly into the pool and overflows across the floor out a drain.

The ritual of the bath includes washing yourself in the wooden tub and scrubbing yourself before entering the pool to soak. Nobody gets in the bath without first washing. This preliminary dousing also warms you up for the shock of hitting that liquid inferno. It's cauldron-hot.
After soaking for a while you feel as thoroughly boiled as a lobster, and sometimes you look like one. We encountered one bath at the end of a corridor, which was so hot I couldn't get in it. Earnest Kobrecht, U. P. manager for Japan and an old Japan hand, plunged in bravely and lay there screaming for a while.
He emerged suffering from total bluish. Kobrecht comes from Oklahoma. For an hour, he looked as red as an original reservation Oklahoman with scarlet fever. You're dizzy for a bit after getting out of the bath. And sometimes while you are immersed, you get reflective. It was while bathing with Kobrecht that an observation was made which still vaguely discomforts me. I was sitting at a mirror shaving and Kobrecht was in the bath when suddenly he said:
"The human body is a funny thing, isn't it?"
"Whose human body are you talking about—mine?" I said.
"It's the only one around, human or inhuman," he said.
There is no prudery about the Japanese. The hotel was a fine swimming pool, and swimming is in the nude.
We did a lot of swimming. But apparently Japanese women are disturbed by what they know of American customs. They don't like to swim with nude Americans. Once as I entered the pool, I encountered a pretty—and naked—young lady.

I bowed and said, "How do you do," and thought nothing of it. She couldn't very well bow in return without ducking herself because she was standing up to her shoulders in clear blue water. She smiled and said something in Japanese. The young man who was with her swam up the pool calling out "Hanzashi" which I was told means bashful. So I left.
I hadn't intended to get swimming right then anyway.

Snow-Covered Christmas Tree

For a glistening, snow-capped Christmas tree, cover the branches with fluffy, homemade "snow." Empty a package of soap flakes into a galvanized steel pail. Add warm water gradually, beating with a rotary beater until thick and fluffy. Spread suds on the tree with a large spoon. For a sparkling effect, sprinkle wet "snow" with shiny powdered mica. When dry, trim the tree with lights and other decorations. The "snow" helps to keep the branches green and fire-resistant, as does standing the base of the tree in a galvanized steel pail or tub filled with water or wet sand.

BOYCE HOUSE SAYS

On old-timer swears that, in his youth, he lassoed a big steer on the bank of the Llano river and just as the catch was made, the steer jerked the slack out of the rope and the cowboy's expensive watch out of his pocket into a deep hole of water which was known as the home of big fish.

Ten years later, he returned to the same spot to fish and he snagged a bass that weighed at least ten pounds. The fish had a large knot on its jaw and the man was about to throw the fish back when he decided to investigate the swelling. Well, sir, it was caused by the presence of that watch.

Moreover, the watch's stem had become so entangled in the fish's gills so that it was wound each time the fish breathed—and had lost only 10 seconds in 10 years.

AFTER SURRENDER
Ernest Ingenito, above, 25-year-old war veteran, is seen after his capture by New Jersey state police following his wild shooting spree, in which five of his estranged wife's relatives were killed and four others, including the wife, were seriously wounded. Trapped while driving his car near Malaga, N. J., after the escapade, Ingenito surrendered without firing a shot, rather pleaded with troopers to "go ahead and kill me." (NEA Photo).

YOU CAN'T WIN ... by Yourself!

There's still a lot of fighting to be done. There are things that need to be stopped, things that need to be changed, things that need to be avoided. You KNOW it.

But are you going to try to lick the world by yourself? Of course not. Not after what YOU'VE learned about TEAMWORK. You know America's problems can be licked with teamwork.

That's why ten thousand ex-service men and women from World War II are joining The American Legion every day. That's why we know you'll want to be a Legionnaire.

What are the sorts of things local posts do? They provide equipment for hospitals... they distribute food and funds to the needy... they provide counselling service for veterans and their families. They do these things and many more in every line of civic improvement.

The Legion program is an eminently worthwhile course of action. Stop in at your local post and see what's going on. They'll have the membership blank YOU'LL WANT TO FILL OUT. There's nothing like being a member of a winning team... a team making history every day.

Eleven Class A Grid Teams Repeat As District Champions This Year

By United Press
Eleven repeaters were among the 32 Class A schoolboy football teams poised today for the opening round of the five-week championship playoff which will determine a successor for 1949 champion Littlefield.

The champion wasn't among them, for the heralded Wildcats were bounced out of their own district by Levelland. Neither was 1948 titlist Monahan, the first champion ever crowned in the small school division.

For two of the 11—La Vega and New Braunfels—it will mark the third straight year in the playoffs, and both are hoping the third time will be a charm.

Other repeaters from last year were Spur, Ranger, Arlington, Atlanta, Mineola, Mexia, Brenham, Alvin and Beaumont French. Three others—Mount Vernon, Athens and Huntsville—were around for the 1948 bi-district round but didn't make it last year.

Pairings have been completed for all of the 16 bi-district games this week, six of which will be played Thursday and Thursday night, and the other Friday and Friday.

A haze of doubt still hung over one district berth—16-A—where the district committee named Atlanta in a secret ballot over DeKalb after the clubs played to a 13-13 tie and finished tied for the title. DeKalb Coach, John Bray, said he would protest the selection to the Texas Interscholastic League on the grounds his club had the best statistical record in the tie game.

Three of this week's pairings repeat games played earlier in the year: Mount Vernon vs. Atlanta, La Vega vs. Mexia and Georgetown vs. Llano. Mt. Vernon won the early game 21-6, La Vega nipped Mexia 7-0 and Georgetown beat Llano 18-0.

La Vega boasted the top offensive and defensive records among the 32 survivors from the field of 220 teams which started play Sept. 1. The Pirates had rolled up 443 points to the opposition's 432 points.

Both were among 14 teams on the list which had held the opposition to a touchdown or less per game. The others were Shamrock, Levelland, Kermit, Olney, Newcastle, Athens, Mount Vernon, Mexia, Georgetown, Brenham, Alvin, French and Donna.

Kermit, Olney, Arlington, Mt. Vernon, La Vega, Georgetown, Brenham and Pearsall finished their seasons unbeaten and untied. New Braunfels, Alvin, French and Wharton were unbeaten but tied.

Here's how they line up this week:

- Hereford (1-A) vs. Shamrock (2-A) at Pampa, Friday.
- Spur (3-A) vs. Levelland (4-A) at Lubbock, Thursday.
- Kermit (5-A) vs. Colorado City (6-A) at Odessa, Thursday.
- Coleman (7-A) vs. Ranger (8-A) at Coleman, Thursday.
- Albany (9-A) vs. Olney (10-A) at Olney, Friday.
- Newcastle (11-A) vs. Arlington (12-A) at Fort Worth, Thursday.
- Athens (13-A) vs. Mineola (14-

A) at Mineola, Thursday, Mount Vernon (15-A) vs. Atlanta (16-A) at Longview, Friday.

Jacksonville (17-A) vs. Huntsville (18-A) at Jacksonville, Friday.

Mexia (19-A) vs. La Vega (20-A) at Waco, Thursday.

Georgetown (21-A) vs. Llano (22-A) at Lampasas, Friday.

Brenham (23-A) vs. New Braunfels (24-A) at New Braunfels, Friday.

Alvin (25-A) vs. Beaumont French (26-A) at Alvin, Friday.

Wharton (27-A) vs. Karnes City (28-A) at Karnes City, Friday.

Sinton (29-A) vs. Donna (30-A) at Donna, Friday.
