HST Not Too Worried About Labor Break

PRES. PRAISES AGREEMENT OF TRAINMEN, RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, March 1 (UP)—President Truman today reiterated his full confidence in defense mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, and he told a news conference that he did not regard as very serious organized labor's sharp break with the administration of the defense mobilization program.

At his weekly meeting with reporters, the President for the most part was cautious about making any specific statement on the action of the united labor policy committee in directing the withdrawal of all labor representation from federal defense agencies.

In response to a question, he said he did not regard labor's action as a very serious development in the mobilization program.

Asked whether he felt confident that labor by and large would continue to meet defense production needs, the President said that the present emergency program is one that will help keep the nation prosperous and that this prosperity affects all groups, including labor, business, agriculture and the white collar workers.

Asked whether he expected labor representatives to return to the mobilization agencies, he said he would tell the reporters about that in a couple of weeks.

He was asked whether this indicated that he would sit on the problem that long before acting. The President had a dual answer—he said first it might be one week or three months, but that he never sat on any problem and that actually he was not posing any specific time limit.

The chief executive said the labor crisis in no way would affect his plans to leave tomorrow for more than three weeks in Key West, Fla.

At the outset of his conference, the President praised the 15 non-operating railroad unions, a railroad management for reaching an agreement this morning through collective bargaining without the threat of strikes.

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin conferred with the President this morning and then accompanied him to the news conference, but the President would not discuss their talk.

The President brushed aside an inquiry about any possible change in the status of defense mobilizer Wilson, telling a reporter that he was not aware of any labor objection to Wilson's tenure in office.

Later, asked whether Wilson still had his full confidence, the President said yes. He would not say what he planned to do about the three labor vacancies on the wage stabilization board.

The angry break, stewing for days, came last night. The united labor policy committee, representing 15,000,000 AFL and CIO members, ordered 14 representatives to leave advisory posts in the government's defense and manpower program.

They left with a bitter blast at Mr. Truman's top officials, defense mobilizer Charles E. Wilson and economic stabilizer Eric A. Johnston.

The committee issued a long statement which made it apparent that only President Truman could restore harmony, but whether that meant ouster of Wilson or forcing a change in his policies was uncertain.

THE WEATHER

March may have blown in like a lion over a large part of the nation, but it made a meek and mild entrance into Texas today. There was no sign of the fierce storm that was whipping wind and heavy snow eastward across the United States.

Thursday in Texas was warm and mild, following a mild Wednesday. There were only two freezing points in the state overnight.

Dalhart recorded 29 degrees and Lubbock, 31. Temperatures Wednesday were generally in the 70's throughout the state but Abilene had a high of 92 degrees.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said afternoon temperatures today will be in the 60's. The forecast for East Texas called for a partly cloudy to cloudy day with occasional light drizzle.

The weatherman said it would be generally fair Thursday afternoon and night and Friday in West Texas.

Mayor Sets Public Schools Week Here

(Below is an official memorandum by Mayor W. W. Linkenhogger concerning Public Schools Week.)

GREETINGS:

As we take inventory of our blessings and accomplishments we view with satisfaction the progress that has been made in education, the basis of which is our public school system.

The little red school house which was the symbol of public education a century ago expanded into a network of elementary and high schools, junior colleges and state colleges.

It has been a great cooperative venture. Both state and local governments have made their contributions. We like to believe that through their joint efforts the opportunities afforded our children for a sound basic education are not excelled anywhere. If we are justified in this conclusion it is only because our citizens have shown a personal interest in education and because public-spirited men and women have been willing to devote their lives to the teaching of our youth.

It is of paramount importance that this civic interest be strengthened and that those in the teaching profession be supported and encouraged in their efforts. One of the best ways of accomplishing these results is for each citizen to know the public school system. The best way to know it is to keep in constant touch with it.

THEREFORE, I, as Mayor of the City of Eastland, Texas, do hereby designate the week of March 4 to March 10, 1951, as Public Schools Week, and urge every citizen to visit a public school during this period to become personally acquainted with the programs and accomplishments of our educational system.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 17th day of Feb., 1951.

W. W. Linkenhogger
Mayor of the City of Eastland, Texas

Houston Probes Cause Of High Water Bills

HOUSTON, Tex., March 1 (UP)—Underpaid and overworked water meter readers may be the reason for the high water bills of many Houston residents, Mayor Pro-Tem George Marquette, Jr., said today.

Marquette, who was named by Mayor Oscar Holcombe to head a committee to investigate the cause of skyhigh water bills, said there are only 20 meter readers for the city.

"Six of them are classed as junior readers and are paid $200 monthly, and the rest $220," Marquette said.

"They are supposed to read 275 meters each day and that's a lot." The investigation was touched off after scores of residents complained their water bill was normal one month, but would be 10 times higher the next month. Marquette said another question his committee wanted answered is why the city allows so much water to be wasted by leakage.

The Pitometer Company of New York reported today that four waste water surveys made of Houston's 1203 miles of water lines during the past two years uncovered a total leakage of 4,380,000 gallons daily.

'NEXT YEAR I'LL SEND OUR SALARY, BILLS, CHILDREN AND YOU SEND US THE TAXES,' BROKE CITIZEN OFFERS INCOME TAX DEPT.

WASHINGTON, March 1 (UP)—The income tax people got a letter the other day in which a taxpayer complained that he had just 30 cents left after paying off. He added a post-script:

"Next year I'll send you our salary and bills and children and you can send us the taxes. We'd be way ahead."

That's just a sample of the notes that come into Internal Revenue headquarters here. Some of the letters are a feeble attempt at humor, other are posed in apparent sincerity.

A fellow cut west mailed in his return and glued a frizzy sample of his own hair to his form. The notation said: "You have scalped me."

A tax payer in Dallas reported earnings of $3,500 in his return. He listed his wife and seven children as dependants, noting that nine exemptions at $500 per head add up to $4,500. Please refund add up to $4,500. Please refund $1,000. It took four back-and-fourth letters to show him the light.

Co-Pilot Falls Out Of Plane Near Amarillo

DALLAS, Tex., March 1 (UP)—The co-pilot of a Denver-bound airliner fell to his death early today while trying to close a rear door which had come ajar.

Spokesman for the Pioneer Airlines here said co-pilot Joseph H. Dowd disappeared from the plane as it flew about 45 miles north of Amarillo, Tex., near the community of Exell.

Officers from Amarillo launched a search for Dowd's body. The plane was carrying 20 Air Force men on a military charter flight from Lackland Air Base at San Antonio to Denver.

Captain Glenn C. Edds, pilot of the twin-engine DC-3, said he noticed shortly before 3 a.m. that an instrument panel light indicated the rear door of the ship was not shut properly.

Dowd went to investigate. A minute later, Edds said, he felt the plane lurch. He awakened a soldier sleeping near the flight deck and asked him to find out what the trouble was.

The soldier reported the co-pilot was missing from the plane. Dowd, father of one child, lived at Dallas. A native of Miami, Fla., he served as an Air Force pilot during World War II.

Airline spokesman said the accident occurred shortly after the plane took off from Amarillo where Edds and Dowd took over the controls from another crew. All of the soldiers aboard the ship were asleep when the accident occurred.

Boost For Old Age Pension Draws Tussle In Legislature

AUSTIN, Tex., March 1 (UP)—Backers of a program to boost old age pensions in Texas won their first floor tussle of the 52nd session today by a six-vote margin.

Hearing on a proposed constitutional amendment to lift the present $55,000,000 ceiling on welfare grants was held yesterday by the House Committee on Constitutional Amendments. However, the committee took no action.

Rep. Doyle Willis of Ft. Worth, author of the amendment, caustically accused the committee of delaying tactics and demanded that his measure be sent to the House Committee on Agriculture, a group headed by Rep. Lamar Zivley of Temple.

Zivley has proposed an old age pension amendment almost identical with that authored by Willis, and a favorable hearing by his committee appeared assured. Rep. Franklin Perry of Angleton, Chairman of the Constitutional Amendments Committee, challenged Willis.

"The Agriculture Committee," he told the House, "has been doing a good job, but it has no more business with a constitutional amendment than the constitutional amendments committee has with an agricultural bill."

Willis snapped back that, "here's a good time to see whether we're going to live up to our obligations and help the old people." Rep. Anthony Fenoglio of Nacogoches said the committee action was "another attempt to push the old folks around."

On the final vote, moving the pension measure to the agriculture committee, Willis won by a vote of 72 to 56.

Attorney Freed Of Murder Charge

SAN ANGELO, Tex., March 1 (UP)—A district court jury which deliberated two hours last night found former district attorney O'Neal Dendy not guilty of murdering Ray Elmo Canada, a tenant on one of his farms.

The trial had attracted a capacity crowd of 400 persons daily since it began last Monday. The state had sought the death penalty for Dendy, who resigned his prosecutor's post after the shooting on a farm north of here last Jan. 16.

The slaying followed an argument over some damaged feed. Defense witnesses testified Dendy shot Canada after the tenant farmer grabbed him. Canada's widow testified her husband was shot as he approached a house where Dendy had stopped briefly.

First Woman To Work In Hangar Shop Thinks It Can Be Romantic

BY ELIZABETH TOOMEY
TETERBORO, N. J., Feb. 28 (UP)—The fly boys may be deflated, but Elsie Changelon confided that working around an automatic pilot can be a very romantic thing.

She's the first girl ever hired to work at the hangar shop of the Bendix Aviation Corp. Here, so she's gotten close to the maze of wires and cables that make up the very unromantic looking automatic pilots.

She climbed down out of the nose of an experimental B-25, wearing slacks and a striped jersey blouse, to talk about her job, and stood looking surprisingly dainty and helpless beside the plane.

The romance, she explained, comes into the picture because of the all-male world that surrounds aircraft mechanics and engineering.

"Nobody stays in the automatic pilot laboratory long," she said. "They all get husbands."

The 32-year-old slim brunette technician has been a widow for four years. She started her novel job to support her two children.

But I'm getting married in June," she confessed with a blush. "He's an engineer in the laboratory."

In case, any girls want to follow in her footsteps, Elsie pointed out that being able to repair the broken light cord at home had nothing to do with being a talented airplane technician.

"I can't fix a thing at home, and I'd never thought of working on airplanes. I never even liked them," she said. "But now I find it the most satisfying work I've ever done, and I've tried being a secretary, a waitress and a seamstress."

The first tough problem they handed her at the hangar was a radio, which had to be installed in a small plane. Since she was the first woman on the crew, the men were mildly dubious of her ability.

"They gave me a booklet and this radio, and I just sat and looked at it for a long time," she admitted. "Finally I figured out that one was a transmitter and certain wires went to that. I got it in with no mistakes, so then the fellows knew I could do the work."

The biggest plane she's worked on so far is an Army C-97.

"I'd never even seen one so big. It had 49 seats," Elsie said with frank admiration. "I even had a downstair." She installed an automatic pilot in the plane.

All of this should be enough to awe a ten-year-old daughter and a five-year-old son. But Elsie just grinned when she was asked if her children were impressed.

"They want to come out and see me at the hangar, but just for one reason," she said. "Arthur Godfrey keeps his plane in the hangar across the street. They want to see that."

Secret Report Reveals US Artillery Almost Knocked Out Chinese Earlier

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, Feb. 28 (UP)—Devastating American artillery almost knocked the Chinese Communists out of the Korean war before they got into it in force, a hitherto secret report revealed today.

The first large-scale battle between the Chinese and United Nations troops was an all-night fight for Unsan last Nov. 1. The Americans didn't even know they were fighting Chinese. They thought it was a last-gasp try by the defeated North Korean army.

The secret report said the U.S. artillery barrage left more enemy dead than any engagement since, including the current "Operation Killer."

What would have happened if the UN artillery hadn't run out of ammunition is a guess. But the big guns held the "human sea" of Chinese back from our lines for 3 hours and 50 minutes and chances are they would still be holding if the ammunition had held out.

The artillery barrage included 155 mm howitzers, 90 mm anti-aircraft guns and chemical mortars. During the barrage, 1,982 rounds of ammunition kept the Communist cavalry and foot soldiers rocking.

When the artillery stopped, the "human sea" of Chinese flowed over UN lines.

The day after the battle, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that Red China had sneaked into Korea and started a "new war." The series of UN withdrawals from the Manchurian border followed.

Col. W. H. Henning of Glen Rock, N. J., commander of the artillery group, said 1,000 Chinese cavalrymen and their horses were destroyed in the barrage.

"When we knocked out the cavalry, which looked like the last fanatical charge of the defeated North Koreans, we expected the infantry attack would be easily repulsed," Henning said. "But we were up against the Chinese, not North Koreans, and no matter how many we slaughtered, more just kept pouring down on us."

"As long as the ammo lasted, we held them at bay. But as one battery after another fell silent, another hole was made for the Chinese to rush through. The infantry fell back. I ordered what artillery was out of ammo to withdraw while those able to fire kept up the bombardment.

"Firing batteries leaptfrogged back, with one unit providing some artillery support all the time," Henning said. "The withdrawal at night under blackout conditions and under small arms attack by the enemy, over a road which the artillery could barely negotiate under ideal conditions when it moved north eight days earlier, was made without losing a man or any equipment."

TENNESSEE DAIRIES MILK NOW AT YOUR GROCERY

Every drop of Tennessee Dairies milk is guarded as though I expected my own babies to drink it.
MILK—NATURE'S MOST NEARLY PERFECT FOOD
Milk is best for growing boys and girls because it's irradiated with Vitamin D—the sunshine vitamin that puts strength in bones and soundness in teeth. But who—child or grownups—drink milk for the vitamins? You'll like Tennessee milk for the simple reason that it tastes so good—is richer in cream—and gives you a real pick-up at any time of day.

Shifting Insurance Burdens—
... has long been a custom of the American public, and it's a good custom. Don't try to carry the load of financial risks against loss yourself, but shift it to your local agent and let insurance do it. Your losses may be hours or years away but meanwhile insurance will give you mental peace that is worth far more than it costs. Loss or no loss, you win either way—with insurance.

If It's Insurance, We Write It.
