Trumpler Petroleum Corp. No. 1 W. H. Hughes Estate, a wildcat, five miles west of Rising Star has been plugged and abandoned at 1,849 feet.

No Department Seen For Thug

WASHINGTON, April 2 (UP)—The Justice Department has formally advised Senate Crime investigators that Frank "The Boss" Costello cannot be deported to his native Italy, officials said today.

The department gave its formal legal finding in a letter to Crime Committee chairman Estes Kefauver, D., Tenn. Kefauver has asked for a formal statement on the matter.

The letter, prepared by Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford, made the finding that there is now no law under which Costello—named by the committee as the co-leader with Joe Adonis of one of the nation's two major crime syndicates can be deported as suggested by several committee members.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and immigration commissioner J. R. Mackey had told the committee as much in a public hearing, but promised to look further into the matter and come up with a formal finding.

Sen. Charles W. Tobey, R., N. H., claims Costello perpetrated several frauds when he was naturalized—that he had not stated he was arrested once and that two of his sponsors were bootleggers.

Fire Destroys Building

HOUSTON, April 2 (UP)—A fire destroyed a building at the University of Houston Frontier Fiesta Village today and damaged two others before firemen brought it under control.

Quick work by the fire fighters kept the blaze from sweeping through the entire village, where the annual Frontier Fiesta will open tomorrow night.

RITA DENIES ALL RUMORS

NEW YORK, April 2 (UP)—Red-haired Rita Hayworth denied today that she had parted from her husband, Prince Ali Khan, but in the next breath said she had "no idea when we'll get together again."

Miss Hayworth arrived aboard the French line Degrease, after a two-and-one half year absence from the United States.

The first thing she wanted was a hot dog, she said.

There was "absolutely no truth" to reports that she and her fabulously wealthy Moslem husband drifted apart. She last talked to him by telephone from Paris to Beirut Africa just before she left France. Asked what they had talked about, she said, "that's personal."

"How personal?" "Much, much too personal." Miss Hayworth said she had no plans to make a movie and that she intended to stay in New York indefinitely. Reports that she and Ali Khan had discussed a new movie for here were "completely new to me."

She brought her two children, Rebecca, 6, and Yasmine, 15 months.

Rebecca, daughter of Miss Hayworth's former husband, Orson Wells, had a rocking horse accident while aboard ship. Her lower lip was cut and bruised.

Want To Subpena Mr. Allen Now

AUSTIN, April 2 (UP)—The mayor of Austin said today he would ask a Travis County grand jury to subpoena William Prescott Allen, Laredo publisher who said last week crime in the capital city was a shamb and disgrace to the nation.

City officials denied the charges.

Impanelling of the grand jury began today. Mayor Taylor Glass said he imagined "the jury would want to call Allen, anyway, but I want to make sure."

He said he would either appear formally before the jury or make his request by letter.

"If Allen knows something about Austin or the people here, he should tell it. And before the grand jury is the proper place to say it."

The grand jury was also expected to receive a request that west coast gambler Mickey Cohen be cited for contempt of the House Crime Committee. However, county authorities indicated it might be several days before the investigating group would formally act.

Wreck Kills Slaton Man

LUBBOCK, April 2 (UP)—Jack Cleveland, 26, of Slaton, died at a hospital here last night of injuries received earlier Sunday when his automobile overturned six miles southeast of Lubbock.

12 Mavericks Participate In Graham Relays

Coach Wendell Siebert took 12 athletes to the Possum Kingdom relays in Graham, Saturday, where they competed with such high schools as Wichita Falls, Breckenridge, Graham, North Side of Fort Worth, and Cleburne, among others.

Cleburne came out winner of the meet by a fraction of a point over Wichita Falls. The competition was too tough for the Eastland boys and they were unable to make any points. A bad break in the 440 yard sprint relay possibly kept the Mavericks from finishing in the running in the event. The baton was dropped in a hand-off just when it appeared the Mavericks were in the thick of the running.

Eddie Haines finished first in his heat in the 120 yard high hurdles, but his time was not fast enough to qualify. Edwin Aaron finished second in his heat of the 100 yard dash, and Derrell Black was second in his heat of the 220 yard dash, but neither time was good enough for the qualifying.

Dick Evatt's 17 feet 9 inches broad jump, was three inches short of the qualifying mark in that event.

Others making the trip for Eastland were: Norman Watson and James Allison, 440 yard dash; Larry Miller in the sprint relay and the broad jump; Rodney Stephen in the 200 yard hurdles; Doug King and Bob Womack in the discus throw; Morris Riggan and Bob Burdick in the mile run.

Eastland tracksters are to participate in the district 8-A meet at Hamilton, Thursday, where they are expected to make a good showing.

Hospital Fund Winds Up Winner

The Eastland Hospital Fund benefited from the Trade's Day event held Saturday in the city.

Mrs. J. M. Alford, 107 West Plummer St., was the winner of an $5 award which she immediately donated to the hospital fund. Mr. Alford has recently returned home from a Ranger hospital where he underwent treatment.

Falling Pipe Kills Worker

SNYDER, April 2 (UP)—Paul R. Stalling, 28, of Winnsboro, was killed yesterday when struck on the head by a piece of pipe falling from atop of an oil derrick.

The four-foot length of three-inch pipe fell 86 feet to strike Stalling and a co-worker, J. F. Green, whose shoulder was fractured.

The accident occurred at a drilling site 15 miles north of Snyder.

Intensive Search On For Plane

WICHITA FALLS, April 2 (UP)—Intensive aerial search was underway here today for a rented airplane and its pilot who disappeared after taking off at 2 p.m. Saturday.

N. F. Lowell, County Chief of Aviation for the civilian defense organization, said 10 private planes were operating out of Wichita Falls in the search and would be joined by about 30 units from Dallas.

Object of the search is a silver and yellow plane rented Saturday by an unidentified flyer who presumably was going on a local pleasure hop.

The plane was rented by a man who came to Gilchrist Air Field in a taxi and took off without giving his name. Lowell said the man flew from Gilchrist to Kell Field and there filled the light plane with gasoline.

Lowell and Bob Gilchrist, who owned the plane, said the unknown flyer could have (1) stolen the plane, (2) Taken off on a long flight, or (3) crashed.

REDS MASSING FRESH TROOPS FOR NEW SPRING OFFENSIVE

TOKYO, April 2 (UP)—Tank-tipped U. S. patrols for the third straight day shot their way north of Korea's 38th Parallel today through Chinese rear guards screening a big Communist offensive build up.

One tank patrol Northeast of Seoul penetrated at least two miles beyond the Parallel into Communist North Korea before returning to the main American lines just south of the pre-war frontier for the night.

Front dispatches said other "American scouts" rolled a mile north of the Parallel to the Yongpyongchon river, also northeast of Seoul.

More Texans Killed In 'Police Action'

WASHINGTON, April 2 (UP)—Ten Texans were listed as wounded or missing in action in a Defense Department announcement of casualties in Korea today.

Casualty list No. 266 also reported two Texas servicemen injured, one returned to duty and another returned to military control.

The names were: Wounded—Marine Corps: Pvt. 1-c Robert W. Dixon of Dallas; Pvt. 1-c William K. Jaye of Austin; Pvt. 1-c James L. Lyons of Bowie; Sgt. Alan C. Norton of Mission; Pvt. Qxc Arthur L. Reid, Houston.

Injured—Army: Pvt. 1-c Rodolfo C. Duran, Corpus Christi; Capt. Delmar E. Ward of Fort Worth.

Missing in action—Army: Pvt. 1-c Warnell A. Fogle of Waco; Pvt. 1-c Rubin F. Garza, Laredo; Sgt. Cloma Marshall, of Tyler; Pvt. 1-c William R. Spiller of Freeport; Pvt. Henry L. Webb of Denison.

Returned to duty—Army: Cpl. Harry H. Fox of Galveston (previously wounded in action.)

Returned to military control—Army: Pvt. 1-c Charles R. Broom of Jacksboro (previously prisoner of war).

Soldiers Will Wear Sateen

WASHINGTON, April 2 (UP)—It will still be a man's Army, but future GI's will go into combat wearing sateen.

Sateen resembles satin and is normally used for dresses, linings and corsets.

Limited buying of sateen fatigue uniforms already is underway, the army told a reporter. Eventually sateen will be used for all fatigue uniforms, a spokesman said.

He said sateen was chosen after a long search for a sturdy material because it will wear twice as long as the present material, heringbone twill.

CINCINNATI GETS URANIUM REFINERY—Civil engineer J. F. Chandler points to 1200-acre project site of $30,000,000 uranium ore refinery to be built 19 miles northwest of Cincinnati, O. Atomic Energy Commission's Wilbur Kelly said no atomic weapons would be made at the site and there would be no toxic or radiological hazards. Construction will begin soon.

On the east coast, the South Korean Capitol Division sent patrols roaming 12 miles north of the Parallel. The Division crossed the old frontier in force last week.

Only on the Central Front were the Chinese Reds fighting hard to keep the 8th Army from the Parallel. Chinese entrenched on high ground north of Chunchon all but stalled the Allies three to five miles from the former boundary.

It is on the Central front that the Reds are expected to unleash their all-out spring offensive in an attempt to split and break through the United Nations' line.

The Chinese were reported massing 40 to 45 divisions—more than 300,000 men—for the assault. Some 2,300 or more Communist vehicles were spotted from the air last night moving up supplies and reinforcements. It was the heaviest enemy traffic of the war.

Allied air fleets ripped into the supply columns both by night and day. At least 150 vehicles were destroyed or damaged in a little more than 12 hours.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur warned his daily communique of the ominous increase in Communist traffic. He said the majority of vehicles delivered their cargoes to Chorwon-Kumhwa-Hwachon triangle just north of the 38th Parallel behind the Central front.

All signs pointed to an impending Chinese attempt to break through the center of the line with "human sea" tactics such as rolled back the 8th Army 60 miles last New Year's Eve.

An 8th Army communique reported only "light scattered enemy resistance" along the front today.

U. S. tanks and infantry crossed the Parallel on the West-Central sector northwest of Seoul at mid-morning yesterday for the third time in two days. They routed two small Chinese rear-guard forces dug in south and west of the village of Yangong.

The Chinese were caught with their mortars pointing in the wrong direction. Expecting a re-petition of Saturday's crossing along a main highway, the Chinese still were facing west when the American Armored team hit them from their eastern flank.

The lull in heavy fighting was reflected in the 8th Army's claim of only 295 Communist troops killed or wounded and 47 prisoners taken Sunday—the lowest casualty claim since the Allies began their northward march Jan. 25.

The war appeared to be entering an at temporary stalemate. U. S. Defense Secretary George C. Marshall has said there will be no general 8th Army advance north of the Parallel at this time.

Cut Back In Tires Expected

WASHINGTON, April 2 (UP)—The government is expected today to ban spare tires on new automobiles as part of a general cutback in the civilian use of rubber.

Truman's 'Police Action' Keeps MacArthur And State Department At Sword Point Most of Time

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press Foreign News Editor

If this were a war instead of a "police action" in Korea, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the U.S. State Department would be getting along famously right now instead of being at sword points.

The intervention of the United States and the United Nations in Korea last spring was more of a diplomatic move than it was a military one. Some American officials undoubtedly harbored the hope that it would never be necessary for us to fight the North Koreans. They reasoned that an expression of world opinion, through the UN, would be enough to stop the North Korean Communists in their tracks.

It didn't. President Truman ordered the U.S. Air Force to support the South Korean Army. Then he ordered ground troops into action, but was careful to say that we were engaging in a "police action", not a war. Actually what the United States did last June was to take a diplomatic position—we served notice on Moscow that we would not allow any more small countries to be knocked over by international Communism. Fighting the North Korean Army was incidental to the strong diplomatic stand that Washington took. Thus it is impossible to separate diplomatic from military matters; the two not only are tied into the same knot but are woven into the cord that makes up the knot.

The State Department cannot discuss diplomatic problems without touching on military matters, MacArthur cannot discuss military strategy without touching on diplomatic matters. What makes the situation so tense at the moment is that both the State Department and MacArthur are facing problems that demand immediate solution:

The State Department—is under strong pressure from our Allies, particularly Britain, to try to negotiate a settlement with the Chinese Communists. Talks on how to accomplish that have been going on for some time and were nearing a climax when MacArthur without advance notice to Washington, issued an invitation to the enemy commander to meet him for battle-field negotiations. Thirteen nations besides the United States are represented in the U.N. Army in Korea. It always takes longer for a coalition to reach a decision than it does for an individual nation. Whatever the Allies do—they probably will issue a statement of United Nations aims in Korea and see how Red China reacts—must be done unanimously. There can't be any dissenting opinions handed down in international diplomacy.

MacArthur—has problems just

THE STORY: Lavinia Grenable, uncompromising and sinister old haridan, has dominated her family for many years. And now Lisa Farwell, a neighbor, has agreed to become the wife of Courtney Grenable, Lavinia's eldest son. Lisa's father, Henry Farwell, knowing Lavinia's twisted character, warns his daughter: "To marry a Grenable is to marry Lavinia." Unwilling to heed her father's words, Lisa goes off to her car to think out her problem. Sitting in the car near the Grenable home, Lisa recalls her youthful adoration of Courtney Grenable and the sudden blossoming of the romance. Her reply to her father's warning had been: "I love Court."

in the old coach house . . . the coach house! It was as if someone had slapped her. What had Court said last night about remodeling the coach house for a temporary home? She couldn't live there, she decided bleakly. Somehow she would explain it to him.

"And Elizabeth," her father was going on fiercely. "You've seen her frustrated and domineered at every opportunity, by her own sister. What do you think she would do to a daughter-in-law?"

ELIZABETH STRATTON, Lisa knew, had long been a favorite with her father, there had been times in the last few years when she had teased him and pleasantly let him know that any plans he had toward Elizabeth were all right with his daughter. But after a visit with Elizabeth he always appeared thoughtful, even worried, often very angry.

"Why haven't you married Elizabeth, Dad?" she asked now, suddenly.

"Because she has refused me," he said quietly. "She thinks it's too late for her to escape Lavinia."

He was watching her carefully. "You think that's an exaggeration. It is not. Lavinia Grenable is an evil woman. She brings evil to everything she touches."

"But Lavinia loves Court!" Lisa protested. "He's her own son."

"So is Andrew."

Lisa could not miss the ominous quality in his words.

All Hilton knew what Lavinia had done to her youngest son. Young and in love three years ago, he had brought down his mother's disapproval.

Lavinia Grenable worked underground like some obnoxious, boring animal eating away at the roots of life until they were destroyed and the stem of fruition killed. In Andrew's instance she owned by the girl's father. Andrew, in a frantic effort to explain, drove Ellen out of town in his car. It was in the spring and it had been raining. Andrew had ignored the fog and there had been a collision. Andrew was injured, too. But the girl, Ellen, died at the hospital. He never saw her again.

Lisa shivered. "Court said his mother approves of me," she said faintly. "He's coming here for dinner tonight, then we're going to see her this evening. He's going to tell her today. You might as well get used to the idea," she said desperately.

Henry Farwell shifted his gaze through the sunlit window and his eyes, generally mild and candid, darkened and hid behind a fathomless gravity. He said, very slowly, "She'll never give him up. Hate or love, she possesses everything and everyone around her. I'd give my life, Lisa, to keep you away from her . . . and from Court."

RECALLING the scene with her father, Lisa had not realized how long she had been sitting on the road in her car. Her slim fingers ached from their fierce grip on the steering wheel.

She made a nice picture in the low, green convertible, a slender, blue-eyed, yellow-haired girl dressed in a clinging gray sport dress with a bright scarf around her throat.

Before her, across the clearing, the wood road stretched dark in the sunset. She stared at the Grenable house. What did she expect to find answered here on this deserted road from that wildly incongruous heap of architecture, hunched like an evil watchdog over the woods and ravines?

Then behind her, the high-pitched wall of Fort Sheridan's guardhouse announced that another prisoner had escaped. Nervously, Lisa glanced over her shoulder half-frightened, for escaped prisoners more than once took this same road to the highway farther west.

Lisa's eyes returned again to the Grenable house, where Court lived with his mother.

as pressing. His army is deployed in territory that is not a natural defensive position. If he stops, he loses the momentum of a successful offensive and gives the Communists a breathing spell in which to recoup their losses. That violates an elementary rule of military strategy. He has been told he can cross the 38th Parallel to safeguard the security of the U.S. Eighth Army, but there always is the implied admonition not to go too far. Nobody in authority has told him how far he might go. On at least three occasions he has asked for specific instructions without getting a definitive answer.

The bright side of the picture is that there probably is just as much controversy going on inside the camp of the enemy as their is in our own. Our controversy looms larger because it is discussed daily in the press and radio of the free world.

Yankee Killer Is Enroute To Washington, D.C.

By Harman W. Nichols
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, April 2 (UP)—The bugs on Capital Hill had better ske-daddle.

Killer Miller is coming to town. Miller the killer is Jay D., of Brooklyn, the man no bug loves—the man who once proved his worth by taking Washington by storm with jaygal, or bug-killer stuff.

I wasn't here at the time, but in 1945, Killer Miller sprayed his killer business around the offices of "Honest" Ikes when the Secretary of Interior was up to his ears in bugs. Not a cockroach pulled through.

Later, Mr. M. came back and un-bugged one of the restaurants in the Pentagon with astonishing results.

Yes, Miller is coming back and he'll bet a fat sum and maybe give odds that after he gets through his business you can't find a single roach on the House side of the Capitol.

"After I do that," the cocky enemy of cockroaches said, "I'll start on the Senate side—after bugs, not men. I'm not a politician."

Miller claims all sorts of things for his project. Like the stuff will kill bugs, not people.

What goes into this wonder powder? The killer says the answer is simple.

"Boric acid," he explained. "Sixty-eight per cent boric acid, 32 per cent inert ingredients."

"The inerters are the secret. Something special to coax a pest into eating boric acid—a thing that makes a bug sick and in a dying mood."

"Ordinarily, an insect doesn't like boric acid. The secret stuff makes him crave it like a kid starves for candy."

The killer has been around. He made a big hit in 1946 when he went to Atlanta, Ga. That's where he coined the word "in-sect-osis!"

He was proud of it, and the Atlanta Journal quoted the killer as saying "ain't dat a woid for you?"

Killer Miller turned his cockroaches cocktail loose on Atlanta. The results never were learned, but let it be said for the record that not since the visit of Mr. M. have we had any frightening cockroach stories out of Atlanta.

Killer Miller came to America from Russia and would like to have you know that he is American—not Russian.

He learned to read by studying the labels on canned goods.

He claims that when he was six he got himself a job selling beds which were not vermin free. So at that point, he says, he figured out his bug killer.

E. E. Wood is a patient in Ranger General Hospital, where he went Saturday after having been ill at his home here for the past week.

Soldiers Eat Good Food In Army According To Latest Reports

By Elizabeth Toomey
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, April 2 (UP)—

Boys in the army may dream hungrily of mom's cooking, but chances are they're better fed in the chow line than at the family dinner table.

Dr. Roy E. Morse, a brave young chemist, said so, though he was quick to add that he didn't mean it tasted better.

"Men in the armed services are the best fed group in the country today," said Dr. Morse, who heads Monsanto Chemical Company's food technology laboratory in Anniston, Ala. "The average family's meat, potato, vegetable and apple pie diet still is inadequate."

The 34-year-old chemist thinks women could help by checking up on the necessary calories, vitamins needs and then picking more varied foods to include all the essential elements. Husbands should do a little checking too, he added, "so they can demand proper diets."

"One of the ways I think we can lick the problem in the future is to find out what is missing in certain foods and add missing elements through chemistry," Dr. Morse explained. "Enriched bread is one example."

In connection with company's work in developing better food preservatives, Dr. Morse collected figures to show just what this country is eating these days. "The item that increased the most in use over a year's time was frozen orange juice," he explained. "We eat fewer fresh fruits and vegetables than we did, but more canned and frozen varieties."

Even though the annual milk consumption has increased, the amount of milk drunk by individuals has gone down, Dr. Morse said, since the population increased faster than the milk supply.

"That's another thing more grown people should do—drink milk," he said. "Do you know 63 per cent of the girls drink milk at 12 years old, but only 28 per cent at the age of 18?"

Dr. Morse predicted that frozen concentrated milk would vastly improve our milk drinking, since areas with a milk surplus could then distribute it to low milk producing areas.

This business of tampering with nature can go too far, though and the vitamin-conscious chemist emphasized that he didn't foresee pills in place of meals.

"I tried living on K rations when I was in the army," he said. "You just stop eating after a while. Then a friend of mine developed a dry breakfast food with all the necessary food values in it so that a cup at each meal was an adequate diet. But who wants to eat it? We food chemists," Dr. Morse said firmly, "want to enhance the flavor of food—not make pills."

PISTOL-PACKING MAMA, YOU LAY THAT HARDWARE DOWN

HONG KONG, April 2 (UP)—Red China has begun recruiting gun-toting women to help combat Anti-Communist activity and carry out local police and sentry duties, official Communists reports said today.

The women will be equipped with rifles, handliers, army trousers and jackets. A canton dispatch described a parade of "militia women of China" to boost recruitments. The enlistment of women was disclosed as the Anti-Communist campaign in China reached the stage of public trials and executions reminiscent of the French Revolution. Official Communist agencies described trials in several key Chinese cities.

They said firing squads execute the condemned in public parks before thousands of spectators for "crimes against the state" ranging from opium smoking to sabotage and rebellion.

Reports from Tientsin, Peiping and Canton portrayed the trials of the offenders as riotous "accusation meetings" attended by yelling spectators "clamoring for justice."

BLONDE BRIDE STRIPS MEN

SALINAS, Calif., April 2 (UP)—A blonde who allegedly ordered two robbery victims to strip off their clothes and run for it, today accused her bridegroom's best man of shooting them as they ran. Mrs. Mildred Campbell, 19, was held under $20,000 bond with her husband, David, 20, whom she married in Phoenix, Ariz., only two weeks ago, and Dale F. Kellog, their best man.

They faced arraignment today on charges of kidnapping and robbery with intent to do bodily harm.

If convicted they could receive the death penalty under California's "Little Lindbergh" law.

They were accused of shooting Frederick Smith, 24, and Donald Parker, 22, in separate hold-ups Friday night.

Smith suffered a spinal wound that paralyzed him below the waist. Parker was in critical condition with two bullet wounds in his chest.

Deputies said the hold-up trio got just 15 cents in loot from Smith.

In both cases, Capt. Jack McCoy, said, Mrs. Campbell ordered the men to disrobe and run for it.
