Good Catcher Isn't Required To Swing a Mighty Bat

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Red Rolfe lists as one of the Tigers' needs a catcher who hits .300. "And who can catch," Manager Rolfe might add. Joe Cronin admits catching may be the Red Sox' way to lose this trip. The Boston Americans have quantity, little quality in Batts, Rosar, Evans and Guerra. Catching is the one spot where it is more charitable to receive than give. It is the position where attack best can be sacrificed for defense. Next is shortstop. Billy Sullivan of the White Sox of one era. Ray Schalk of another, Benny Bengough of the Yankees and Luke Sewell of the Indians and Senators were World Series catchers who didn't exactly mangle the stands with line drives. Jim Hegan of the Indians, a corker, hit all of 219 last season. When you own a catcher with all the answers and who swats the long ball consistently, you have a precious jewel, mister—a Cochrane, Dickey, Berra, Campanella, or Seminick. Fans hardly ever stop to think that the only player on the field with the entire drama in front of him is the catcher. He alone knows just who, if anyone, is out of position. He knows, or should know, the strength and weakness of every opposing hitter, what he did the last time at bat, what he hit or did not hit.

IN his quick view of the situation in front of him, the backstop has to decide in a split-second what ball to call for. With a man on first, he knows a left-handed batter is able to pull a curve better through the space left open by the first baseman covering the bag. When there are runners on first and second, he has to have the quickest and best judgment on whether the batter will hit or bunt. This judgment rests on the outs, count on the hitter, score, the next batter, etc. A catcher has to take his pitcher into account. Is it easy or hard to bunt against him? Is he a good fielding pitcher, etc? These are just some of the mental processes an accomplished catcher has to go through on practically every pitch. The catcher gives the signs because he is in the best position to hide them from the enemy. The pitcher may shake him off, but the catcher's judgment is vital. No less important is the masked man's physical equipment. He must be agile, have a splendid pair of hands and a quick and accurate arm. He must watch the wind to be able to follow foul flies.

Soybeans Moving Up As Illinois Crop

SPRINGFIELD, Ill (UP)—Corn still is king of Illinois farm crops but its position is threatened by a comparative newcomer. The Illinois Agricultural Department reports that soybeans, listed as a curiosity in 1910, now occupy second place among farm crops in the state. The soybean has forced old standbys—oats, hay fourth and fifth places respectively. The five crops accounted for 98 per cent of all crops harvested in Illinois during 1950.

Lawyers Halt Work To Hear General Speak

DALLAS, April 20 (UP)—The Southwestern Regional Convention of The American Bar Association suspended its business to hear Gen. Douglas MacArthur address congress, yesterday.

A public plastic radio, portable style, was set up on the rostrum, a "stand in" for a speaker who was to have talked to the delegates on a technical legal subject.

The audience was intent and restrained, applauding only at the end. One judge remarked to a newsman: "I'll be, Stalin is wondering about how a thing like that could happen. One of his Generals, in a similar spot, would be missing."

Pay Checks Not Needed

BOSTON (UP)—Allan T. Fuller, who is a millionaire, still has as souvenirs checks totaling $80,646 he earned as governor of Massachusetts a quarter-century ago. He never cashed them.

A TOWN STOOD HERE—Literally leveled to the ground was this Korean town, past which a column of United Nations troops moves up to front-line positions. GALVESTON, April 19 (UP)—A requiem mass for Sam Maceo, the Italian "immigrant kid" who started as a barber and became the fabulous kingpin of this resort city's cabaret set, will be held at 11 a.m. today at St. Mary's Cathedral.

Msgr. D. P. O'Connell, pastor of St. Mary's, will celebrate the mass. Burial will be in the family mausoleum at Galveston Memorial Park at Hitchcock, and the American Legion will conduct the graveside rites.

Maceo, who owned extensive oil field and night club holdings, died late Monday in John Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore of complications resulting from an operation March 28 for cancer of the digestive tract.

Maceo came to this county at the age of five from Italy. His swank night club, the Balinese Room was closed Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and tonight, the Turf Grill and the Studio Lounge will join the Balinese Room in closing in respect to the "man who founded them."

Bright Lascar Costumes Inspire Summer Casuals

BY GAILE DUGAS, NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A striking theme for summer's casual clothes is borrowed by designer Liz Montgomery from the colorful costumes worn by the lascars, East Indian sailors. This designer interprets the lascar costume in two colors, red and blue. These are the colors the lascars wear, embellished by the striking white embroidery that these sailors do themselves. The embroidery, too, appears in these interpretations, which are done in hardy topsail.

A sun dress, in the beautiful blue of the lascars, has (left) a fitted halter top, neat waistline and huge patch pockets. A center pleat runs from waistline to hemline. Scrolled embroidery in white outlines the neck, the halter, the front skirt panels and is used lavishly on the pockets. Stem-like pedal pushers, slit at the sides, are worn with a loose-fitting overblouse (right) also slit at either side. The blouse slips over the head easily and the neck is slashed to a narrow V. White embroidery appears on the jacket only; it's used around the neckline, on the shoulders, sleeves, and down the sides. Sleeves are cut full and wide.

Oil Field Is Opened Up In Old Mexico

MEXICO CITY, April 20 (UP)—Discovery of a "fabulous" oil field in Southeastern Mexico was announced today by Sen. Antonio J. Bernudez, director of the Mexican Government Oil Company.

Bernudez described the new field as having "colossal deposits of mineral oil of the finest quality. Bernudez said, adding that a test well yielded 146 barrels of grade "A" crude in two hours, "which means it will have an initial daily production of 1,750 barrels."

The field, located near the town of Chilapa, in Tabasco State, has an area of about 16 square miles. It will prove to be "one of Mexico's richest," and "will compare favorably with Venezuela's most productive deposits, which rank among the world's best."

Two hundred wells will be drilled in the discovery zone, Bernudez said. Chilapa is about 350 miles southeast of Mexico City.

A sample of the Chilapa oil was tested at the Azcapotzalco Refinery here, and it was found it contained 40 per cent gasoline, 30 per cent kerosene and 30 per cent gas oil of the finest quality. There was no waste.

"The new field will not only bolster our national economy, but will affirm our position as exporters of fine oil products," Bernudez said.

Witnesses Are Called To Court

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 20 (UP)—Expert witnesses concerning the sanity of Dr. Nancy Campbell, on trial for the kidnaping of nine-year-old Linda Stamm last Armistice Day.

The prominent gynecologist has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

A Catholic sister and three doctors testified in Dr. Campbell's defense.

One of the doctors, Leroy J. Miller, an Albuquerque Neuro-Surgeon, told the court that Dr. Campbell had an abnormality of the brain as a result of a fall last August.

Miller said his examination of her disclosed that she "would be capable of committing murder, unusual sexual activities and even kidnaping." She had a small job on her temple, he said.

Sister Theo Thane, Director of the Maternity Institute at Santa Fe, said that Dr. Campbell did "a great amount of charity work" and in October, 1950, the doctor began making errors in her records.

A. L. Zinn, Dr. Campbell's attorney, contends that the fall last August injured Dr. Campbell so that she can't tell right from wrong.

Fake Fur Bathing Suits of Versatile Rayon

These bathing suits prove the versatility of rayon. Tubular elasticized jersey suit (left) is one you can make yourself from a length of the fabric. Add tights in matching color. Fake fur in leopard design (center inset) makes suit with elasticized back. Two-piece bathing suit (right) is fake calf with elasticized rayon at sides and back.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A bathing suit need not always be what it seems. A suit made of rayon, for example, might appear to be leopard or calfskin.
 The versatility of rayon is one of its attractive characteristics. In many of the new bathing suit designs, suits made entirely of rayon appear to be done in two fabrics.
 Fake calfskin, for one, is used in combination with elasticized rayon in a two-piece suit. The calfskin fabric is used at the front, the elasticized rayon at sides and back. This suit has a strapless top for sunning.

 Again, the fake fur in combination with elasticized fabric turns up in a one-piece suit with leopard fabric front. The back is in black elasticized rayon. A halter neck and shirred bra top make for maximum figure flattery.

 A length of fabric, if it's elasticized rayon jersey, can be turned into a tubular bathing suit in a twinkling. A metallic stripe woven into black and pastel colors makes handsome fabric and, therefore, a handsome suit. Add black tights and the suit's ready.

Student Killed Near Ft. Worth

FORT WORTH, April 19 (UP)—Three Texas Christian University students in a hot-rod convertible crashed into a parked truck without lights late last night, fatally injuring one student.
 Robert Edward (Bobby) Christopher, 19, TCU Sophomore and son of a prominent Fort Worth Attorney, Tom S. Christopher, died a few hours later in a hospital.
 Two other students were injured in the crash, just west of Fort Worth, as was a negro infant in the truck that state police said was parked on the wrong side of the road.
 Warren J. MacAtee, 20, of Lovington, N. M., was driver of the car, and suffered a broken ankle. John Bennett of Childress escaped with minor injuries.

 State police said Jim Bakestraw, Fort Worth Negro, told them the truck had stalled and he turned off the lights while trying to start it.
 At Montgomery, Ala., ordinance states, according to The American Magazine, that it is illegal to refuse to leave a burning building.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Unconsciously, hateful Lavinia Grenable was murdered, possibly by one of her own family, when the brake on her wheel chair was seized, causing Lavinia to plunge into a ravine. Lisa Farwell, daughter of court Grenable, son of the murdered woman, was a witness to the tragedy. When questioned at court Grenable, son of the murdered woman, was a witness to the tragedy. When questioned at court Grenable, son of the murdered woman, was a witness to the tragedy.

ANDREW GREENABLE seemed to be defying Sheriff Lane to accuse him of having anything to do with Lavinia Grenable's death. Still locking the sheriff straight in the eye, he went on: "I don't have any alibi, sheriff. I was in some tavern in Hilton. I don't even remember which ones—they're all the same anyhow." He leaned back in his chair.

"Am I to understand that you've been to taverns most of the time since you came here?" the sheriff inquired, diplomatically. "Sure," replied Andrew. "Ever since I came. I'd been out to New York to visit Marion—my sister. Mrs. Carson—and we all came back home together for the—holiday. That's what mother always called these beastly gatherings. Once a year she blew her horn and all the sheep came running—black and white sheep alike. I'm the black one, you know."

There was a pause, and silence broken only by the sound of Geri Palmer's pencil as she took notes on the questioning. "I used to be white, too, until she killed Ellen," Andrew went on, leaning forward again to peer at the sheriff. "She don't have much of a tune to play for me any more. I just come back each year out of curiosity—to see whose turn it is to be disowned."

Andrew grinned with considerable malice as he turned his head to look at his brother Court. "She didn't have time to disown anybody this year, did she?" "Andy!" Lisa Farwell started to hear his name coming from her lips, but she couldn't stand any more of this kind of talk.

First, Andrew had laid himself open to suspicion of murdering his own mother, and now he was drawing his brother Court into his black web. Lisa wanted to stop Andrew before her father and Elizabeth Stratton's turns came. "Andy, please!" "Little Lisa," he said, almost fondly. "See what happens when you get mixed up with a Grenable?" He shook his dark, shaggy head almost reproachfully. "We've a bad lot, Lisa. Stay clear away from us. All of us."

HE looked first at his brother Court and then stared at Lisa so long that she became uncomfortable. Seeing her discomfort, Andrew laughed shortly and turned back to Sheriff Lane.

"Want to know why I was disowned?" he asked gruffly. He glanced again at Geri's moving pencil. "That happened three years ago, Sheriff. Nice story. About a sweet old lady who killed my girl..."

Sherrif Lane interrupted hastily: "Andrew, tell me this. Did you quarrel with your mother the morning of her death?" "Sure," he nodded affably. "Court and I had one whoppin' big row with her. She had a fight going on with everybody from the night we arrived until she got it."

of her death?" Lane continued patiently. "Upstairs, sleeping off the bottled dreams of Hilton's bowery."

"What was your quarrel with your mother?" "Purely personal," Andrew Grenable said flatly. He closed his eyes and refused to say any more.

GERI PALMER put aside her pencil and looked up at Sheriff Lane. She looked very tired, but she attempted to smile a little. "I think I can back up Andy on that statement," she offered. "I heard it, and he may not remember all of it."

"Go on," said the sheriff. "Andy arrived late Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Carson. He went out again for a few drinks," she conceded wryly. "The next morning his mother lectured him about his drinking and they did have a quarrel, but there was nothing unusual about it. Afterwards Andy left the house again and didn't return until around 11 o'clock in the morning. He went directly to his room without any lunch and about 4 o'clock in the afternoon I took up a tray to him—Lucy, the day housekeeper, fixed the tray. He drank the coffee, and ate a sandwich and said he felt much better. I went back to the kitchen with the tray and in a few minutes Andy came downstairs and went outdoors."

The calmness that was characteristic of Geri Palmer deserted her now. "Mrs. Grenable rang to ask that Andy and Court come up to her den immediately. I..." Geri stopped suddenly, whitening, and she lowered her eyes. "Tell the rest of it," the sheriff ordered.

Geri looked at Elizabeth Stratton with stricken eyes. "I told Mrs. Grenable that Andrew was out on the terrace with his aunt, Miss Stratton. And that Court's car had just entered the drive. She—she saw Miss Stratton coming up the lower terrace and wheeled herself out of the room, and I went back to the kitchen to finish my cup of coffee with Lucy." "That takes us up to the murder," the sheriff said. (To Be Continued)

Renovating Air Base To Cost $12,000,000

SAMPSON AIR FORCE BASE, N. Y. (UP)—As a U.S. naval training station during World War II, this base cost $52,000,000 to construct.

Now, five years since its virtual abandonment by the Navy, Sampson is being reconstructed by the Air Force. Originally Army and civilian engineers estimated that the renovation of existing facilities would cost $2,677,721. That figure has been raised now to $12,000,000.

"When we got into the work, we discovered damage that couldn't be foreseen," Irving Lichtman, the Army's chief project engineer, said.

Lichtman explained that corroded heating and water-pipes, rotted wooden beams, eroded concrete foundations and ruined equipment must be replaced. "The cost of renovating buildings is often much higher, proportionately, than the original construction cost," he said.

Trailer-To-Train Device To Benefit Railroads

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UP)—Charles H. Martin, inventor of the truck trailer, has come up with a new device that will benefit railroads.

Martin's invention enables a man to roll a 10-ton loaded trailer onto a flat car in a few minutes. With his new device, he says, freight can be hauled by the railroads at a fraction of what it costs to haul it over the highway. The invention does away with the task of loading a trailer truck driving it to a freight yard and then unloading the contents for rail shipment.

Trailers have been moved onto flat cars before but Martin's invention makes the job quick and easy for one man.
