VIRGINIA HILL FOUND TODAY IN EL PASO HOTEL BY COPS

EL PASO, July 6 (UP)—Virginia Hill, red-haired star witness in the Senate Crime Committee's televised New York hearings, denied today she is seeking to leave the country.

"Hell, how could I get out without a passport," she snapped in an interview with the United Press. "I just came to El Paso to visit some friends."

Miss Hill checked in at Hotel Cortez in the pre-dawn hours after a flight from San Francisco. No officers greeted her at the airport, she said. "I just came to the hotel and got in bed," she added.

The woman has been the object of a search by Treasury Department Agents since Tuesday. It was feared she might attempt to leave the country.

Miss Hill, described as the confident of mobsters, crossly informed a reporter she will leave El Paso "as soon as I'm not tired anymore—my damn guys won't leave me alone."

She said she didn't know authorities were looking for her and announced she would go to Spokane from El Paso.

Miss Hill refused to identify the "friends" in El Paso she said she came to visit.

First hint that the woman was traveling to Texas came from a reservation clerk at San Francisco airport last night. The clerk told police Miss Hill boarded a plane "with a lot of baggage."

Airline Clerk Lilymae Ward said she recognized Miss Hill because she sold her tickets before while working as a reservation clerk at Las Vegas, Nev. She said Miss Hill registered as "Mrs. Harper."

Miss Ward also said she sold a ticket to a "Herman Hauser and day night for Los Angeles and a seven-month-old baby Wednesday, Santiago, Chile. She recalled that the man spoke with a German accent.

Miss Hill's husband, ski instructor Hans Hauser, a German National, has been ordered to leave the United States by Sept. 1. They have an infant son.

Asked if she planned to join her husband soon, Miss Hill said: "Now how could I do that—he's in South America."

Coach Snake Is One In Million

AUSTIN, July 6 (UP)—A rare attack by a coach whip snake on a deer was reported today by the game, fish and oyster commission.

Game Warden Malcolm Reinhard of Rocksprings said the snake wrapped itself around the fawn's neck.

The reptile, described as about three or four feet long, was dead. The deer, although near death from strangulation when found, was recovering.

The Game Commission said the attack was rare since coach whip snakes normally do not wrap themselves around their prey. However, many types of snakes commonly attack and eat smaller wild life.

The commission pointed out that one beneficial characteristic of the coach whip is that it has been known to eat rattlesnakes. But not deer.

Bankline Oil Company has staked location on the No. 1 Ted Hale in the area about 5 miles northwest of Eastland.

In the same area, Cupp and Dix on have set pipe on their Chance No. 5.

Consolidated Gasoline Company has almost completed the laying of a gas line to the Bankline-Owens field.

They are expected to start taking gas from the field Monday. Until now, the gas from the wells in the area has been burned as waste. Consolidated recently contracted with Bankline to take the gas for their Eastland plant.

VA Head Rules On Policies

WASHINGTON, July 6 (UP)—Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr., has ruled that holders of government life insurance may add disability income coverage to their policies under a new law the same as under the old.

The ruling was made to clear up confusion caused by the recent enactment of the service men's indemnity and insurance act. But bars issuance of new policies under the old U. S. government life insurance or U. S. National Service Life Insurance plans.

The Veterans' Administration said Gray's ruling holds that the ban against issuing new policies "did not have the effect of repealing a policyholder's basic right to incorporate disability income protection into an existing policy."

For a small additional premium, holders of the life policies are permitted to add the disability coverage. This coverage provides insured veterans with an additional $5 to $7.75 per month in benefits for each $1,000 of insurance. Veterans must be totally disabled for at least six consecutive months to collect the income.

All A Matter Of Perspective

SAN ANTONIO, July 6 (UP)—Texans are fazed for their height but a "10-foot man" was just too much, Mrs. N. A. Reno said today.

Mrs. Reno was sleeping soundly at her rural home early today when her dog began furiously barking. She sleepily peered out and saw a 10-foot man thumbing his way on the highway in front of his house.

"I believed he was on stilts because no human could be as tall as that man. He was thin as a board and white as a sheet. He was thin enough to go through a transom."

Mrs. Reno, living alone and taking no chances, put in a rush call for assistance from the Bexar County Sheriff's office.

Deputies arrived, and a mile down U. S. Highway 281 from Mrs. Reno's house found a 15-year-old Corpus Christi lad they believed to be the giant.

The pale youth was six feet tall and weighed only 105 pounds. He wore high-heeled cowboy boots and a tall cowboy hat in addition to levis.

Among the land sold Tuesday was the last tract of school land in Travis County. The 400-acre tract, located within 15 miles of the state capitol, brought a high bid of $21.07 and acre.

Chinks Have A Lot Of Troops Ready To Strike

WEST CENTRAL FRONT, KOREA, July 6 (UP)—The Chinese have 350,000 troops ready for an attack on the West Central Front if cease fire negotiations fail, United Nations officers reported tonight.

"We are just waiting for the politics of this thing to work out," an officer said. "If we do not get a cease fire we will have a fight on our hands."

The core of the Chinese Red Force was reported to be in the immediate vicinity of the old Chorwon-Kumhwa - P'yongyang triangle.

An Allied tank-infantry patrol entered P'yongyang, northern apex of the triangle, without opposition today.

But increased motor traffic behind the Chinese Lines indicated the Reds are reinforcing their troops, officers said.

"We had planned on a strong Chinese attack before we heard about the cease fire negotiations," an officer said. "That is why we took control of the key mountains in the triangle."

Their Far Eastern propaganda is a smartly perverted version of the facts. The Communists are ignoring for the moment that the Korean peace move was sponsored by themselves through Jacob A. Malik, Chief Russian Delegate to the UN.

The way they tell it, the United Nations forces commanded by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway were licked in Korea and now are suing for peace under circumstances causing the Reds to be fearful of a trick.

Moreover, the propagandists of Chinese Communists who barged into the war last November after the Korean Communists were defeated now claim they want to talk about over-all peace. Whereas the United States does not.

Haskew Praises State's System

AUSTIN, July 6 (UP)—Dean L. D. Haskew, Dean of the University of Texas College of Education, today praised the State's Public Education System under the Glimmer-Aiken Education Laws.

Haskew said the schools would be "adequately staffed and would have enough money to absorb the tremendous new enrollment that is coming" next fall.

He added that failure to provide necessary assistance to school districts to meet the terrific building problem they face was the only weakness in the Texas Education Program.

Negotiations For Cease-Fire In Korea Seem To Be Paused

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press Foreign News Editor

Balance sheet for the week between the good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

GOODS NEWS

1. Negotiations for a cease-fire in the Korean War are proceeding without any serious hitch although it has been slow going. Neither side has thrown up any insurmountable obstacles to the preliminary conversations. Both Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and the Communist Commanders have made minor concessions on details, and late this week the fighting in Korea began to die down to a skirmish level.

2. There are no immediate signs that Russia plans to start another bonfire somewhere else in the world. A Communist offensive in Indo-China, for instance, could be started any day, and threatening gestures could be made against Yugoslavia. There is some hope for the belief that the United Nations stand in Korea may have given International Communist at least a temporary pause.

3. Russia has accepted a proposal for trade negotiations in Berlin among four powers—America, Britain, France and the Soviet Union. The amount of trade that will take place in event the conference succeeds is not so important as the fact that Moscow has foregone another opportunity to create a difficult situation for the Western Powers.

BAD NEWS

1. The British took a gloomy view this week of reaching a settlement with Iran which would guarantee that vitally needed oil would continue to flow to the Western Democracies. British Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison told the House of Commons that Iran seemed determined to shut down the operations of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., even if it

Cease-Fire Will Not Mean Peace

WASHINGTON, July 6 (UP)—A cease-fire may bring peace to Korea, but the world wide cold war of nerves and propaganda will fiercely continue pending the next Communist aggression.

Of desire for world peace there is no sign behind the Iron Curtain. The Reds are stepping up their war propaganda against the West at the moment when they stand sponsor to the Korean peace move.

If the Korean war did actually get too hot for them, they still intend to make the most of United Nations and their own moves to end it.

Communist western front propaganda centers now around the money trial and conviction in Czechoslovakia of Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis on charges of espionage. He is being cited worldwide as the espionage agent of a warmongering United States.

Their Far Eastern propaganda is a smartly perverted version of the facts. The Communists are ignoring for the moment that the Korean peace move was sponsored by themselves through Jacob A. Malik, Chief Russian Delegate to the UN.

The way they tell it, the United Nations forces commanded by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway were licked in Korea and now are suing for peace under circumstances causing the Reds to be fearful of a trick.

Moreover, the propagandists of Chinese Communists who barged into the war last November after the Korean Communists were defeated now claim they want to talk about over-all peace. Whereas the United States does not.

ALL AIR FORCE PLANES GET ORDERS ON KAESONG DEALS

By Earnest Hoberecht
United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, July 6 (UP)—Communist troops repaired Kaesong's City hall today for Korean Armistice talks which United Nations quarters hope will bring a cease-fire by the end of next week.

Arrangements for preliminary cease-fire discussions Sunday were completed in a final radio exchange between Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Supreme UN Commander, and his North Korean and Chinese counterparts.

Ridgway wound up the exchange with a message at 1:30 p.m. (11:30 p.m. Thursday EDT). Each side has guaranteed safe-conduct of the other's delegation to Kaesong, a mile and a half south of the 38th Parallel on the western front.

Lt. Gen. O. P. Weyland ordered all Far East Air Force planes to refrain from combat strikes within a five-mile radius of the center of Kaesong and from the P'yongyang-Kaesong Highway starting at 4 a.m. tomorrow (2 p.m. today, EDT), an hour before the Communist delegation leaves the North Korean capital.

The Communists have allowed more than 24 hours for their convoy of five jeeps and five trucks under a white flag to travel the 100 miles from P'yongyang to the conference city. Allied planes have cratered the highway in hundreds of places and seeded the remainder with tetrahedrons — four - pointed catstrod devices which puncture tires.

An Allied patrol which probed the Kaesong area today reported that Communist soldiers were cleaning out and repairing the city hall in the ancient Korean capital.

The patrol said work on the two-story red brick building apparently began yesterday in preparation for Sunday's conference.

There also was evidence that the Communists are directing traffic in the city, but the patrol saw nothing to indicate that barricades or defense positions were being constructed there. No booby traps were found in the city, patrols said.

The Reds have kept a token force in Kaesong since it first was mentioned as the site of the cease-fire talks, but the enemy's main strength is in mountains to the north and east.

P'neong has been about 60 per cent destroyed by Allied bombs and shells.

Preliminary cease-fire talks are expected to begin in Kaesong sometime Sunday morning (Saturday night EDT).

Sizzling Texas Weather Stays

Sizzling weather continued to hold Texas in a sweaty grip today and the United States Weather Bureau said no relief was in sight.

Temperatures climbed rapidly during the morning hours, as hot sunshine beamed down. Afternoon maximums were expected to be near 100 degrees at most cities.

No heat-breaking showers were forecast, but brisk southerly winds were expected to take some of the edge off the torrid weather.

Yesterday afternoon's maximum temperatures in Texas ranged up to 105 degrees at Presidio. Most highs were in the upper 90's.

Representative readings included 97 at Dallas, San Antonio, Ft. Worth, and Amarillo, 96 at El Paso, 93 at Houston and 91 at Tyler.

The mercury dropped into the 70's early today at most cities. Marfa, high in the Davis Mountains, reported the lowest reading —63 degrees.

Missouri River Rolls Along

The swollen Missouri River rolled across 55,000 acres of rich farmland today while drought and forest fires plagued the southwest.

The big Mo. almost 12 feet above flood stage, swept over lowlands around St. Charles, Mo., after pounding through the last barrier a railroad embankment, yesterday.

The flood waters spilled into the Mississippi, which rose over front street in St. Louis and forced evacuation of 35 families.

About 80 families were moved out of the St. Charles area, including George Ansler who had refused to budge even though his home was only a stone's throw from the doomed railroad embankment.

More rain pounded down on Eastern and Central Kansas and Western Missouri, adding to the flood danger. More than 1,500 miles of rivers and streams were

Dallas Eagles Make Miscues

The skidding Dallas Eagles, until a few days ago topping the pack in Texas League baseball, erred four times last night in losing a 4 to 2 game to the Oklahoma City Indians. It was the Indians' third straight win over Dallas and the fifth straight defeat for the Eagles.

Rudy Paynich and Vern Kennedy teamed to hold the Eagles to seven hits. The only Dallas scores came in the ninth after the Indians had scored twice in the first inning and twice in the fifth.

The Houston Buffs, who replaced Dallas at top of the standings, split a doubleheader with San Antonio. The Missions won the seven inning opener 6 to 0 on the seven hit pitching of Jack O'Donnell. Houston managed only four hits off two Padre pitchers while winning the second game 2 to 1, on a last-minute run in the ninth.

The Beaumont Roughnecks trimmed Shreveport 7 to 3 with scoring flurries in five innings. The Sports put across runs in only the first frame.

Tulsa's Oilers beat Fort Worth 4 to 2, but not before the Cats had robbed Jim Blackburn of a no-hit no-run game. Blackburn reached the ninth inning without being touched. Then Ben Taylor stepped up for a two-run homer. Bob Bundy hit a single and Blackburn had to settle for a two-hitter.

The Gold Mannequin

By Myles Connolly

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Tim Reese, a crippled veteran, learns to walk again as a result of a surgical operation made possible by his meager earnings as a fashion designer for the successful and exclusive gown shop "Jean Paul." Not realizing that his designs have made the shop successful, Tim has kept working because of his infatuation for Jean Roland, one of the partners in the shop. Now able to walk, Tim goes to New York to surprise Jean and he sees her with an award for "The Dress of the Year," in a gown he designed, and he hears Paul Panciera, Jean's partner, accept the credit for designing it, along with a gold mannequin award. But Tim is so much in love with Jean that she easily wins the award. Tim suggests that he and Jean go into partnership with a gown shop of their own, Jean begins to see more in the plan, she quarrels later with Mr. Panciera. When Tim goes to the shop the next morning, he reveals to the secretary, Miss Major, that he is actually the designer of the gown that won the award. Miss Major becomes intensely interested and insists on having Tim's address, adding that she has "a very special reason for my own for asking for it now."

THE insistence of Miss Major, the secretary of the firm of Jean Paul, for his address puzzled Tim Reese. He looked at her sharply, then grinned: "Want to send me fan mail?"

"Yes, you might call it that." "Good. I'm recognized at last!" "The address—?" Miss Major was subtly persistent.

"Summit Hospital, Cedarbrook, will get me for a while." She gave him one of her characteristically skeptical looks.

"It's my country place." She smiled. "I'm willing to believe anything." She wrote the address down. "Thank you very much." She came from behind the desk. She was very friendly. "Miss Roland lives up on the fourth floor if you wish to see her."

"In this building?" "This is an elevator in the shop. She's probably still in bed but Martha, her maid, will be there." "I guess it'll be all right if I go up, won't it?" He turned toward the door.

"Miss Roland should be glad to see you, Mr. Reese."

Tim, unmindful of the cryptic note in Miss Major's speech, turned and went out. His walk was still awkward, difficult, but he moved less slowly than before.

MISS MAJOR watched him go. Then, she turned swiftly back to the desk, took up the paper with Tim's name and address on it, folded it carefully and put it into her purse.

Paul Panciera, in his hat and overcoat, entered. "Good morning, Mr. Panciera." Miss Major was completely at ease. "Do you know if Miss Roland is upstairs?"

"I happen not to have seen Miss Roland this morning." He was tired, irritable. "Why?"

"Just curiosity." Miss Major rose from the desk, moved to a closet at one side. He was annoyed. "A good secretary does not indulge in curiosity."

She put on her hat and coat. "I don't pretend to be a good secretary," she said.

"You are impertinent." He was more annoyed. "You are going out. I gather my presence here is not important to you." She fixed her hat before a mirror, did not speak.

"May I suggest that you do not come back? You will please me by considering yourself discharged."

She picked up her purse from the desk. Then, she went to the door, turned and faced him. "You can't discharge me very well, Mr. Panciera. I was just leaving. It so happens I've been working for Mr. Cochet for years." She gave him her bland smile. "I enjoyed talking with Mr. Reese. He really has a wonderful talent."

And Mr. Panciera seemed to feel quite at home.

"Cochet planted you here—?" The realization that his business competitor had planted a spy in his own establishment left him speechless.

"Goodbye, Mr. Panciera." She went out, leaving the slightest tinkle of laughter behind her.

For once, Mr. Panciera was on the point of losing his poise.

MARTHA, the trim, colored maid, admitted Tim to the apartment on the fourth floor. He gave his name and assured her Miss Roland would be glad to see him. The maid went back into the apartment.

In a moment, the maid returned. "Miss Roland just woke up. It'll be a few minutes before she can see you. Would you wait, please?"

There were many enchanting pictures of Jean here and there in the apartment, and Tim's eye, as he sat and waited for her, went happily from one picture to another.

He was pleased to discover that in many of the pictures she was wearing costumes designed by him. His eye came to rest on one that held his attention especially, a sensitive camera study of Jean modeling a bridal dress. She was the perfect bride, ethereal and still alluring.

The bridal dress was not one of Tim's designs. He decided, as he mused over the picture, he would sketch one for her very soon.

The door of the apartment was opened and Mr. Panciera entered, admitting himself by key. He had divested himself of his hat and overcoat. He was still distraught from his scene with Miss Major, and it was a moment before he discovered Tim.

For an instant, Mr. Panciera was at a loss. But only for an instant. "Good morning. A wretched day isn't it?"

Once more that troubled feeling about Mr. Panciera returned to Tim Reese. The man had been momentarily brushed away by Jean's explanations the night before, but still he remained, like a fly on a white ceiling, a small, but definitely irksome distraction.

And Mr. Panciera seemed to feel quite at home.

Good Daily Up-Keep Of Clothing Discussed At Training Meeting

Mrs. Ethel Sparks, home demonstration agent and Miss Evelyn Bigby assistant, conducted a clothing training meeting at 2 p.m. Monday in the Commissioner's Court Room.

The topic under discussion was "Good Daily Upkeep of Clothing."

The care of rayon was discussed, including the washing, bleaching, starching and ironing, and the meaning of heat-set. Good starching of clothing was discussed and the importance of starching of cottons was pointed out. Types and methods of starching was explained, including ready to use starches and (make you own) starches.

It was explained that when clothing is starched slightly the dirt will cling to the starch instead of the fabric and will wash out readily, making starched clothing easier to clean and stay clean.

Nine of the Home Demonstration clubs were represented, including Mmes. F. D. Chambers, Mack White and W. L. Curtis of the Union Center Club; Mrs. Dee Rogers of the Salem Club; Mrs. C. S. Carroll of the North Star Club; Mmes. Earnest Scheafer and D. I. Graves of the Word Club; Mrs. Ola Wilson of the Flatwood Club; Mrs. Paul Crawley of the Okra Club; Mmes. D. Ball and W. L.
