With Mack

Democrats, Republicans and Independents are all working in an effort to let Harry down easy, and at the same time give Ike the greatest landslide in all of America's history. People are not caring whether he is a Republican or a Democrat—they are interested in an American, and one they can trust, and Ike fits the bill.

In Sunday's Dallas News there appeared an editorial that is one of the most logical we have ever read. It was addressed to Senator Taft, one of the most likely contenders for the Republican nomination. Only for its great length we would reproduce it here, but the best we can do is give highlights.

In the first place the Dallas News and the Dallas News writer know Texas and the South, so the remarks are facts rather than pertinent remarks. The Senator, according to the News, has a good chance to get the nomination, but the nomination does not guarantee election. In fact the News feels he could not be elected. Taft, says the News, could not hope to carry Texas or the South, and this would be necessary for election.

A candidate like Dwight Eisenhower can carry the South. It is said Eisenhower is not a Republican, and he is not in the sense of a political Republican, but he has made it clear that his party preference are for that party. The 1952 election cannot be won by the Republicans. It can only be carried for the party by the concerted action of the party members, and anti-administration Americans.

With the South the fact that General Eisenhower is not an all-out Republican carries great weight. The South would no more elect Eisenhower as a Republican than it would Bob Taft. But they will vote for and elect Eisenhower as a great American. With all the anti-administration sentiment in Texas the News does not believe Taft could carry Texas over Truman or any other Democratic nominee, but does believe the General would carry Texas against Truman or any Truman heir.

The nation, far more than the Republican party, needs unanimity. With one action, the doubts and suspicions that attach to the executive department, would be swept away, the News declares. And Taft's withdrawal in favor of Eisenhower could clear the way for that possibility, too.

Senator Taft is a very splendid gentleman, as are two other likely contenders, Governor Warren and Harold Stassen, but they could never draw the South and Texas both as could the General.

We have been so busy with politics, barbecues and other things during the past week, that I came near forgetting to mention the fact that our brother, niece and great-niece, from Coleman paid us a visit last weekend. Our brother, Edd, is about six foot-one and we are about one foot six. Otherwise we may resemble one the other, only for the fact he is a good man, and as of yet, the sheriff has not classified us. We may make the grade as this is election year, and Frank is going to need all the votes he can get.

Our niece and great-niece are a lot better looking than we are, though probably not quite so smart. However, we have had that niece around us quite a bit, and it is likely she has absorbed some of our wisdom. Her name is Edna Erle Blair, and the daughter is Mary Jo. We recommend them very highly, as being some of our best looking relatives. Our birthday is Aug. 20, and we hope they do not forget this free advertising.

Liquor Tax Deduction Becoming Racket, Head Of Temperance Union Says

CHICAGO, Jan. 15 (UP)—The national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union said today that income tax deductions for the cost of liquor used for "entertainment" had "reached the proportions of a racket."

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin urged that liquor for business entertainment be dropped as a deductible item from federal and state income taxes.

Baptist Brotherhood Enjoys Big "Goat" Barbecue; Three Hundred Hear Address Of Dick O'Brien

More than 80 men enjoyed the Baptist Brotherhood banquet and program at the First Baptist church Monday evening. This number includes several visitors from Ranger, Cisco and other nearby towns. So far as the banquet was concerned it started out as a banquet and ended up in a kind of "Goat Eating Contest." Only one man refused to tantalize his stomach with this delicious food. Most others took a second helping.

There was plenty food for all comers, and the hour was a very enjoyable one. Refreshment chairman Roy Jones received many compliments, and should he wish to be a candidate for re-election he will have no opponents to contend with.

Following the banquet the group marched to the main auditorium of the church where they enjoyed another hour. Many women were present for the program, and no doubt others would have been there had they known they would be welcomed at the man's meeting. However, the auditorium was comfortably filled.

Dick O'Brien, Big Spring pastor, was speaker for the evening.

Non Skid Foot Gear Patented By W. K. Taylor

W. K. Young, 30-year-old Abilene postman, and former Eastland citizen, has invented what might be described as "Non Skid Footgear." It is to be used on your shoes during periods when ice and snow make walking rather hazardous.

It may be this postman has the answer to broken bones and skinned shins from slippery walks. Mr. Young got tired of picking himself up off Mother Nature's frozen face, so he decided to devise some method to prevent these falls. He tried several plans, but none worked out to his satisfaction until he came up with his latest idea.

They seem to be just what is needed, and he is now marketing that patented device.

Mr. Young is a son of W. T. Young of 606 South Maderia.

Equipment For Offices Stocked By Stephens Co.

Thirty-two years ago Earl Stephens began selling typewriters, adding machines and other office equipment. For eight years he worked with the Remington, Royal and Underwood companies, and sold typewriters throughout the Southwest.

After eight years he decided to go in for himself, and during the last 24 years it has more of less "Stephens Typewriter Co."

Some 10 years ago he decided Eastland was the pick of the crop, so far as a home town is concerned, so he opened the Eastland office. Since that time he has made a steady growth, and while he seldom leaves the county, he has all the business he can comfortably handle. He does a general business—sales, service and rental.

In his offices at 417 S. Lamar, he has a large stock of typewriters, new and used, and of various makes and designs. He also carries adding machines, cash registers and other new and used office equipment. A large repair shop is operated in conjunction with the sales department. At this place you may buy or rent most any kind of office equipment desired.

Stalin Fostered Atomic Control Plan; UN Told

RUSSIA REITERATED CHARGES THAT U. S. FOSTERING WAR

By Richard Wilkin
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Jan. 15 (UP)—Russia's new proposals for world atomic control resulted from a directive issued by Marshal Josef Stalin, Pyelorusin told the United Nations today.

Kuzma Kisselev, delegate from Byelorussia, an integral part of the Soviet Union, made the statement before the UN assembly's main political committee.

He accused the West of trying to give the new Russian atomic proposals, announced Saturday by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, a "first-class burial" in the fledgling UN Disarmament Commission.

He said Russia's program of "measures to combat the threat of a new war flows from the directive of Josef Stalin and squares with the interests of peace and security and with the interests of the people of the entire world."

Russia's new plan calls for a simultaneous atomic weapons ban and control system. It agrees to a continuous inspection program on the condition such inspection does not interfere with internal domestic affairs of any country.

"As Stalin has said, our foreign policy is a clear one," Kisselev said. "It is a policy of maintenance of peace and fostering trade relations with all countries.

"The Soviet Union has not the intention of threatening anybody and least of all of attacking anybody."

Kisselev reiterated Communist charges that the United States was preparing an aggressive war against Russia.

He said a west German Army was "bent on revenge" and would be the main striking force of the North Atlantic Treaty Army.

"The United States and her allies are seeking to surround Russia and her allies with a gigantic ring of military bases," he said. "In so doing, the United States and her allies expose themselves as the inciters of a new war."

He reiterated Vishinsky's demand for an immediate Korean armistice and withdrawal of all foreign troops from there within 90 days.

Kisselev said the Panmunjon talks were "stalled by the doings of the American side."

He said the UN forces had continued to bomb and strafe the neutral zone in Korea in spite of promises to cease.

Polio Victims 'Learn To Live' With Handicap

Treatment of the paralyzed polio patient is not complete unless the patient and his family have "learned to live" with his handicap.

So says Dr. Morton A. Seidenfeld, Director of Psychological Services for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which this month is conducting the 1952 March of Dimes to provide funds for the continuing fight against polio.

"Psychological guidance is an essential part of the medical care program for handicapped patients," Dr. Seidenfeld said. "It is equally important for the parents of handicapped polios to have similar guidance. The National Foundation is interested in total care for the total patient."

The psychologist told of Mary, a seven-year-old child who was left with a paralyzed arm after an attack of polio. Mary's parents, he said, were over-protective, and although the child could have resumed many of her normal activities despite her handicap, in this instance her program was restricted in a misguided attempt to spare her stress and strain.

She was kept out of school for more than a year. Now, at the age of twelve, Mary is only in the fifth grade in school, is depressed and lonely because her friends have gone on into Junior High, leaving her with the "little kids." As a result, Dr. Seidenfeld said, she has become retarded educationally because she no longer is interested in her school work.

"Children like Mary would not become problems if they and their parents were properly advised," Dr. Seidenfeld explained. "There is a great need for more experts in psychological care who can assist handicapped patients and their parents to adjust to the new situations polio often creates."

Rotarians Have Good Meeting; Rathaai Speaks

Rotarians enjoyed another splendid program Monday when Pastor C. Melvin Rathaai delivered a 15-minute address, following the luncheon. The speaker, almost preaching at times, discussed the Golden Rule. His remarks were to the point and were well received by all who heard him.

"The man who really enjoys life," he said, "is the man who puts something into life." The pastor stressed the truth that it is better to give than to receive, and the man who enjoys life in the fullest is the man who treats his fellow-man as he wishes to be treated himself.

Dr. Jas. Whittington, president of the club, announced that the County Commissioners had granted a petition calling for an election which will allow Eastland to join with Ranger in their Water Conservation District. The election will be held January 31st.

Mangum Baptists Plan Pie Supper Negro Singing

Mangum Baptist Church is planning a splendid program and pie and cake supper at the church on Thursday evening of this week at 7:30 o'clock. No admission fee will be charged. Everything is free said J. A. Brown, clerk of the church.

Negro singers from Eastland will be on hand with spirituals and other songs, and a great hour is being expected.

The Mangum church is one of the most outstanding rural churches in the state, and persons who have visited the church say they really know what to do with their visitors, to make them feel at home.

Police Tear Gas Rioters Marching in Cairo Funeral

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 15 (UP)—Police dispersed stone-throwing demonstrators with tear gas today during a parade of 100,000 youths of an Egyptian pilot by British demanding revenge for the killing soldiers.

Police proclaimed a state of emergency in Cairo and most other Egyptian cities in an attempt to prevent further violence in the tense Anglo-Egyptian crisis.

The police hurled tear gas bombs in Cairo when part of the mass funeral procession for Ahmed Mohamed Esmat got out of hand and some of the demonstrators began throwing stones.

Esmat, a pilot for the Egyptian Airlines, was shot dead in a clash at a British roadblock in the Suez Canal zone yesterday.

The procession began quickly but ominously in the suburb of Kebeh with some 60,000 students and government workers in line. They responded to a Socialist Party call for a large-scale memorial tribute.

By the time the procession had reached the center of Cairo, some 100,000 were marching. Many were shouting for revenge. There were cries of "Down With Britain" and "Long Live Egypt."

Police used the tear gas bombs when rioters began smashing store windows and street lamps after the funeral procession passed.

An estimated 50,000 spectators looked on as the procession moved for three hours over a four-mile route. Egyptian Army and Air Force units participated in the march. Members of Egyptian "Liberation Battalions" fired pistols into the air to emphasize their revenge demands.

California-Nevada Paralyzed By Worst Storm In Fifty Years

By United Press
The worst storm in 50 years tore into California and Nevada today, turning the Sierra Mountains into a "white hell" with thousands marooned, all transportation paralyzed and damage mounting with each new blast.

Donner Summit, a niche in the backbone of the towering Sierras, was the scene of a futile struggle between man-made machines and the fury of nature gone berserk.

The sleek streamliner City of San Francisco was held in a snow bound grip on the west side of the summit. The train used up all fuel and heat and light failed.

The 226 persons aboard the train huddled in blankets as ski rescue teams and three army vesicles fought to reach the train with food and supplies.

Efforts to keep the roads over the mountains open were abandoned. Officials said the danger to lives and possible damage to equipment was too great.

A veteran highway superintendent at Donner Summit said the snow rescue teams gave up because they "weren't getting any place."

"It's a white hell," he said. "Ev-

Anything's down. Just a big blizzard with no beginning and no end."

A new storm formed up and headed south from the bay of Alaska to add fresh fury to the four-day seige of record-breaking weather.

Winds nearly 80 miles an hour whipped San Francisco. Trees snapped, signboards collapsed and power lines came crackling down.

Damage in the San Francisco area alone was estimated at $1,000,000 and it was climbing hourly.

Flooding, particularly in Contra Costa and Alameda Counties, worsened. An estimated 2,500 were homeless.

The rainfall in Los Angeles reached 9.48 inches for the season, compared with a normal 5.65 inches.

A Greyhound bus with 30 high school students aboard was found after three days near Echo Summit in the Sierras yesterday. The passengers had been removed to safety.

Two women were killed when a snowslide crushed a one-story resort building at Twin Bridges, Calif.

Clayton Rand Says

ALL AMERICAN

According to Editor William Feather a sports writer interviewed a football coach whose teams, season after season, were consistent winners. Impressed by his success, the reporter asked, "How do you do it?"

"There are two rules," the coach replied, "which I learned in my first year of coaching football. I haven't forgotten them. That season my team collapsed when one player was removed by injuries. The first rule, which everybody knows, is 'Never let any man get the idea that he is indispensable to the team's success.' The other, equally important: 'Never let your teammates get the idea that any man is indispensable for their success.'"

What this coach was saying is that teamwork is essential to a winning squad. There probably isn't any one so dispensable as someone who thinks he is indispensable. And the rules given by the coach for a winning team apply just as well to a successful business.

I have known a few indispensable men in my time, men who could not be replaced. I've seen them die and pass on to impress paradise by their preeminence. Yet, the old world went right on spinning on its axis as unmoved as Old Man River by a ripple, or as undisturbed as a constellation by a meteor extinguished in the night.

There is a type of person, however, that grows with responsibility, another type that just swells.

Coffee Brings Cheer To Many Working Abroad

American workers engaged on construction projects around the world can take a lot of homesickness and a lot of inconveniences, but a second-rate cup of coffee brings a spark of mayhem to their eyes, a touch of torpor to their minds, and a load of lead to their feet.

Such is the studied opinion of Construction Men's Association, a mutual welfare organization of thousands of skilled specialists and technicians.

The importance of good coffee to the rapid completion of American foreign bases in the rearmament program came to light when a flood of "coffee" complaints poured into the association's office.

President James A. Dillon, who led an immediate investigation into the matter, had good cause to lend a sympathetic ear to the lute and cry. With the background of a personnel manager who has spent many years on projects of all kinds in all parts of the world, he personally knew what good coffee means to the morale of working men away from home.

So he looked into the quality of American blends and brands of coffee being used by work camps abroad and came to the conclusion that the brew of which the men were complaining was the fault of the camp managers. Knowing that good roaster coffee and workable brewing equipment

Polio On Rise In Galveston

At least 22 polio cases have been reported in Galveston since Dec. 1, city health officers reported today, though one source placed the figure at 30 or more.

Dr. Herman Weinert, city health officer, said three cases were reported to him over the weekend, two children and a 26-year-old adult.

The incidence of the disease, he said, seemed to pick up over weekends.

At the same time, Dr. Martin Schneider, local head of the March of Dimes campaign who is on the staff of the University of Texas Medical School here, said the count since Dec. 1 should be 30.

Dr. Schneider said apparently some of the diagnosed cases were not reported to city officials.

MORE PRECIOUS THAN RUBIES By Nina Wilcox Putnam Copyright 1951 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE small white radio with the coral knobs sputtered a little over the announcement that The Mammoth Gold-buying Company, the oldest establishment of its kind in New York City, was responsible for her favorite program and Alma Conroy improvised words to the classical recording which followed.

"Perhaps tonight everything will be all right," she sang, trying to believe that the hope would materialize.

It was part of a routine. Every evening Alma forced herself to this same optimistic note before Tommy, her husband, came home. And occasionally Tommy came home sober and cheerful. At other times—well, he did not mean to do wrong!

A wave of unreasoning love and sympathy for him swept over her, so acute that it was like a spasm of pain, and unconsciously she tossed back her mop of copper-colored hair in a defiant gesture.

Let the world think what it would of Tommy, she knew better. Way down deep in him was an essential goodness and some day something would bring it to the surface and make him the man he should be: make him a success instead of an underpaid drudge.

It had to be, dear God, it had to come true, this dream of hers! Yes, in spite of what had happened that afternoon—and the fact that she would have to break the bad news to him.

She opened the box of flowers she had bought on her way home from work and the strong clean perfume of freesias began to compete with the savory odors which poured from the tiny kitchenette.

Alma put the blossoms in a bowl and set it on the card table which was already laid for dinner, and then set the chic, modern-ernistic room to rights. It was always a nervous relief to use her hands—those well-shaped skillful hands which all day long manipulated gold or platinum and precious stones, welding them into the impeccable sort of designs which during better than a hundred years had made Trumbull & Company America's symbol for fine jewelry.

Alma Conroy was the only woman journeyman-jeweler at The House, as its employees reverently called it, and she was proud of this distinction.

The work was absorbing, the endless cascade of jewels passing through her hands lent an unflinching magic to her day's work. And then when the day's work was done there was this—the dread that Tommy would again fall here!

THE shrilling of the telephone made her jump with alarm. That would be Tommy, urging her to abandon the meal she had prepared and join him at some bar where he would be buying the drinks for a crowd of worthless people—building up his ego by throwing away any money he happened to have on him, holding the center of the stage he did not seem able to occupy in any other manner.

Well, this time she would refuse to go. She could not sit there and suffer the sight of her man cheapening himself—not again—never again even though it meant the first voluntary separation during the five years of their marriage. Her hand trembled as she picked up the receiver, but it was not Tommy.

"Alma, my dear," Joe Denton's rich voice was like balm to her taut nerves. "I just wanted to be sure you were all right."

"I wouldn't be at The House at all, if it hadn't been for your influence and your doddering grandfather's."

Dear Joe, Alma thought, dear good Joe, he can't keep his love for me out of his voice, no matter how scrupulously he tries to hide it for Tommy's sake! Aloud she spoke cheerfully:

"I'm the same healthy red-head you said 'bye now' to at The House! Anything make you think differently?" She could feel his hesitation.

"Is Tommy home yet?" he finally said. Intuitively Alma knew this was a warning.

"No. Where did you see him?" she asked quickly.

"At the Blue Cat Bar. He was drinking with Bright Muncie."

This was news. Alma had never had any particular liking for the colorful but worthless only son of the dignified president of Trumbull's—the fruit of a late second marriage. That the young man was employed by The House at all was a matter of store gossip, and she was not aware that Tommy knew Bright Muncie except by sight. It was certainly surprising that the two should be together.

"I suppose you'll say it's a case of birds of a feather," she tried to make her voice light.

"No," said Joe gravely. "It's just that—well, you know Tommy can be a handful when he's been drinking. And I can generally calm him down. If you should need me, I'll be home all evening."

ALMA thanked him and hung up, feeling weak and shaken. It was awful, the way people felt about Tommy, even Joe Denton, his best friend. If Joe had fallen in love with her, at least he had never said so and had tried to hide it, even from himself. Joe was loyal to Tommy. They had gone to school together, worked in the same places. But in her heart Alma knew that by now Joe had come almost to the end of his patience, seeing what a drag upon her Tommy had become.

"Apparently everybody except Tommy and myself thinks I ought to leave him!" she said aloud. "I know I ought to leave him. That everybody else at Trumbull's may think that just being there is reward enough for their services, but I don't! And now, what about Dell? Is he going or isn't he?"

"Yes, he's retiring," she said, "and I told Mr. Greig that you were the logical man for the job—I showed him your photographs and he had to admit they were wonderful, but..."

"But what?"

"I guess maybe for once the truth won't hurt you." She was watching him with pain in her eyes. "He said you weren't the caliber for a position of such responsibility."

bull prongs. Studying the drawing Alma forgot everything else. She had brought it home to once, line a set-up for her own guidance, and the pieces would take plenty of time to make—dared she promise them in two weeks?

There was a sound at the door and she dropped the drawing, her heart resuming its anxious inquiry. Then Tommy Conroy came into the room, his thin darkly handsome face flushed, his manner carefully sober. He was not in bad shape she noted with quick relief, but there was a curious defiant brightness in his eyes. He flung a large package onto the sofa and his soft back hit on top of it.

"Hello, Jewels!" he said. Then he strode over and snapped off the radio.

"How you can stand that stuff!" he said contemptuously.

"It's one of the best on the air!"

"I'm sick of gold-buying—or selling! I get enough of that without having to take it on the air!"

"I thought you were not interested in Trumbull's," she said.

"Not in being a sort of super stock boy in the china department." Alma bit her lip. Now she'd have to tell him.

"I'm afraid I have bad news," she said. "I talked to Mr. Greig of the art department today. I'm afraid they want a photographer more along Mr. Dell's lines!"

"That doddering old fool— isn't he going to retire after all?"

"Alvin Dell has been good enough to make the commercial photographs at The House for 40 years!" she said reprovingly.

"Yes, while I wouldn't be at The House at all if it hadn't been for your influence and your doddering grandfather's!" She could feel her face growing crimson.

"Don't you speak of Papa Victor like that!" she flared. Tommy had the grace to look ashamed.

"Sorry!" he mumbled ungraciously. "I know Victor is the Mr. Chips of the jewelry world and that he's been at Trumbull's for 60 years and all that. But listen! Everybody else at Trumbull's may think that just being there is reward enough for their services, but I don't! And now, what about Dell? Is he going or isn't he?"

"Yes, he's retiring," she said, "and I told Mr. Greig that you were the logical man for the job—I showed him your photographs and he had to admit they were wonderful, but..."

"But what?"

"I guess maybe for once the truth won't hurt you." She was watching him with pain in her eyes. "He said you weren't the caliber for a position of such responsibility."

Looking Back on 1951—

... the inventory shows that the scales weighed out a good portion of the better things for us to enjoy. While the mistakes we made stick out like a sore finger and our failures almost overwhelm us, yet these discouragements are small indeed compared to the unhappiness and tragic experiences of some who happen to live in other countries. We are glad we live here where we have had the opportunity to serve a host of loyal customers for more than a quarter century.

Kefauver Will See Truman At Noon Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15 (UP)—Sen Estes Kefauver said he was going to the White House today to "talk politics with President Truman." Other Democrats fervently hoped he would get some clue to Mr. Truman's 1952 intentions.

The conference (at noon EST) could have an important bearing on whether the Tennesseean throws his hat in the ring for the Democratic presidential nomination. Kefauver is rated a leading contender for the nomination if Mr. Truman passes it up.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) said Mr. Truman told him yesterday that "he has not made a decision" on whether to seek renomination. The president had said earlier that he had made up his mind but was not ready to say how.

Jury Deadlocked In Frank Costello Contempt Case

By H. D. Quigg
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Jan. 15 (UP)—A federal jury resumes deliberation today on the case of gambler Frank Costello, accused of contempt of the United States Senate at the spectacular televised crime hearings last March.

The jury of 10 men and two women failed to reach a verdict after five hours and 55 minutes of deliberation and was locked up for the night at midnight by Judge Sylvester J. Ryan.

Ryan ordered the jurors to resume their secret arguments at 9:30 a.m. EST today and told them to "take as much time as you conscientiously require to reach a verdict."

The 60-year-old gambler, accused by the Senate crime investigating committee of being a boss of the Eastern underworld, was indicted on 11 contempt counts. He could receive a maximum sentence of 11 years in prison and fines of $11,000 if found guilty on all counts.

It was Costello's refusal to answer questions about his net worth, total indebtedness, alleged acquaintanceship with former New York mayor William O'Dwyer and James Moran, indicted for perjury, that caused him to be cited for contempt of the Senate.

FBI Agents Take Long Wanted Bootlegger

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 15 (UP)—FBI agents on a tip from local officials, seized a fugitive wanted on liquor charges in three states after forcing his car to a halt near Tunica, Miss.

Five FBI agents in two automobiles took part in Pearson's arrest at Tunica, about 40 miles southwest of here, yesterday.

Three Red MIG Jets Damaged; Fighting Light

8th ARMY HEADQUARTERS, KOREA, Jan. 15 (UP)—American Sabrejets drew their first blood since Friday by damaging 2 Communist Mig-15 jet fighters today in a 15-minute dogfight over northwest Korea.

Thirty-six of the Sabres battled 40 Migs between 37,000 and 5,000 feet over Sinaju in 'Mig Alley'. The damaged enemy jets were claimed by 1st Lt. Billy B. Lobb of Fontana, Calif., and 1st Lt. Robert W. Smith of York, Pa.

The claims boosted the 8th Air Force's score to 163 Migs destroyed, 31 probably destroyed, and 339 damaged.

Other United Nations jets, flying as a screening force for 5th Air Force fighter-bombers, sighted 150 more Migs and exchanged fire with them. No further claims were made, however, pending examination of the gun camera films.

F-84 Thunderjets blasted a large Communist hand grenade factory near Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, with napalm and 500-pound fire bombs. Explosions shook the building and sent smoke and flames 300 or 400 feet overhead. Pilots estimated the factory was 75 per cent destroyed.

On the ground, U.N. forces beat off a Communist probing attack in a four-hour fight on the east-central front.

The enemy assault was launched by at least 200 Reds against a U.N. bridgehead on the east bank of the Pukhan River southeast of Kumsong. The allies held their ground and finally sent the beaten enemy reeling north.

The only other action along the 145-mile front reported in an allied position northwest of Kamsong on the east coast. It was reported in 10 minutes.

Mother Tosses Son To Death; Jumps Herself

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 15 (UP)—A mother threw her two-month-old son to his death from atop a five-story sanitarium and then hurled herself from the roof in a suicide leap, authorities said today.

Kent County deputy sheriff Arthur Tanis said Mrs. Matilda Reinhart, 39, rushed up the fire escape of Sunshine Tuberculosis Sanitarium last night with her son, Allen, in her arms.

She swung to the roof, Tanis said, threw Allen off and then followed.

The infant was killed instantly. The mother died in a hospital with out regaining consciousness.

Tanis said Mrs. Reinhart was not a patient at the sanitarium. He said she lived with her accountant husband, Floyd, about three miles from here and had driven to the institution in the family car. He said there was no explanation for her actions.
