TEMPORARILY SPEAKING

By Irma Parker

Well seems when a job, big or small has to be done they call on the women.

Was that way with the Eastland Memorial hospital and that's the way it is with the new Armstrong-Browning building in Waco. Dr. Armstrong and his committee have mailed out circulars to the club women of Texas porting the new building as it sets out so says the pamphlet, "No Grass—No Trees—No Nothing. Indeed the new building does look sort of like a plucked chicken.

Then at the bottom of the little pamphlet there is a picture of the building fully clothed with a setting of grass, beautiful shrubs and a well placed trees, showing how the building would look if the committee could raise only $25,000.00

To quote Mr. Armstrong it is "Inconceivable" to build a million and a half dollar Palace and let it stand for two years on a common filled with mudholes. He continues it is as absurd as for a woman to wear a $10,000.00 gown with brogan shoes.

Seems Mr. Armstrong sent one of the pamphlets to Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland, who is now spending the summer with her mother in Gleasondale, Mass and she answered him in the following manner.

Dr. A. J. Armstrong,
Baylor University,
Waco, Texas

"Dear Dr. Armstrong:
Your appealing "No Grass—No Trees—No Nothing" reminds me of the Hull House prize-winning three-act play based on the origin of the American Flag. I am sure you have heard it.

Act 1. Sentry to Sentry:
"Gee, we ain't got no flag"
Sentry to Sentry: "Gee, ain't that fierce, Let's tell George about it."
Act two, scene: Washington's tent.

Sentry to George:
"George, we ain't got no flag."
George to Sentry:
"Gee ain't that fierce. Let's go tell Betsy about it."
Act Three, scene: Betsy Ross House.

George and Sentries enter.
George to Betsy:
"Betsy, we ain't got no flag."
Betsy:
"Gee, ain't that fierce. George, you hold the baby and I'll make one."

Curtain.
The same vim and ability asking for what you have needed for your beloved palace of dreams has made it a reality"

Emily Gleason Perkins
Dr. Armstrong liked Mrs. Perkins' answer so well that he used it in an additional pamphlet, headed it S.O.S. and is mailing it out to the club Women of Texas.

Turkey Growers Meet In Ranger Thursday Night

Thursday, June 19, Ranger will be host to a meeting of the Central Texas Turkey Growers Association in the Ladies Community Clubhouse. The meeting will get underway at 8 p.m.

Two experts on turkey growing from Fort Worth will be at the meet and will deliver talks on topics of current interest to the raisers.

The Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce will serve refreshments at the meeting. The chamber has also mailed individual letters of invitation to all members of the association.

Yarborough To Speak, Eastland Friday, June 26

Judge Ralph Yarborough, candidate for Governor, will speak at Eastland on June 26, in interest of his campaign for the governorship of Texas.

He will bring to the folks of this section his story, his aims and his ambitions when he is elected Governor.

Yarborough opened his statewide stump speaking campaign in Athens with a speech before some town folks in which he "rattled the bones of the skeletons in the closet of the present administration" as he put it. He told how the governor had hedged about calling a special session of the Legislature when people demanded a change in the auto inspection law and charged that the governor was responsible for the state's "insidious attempt to gain county road building powers in the last legislature."

On his road trip through Texas, Yarborough has declared that there is "corruption" at the state level and pointed to a Travis County grand jury report to back him up. The grand jury said: "testimony given before the grand jury would indicate—that often in the past no report for political reasons or otherwise has been made to the grand jury when obvious violations had been detected."

Judge Yarborough called for restoration of the Narcotics Division of the State Department of Public Safety.

Tournament At Cisco Will Be Well Attended

CISCO, June —Approximately 100 golfers are expected to compete for more than $1,000 in merchandise prizes in the 17th annual Cisco Country Club Invitation Golf Tournament here this week-end. President Charles L. Cofer expects a fast field of the area's top amateurs for the meet.

Qualifying began Monday for all except those who expect to shoot for medal honors. The medalist will be the low shooter in an 18-hole tour Friday. Defending Champion Jackie Milner will be on hand to enter this year's meet. He is a Cisco student at North Texas State.

Friday's program calls for the annual barbecue and Calcutta pool to follow the final day of qualifying. Match play begins Saturday morning: Two preliminary rounds will be played Saturday, followed by the semi-finals, and finals on Sunday.

Cofer said the Cisco course is in top shape for the meet. The new bent grass greens are in excellent condition.

Sally Cooper Is New Sweetheart For Rotary Club

Sally Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cooper, 513 South Daugherty, has been chosen sweetheart of the Rotary Club. Alene Vaughan, outgoing sweetheart, is moving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vaughan, to Robert Lee, Tex.

Miss Cooper will be a senior in Eastland high school next term, and is an accomplished young lady. She is one of Mrs. Taylor's best music students, and Rotarians feel they are fortunate in having her associated with them as sweetheart.

Contested Texas GOP Votes Peacemaker To Be Decided

The Republican National Committee picks a peacemaker today in the bitter fight over the Texas delegation.

A decision will be made on whether the Chicago convention or the Texas state G.O.P. committee should make final decisions on most of the disputed votes.

The dispute involves 38 delegates. Backers of Senator Robert Taft swung the votes to Taft at the state convention after calling pro-Eisenhower delegates Democrats in disguise.

The Eisenhower forces then bolted the convention and help one of their own. Now two separate 38-man delegations from Texas are competing for official recognition. Eisenhower forces have been demanding the issue be settled at the Chicago convention itself. They say the Texas republican committee is dominated by Taft supporters.

Fellowship Class First Christian Church Entertain With "Fish Fry"

The Fellowship Class of the First Christian Church, together with their friends, enjoyed an old time fish fry and fellowship hour at the Annex Tuesday evening.

Invitations were not limited to class or church members, for many guests were strictly outsiders, some even affiliated with other churches. The program was not a long drawn out affair, but rather limited to male quartet singing and "fish eating." The quartet was composed of the following: Kenneth Mayhall, Pete Rogers, Tommy Nichols, and Luther Black.

Rev. Otto Marshall, church pastor, served as "chef" and there is a move, now on foot, to get him to quit preaching and devote full time to the culinary arts. He was ably assisted by other "chefs" including Dr. Eurt Barrow, John Collins was elected dishwasher, and the last we heard from him was when he was raving about the group throwing dirty dishes onto the freshly washed ones.

The menu was catfish and the trimmings. Some say the fish was shipped over here from England, others insisted they were caught in the Black Forest Lake in Louisiana, though they tasted very much like the Brazos river variety. Nobody knows for sure where they came from, unless it would be Pastor Marshall or the pianoist. They were good, and that is all that was necessary. There were beans, potato salad, potato chips, onions and other important items to make the feast a never-to-be-forgotten one.

W. B. Harris is president of the Fellowship Class. M. L. Keasler was chairman of the entertainment committee, and E. K. Henderson is teacher.

Those present at the banquet included M. L. Keasler, W. B. Harris, Ben Hammer, Homer Stiffler, W. E. Lewis, A. T. Squires, H. E. Wood, J. A. Baird, E. K. Henderson, J. E. Harkrider, Sam Gamble, Jack Filon, Dr. Eurt Barrow, Rev. Otto Marshall, Joe Tow, W. C. Hammon, Geo. Fox, John Collins, H. P. McMoey, Henry Ferrell, and Dr. R. N. Whitehead.

James Wright, M. H. Perry, L. Huckabay, Guy Robinson, C. J. Germany, Homer Pittman, Porter Woods, Lon Horn, L. C. Walker, supporters.

In Denver, a spokesman for Eisenhower says the general entered the presidential race, because he looks upon Taft as an "isolationist." The spokesman says Eisenhower believes that election of Taft would be an "International Catastrophe."

Taft, himself, spoke on the international situation in a Washington speech today. He said that unless the United States has control of the air, Russia with 400 bombers could wipe out London and Paris and reach this country from Siberia. Taft said he doubts we have adequate air strength today.

The Ohio Senator also said that continued nationwide emergency strikes such as that in the steel industry might make it necessary for the government to "prohibit or limit nationwide bargaining in some way."

Eastland Has 4 H-SU Students, Summer Session

Four students from Eastland, Texas are among the nine hundred students enrolled for the summer session at Hardin-Simmons University, Dean Robert A. Collins, director of the summer session has announced.

The students are Norman N. Richardson, Mrs. Sue B. Goods, William H. Stanley, and Ruby Harbin.

Summer classes for the first six-weeks term at H-SU began June 5, and will continue through July 12. A second six-weeks term will be held July 15-August 25. Summer commencement and baccalaureate exercises are scheduled for August 24-25. Other special summer school features will include a workshop in public school music and a curriculum seminar, June 18-July 2; a choral school, July 13-19, and the thirtieth annual band school and music recreation camp, July 21 to August 1.

Texan Takes Stand In Own Kidnap Case

By United Press
Thirty-one-year-old Louis B. Conley of Amarillo was taken from his Brockton, Massachusetts, jail cell today to tell his story of the alleged beating of his wife and kidnapping of his daughter five years ago.

Conley was called to the witness stand after the state rested its case in his kidnapping and assault trial. His divorced wife testified that Conley hit her and her mother with brass knuckles on June 26th, 1947, and then kidnaped his daughter, Lynette, from her crib and took her to Texas. The girl is still living with his relatives in Amarillo. Conley has been in jail two years on contempt charges because he refuses to take her back to Brockton.

Olden Baptists Announce Revival

C. Melvin Rathel, pastor of First Baptist Church, Eastland, will do the preaching, and Rev. Alfred Nelson of Olden will have charge of the song services at the big revival which will begin at the Olden Baptist Church Friday night, June 20, and will continue through June 29th.

There will be two services daily. The first at 7 o'clock in the morning and the other at 8 in the evening. The public is invited to attend any or all of the services.

Insurance Group Now In Eastland

On another page in this issue of the Telegram will be found a full page advertisement from the Commercial Travelers Casualty Co., of Dallas, whose district offices are at Abilene.

The company is offering hospitalization insurance of a superior type, it is claimed. The Mahon-Crawford Agency of Abilene has representatives in the Eastland territory at this time.

Swedish Divers Awaiting Look At Lost Plane

By United Press
Swedish divers are standing by in the Baltic Sea, ready to go down to the sunken wreckage of a training plane which has become the center of growing tension between Sweden and Russia.

One search plane was shot down by Russian fighter planes while hunting for the trainer, and Sweden has denied Soviet charges that the search plane fired first on the Soviet craft.

Newspapers in Stockholm and other cities already have charged that Russian fighters also shot down the trainer.

Today, the divers may find out for sure. Sweden's King Adolf has told his people—"we are vigorously determined to defend ourselves with arms in hand if warfare should come to our country."

Judge Pearson Speaks To Lions

The Lion Club's weekly meeting and luncheon was well attended this week, and our new president, Bruce Pipkin, says he hopes other increases will follow. He also stated that he has hopes that the club will find it convenient to sponsor some worthwhile activity, institution or organization.

Judge L. R. Pearson of Ranger had charge of the program which was a kind of round robin talk on legal matters. The judge told his hearers that he was not going to tell them what "is" the law, but rather what "ain't" the law.

Peace officers can not arrest, jail and hold people for suspicion or investigation. The general belief is that a person may be arrested and held for 24 hours simply because some officer wants to "investigate." It is a common practice, but is an unlawful one, he said.

Some people have an idea that if a man is "dunned" on Sunday, for a debt, that it marks the bill paid. Wrong again. If you owe somebody and the debt is due they have a legal right to ask you to pay at any time or place, Sunday included.

Then there are people who say they would like to punch an individual in the nose, and would do it, only that individual wears glasses and they are not allowed to hit him. According to law the glasses mean nothing, so if you feel lucky, go right on and punch him. Of course if the glasses should be broken and his eye injured you might run into a difficulty that would prove expensive. Though the fact that you had a fight with a man who wore glasses, means very little, legally. The address was well received and the judge may come back again, it was said.

Yellowjackets Win Cisco Game

The Yellowjackets are giving a good account of themselves everywhere they go. The game at Cisco Monday night proved quite interesting. A team composed of colored players from Eastland and Cisco played a good game, but lost to the Jackets by a score of 6 to 9.

It has been agreed to play seven innings, and at the close of the 7th the score stood 3 to 2 in favor of the Yellowjackets, but when a clamour went up to "keep on playing" the boys agreed and finished a regular 9-inning game.

Rodney Stephen pitched, and he did some good work his manager said.

The Jackets will clash with the Cisco Baptist team Saturday night at the ABC field in Cisco.

It is rumored that Eastland is likely to have two new Pee Wee teams within a very few days. The first group will be composed of boys from 10 to 12 years of age, and the second will be for boys from 12 to 15 years of age.

"Sympathy" Will Be Given Steel Price Hearing

WASHINGTON, June 18 (UP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam says the steel industry has been promised its application for a price increase will receive a "friendly and sympathetic" consideration if it negotiates a wage contract with the striking steelworkers. Putnam says the increase to be considered would be above three-dollars a ton.

Putnam says he and acting Defense Mobilizer John Steelman talked about a price increase of four-and-a-half dollars a ton, "among other things." But he adds, no figure was agreed upon. Putnam says the discussion came up during the latest steel wage negotiations, and that Steelman promised the industry a "friendly and sympathetic hearing."

Protest Made Of "Buzzing" Beach By Light Plane

A formal protest against a report of "buzzing" a crowded Freeport beach is said to be en route to the Civil Aeronautics Authority at Houston.

Meanwhile CAA officials are continuing their investigation of the affair. Statements have been taken from Bert Wheeler, Houston liquor dealer, who identified himself as pilot of the light plane which landed on the beach Saturday, and from other persons.

Wheeler said his plane was having engine trouble and he sought the beach for an emergency landing.

Old Age Increase Bill Sent To Senate Today
The House bill increasing old-age insurance benefits by about five dollars a month now goes to the Senate. The Finance Committee will decide whether hearings on the bill should be held.

And the President's plan to cut political patronage from the government service comes up for a Senate vote. The reorganization program would take postmasters and federal marshals out of politics—put them under civil service.

Moisture For Crops Depleting

By United Press
Another hot, sultry day is in store for Texans today with more 100-plus temperatures and still no relief in sight. Yesterday's temperatures ranged from the high of 105 at Presidio to Galveston's 87. Overnight, it was no cooler than Marfa's 62 and ranged upwards to 77 degrees at Dallas, Palacio and Presidio.

Residents of the Lubbock area were blessed with a thundershower which dumped 1.13 inches of rain. Dalhart, in the Panhandle, had eight hundredths of the only other moisture recorded in the state.

Weathermen say the outlook for today and tomorrow is for clear to partly cloudy weather and continued hot. The forecast says West Texans can expect some widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers.

In Austin, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that hot, open weather combined with steady winds and growing crops is rapidly depleting moisture reserves over most of Texas. The USDA says rain will be needed soon in all areas to maintain progress, particularly for feed crops.

The report said crops and pastures made rapid development last week, and in the northwest, cotton and sorghum planting was pushed toward completion. The department says the oat harvest is in full swing and yields are "very good." However, the wheat harvest is dragging on the high plains where combine crews are waiting for the crop to ripen.

A blanket of warm air is covering the east, but prespiring residents are hoping for the best.

A cool front reached the Atlantic coast last night, bringing slight relief. But eastern residents still are looking forward to a second cold front which is moving over the great plains toward the seaboard.

The midwest already has received some relief from the heat wave. And crop forecasters say that farmlands in Kansas and Minnesota are in fine shape despite the hot weather.

In Washington, the weather bureau has a little bad news for most everyone. It predicts that the temperature in most of the nation will be above normal during the next 30 days.

Baird Musical Jamboree Will Be Held Friday

Baird's Musical Jamboree will be held on Friday night, June 20, and people in this area are invited to be present.

Those who wish to appear on the program, should contact E. P. (Pop) Whitaker of Baird, at the earliest possible moment, so that he will have time to arrange your time.

The Jamboree is a free entertainment. Band Mothers of the High School band will sell cold drinks, etc, but everything else will be free.

Arson Suspected In Fire Killing 7 In Tenement

BROOKLYN, June 18 (UP)—A fire has swept two upper stories of a tenement in Brooklyn, N. Y., killing seven persons, including two young mothers and their children.

Fire officials say the fire apparently had been set in the building's second floor hallway by a fire bug. Firemen began questioning neighbors and sifting the ruins for evidence of arson as the bodies of the victims were carried to the street.

Alias Basil Willing

By Helen McCloy

THE STORY: An unscrupulous hit man who might be a private detective, Jack Duggan, dies after being poisoned apparently at the home of Dr. Zimmer, a psychiatrist, where he had posed as Basil Willing. Basil had threatened to expose Duggan, but he died before he could explain. Duggan's last words were "no bird song." Basil and inspector Foyle question Dr. Zimmer and learn the names of other guests, which include Katharine Shaw, a blind woman who apparently mistook Basil for the impostor.

VII
LONG after midnight Basil Willing told Gisela, his wife, the whole story. He had found her in a chair, he wasn't sure whether she was asleep or dozing over a book.

"What did Miss Shaw say?" she asked when he had finished.

"It was after midnight when we left Zimmer's. Miss Shaw is over 80, an invalid. Foyle did telephone. Her nephew, Brinsley, said that Miss Shaw couldn't possibly come to the telephone—she had taken a sedative and gone to bed. Foyle asked Brinsley if he knew either Jack Duggan or Basil Willing without referring to the masquerade or mentioning the fact that Duggan was dead. Brinsley replied that he knew nothing and cared less about anyone named Duggan or Willing. Miss Dean, the companion, said that Dr. Willing was a friend of Miss Shaw's but that she had never heard of Jack Duggan. So Foyle made an appointment to see Miss Shaw tomorrow."

"Poor little Duggan!" Gisela sighed. "Did you know that he was here tonight?"
"Here?" At this house? Basil frowned.

"I'm guessing," she admitted. "But when I came home Juniper said a man called to see you just after you went out—a small man who was disturbed when he learned you were not at home. He didn't give his name or leave any message."

"So that's why Duggan was in this neighborhood?"
"I believe he did."

"He must've thought it significant," went on Gisela. "Or he wouldn't have wasted his last breath on it. Perhaps he was trying to tell you about some 'Belle Dame Sans Merci' and to his wandering mind this quotation seemed the quickest way to express the idea of such a woman."

"Was he quoting at all?" mused Basil. "Or was he just telling me about a place where no birds sang? As he didn't live to tell me about the place—or the time?"
"The time must be now, spring, when you expect to hear birds chirping," said Gisela.
"And the place?"
"Almost anywhere. Even in a

New Nature Of Bernard Shaw Comes To Light

By United Press

The late Bernard Shaw was known for his sharp tongue and pen. Put it turns out he also had a soft and sentimental side. The fact is revealed in the more than 130 love letters written by the English playwright to the Edwardian actress, Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

A glimpse at the letters, to be sold at auction this month, shows the writer and critic could be as cloying as a schoolboy hit by calf love.

There is little of the satiric writer in this sentence from one of the letters, "I have lived two whole days without seeing you, and now I know that I can go through anything."

Shaw neglected his work to write to Mrs. Campbell. In one day he wrote her two long letters. Part of one said, "you have picked the work of nature to pieces and remade it whole heavens finer."

city you hear sparrows and pigeons early in the morning before traffic noises get too loud. If only you knew where Duggan had been the last few days. . . ."

Basil closed his eyes wearily and leaned his cheek against her knee. Her fingers touched his hair. "Didn't you say Duggan was utterly unlike you, physically and mentally?"
"I hope so." He opened his eyes with a grin.

"Then how did he expect to convince other people that he was you?"
"He must have known that the people he was dealing with didn't know me by sight," said Basil. "So he trusted to gambler's luck that he wouldn't run into anyone else who did know me by sight while he was with them. Tonight his luck ran out. Even without me, Mrs. Yorke would have known him for an impostor the moment he said he was Dr. Basil Willing."

Gisela spoke softly, "Perhaps that was why he had to die tonight."

"You're very suspicious of Rosamund Yorke?"
"I'm probably jealous!" confessed Gisela. "But she wasn't the only one with an inkling of the truth before Duggan died. When he was announced as 'Willing' both Zimmer and Miss Shaw must've realized something was wrong, since both thought they had greeted Willing already and only 12 guests were expected."

"I believe he did."

"He must've thought it significant," went on Gisela. "Or he wouldn't have wasted his last breath on it. Perhaps he was trying to tell you about some 'Belle Dame Sans Merci' and to his wandering mind this quotation seemed the quickest way to express the idea of such a woman."

"Was he quoting at all?" mused Basil. "Or was he just telling me about a place where no birds sang? As he didn't live to tell me about the place—or the time?"
"The time must be now, spring, when you expect to hear birds chirping," said Gisela.
"And the place?"

THE noon sun shone brightly on their breakfast table. Gisela poured coffee and Juniper laid an early edition of the evening paper beside Basil's plate. He glanced through the latest story of a senator calling a cabinet officer a Communist, skimmed through a book review of the greatest novel of the century—the fifth this month.

His glance crossed the obituary headlines and paused. His mind hardly took in the words as his eyes read them:

"Miss Katharine Shaw dies in sleep. . . . Head of old New York family."

London Medics Want Queen To 'Take It Easy'

By United Press

The Medical Press of London wants Queen Elizabeth to take it easy.

It thinks the ceremonial functions she must attend should be limited to about half those her late father, King George VI, undertook.

Says the medical association, "few of us can doubt that it was his sense of duty that contributed to the death of the Queen's father. A decision to sharply limit her commitments is urgently required."

Harriman Wins District Vote

By United Press

Democratic presidential contender W. Averell Harriman says his victory in the District of Columbia primary gives his confidence to carry on his fight for the nomination based on the principles of the late President Roosevelt and President Truman.

Harriman picked up six national convention delegates by scoring a runaway victory in the primary, scoring 14,000 votes to 3000 for Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

However, residents of the District of Columbia can express their preference only in the primary. They can't take part in the election itself.

Cherokee Tribe In Great Smokies To Re-enact History In Pageant

CHEROKEE, N. C. (UP)—In the shadows of the Western Hemisphere's romantic Great Smoky mountains, the descendants of the once-mighty Cherokee nation are painstakingly erecting an exact replica of an ancestral village. It will be inspected this summer by thousands of visitors from all over the country who will attend the famed historical drama of the tribe's removal to the west. As did their forebears, the dark-eyed Oconaluftee—By the River. When it is complete it will contain a council house, wigwams and log houses inside the 1600 logs of its palisade.

When they have finished their labor, the Cherokees will continue to stand by silently as they watch audiences, expected to outnumber the total attracted by the other three full-season outdoor dramas in the United States crowd in to see "Unto These Hills." A few of them may appear in the past before the audiences which for the past two seasons have necessitated a permanent standing-room-only sign on the box office.

Last year the tribe's Eastern Band, as the North Carolina remnant is called, saw more than 150,000 people make their way into seats in the natural amphitheater nestled in the side of the Great Smoky Mountains.

They came to see the story of a people who invented their own alphabet, set up printing presses and elected a government which sent ambassadors to Washington—only to find themselves living on the site of the first major gold strike in what is now the United States.

The music, dances and brief sketches of Cherokee vocabulary included in the pageant depicting the removal of most of the Cherokees to Oklahoma helped sell 107,000 tickets in 1950, the year "Unto These Hills" first went before the footlights. Standing-room tickets were sold every night of its three-month run.

Last year the spectacle swelled its attendance to 151,744. The audiences included visitors from every state in the Union and Canada.

Hoard Of Steel Seen In African Bushlands

By Noel Mostert
United Press Staff Correspondent
PRETORIA, South Africa—Great Mountains of iron across the bushlands north of this capital city soon may start feeding hungry steel mills in South Africa and eventually throughout the world.

The khaki-colored countryside in the vicinity of Airlie, Transvaal, is estimated to be the biggest medium-grade ore reserve in the world. The South African-financed Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, using the German-developed Krupp-Renn process, expects to start production within the year. At first, the ore will move only to South African plants which, like those all over the world, are suffering an acute steel shortage.

It is intended that as soon as large-scale production gets started, shipments will be made to adjoining African territories and overseas. The strategic implication of the new deposits is considerable. By becoming self-sufficient in steel, South Africa ceases to be a drain on the vital British and North American industries through import.

Instead, the country not only is able to be lavish with blueprints for its own industrial expansion but also will be able to boost adjoining underprivileged areas. Industrial construction in areas such as Rhodesia and the Belgian Congo, sorely pressed through lack of steel, will be assisted with the ultimate benefit passing to Africans in increased employment.

To start with, the new South African ore plants will produce 70,000 tons a year. Technical manager of the plant is Martin Gubitz, former chief engineer and deputy production manager of the Hermann Goering Works, Germany.

Gubitz is assisted by a squad of engineers from the Krupp works. The main iron mountain at Airlie dominates a beautiful valley where a new township is expected to rise. It rises 3,500 feet above the valley, with the ore occurring in three layers. It is estimated that 118,000,000 tons of iron ore is buried in the surface layer alone.

This ore could meet all South Africa's requirements for several hundred years. The iron content is about 47 per cent.

So far, the central and bottom layers have not been explored but it is believed that together they represent one of the largest reserves of medium-grade ore in the world.

The search for iron ore is not confined to the Airlie region. The Bethlehem Steel Corp., one of the two largest U. S. steel corporations, has obtained prospecting rights over a vast area of South West Africa, led by Dr. E. T. Hodge, the firm's representative in Africa.

The prospecting is expected to start in June and will continue for three years, with up to 50 geologists engaged in the work.

Dr. Hodge predicted that if worthwhile ore discoveries were made in South West developments of the area would follow the same lines as that undertaken by the company at El Pao, Venezuela. Railways and harbors would be built or existing facilities improved upon to get the ore to shipping points.

Coat Wise Washable Fabrics Exciting News

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Ever think the day would come when you'd wash out a coat at night, hang it up to dry and find it looking like new and ready to wear the next morning? That day is here. A pastel coat with no cleaning bills attached has been the dream of many women for many years. The dream is an actuality now, made possible by fluffy orlon fleece that is completely and beautifully washable.

BY GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

It takes to the suds at night, just as your nylons do, goes on a hanger for drying and is ready for wearing when you get up in the morning. And, of course, it needs no ironing.

It's shown (left) in white, with pointed collar, turn-back cuffs adjustable to any sleeve length and pretty but unexaggerated fullness.

A Leeds design, it's the kind of coat, in short, that you can wear and wear without fear of grime or smudges. In addition to the white, it's done in pale blue, maize and beige. Equally practical is Main Street's nylon seersucker coat (right) that's a feather-light rain duster. Point for summer travelers is that it takes only a corner in a suit case. It has mandarin collar and deep turn-back cuffs. The practical hood is detachable.

NTSC Chemistry Okayed By ACS

DENTON Tex. June—North Texas State College officials have been notified that the department of chemistry at NTSC has been recognized by the American Chemical Society as a department meeting the standards established by the Committee on Professional Training of Chemists of the A.C.S. The NTSC department of chemistry is the fourth department in Texas to be so recognized.

Changes in curriculum additions to the staff of instruction and improvement in classroom research facilities were necessary during a 10-year period in order to receive approval by the society.

Seaway Project Bill Sent To Committee

The St. Lawrence Seaway project is dead for this session of Congress.

The Senate killed it today by voting to send the measure proposing a joint United States undertaking of the project back to the foreign relations committee.

The lawmakers voted 43 to 40 to channel the bill back to committee despite an 11th hour plea by President Truman for support of the water and power project.

Mr. Truman told the Senate it would be "one of the nation's worst economic mistakes" to let the seaway project fail by default.
